CITY'S LEGAL COM. DEAL WITH SEVERAL CLAIMS AGAINST CORPORATION

The City's Legal Committee met last night. There were present Mayor Morrow, Chairman Ald. Graham, Aldermen Anderson, Bradburn and Edgar.

In regards to Jas. O'Connell's claim of $500 damages to his property on south side of Smith street, by reason of grading the approaches to Smith street bridge, the solicitor reported that nearly the whole of O'Connell's house, according to Cameron's survey, is on the city property. Mr. O'Connell will be notified to this effect and asked to remove his house from off the roadway.

Regarding recompense asked by Jos. Aikie and D. Bellegdem for damages to their rigs incurred by the running away of a town team, City Engineer Hay will be asked to report.

John H. Briggs is asking $50 loss of wages and doctor's bill for medical attendance, incurred through being struck down as alleged by complainant, by either a fire hose or the water therefrom at Brock street bridge, on the morning of June 30th, when the fire brigade were testing their apparatus. In this connection Chief Howard and two of the firemen directly interested state in writing that Mr. Briggs was at fault. He had been warned to move from his danger point at the bridge, but did not do so. The hose burst at the nozzle and knocked down a fireman and Mr. Briggs.

Moved by Mayor Morrow and seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That this matter be left in the hands of the solicitor and chairman with a view to settlement.—Carried.

CHAMBERS ST. AND PORTION OF HUNTER ST. MAY BE ASPHALT BLOCK PAVED THIS FALL

BOARD OF WORKS WILL REPORT TO COUNCIL MONDAY NIGHT, RECOMMENDING SUCH ACTION.

Time and Conditions, However, May Not Permit of Both Sections being Paved This Fall—Is Doubtful if All Connections on Hunter, From Park Street to Belmont Avenue, Are Made.

The City Board of Works met last night. There were present Mayor Morrow, Chairman Metheral and Aldermen Anderson, Graham, Bradburn Edgar and Buller.

Mr. Reid, representing the Asphalt Block Co., Windsor, was present.

Two sections of Asphalt paving have been petitioned for—Chambers street and Hunter street west, from Park to Belmont avenue.

Ald. Buller offered that as Lindsay have experienced some trouble with their asphalt block street paving and Peterborough should go slow until more conversant with this system of road surface.

Ald. Graham replied that a Lindsay citizen had informed him that the pavement in question is highly satisfactory.

Ald. Buller incidentally suggested that if asphalt papement is to become standard for our streets, it should be laid by the city contractors and city workmen. He also offered that the ratepayers to be affected, should be consulted as to which class of pavement they prefer—block or sheet.

Mr. Reid said his people would be quite satisfied for local contractors and men to lay their pavement

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Buller,—That Chambers street be paved with 2½ inch asphalt blocks this fall as a test.

Ald. Anderson wanted Hunter street west coupled with Chambers street in the foregoing resolution.

Ald. Buller, the seconder, had no objection, but held out that residents on Hunter street should choose which style of pavement they prefer. He was afraid block pavement would be found too noisy for a resident street.

This was acquiesced in and the motion then carried. Both these streets will therefore be paved with blocks this fall should time and conditions permit.

While all connections—water, gas, sewer—are already made on Chambers street, it is doubtful if like conditions exist on Hunter street west, from Park to Belmont avenue. This of course will be looked into before proceeding with pavement laying.

Of course this action of the Board is subject to approval of Council, which meets Monday night. The company will supply the blocks, the laying of same to be done under contract, local or otherwise, as prices warrant.

PHONE CONNECTION.

The Bell Telephone Co's tender of $40 per annum for supply and maintenance of a service between the new pumping station and fire hall—City to own the apparatus—was accepted.

MR. BARTLETT FOREMAN.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald. Buller,—That the Chairman and City Engineer be authorized to engage Mr. Bartlett as foreman of sewer construction at $3 a day, subject to the supervision of the City Engineer—Carried.

TO PURCHASE PILE DRIVER.

Moved by Mayor Morrow, seconded by Ald. Buller,—That the matter of purchasing a pile driver be left in the hands of the Chairman and Engineer with power to act.

DOWNIE STREET CREEK.

Chairman Metheral reported that work in connection with the diversion of the Downie Street Creek could not be undertaken this year because Mr. Blodgett insisted on a concrete wall, which the Board could not build for lack of funds out of its appropriation.

TO PAY PART OF TAXES.

The treasurer will be authorized to pay $15.15, part of taxes charged against a lot of Messrs. Ackerman on which the city had been piling material.

CITY TAKEN ALL PRECAUTIONS

Chairman Metheral reported that Messrs. Ackerman and Kennear had been interviewed, and advised that in order to avoid flooding of their premises, their sewer service must be raised, the city having done its part to prevent flooding after heavy rainstorms.

Mr. McDonald's request to clapboard a rough cast house at 381 King street, was granted.

NEW CULVERTS WANTED.

The Engineer reported that the cost of two badly needed new culverts on Beaver Mead Creek, East City, would cost $1,455, a portion of which the G.T.R. is liable for. He had so written the company's Superintendent, Mr. Lynch, but who had not yet replied. One of the old culverts—the southern one—is immediately on the G.T.R.'s right of way.

The City Engineer and Solicitor were authorized to take whatever steps are necessary to protect the city's interests in regard to the foregoing.

The City Engineer was authorized to rebuild the northern culvert on Beaver Mead Creek at once.

Teamster Matchett was granted two weeks' holidays.

THE WEATHER.

Southeast winds and a little higher temperature.

CONSERVATIVE HAD BIG MAJ.

Quebec, Sept. 26.—Details so far received give Dr. L. B. Gauthier, the Conservative candidate in Gaspe a majority of 558 over Hon. R. Lemieux. Mr. Girard, Conservative, is elected in Chicoutimi-Saguenay with 1,200 majority.

MAJORITY IN MONTREAL.

Montreal, Sept. 26.—No appreviable changes are announced as a result of the official declaration of election returns in Montreal.

In St. Lawrence, Mr. Bickerdike's majority has been slightly increased as a result of the opening of the boxes. He has been declared elected by 1,068 majority. In all 8,199 ballots were cast, Mr. Bickerdike securing 4,464, Mr. Johnston 3,376, and Mr. Cotton 359.

In St. Mary's, Mederic Martin's majority is the same as announced on Thursday, 2,177.

In Hochelaga, Louis Codrre's majority is reduced by 24, he being accredited with 1,373. The total vote for Mr. Codrre goes up from 7,150 to 7,178, while the figures for Mr. Rivet change from 5,753 to 5,805.

In St. James, the original majority of 1,514 given to Mr. L. A. Lapointe is sustained by a verification of the returns. Mr. Lapointe led his opponent in 69 of the 79 polls in the division.

In St. Anne's the result remains unchanged, Mr. Doherty being declared the elected member by a majority of 753.

A SENSATION IN DAKOTA

Dearwood, S.D., Sept. 27.—Testifying that her husband and John W. Butler, a fourth cavalry musician, were in a plot to blow up the Home Stake Mine and that they had been so employed by the Western Federation of Miners, Mrs. Robert Emmett O'Grady, wife of one of the defendants has sprung a sensation in the Butler trial. Butler and O'Grady are charged with attempting to blow up the Home Stake Mine in April, 1910.

Mrs. O'Grady declared that Butler came to them in Fall River, Colo., saying he was a representative of the Federation and that O'Grady was wanted to blow up the mine. She said O'Grady told her he was to be paid $1,000 for the job.

CAST A GLOOM OVER FRANCE

Paris, Sept. 26.—The disaster to the Liberte has cast a gloom over the entire country. Public pride and interest in the navy had greatly increased of late. In all parts of France public bodies adopted resolutions of sympathy. President Fallieres has received telegrams in addition to that sent by Emperor William, from the Kings of Belgium, Spain, Italy, Denmark and Norway. Most of the ambassadors called at the Foreign Office to express condolence. The President of the Republic has cancelled all engagements and will be present in person at the funeral of the victims.

HON. MR. KING'S PLANS.

Won't Stay in Berlin—He Badly Needs a Rest.

Berlin, Ont., Sept. 26.—Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King has no definite plans for the future. On his return from Ottawa he will be tendered a banquet by the local Reform Association after which he will take a much needed rest. It is very unlikely that he will remain in Berlin as announced.

Used Shell as a Hammer.

New York, Sept. 26.—Mrs. Anna Halpit took a loaded one-pound shell from the mantel in her uptown home last night to use as a hammer in driving a bothersome tack out of the heel of her shoe. She struck the percussion cap in the base of the projectile, and in the explosion which followed she received injuries which probably will result in her death.

ANDREW CARNEGIE AND THE ROMAN CHURCH IN QUEBEC

A Quebec Church Newspaper Sees a Deep-Laid Plot Against the Church

Saturday Night, in that fearless manner, characteristic of that excellent paper, has something to say regarding the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church in Quebec in connection with the Carnegie libraries. Our contemporary says:

A millionaire's lot is not a happy one. Keeping his money he is stigmatized as mean, stingy and parsimonious. Spending it with lavish hand upon works which he considers beneficial to mankind he is sometimes called an infidel, an arch conspirator and an alleged philanthropist. The present subject of these attacks is our old Scotch-American friend, Andrew Carnegie, and the journal which persists in vilifying him is L'Action Sociale of Quebec.

For the benefit of those who are unacquainted with this journal, it may be pointed out that it is a papfed newspaper, said pap being furnished by the Roman Church of Quebec. Its counts against Mr. Carnegie are two in number. First, he has presumed to give the public on two continents free libraries, and secondly, he has also had the temerity to encourage school teachers by paying the needy ones more money than they formerly received.

L'Action Sociale scents a deep laid plot. It sees the cloven hoof, also a devil with a spiked tail. The only possible reason for Mr. Carnegie giving libraries freely to the public, and funds to encourage teachers in "Godless" schools, is, according to L'Action Sociale, a hellish desire to uproot the Roman Catholic Church. But why should L'Action Sociale, which assuredly speaks for the Roman Church of the province of Quebec, be so concerned about it all? Mr. Carnegie will not surely force his funds upon their school teachers, and as for Carnegie libraries they have long passed them over, with the result that there is not to-day a decent public library in Quebec city, Montreal, or in any other centre of the province of Quebec where the Catholic church holds sway.

Once upon a time Andrew Carnegie proposed giving Montreal a public library very similar to that which now adorns Toronto, and which has proved such a blessing to the Ontario public. However, it was not to be. The Roman Church authorities would not hear of a public library over which they could have no special jurisdiction—in other words, a library in which they would be unable to pick and choose the literary output. The result was that Montreal was oblieed to decline Mr. Carnegie's offer, and that city to-day has not a library worthy of the name.

In the present instance L'Action Sociale mixes up libraries and nonsectarian schools in the following manner:

That notorious millionaire, Mr. Andrew Carnegie feels a desire to vary the form of some have called restitution. Not long ago he was for founding public libraries in every city which would accept one at his hands. Afterwards he undertook to build a Palace of Peace at The Hague. Now he has created a special fund, exclusively designed for the encouragement of teachers employed in schools whence religious teaching is excluded.

The alleged philanthropist is revealing his true intent more and more every day. His proffered libraries were already as so many traps laid for populations easily dazzled by apparent generosity. But the millionaire wanted to take a long step forward, by investing his fortune in a scheme for the dechristianization of the schools.

American Catholics were not slow to check this attack. In emergent Congress, summoned at Chicago they took means to counteract a move, as bold as it is ingenious, to corrupt the teaching staffs by the expectation of personal benefit.

At the very first session Reverend Father Bresnahan, S.J. pointed out the real inwardness of Carnegie's gift. During the closing session, Mgr. Quigley, Archbishop of Chicago delivered an address on the value of religion in the school curriculum. He demonstrated that Christian teaching is the safest bulwark against the rising tide of immorality, vice and indifference that threatens to whelm the American home. And the diocesan pastor substantiated his proposition with striking examples taken in his own pastorate.

After quoting these, and French statistics as well, the paper goes on to say:

These figures have a brutal eloquence, and they should suffice to warn the fathers of families against the ideas propagated on the subject of Church-controlled schools, and especially against the insidiousness of philanthropists of the Carnegie type, who favor with their dollars only those schools whence religion is excluded. His example, gowever, goes to show to what lengths the apostles of the godless schools are prepared to go. Why should not wealthy Canadians, and there are lots of them, surpass the infidel in generosity, in order to lighten the burden of those whose part it is to form generations of believers?

Poor old Carnegie, but thatjs what a man may expect when he has too much money. Having an overabundance of worldly goods is about as bad as having too little. However, he will probably survive the criticisms, and continue the good work of helping along the cause of education by contributing liberally for libraries and toward the salaries of our "Godless" school teachers.

In fighting the cause of better education L'Action Sociale and the men behind it will find a toilsome, uphill grind. They have for years fanned the air in regard to "Godless schools" with no better result than seeing their own schools in the province of Quebec in a pitiable condition, and the proportion of illiterates far in excess of that of any other section of Canada.

DUKE WOULD NOT LISTEN TO THE APOLOGIES MADE

ANY RECEPTION GIVEN HIM BY CANADA WAS GOOD ENOUGH FOR HIM.

Cheered the Bishop—Canada Rather Be Poor and English Than Rich and American.

London, Sept. 26.—The Leeds Mercury said that had the Liberal reverse happened after, instead of before the arrival of the Duke of Connaught, His Royal Highness would have undoubtedly experienced some embarrassment from having to deal with a Government weakened by the knowledge of impending disaster. He has been spared this owing to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's courage and honesty, who scorned to cling to office without the confidence of his countrymen.

The same paper says a Canadian who was introduced to the Duke regretted that the Dominion was not making more elaborate preparations to receive her Royal Governor-General. The Duke replied: "What Canada considers good enough for her Governor-General is good enough for me."

Several newspapers are of the opinion that Lord Strathcona's interviewing of R. L. Borden will likely result in his withdrawal and resignation. Clifford Sifton and Sir Frederick Borden still continue to be the only two names mentioned as his successor.

The Bishop of London drew prolonged cheers at Newcastle when he remarked that Canada preferred to remain poor and English, rather than rich and American.

MISTAKES OF FORMER ADMINISTRATION THAT INVITES NEW ARRANGEMENT

FORMATION OF BORDEN CABINET WILL PROBABLY CONTEMPLATE A READJUSTMENT OF SOME DEPARTMENTS.

To Investigate the Spending Departments—All Three Members of the Famous Blockers Brigade in the House Where They Can Be Reached.

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—One or two bits of work stand invitingly in front of the Conservative Cabinet that is to be.

One is the linking of the Department of Labor to some other department. The experiment of running labor as a separate department, with a Minister with no occupation other than attending to labor disputes, has proved a dismal failure. Mr. Mackenzie King became Minister of Labor early in 1909 and by 1911 he had embroiled himself with the laboring men all over the country.

LABOR DISPUTES AND POLITICS

Earlier in its history this department did comparatively good work; it had as Minister, the Postmaster-General, who had other work to do, and who left the technical work of handling labor disputes to his Deputy Minister, while deciding and assuming responsibilities for questions of policy. As a permanent official, the deputy presumably had no politics to play and could attend to business. Once Mr. King became Minister he rushed into disputes and played politics with the vital interests of the workingmen. Any success which he gained was acclaimed as a proof of the excellence of the Government. He was always looking for political credit and the work of the department naturally was continually a subject of political dispute.

WORK FOR THE DEPUTY MINISTER.

Trade and Commerce has been known for a department with possibilities which lethargic administration left unrealized. If trade and commerce were linked with labor the result would be a compact group, affording a Minister a set of related problems to master. He would be taken away from the temptation to mix with the actual working out of individual labor disputes and could leave them to the present capable and judiciously Deputy Minister, who could be trusted to attend to business and leave politics to politicians.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE.

In this connection an advantageous measure of recognition would be the addition to this group of departments of the Bureau of Census and Statistics. Then there would be a department of commerce, Labor and Statistics. There is no logical reason why statistics should be administered under the Department of Agriculture.

THE ARCHIVES.

Another odd arrangement is that whereby the Archives are regarded as part of the Department of Agriculture. This department surely should be put under the care of the Minister of External Affairs, a department which under Mr. Murphy has been neglected, but which has great possibilities. Or else the Archives, the work of which has a bearing on Public Policy, might be put directly under the Prime Minister.

WORK OF INVESTIGATION.

But a piece of work lying immediately to hand is the investigation of the spending departments. It is a curious fact that all three members of the famous blockers brigade are in the new Parliament. Mr. Carvell seems for the moment to have squeezed through in Carleton. Mr. A. K. MacLean returns and Mr. E. M. MacDonald is among those present. These gentlemen doubtless will be pleased to have the public given a chance to learn what these things were which they strove so sedulously to conceal. Mr. Ames has dropped some hints about the chairmanship of the Public Accounts Committee and assuredly that committee under his presidency could do valuable service in the next two years, constructive as well as investigatory. But in addition it would be a judicious move to appoint say Mr. Justice Cassels as a commissioner to investigate the spending department. Public works is a conspicuous example; so is the Printing Bureau, and the National Transcontinental Commission might welcome the opportunity of explaining the theory of over charges. Judge Cassels with a prosecuting counsel like Wr. Blackstock and a free hand should have an interesting time.

Such are some of the preliminary proceedings which lie before the incoming Government. There should be re-organization. There also should be investigation.

ONE-THIRD OF NEW M.P.'S CLASSIFIED AS LAWYERS

Ottawa, Sept. 26.—Lawyers will be in large majority in the new House, no fewer than 76 gentlemen of the profession having been elected. Farmers come next with 36, and there are 32 merchants.

Next in order come 21 doctors, 17 manufacturers, 10 lumbermen, eight newspapermen, seven notaries, two canners, one law student, one druggist, one labor man, one real estate agent (taking it for granted that Carrick will be elected in Thunder Bay), one live stock exporter, one licensed victualer, and one Hon. G. E. Foster, whose occupation is difficult to define. There are also three stock brokers, one of whom Rodolphe Forget, is elected for two seats.

A Buffalo Suicide.

Buffalo, N.Y., Sept. 26.—Driven insane from worry, is given as the cause of Mrs. Mary Welch, 55, of No. 35 Spruce street, ending her life this morning, by hanging to a bed post in her room. The woman had tied a rope about her neck and attached it to the bed post, and swung to the floor. The body was discovered by her son.

GENERAL STRIKE AS PROTEST AGAINST WAR WITH TURKEY

London, Sept. 26.—A news despatch from Rome says that a general strike throughout Italy will be declared within 24 hours.

The Socialists have arranged for the movement as a protest against the occupation of Tripoli, and it is expected that the strike will be rigidly forced in all the principal cities.

The Socialists alone of the Italian people oppose the Tripolitan programme of the Government.

EXODUS FROM TRIPOLI.

Malta, Sept. 26.—An Italian battleship passed here on Sunday and two Italian cruisers were sighted last evening steaming toward Tripoli. Italians and other Europeans continue to arrive from Tripoli.

TROUBLE OVER TRIPOLI.

Tripoli is a Turkish possession which stretches for 1000 miles along the north coast of Africa between Tunis and Egypt. It has an area of about 400,000 square miles and a population of about a million, mostly Berbers.

Tripoli, the capital, is a city of some 30,000 people.

About ten years ago Italy obtained French recognition of her predominent rights in Tripoli and since that time has sought to develop the country and now has considerable industrial interests there. The latest move on the part of Turkey contemplates the checking of Italy's growing influence in Tripoli and tends to jeopardize Italian interests there.

No Sunday Selling.

Brantford, Ont., Sept. 26.—Brantford City Council last night threatened to cancel the restaurant license of J. A. Spittal, proprietor of King's Hotel, as a temperance house, if he did not cease selling lagerine over his bar on the Sabbath.

Dying of Cholera

Local Physician Says Thousands Dying in Europe Can Be Saved With Proper Medicine.

What is it that keeps down cholera cramps, and summer complaints in America? Ask any doctor or live druggist and he will tell you "Nerviline." Just fancy, a million bottles are sold every year to people who use Nerviline for stomach disorder, cramps, flatulence, and summer complaint. For fifty years in most Canadian homes no other pain-relieving medicine but Nerviline is kept. Nothing cures the aches, pains and sickness of the entire family so quickly as Nerviline.

"As far back as I can remember, at least 50 years ago, there LETTER was never a time that NO. our house was without 4672 'Nerviline.' In the summer time, when the children ate green apples and got sick with diarrhoea and cramps, it was Nerviline that cured them. My father used Nerviline frequently to cure gas on his stomach and acute indigestion. There are but few minor ailments that Nerviline does not cure, and I know of no medicine so useful; in fact, so indispensable around the home as Nerviline.'

This letter, written by Mrs. N. C. Butcher, a well known resident in Battersea, shows the high opinion entertained of Nerviline by those who have used it constantly for nearly half a century.

You'll never regret using Nerviline Get it to-day, keep it on hand for an accident or sudden case of sickness in your home. Refuse anything else offered you instead of Nerviline. Large size bottle 50c. or sample size 25c. All dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industrial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the property, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE:

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

The Following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments:

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

APPLICATION FOR CAPITAL TOCK

I ..... hereby apply for ..... shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each of the Capital Stock of the Canada National Fire Insurance Company at the price of One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars ($115) per share, being at a premium of fifteen (15) per cent.; and I covenant and agree with the said Company to pay for the said shares as follows: Twenty-five dollars per share on application, which shall include the premium of fifteen dollars per share, and the balance in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of nine dollars per share; the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of said shares.

I further agree to accept said shares when they are allotted to me, and I do hereby request that my name be duly registered on the books of the Company as the holder of such shares.

Applications for stock will be filed in the order received, and on approval of same by the Board of Directors a Stock Certificate will be issued and mailed forthwith.

The holder of these shares will be paid the dividends that may be declared on the same from time to time by the Board of Directors. Dividends shall be declared and apportioned in proportion to the amount paid into the Company on the par value of the shares.

Calls on shares may be paid prior to due dates, and when all of such calls have been paid a fully-paid certificate will be issued to the holder of these shares.

These shares are transferable only on the books of the Company by the owner in person or by attorney on surrender of the Certificate of Stock properly endorsed. Transfers shall not be valid unless approved by the Board of Directors.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

SPORTING COLUMN.

PUGILISTS ARE BORN AND NOT MADE.

John L. Sullivan was Intended for the Church. — So Was Jeffries, Whose Father Was a Circuit Rider.

It is as natural for some men to be prizefighters as it is for others to be poets, musicians and artists. Circumstances often develop the pugilistic nature in the successful fighting man, but nobody can become a top-notcher in the prize ring unless he has the natural requirements in his makeup.

John L. Sullivan's parents often declared that they intended their husky son for the church, but that nature made the big fellow a champion prizefighter. It was about the same with the parents of Jeffries. His father, who is a travelling preacher up and down the Western rivers, tried hard to have his big son follow in the same path, but again nature stepped in and declared Jim a gladiator. It is almost always the case that parents of pugilists are opposed to the fighting game.

When Sullivan was a young fellow in South Boston, his father put him to work in a factory to learn the trade of tinker. John had refused to study for the priesthood and wanted to be his own boss. He developed a fondness for baseball, and at each dinner hour, he would join his friends in a game in a nearby lot. The boss of the factory was a big burly fellow who ruled the apprentices with an iron hand. When the whistle blew at one o'clock he would accept no excuses from the boys who were a few minutes late.

One afternoon Sullivan was so taken up with his ball playing that he did not hear the factory whistle and was about ten minutes late when he came back to the shop. With no word of warning the boss rushed at John L. like a cyclone, clouted him in the face and kicked him in the body. Like an infuriated tiger Sullivan turned, and shooting out his mighty right fist he landed on the boss's jaw, sending the latter flying through a window into the yard.

Sullivan lost his job, but it was not long after that he came to be known as "the strong boy." The first time he ever put on a pair of boxing gloves was at a variety entertainment in the Dudley Street Opera House, in Roxbury, Mass. John attended the show not expecting to take any part in it. But it so happened that as a muscular young man named Scannel came on the stage and announced that he was ready to meet anybody in the house some of Sullivan's friends induced him to accept the challenge. So after a parley John climbed over the footlights. He had no boxing togs with him, but just pulled off his coat, rolled up his shirt sleeves and drew on the gloves.

Sullivan and Scannel went at it hammer and tongs. In a mixup John received a terrific blow on the back of his head. His eyes flashed fire and he came back at his antagonist with a punch so hard that Scannel was knocked clean over the piano which was near at hand. That settled Scannel and also started Sullivan on his pugilistic career. From that night on his sole ambition was to become a champion fighter.

Jeffries a Boilermaker

Jeffries began his business career as a boilermaker in Los Angeles. He was fond of swinging the heavy hammer and soon developed great physical strength. Jim was never in the habit of looking for trouble, but when it was up to him he generally sailed in and won. Among his co workers in the boiler factory Jeff soon gained a reputation for his rough and ready fighting ability, so that very few cared to cross his path.

Charles Evans, the Edmonton golfer who made a remarkable showing abroad, lost his first match after returning to America at the Essex County links.

CRANBERRY PICKERS

Many Cape Verde Islanders Work in the Cape Cod Bogs.

To see to the best advantage the preliminaries of cranberry sauce we must visit Cape Cod. Here within a radius of an hour's ride of historic old Plymouth, where the Pilgrims landed, is the greatest of all cranberry districts. This whole countryside would not be considered to make more than a single good sized county in some of our western states, and yet in a season when it is blessed with a good crop this cranberry zone will ship more than a third of a million barrels of the fruit.

The picking season in the early autumn is the time to enjoy the human interest side of the cranberry industry, and yet conditions in this phase of the work have changed so completely during the last few years that natives who come back to the cranberry country after some years in the city declare that the spectacle has lost much of its old time fascination. Students of progress declare that the entry of machinery has revolutionized almost every activity in this age, but it would be difficult to find a realm where there has been a greater upheaval than in the cranberry belt.

In the old days cranberries were all picked by hand — that is plucked one by one, just as raspberries are picked to this day. And nowhere did a picking season have the social significance that it did on Cape Cod. A large portion of the picking was done by women and girls, and it seemed as though the whole countryside turned out for the event.

Hand picking is yet in vogue on some of the cranberry bogs, but this is on the smaller tracts. On the large bogs we see the newly invented picking machine. There are two types. One is a small wooden box of a size to be held in one hand. By pressure of the fingers it opens at one end disclosing jaws armed with rows of teeth. The other style is a wooden scoop with close set iron prongs forming the lower side.

It never fails to surprise tourists who visit Cape Cod for the first time to find a large foreign population, which has no parallel anywhere else in the country and most of whom speak very little or no English. Many of the Cape Verde islanders are true nomads in their visits to the cranberry country, arriving in the spring when cultivation on the bogs opens and remaining until the end of the picking season, late in the autumn, making the trip both ways in sailing vessels that are engaged during the winter months in the coasting trade on the coast of Africa.

A skilful cranberry picker can earn from three to five dollars a day, so that the 'bravas,' as these invaders are called can within a few years save enough to live in affluence in their island home. Under the new conditions not only is the picking of the cranberries done by the aid of machines, but other machines separate and sort the berries.

PROOF THAT ADVERTISING PAYS.

A remarkable tribute to the efficacy of advertising was given by Mr. C. Watson, chairman of Messrs. Joseph Watson and Sons, Ltd., the well-known English soap manufacturers, at the company's annual meeting. In moving the adoption of the report he said they had had to contend with the ridiculous and wasteful advertising of their competitors, and the absurd cutting of prices in the low qualities of soap, this in many cases having been sold many pounds a ton below cost price. The directors had ignored the latter competition, but they could not ignore the wasteful advertising, so they determined to meet this by spending the largest sum they had ever spent in one year in advertising. This was done, and the result had been very gratifying. They had had a very large increase in the sales of their specialities, and their turn-over had been over £100,000 greater than it had ever been in a previous year. The report, which proposed a dividend of 15 per cent. on the ordinary shares, appropriating £3,000 for directors' fees and £1,000 to a pension fund, leaving a balance of £41,035 to be carried forward, was adopted.

SHOWING THAT CIRCUMSTANCES SOMETIMES ALTER CASES.

After he had roughly shaken off the head of the third belated passenger who had sought repose on his shoulder the stout man proclaimed in a voice loud enough to be heard by everybody in the car that the next time anybody went to sleep with his head pillowed on his shoulder he would give that head a good punching, that's what he would do.

The stout man's wife said, "Sh-ah-sh, James. Don't get so violent."

"Violent?" said the stout man. "I've a right to be violent. I'm no pillow. I'm no featherbed. If anybody things I am, just let him come on and I'll show him."

At the next station two women came in and found seats near the stout man. Presently the younger and prettier of the two began to nod. Lower and lower dropped her head, and soon it found a substantial resting place. The stout man sat still; so very still did he sit that his wife wondered what had happened to him. She leaned over and looked past his bulky frame to find out. Her face flushed.

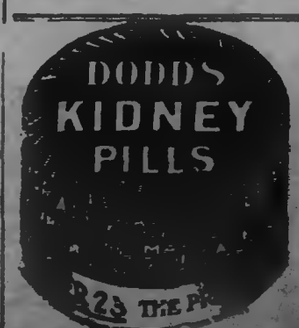
"Why, James," she said indignantly. "Don't you remember what you said a little while ago about punching heads? There's a head on your shoulder now."

"Is there?" said the stout man meekly. "I hadn't noticed it."

It was apparent then that if there was any head punching to be done somebody besides James would have to do it, also it was apparent that somebody was perfectly willing to undertake the job.

"James," said the stout man's wife significantly.

He wriggled uneasily until the head was gently dislodged; then the stout man and his wife changed places.



TAFT NOT HONEST.

Special to The Times.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 25.—The following from the Daily States, of this city, tells its own story:

"If the action of the President on these measures caused the Canadians to doubt the good faith of his professions that the reciprocity scheme was pregnant with benefits for both countries, they cannot be blamed for entertaining such a doubt. Mr. Taft has not impressed them as a man who is honest and sincere in his views on the tariff, and, as a matter of fact, he is not."

Evangelizing Quebec.

Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of the Baptist Church, delivered an interesting and instructive address under the auspices of the "Willing Workers" in the lecture room of the church last night, on the work of the Baptist Church among the French Canadians in Quebec. The speaker described the difficulties that are being encountered and overcome, and the progress of the efforts that are being made in order to bring the French Canadians under the influence of the true Gospel. At the conclusion of the address a hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. Webb. There was also a short programme of vocal and instrumental music.

Miss Katherine Burnett, and the Misses Marion and Phyllis Deane, are among those who go to Toronto today to continue their work at the University.

Mr. Knox's Secretary.

A clever young woman who is a member of the Washington staff of a Cleveland paper had occasion to call on Mrs. Knox the other day on a matter of important news. Mrs. Knox was not at home, the man servant who answered the bell informed the journalistes.

"Well, hasn't she a secretary who can give me the information I am after?" persisted the newspaper woman.

"Certainly, madam," answered the footman — 'this way, please.' Leading the way along the hall, he ushered her into the presence of a very important looking person.

"Are you Mrs. Knox's secretary?" asked the newspaper girl.

The man laughed. 'I guess I am,' he admitted. 'I'm her husband, and I'm the secretary of state. What can I do for you?'

Why He Was a Democrat.

'I always like to tell this story, especially if I am with Democrats,' said Prof. R. L. Lyman, of the University of Wisconsin.

'A man had a 'coon, which he offered to give to one of three boys who would give the best answer to the question: 'Why I am a Democrat.'

'"I'm a Democrat because I believe in free silver," said one lad.

'"I am a Democrat because I believe in free trade," answered the second.

'"I'se a Democrat 'cause I want dat 'coon," answered the third, a negro boy, looking hungrily at the 'coon.

'It's needless to tell which got the 'coon,' finished Mr. Lyman.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

MAN AND HORSE KILLED BY THE EXPLOSION OF BOILER.

Gloucester Farmer Struck by Pieces of Flying Steel—Engineer Was Hurt.

Ottawa, Sept. 23.—A terrible accident happened to-day in the Township of Gloucester, on the Montreal-road, six miles below Ottawa, where a machine was at work on a farm cutting corn for silo. The boiler exploded killing one of the men on the machine instantly, named Euclid Lepage. He was struck by flying fragments of the boiler and also scalded by the escaping steam. The engineer who was standing at the end of the machine, had a miraculous escape, being unhurt. A horse, one of a team tethered 15 or 20 feet away, was also killed instantly by being struck on the head by a piece of the boiler.

Thirty-Eight Prizes.

Messrs. Geo. Buller and Jos. Kelly, of this city, showed 39 birds at the Lindsay fair, and captured 38 prizes. The poultry judges as well as poultry fanciers who saw the exhibit, spoke very highly of it.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

Gun Burst; 13 Injured.

Toulon, France, Sept. 26.—A gun on the French armoured cruiser Gloire, burst to-day and 13 members of the crew were injured.

LONG ODDS FOR HIM.

J. W. Colt, the horseman, had a jockey who was sick. He told the boy to go to town to a certain doctor for some medicine.

When the jockey got back Colt asked him: "Did you go to that doctor?"

"No, sir. When I got there I found it said, 'Hours, one to two,' on his door."

"Well, what difference did that make?"

"Why, Mr. Colt just across the street there was another doctor that had on his door, 'Hours, twelve to one;' and I took the long odds."

In Castle for Summer

The King and Queen of Italy and their young people have gathered in their Piedmontese castle of Racconigi, only twenty miles from Turin, to spend the summer quietly after the recent mourning. The castle, which once, together with Moncalieri, where Princess Clotilde died, and Stupinigi, where Queen Maria Pia breathed her last, was one of the strongholds of Piedmont, is now surrounded by a peaceful village of 10,000 inhabitants, and contains very sad relics for the Italian royal family, as in one corner of the edifice there are gathered the furniture of the bedroom in which King Charles Albert, the king who granted the constitution in 1848, died a voluntary exile at Oporto, Portugal, and the furniture of the bedroom occupied by King Humbert just before he was shot by the anarchist Bresci at Monza.

THE POWER OF COMPOUND INTEREST.

A man may secure an absolutely sure income of $600 a year for his little 5 year old daughter, or granddaughter, from the time she is 55 to the end of her days, if he will pay to the Canadian Government the sum of $964 75. If she should die at any time before reaching the Annuity age the money paid together with 3 per cent. compound interest will be refunded to the purchaser, or as he may direct. There are but few parents who, when they understand the matter, will not be anxious to make the investment, if they can spare the money, in order to have the assurance that their daughter, no matter what reverses overtake her after she is 55, would have a comfortable income in her old age—an income that she cannot be deprived of by any person or by any process of law.

Full particulars of this excellent scheme may be had on application to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage.

POWERS FOR PEACE.

The New York Herald's financial correspondent in Paris says it will take Germany years to recover from the financial losses resulting from the Moroccan war scare. He writes:

"For many years the economic evolution of Germany and the great expansion of her commerce and industry have forced her to have ever greater recourse to credit.

"The military power of the Empire, it must be admitted, has facilitated this. Foreign money has poured in from all sides, especially from England and still more from France, to German banks, where it was at once employed at very remunerative rates of interest.

"At the present moment German megalomania has put Europe within a hair's breadth of a universal war, the consequences of which would be incalculable. The Berlin Borse took fright, savings bank depositors lost their heads and rushed to obtain repayment. Is it not natural that in these conditions foreign countries should act in the same manner and call in the capital they have invested in Germany?

"The movement in this sense is general and the German market will have to face demands for repayment, not only from London and Paris, but also from St. Petersburg, Vienna and even Peru."

Here is another proof of the essential truth of Norman Angell's dictum that the time has come when no nation can afford to go to war. Science and commerce between them will, ere long, permanently retire the war lord.

THE UNHOLY ALLIANCE.

Much has been said of the Conservative party being in an unholy alliance with the Nationalists of Quebec and being dependent for victory upon the fruits of that alliance. It was untrue and the results of the election show its falsehood.

The spirit of Canada asserted itself in exactly the same way in Quebec as anywhere else in the Dominion. The gains there were due to the policy and ideals of the Conservative party, which happened in this instance to be the policy and ideals of Canada, and not to any racial, sectional, religious or any other kind of animosity.

That is the lesson of the election in every part of Canada and no less in Quebec than anywhere else.

FOUR SMOTHERED IN CHICAGO FIRE

Chicago, Sept. 25.—Four persons were smothered to death early today in a fire believed to be incendiary, that destroyed two small buildings at 1336 South Sangamon street. The dead are Harry Egalovitch, his wife, their baby, and L. Lapert, a boarder. They lived in the third flat of a three storey rear building. A two storey building fronting on the street, was also partly destroyed.

All other occupants of the buildings escaped in their night clothing and it was thought that they were asphyxiated by smoke before the alarm of fire aroused them. Two babies were dropped from second floor windows unhurt.

ANOTHER GOES DOWN WILL HAVE A RECOUNT

Montreal, Sept. 25.—Hon. William Pugsley made the statement yesterday when he passed through Montreal en route to Ottawa that he was not sure whether he was a member of the House of Commons or not.

His majority, he said, now stood at two. A recount was to be held, and as there was a large number of rejected ballots as well as an allered irregularity in one poll, he thought it quite likely that he would be counted out.

MR. BOURASSA ON THE ELECTION VERDICT

Montreal, Sept. 25.—All true Canadians rejoice at the defeat of a corrupt and unprincipled Government.

The Nationalists feel especially proud at the reply given by Ontario to the odious campaign of slander by The Toronto Globe, to its appeals to racial hatred and its hypocritical exploitation of false loyalty.

We will now endeavor to make our ideas and principles known in the English Provinces of Canada.

We are prepared to give a fair trial to the new Government, reserving our full independence for future action as in the past.

FAD AND FANCIES

New evening sets of scarf and muff just received from abroad are in all the delicate tints of the rainbow and have hints of ostrich in their fluffy marabout depths.

Fashionable tailors declare that the models brought by them from Paris for copying purposes are so tight the wearer walks with extreme difficulty.

King's blue, black and white form the present fashionable color combination.

There is delightful evidence of a few inches added length to the new autumn coats

The handsome ribbons of satin and silk background against which stands out wonderfully natural velvet roses and floral designs are to play a conspicuous part in the coming season's millinery.

Broad hats of soft felt may be worn in an endless number of becoming angles.

Black velvet next to the face, either in a hat or in a ribbon worn next the throat, is very becoming to the average woman, whether she is a blonde or brunette. The soft black background has a softening effect upon the skin. Black velvet should be used in this way by the older women who wish to disguise the flight of time.

The pleated ruffle which has become very fashionable is considered an extravagance by some women, as it is difficult to launder and still more difficult to pleat successfully. The woman who is wise has the dainty accessory washed and ironed and then takes the frill to a pleating shop where it is turned out like new for a few cents.

Useful Mantelets.

Very slowly long scarves are developing into mantles, and they are undoubtedly more useful in this form. I saw a charming one this week in painted chiffon over plain mauve chiffon, edged with a ruche of very soft black chiffon. It formed a wide fichu over the shoulders, was caught into the waist behind by a buckle of old silver embroidery like that with which the buckle was made. Another pretty idea was carried out in mole colored satin and cerise. Three bands of satin, the middle one being cerise, were shaped round the shoulders, forming a point behind, and in front they crossed at the waist and fell more than half-way down the skirt, the ends being cut so as to fall in points. Others are just scarves drawn into motives of metal embroidery or bands between the shoulders, and again at the waist in front, but in all new models there is a suggestion of the mantle, and the quite straight scarf is demode.

THE SCIENCE OF HAPPINESS

Not Too Much Sleep But Regularity, Declared To Be the Keynote.

How to be happy and yet alive is a reasonable ambition for those who still have mundane interests they are not anxious to abandon. The later authorities are not unlike the early makers of proprietary medicines, inasmuch as the treatment to go with the "remedies" of old would assure fairly good health and longevity, without the possibly, harmless postrums.

The modern teachers of how to live long and happy lives simply point out certain errors which the average human being has fallen into, how to avoid them, and there you are.

Perhaps among the most widespread misconceptions of human requirements is that one cannot have too much sleep, or, that the more sleep one has the better for his or her health. The fact that one breathes less completely in sleep than when awake, alone shows that, during the hours of being "dead to the world," we take in less of the life-giving oxygen.

The theory of Dr. Henry Smith Williams, whose most recent book is "The Science of Happiness," that we require far less sleep than is generally supposed, has aroused much discussion. He himself finds it perfectly possible to get along habitually with six hours, and, when he has much work on hand, with four.

Dr. Williams, however, said recently that he "believes in regularity as the key-note of success in acquiring good habits of sleeping. A person who retires to-night at ten, to-morrow night at twelve, the next at nine, and so on through the week, can scarcely be said to have any habits of sleeping. He simply fulfils the imperative function of sleeping because he must, and when he may. While such customs are continued he can never know how much sleep he requires, nor how to secure it to best advantage."

A Telephone Disease.

Miss Susan Glaspell, who took up the serious nervous strain to which telephone girls are subjected, in one chapter of her new novel, "The Visioning", calls attention to the fact that so serious is this strain that it has given rise to a new disease, with a new name "teleritis." An official committee of physicians recently used the word in London. So severe is the nervous debility of many telephone girls that they are unfitted for marriage. The officials of telephone companies are doing something to lessen the strain, by re-arrangement and shortening of hours of work; and this problem of keeping the girl operators healthy is one of the most severe which they must face.

In "The Visioning," a telephone girl declares: "The real pleasures were going over the wire. It was my business to make the connections that arranged those pleasures. A little red light would flash—sometimes it would flash straight into my brain — and I'd say 'Number, please.' Then Life would pass through the cords. That was the closest I came to it — operating the cords that it went through. There was a whole city full of it — beautiful, laughing, loving Life. And, oh, I used to get so tired operating the cords for Life. Sometimes when I left my chair the whole world was one big, red light. And at night they danced dances for me — those little red lights."

England's Tallest Tomb

Near the well-known seaport of Southampton, England, there is a remarkable edifice known as Peterson's Tower. The erection is all the more singular because it marks the burying place of a certain John Peterson, a wealthy tea planter. The man appears to have been rather an eccentric individual, and in order to prove to the world his belief in concrete as a building material set about the construction of this great tower.

The building took many years to complete, but is entirely of concrete, and by the time the final layers had been placed had reached an altitude of more than three hundred feet. It is about forty years since the tower was erected, and its present condition is certainly a justification of the faith of the builder. As has been indicated, Peterson left instructions that his body should be placed under the tower, and this was accordingly carried out. Another desire that the chamber at the summit should contain a light was defeated by the firm stand which Trinity House, the lighthouse authority, took on the matter. Such an illumination would have been visible for miles out at sea, and would naturally have proved very misleading to sailors.

An Historical Bank Run.

One of the most exciting bank runs in history was on an English bank, but not in England. Down in Buenos Ayres, the English have the management of most of the financial institutions. In 1891, Buenos Ayres saw a series of bank runs during which every Spanish bank in the city closed. But the sturdy Englishmen kept open their "London and River Plate Bank," amid scenes of the most exciting panic. Thousands of persons lined up, but still the English cashier paid out money, calmly. Finally, in the afternoon, the English manager announced from the balcony, the victory of the bank over its enemies, amid the tumultuous applause of thousands. Argentine finances were saved, and what looked like a great South American revolution was ended by the placid Anglo-Saxons.

Pray, But Also Watch!

A good story was told by Father Bernard Vaughan at a garden fête in England recently in the course of a little speech thanking a number of his working-class admirers for the gift of a "gun-metal watch with a shoe string." A smart society woman, he said, followed him one day from the church into the sacristy, exclaiming—"There are thieves in the church; my satchel is stolen." "What were you doing?" he asked. "Praying, of course," replied the indignant lady. "Next time," counselled Father Vaughan, "follow the Master's advice, 'Watch and pray,' and you will

ROCKDALE.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Perry, are visiting friends in the settlement before leaving for Odessa, where Mr. Perry has been appointed Free Methodist preacher. This is Mr. Perry's first appointment and his many friends in this vicinity wish him every success in his work. Both he and Mrs. Perry will be greatly missed by a large circle of friends.

Rev. Chas. Gooderidge and wife of Veronna, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. H. Steenburgh for a few days. Mr. Gooderidge was a former preacher at Cordova, and his many friends are pleased to see him back amongst them.

Mr. Charlie Rupert returned home from Porcupine on Wednesday.

Miss Clara Outwater entertained a number of her friends at a quilting on Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Edmonds spent the week-end with friends at Cordova.

Miss Borland of Indian River, has taken charge of the senior department of the Cordova School.

Mr. Dan Youmans of Havelock, called on friends in the settlement recently before returning to Cobalt, where he has been working for the past few months.

Mr. E. C. Pace and Mr. T. Smith, of Cordova, passed through on Sunday on their way to Norwood to visit friends.

The new Free Methodist preacher, Mr. Miles Babcock and family, of Uxbridge, have arrived to take charge of the Cordova circuit and will reside at Victoria. The members of the congregation all extend to Mr. Babcock and family a hearty welcome and wish him every success.

Mr. E. Bowen was the guest of Mr. Meeks on Sunday.

Mr. Norman Johnson spent Sunday at his home.

SOUTH LAKE.

Mrs. W. H. Elliott has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Charles Menzie during the past week.

Mr. John Nuell has a right to wear a smile these days. Cupid has been visiting the neighborhood and left him a fine big boy.

Mrs. James Buchanan was the guest of Mrs. Thomas Menzie on Monday last.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Clapper passed away on the evening of Wednesday last.

While threshing at Mr. Chas. Menzie's on Tuesday the cylinder was blown out of the Separator, which belonged to Mr. Henry Puffer of Stoney Lake, and burst into hundreds of pieces, which flew in every direction, some being blown through the roof of the barn. No one was hurt seriously. Mr. Bert Hubble, who was feeding at the time escaped with very little injury.

Mr. John A. Sexsmith has some loyal supporters. One gentleman was known to walk seven miles to put in his vote and had to walk back through the pouring rain.

Mr. Joseph Miriam entertained a few of his gentlemen friends on Sunday.

CLYDESDALE.

The threshing mill is in the neighborhood at present. Farmers report rather a poor yield.

Rev. Mr. Brown of Warsaw, attended service in the Presbyterian church on Sunday and dispensed with Communion.

Miss Neta McCaskie, Belleville, who has been visiting relatives here, returned to her home last week.

Miss Dorothy Trotter left last week for Toronto, where she has secured a position.

Mr. Soules exchanged services with the Rev. Mr. Brown of Warsaw, on Sunday.

The picnic held at St. Mary's church on Tuesday proved a success, in spite of the threatening appearance of the weather in the morning, which may have detained some from being present. A large crowd assembled and spent a very enjoyable afternoon. After partaking of a splendid fowl dinner, served by the ladies, the sports, which created much excitement began. The following is a list of those to whom prizes were awarded: High jump, Rev. Mr. Soules; Old Men's Race, Mr. E. Huffman; Fat Man's Race, John Gooley and Fred Bullied ties; Boys' Race, Leslie Martin; Girls' Race, Agnes Gooley. Another interesting feature of the afternoon was several interesting addresses by prominent members of the Reform party. A splendid variety of fruit was displayed in the cantene. The dancing platform was also appreciated by the young people.

Many of our men are wearing a broad smile. I wonder why? Election is over. We sympathize with our defeated candidate, but he may be sure it was owing to the important question of reciprocity so many were misled.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

the bars of my cell and wig-wagged the policeman — they were good-natured souls for the most part, tolerant of their prisoners, and it broke the grinding monotony to exchange a few words with one under almost any pretext. Barreau was chary of speech, and the Sanders brothers were penned beyond our sight. I can easily understand how even peace-loving men can nerve themselves to commit desperate deeds, when they are cooped within four walls with nothing but their thoughts for company.

When he came, I observed that the guard had been changed since Miss Montell's visit. The new man was a lean, sour-faced trooper To my surprise, he took my letter, and then stood peering in past me to where Barreau lay on his bunk. After a few seconds, he walked away, grinning queerly. In a minute or so he was back again, taking another squint. This time Barreau turned over facing the door, and, when the trooper continued his promenade past our cell, he got up and stood before the barred window, completely shutting off my outlook. I could not see, but I could hear. And by the sound of his booted feet the guard passed and repassed several times.

After a little he tired of this, it seemed; for I heard him stalking away to the front of the guardhouse, and immediately thereafter the creak of a chair as he sat down. Then Barreau sat down on his bunk again.

"Try this, kid," he said, and tossed a package of tobacco and cigarette papers to me. I fell upon the forbidden luxury like a starving man upon food. He rolled himself one out of material in his hand, and in the midst of my puffing changed to my side of the cell — it was but a scant three feet to move — and sat down between me and the door.

"Fate smiles at last," he whispered. "Blackie passed me in a little tobacco. And—see, here in my hand."

I glanced down at what he was smuggling out of sight between us—a heavy-bladed knife, a tiny saw, not more than six inches in length, and a piece of note paper, marked with what my reason told me must be a ground plan of the very place we were in.

"The tools of my deliverance," Barreau said, in an undertone. "I am for the blue sky, and the sun, and the clean, wide prairies once more."

CHAPTER VIII.

My Days That Were Dark.

Looking back, I marvel at the ridiculous ease with which the thing was accomplished. Still more do I marvel at my own part in it. Brought up as I had been, shielded from the ill winds of existence, taught the perfunctory, conventional standards of behavior that suffice for those whose lives are lived according to a little varying plan, I should have shrunk from further infraction of the law. Indeed, it is no more than could have been expected had I refused absolutely to lend myself to Barreau's desperate plan. Conscious that I had done no wrong, I might have been moved to veto an enterprise that imperiled me, to protest against his drawing me into his own troublous coil. But I did nothing of the sort. It did not occur to me. My point of view was no longer that of the son of a St. Louis gentleman. And the transition was so complete, so radical, and, withal, so much the growth of the past three weeks, that I was unaware of the change.

I know of no clearer illustration of the power of environment. Indubitably I should have looked askance at a man who tacitly admitted himself more or less of a criminal, making no defense, no denial. The traditions of my class should have kept me aloof, conscious of my own clean hands. This, I repeat, was what might have been expected of me. Had it been put to me as an abstract proposition, I should have been very positive of where I would stand.

But, without being conscious of any deviation from my previous ideas of right and wrong, I found myself all agog to help Slowfoot George escape. For myself, there was no question of flight. That we agreed upon at the outset. I could gain nothing by putting myself at odds with Canadian law, for the law itself would free me in its meting out of justice. But with him it was different; he admitted the fact. And even so, I found myself making nothing of the admission. He conformed to none of my vague conceptions of a criminal. In aiding him to be free, I seemed to be freeing myself by proxy, as it were; and how badly I desired to be quit of the strange tangle that enmeshed me, none but myself can quite appreciate.

After all, so far as my help was concerned, it consisted largely of what Barreau dryly termed "moral support." I acquiesced in the necessity. I stood on the lookout for interruptions. He did the work.

While he cut with his knife a hole in the floor that the point of the little saw would enter, I stood by the window listening for the footsteps that would herald the guard's approach. He worked rapidly, yet in no apparent haste. He had the faculty of straining every nerve at what he was about, without seeming to do so; there was no waste of energy, no flurry. And his cutting and sawing speedily bore fruit. So noiselessly and deftly did he work that, in less than half an hour, he had sawed a hole in the floor large enough to admit his body; and the dank smell of earth long hidden from sunlight struck me when I bent down to look. Then, with a caution that I should watch closely and tap on the floor with my heel if any of the guard came poking around the cells, he wriggled through the opening and disappeared.

I leaned against the bars, breathing a bit faster. The hole was cut in a corner, to the right of the cell door. From the outside it could scarcely be noticed. But I had wit enough to know that, if a trooper glanced in and missed Barreau, the hole would be discovered fast enough, which would involve me in the attempt; and I was aware that jail-breakers fared ill if they were caught. But no one moved in the guardhouse, save now and then a prisoner shuffling about in his cell. Occasionally I could hear the low murmur of their voices — it was a small place, and filled to its capacity; else Barreau and I would not have been penned together.

After an interminable period, he came quietly out from under the floor, and carefully fitted in their places the planks he had cut. One had to look closely to see a mark, after he had brushed into the cracks some dust from the floor. Barreau's eyes twinkled when he sat down on his bunk and rolled himself a cigarette.

"Everything just as it should be," he told me. "Nothing to do but root away a little dirt from the bottom log of the outside wall. I could walk out, a free man, in five minutes. There will be a fine fuss and feathers to-night. They have never had a jail delivery here, you know. Lord, it's easy, though, when one has the tools."

"There'll be a hot chase," I suggested. "Will you stand much chance?"

"That depends on how much of a start I get," he said grimly. "I think I can fool them. If not—well——"

He relapsed into silence. Some one clanked into the guardroom, and Barreau snuffed out his cigarette with one swift movement. In a second or two the trooper went out again. We could see him by flattening our faces against the bars, and, when he was gone, Blackie sat alone, his feet cocked up on a chair.

"That reminds me," Barreau spoke so that his words were audible to me alone. "Blackie's a good fellow, and I must keep his skirts clear. He will be on guard till about eight this evening. Eight—nine—ten o'clock. At ten it should be as dark as it will get I'll drift then. Some other fellow will be on guard when you give the alarm."

It was then midafternoon. At half-past five, two prisoners were set to arranging the long table which ranged by the palings that separated the cells from the guardroom proper. With a trooper at their heels, they lugged from the police kitchen two great pots, one of weak soup, the other containing a liquid that passed for tea. A platter of sliced bread and another of meat scraps completed the meal. Then the rest of us were turned out to eat; sixteen men who had fallen afoul of the law, munching and drinking, with furtive glances at each other.

And while we ate, a trooper made the round of the cells, giving each tumbled heap of quilts a tentative shake, peering into the half-dark corners. That was part of the routine perfunctory for the most part, but occasionally-developing into keen-eyed search. It was the rule to confiscate tobacco or any small articles a prisoner might manage to smuggle in, if he failed of its concealment.

But the faint traces of Barreau's floor cutting escaped his eye, and the tobacco was in our pockets. The knife and saw Barreau had slipped within his boot leg. Personal search was the one thing we had to fear. And it passed us by. The guards — four of them during the meal hour — contented themselves with routine inspection, and, when the table was swept clean of food, we were herded back to our cells. For once I was glad to be locked up; knowing that, though dark would bring a trooper past our cell every half hour, to peer in on us through the barred opening, there was little chance of his unlocking the door.

We lay on our bunks, silent, smoking a cigarette when the guard was safe in front. The smell of tobacco smoke could not betray our possession of it, for the guardhouse reeked with the troopers' pipes. We had only to conceal the actual material.

Thus eight o'clock came, and brought with it a change of guard. Blackie no longer sat in front with his feet cocked up on a chair, or taking turns with his fellows at peering through cell doors. Nine passed—by the guardhouse clock—and ten dragged by at last. On the stroke of the hour, a guard tramped past our cell, on to the others, and back to his seat in front. When he was settled, Barreau slid lightly from his bed. The short pieces of flooring he pried from the hole in the floor. Then he reached a hand to me, and shook mine in a grip that almost bruised.

"Good-by, Bob," he whispered. "I'll meet you in St. Louis, next year, unless my star sets. And I will have a pretty story for your ears, then. Give me an hour, if you can. So-long."

His feet were in the hole as he spoke, and a second later the black square of it was yawning emptily. I

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

A SUCCESSFUL FINANCIER

An example of what well-directed brain power accompanied by energy, pluck and perseverance may accomplish is afforded by the remarkable advance of Mr. Edward Rogers Wood of Toronto. From a small beginning Mr. Wood has worked his way steadily upward and onward until he is now general manager of two leading Canadian financial institutions, the Central Canada Loan & Savings Co., and the Dominion Securities Corporation. Besides this he is vice-president of the National Trust Company, and a director of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company, the Canadian Bank of Commerce, the Western Assurance Company, the Canada Life Assurance Company, the Sao Paulo Tramway, Light & Power Company; the Mexican Light and Power Company, and other important corporations and industrial undertakings. Not a bad achievement, certainly, for a man only forty-five years of age who started life as a telegraph operator. But then was not his father Irish and was he not born in Peterboro', two facts over which he had no control but which have evidently had their effect in guiding this successful financier to fortune and a foremost place in the commercial life of Canada.

Mr. Wood is a most enthusiastic supporter of the Y. M. C. A. and is President of the Toronto Association.

His home is at Queen's Park, Toronto.

SIR GILBERT PARKER

Sir Gilbert Parker, K.C., D.C.L., M. P. was born in Belleville Ont. in 1862. His father, Captain J. Parker, was a British Officer. It was from him that the future novelist first conceived the ideas which he has so brilliantly given to the world. In his home life his mind was imbued with stories of military adventure. These laid the foundations for his future scintillating and vast imagination. Sir Gilbert's education made him thoroughly Canadian, instilling in him our national ideals. He attended Trinity College, Toronto. After graduating, he decided to follow the profession of journalism, towards which he had always shown considerable aptitude and interest. In a comparatively short time he rose high in his chosen vocation. At the age of 22 he had already become associate-editor of the Sidney Morning Herald, Sidney Australia.

Even such interesting and absorbing work as one has on a daily paper could not satisfy the latent novelist. Drawn by the lure of travel and adventure he visited and indeed studied the South Sea Islands, the Far East, Europe, Egypt and what he enjoyed the most Northern Canada. In his wanderings he found many of the leading ideas of his novels which have so won the admiration of the English speaking reader.

Although very prominent in the world of letters, Sir Gilbert Parker had not come before the world in general, prominently, until he intatest and organize the first Imperial Universities Conference in London in 1903.

SIR GILBERT PARKER

It is by his novels that Sir Gilbert Parker has won for himself such a high place in the affections of all Canadians. His works are very numerous and display a creative genius of distinguished ability. They are replete with origional ideas and character types, so skilfully portrayed, that they seem to live before the eye of the reader.

Amongst his novels dealing with Canadian life and people in most famous are the "Right of Way", the "Battle of the Strong" and the "History of Old Quebec."

Canada is indeed proud of her son who has done so much towards the intellectual advancement of his native land.

St. Catherines, Ont., Sept. 20.—Frederick Wilson of Merriton, the married man who induced fifteen year old Gladys Terryberry to go away with him on a tramp this summer, the pair being caught in Ann Arbor, Mich., was found guilty at the fall assizes before Justice Riddell and a jury on the charge of abduction. He also pleaded guilty to seduction. The judge sentenced him to three years and a half in Kingston penitentiary.

JOHN DAVIDSON, Secretary of the Canadian Rugby Union.

UMPIRE'S DECISIONS

Used a Mirror to See All Portions of the Field When His Back Was Turned.

"Rube Waddell may be the richest card among the ball-players," says Red Nelson, the pitcher of the St. Louis Browns, "but Piano Bill Setley is, in my opinion, a funnier card among umpires than Waddell ever was among eccentric ball-tossers. Why do they call him Piano Bill? Because in New Orleans, when a man who owed him money pointed to a big piano and said, 'Take that, if you can,' the husky umpire actually took away the piano single-handed, toted it out of the house, called an expressman, took it to an express office, and had it shipped north, all before the dazed owner could get his wits together.

"Setley had the courage of his convictions. Nothing could rattle him or make him overlook a bet. On one occasion he was umpiring in some town — I think it was Rock Island — and a couple of his decisions turned the tide in favor of the Peoria club. The Rock Island fans promptly stormed into the field and took after Setley, who fled through the gate and down the street, with the mob in mad pursuit. And as Setley ran he threw up one arm in commanding fashion and shouted: 'I hereby forfeit this game to Peoria, 9 to 0, you sons of monkeys!'

"I was pitching one afternoon, with Setley umpiring. Tow and two on the batter, and I shot a third strike right across the centre. 'Ball!' roared Setley. 'Why,' I howled, 'that was square in the groove!' 'I know it,' said Setley, 'but when a pitcher has two strikes, and doesn't know any better than to put the ball right in the grove where it might get hit for a homer, it's a ball with me, every time.'

"A player named Novacek was at bat. Ball came along, on the outside, way wide. 'Strike,' said Setley. Novacek roared and howled, quite naturally. Next ball was also wide. 'Four balls, take your base,' quoth Setley. As Novacek started for first, he exclaimed, sneeringly. 'That ball was in exactly the same place as the one you called a strike just before.' 'In that case,' said Setley, 'I will do anything to oblige you. Three strikes—you're out!'

ANOTHER TORONTO RACQUET EXPERT.

ROBT. BAIRD

Big, strong and with a heart that warms you to his delightful personality, Robt. Baird, the idol of the Toronto tennis enthusiasts, is a Champion of whom the Queen City fans may well feel proud. His honors have been deservedly won, and while he has not a few rivals, his tennis ability and strong forceful pay, are factors that cannot be downed in wresting the title from him.

Baird has figured in dozens of tennis tournaments, but he has yet to have a disastrous defeat registered against him. He lost to Capt. Foulkes, out.

'Say, fellers,' he said, poking his head in at the door, 'is it half-past Morgan or a quarter to Walter?'

PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper [illegible] Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

THE NEW PRIME MINISTER.

The News makes the new Prime Minister the subject of a leading article, every word of which we endorse

In Mr. Borden the country will have a wise, prudent and progressive Prime Minister. Ever since he became leader of the Opposition he has borne himself with dignity and with distinction. If, as his opponents contend, he is deficient in the craft of the politician, he is strong in the integrity and solidity of a statesman.

Throughout his term in Opposition he has [illegible] the Conservative party. He has made no serious mistake. More than once he has refused to be stampeded by demagogues into sacrificing either the permanent interest of his party or the permanent welfare of the country to influences which might have brought an immediate success but could have had no enduring result.

Nothing in his career is finer than his dealing with the Western Grain Growers a few months ago and his frank and courageous declaration that he was against reciprocity and would not support the agreement with Washington even if by so doing he could become Prime Minister. All through the campaign he spoke moderately but strongly, careful of the delicacy of international relationships in all his references to the United States, but firmly insisting upon the right of Canada to conserve her own resources, to be faithful to her own ideal of nationality and to adhere to the connection with the Empire.

In all the Provinces Mr. Borden has splendid support. He will go to Ottawa with a great national party at his back. No doubt he will give the country a Ministry that will represent the spirit of the contest in which he has just been engaged and the various aggressive Canadian and British elements which combined against the Laurier Administration. If he does this we should have a long era of liberal Conservative Government, satisfactory relations with other countries, and an ever closer relation with the Empire.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

Home for Christmas

The Steamship Lines are expecting a large home-going exodus for the holiday season this year, and are making extensive preparations to take care of all of those who are planning to visit the Old Country.

The White Star-Dominion Line has arranged for three special Christmas sailings, viz. the "Canada" December 2nd, "Megantic" December 9th, and "Teutonic" December 14th, from Portland, Me., and Halifax, N. S., to take care of these passengers. These steamers will arrive in ample time to enable passengers to reach their homes before Christmas whether in England or on the Continent.

The railways have recognized the growing popularity of these annual Christmas excursions and now run special trains from Montreal and the west to connect with the steamers, and the most complete arrangements are made by both the steamship companies and the rail lines to further the comfort of the homeward bound ones during the holiday season.

New Oil Field

A legitimate chance to make a fortune, by the investment of a small amount of money is what every investor wants. Usually the difficulty is to be able to satisfy yourself as to the safeguards and probabilities of success, and thus select the good from the bad. The newest, and what promises to be the richest oil area in the world is just beginning to be developed, in what is known as the Tampico field in Mexico. The flow of oil from the first few wells drilled there has broken all records. Beyond a doubt this is one of the greatest opportunities for investment ever known.

A Company has just been organized to develop 3500 acres of the choicest, and best located property in the producing field. For this purpose we will offer a limited number of shares of stock for subscription at ½ its par value. We are certain we can interest you, and satisfy you of the merit of the enterprise if you will let us.

VOL XXXIV NO 223 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 27 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 50 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

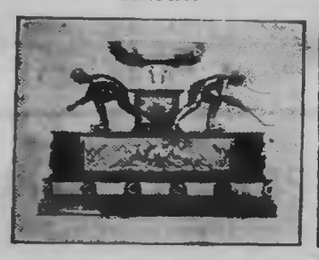
ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

HOW ABOUT THAT O'BRIEN TROPHY.



M. J. O'BRIEN TROPHY

Winning the Championship of the National Hockey Association last winter when they went through the league schedule with but three losses, and capturing the Stanley Cup, emblematic of the World's Hockey Championship, officers of the Ottawa Hockey Club are now asking themselves what has become of the O'Brien Trophy. This mug, of solid silver from the M. J. O'Brien Mines, at Cobalt, was donated to the Eastern professional body by the Renfrew Magnate, at the time of the formation of the N. H. A. The Stanley Cup was a trophy that any team more league might claim, and he decided to give a trophy to the National Association.

Wanderers won the trophy in 1910, but it was not finished in time to be presented to the red and white club, now however, it is ready for the rightful owners, but the Ottawa's, despite an interchange of correspondence with the secretary of the N. H. A., appear to be unable to obtain possession of the Cup.

It it comes down to finesse, shrewd manipulation and working the fine points generally — in short, to a question of managerial generalship — John McGraw's chances for the National league pennant will be so much the better

LUMBERMEN ORGANIZE

Consolidate All Coast Manufacturers' Associations—Presidents to Work Out Details.

At a recent meeting of the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' association a plan for the consolidation of all the lumber manufacturers' associations of the Pacific coast was ratified. The new organization will be formed from the Pacific Coast Lumber Manufacturers' association, the Southwestern Washington Lumber Manufacturers' association, and the Oregon and Washington Lumber Manufacturers' association and will be called the West Coast Lumber Manufactures' association. The presidents of the three associations are given to work out the details of the union. As a preliminary step in the uniting of these associations the executive committees of the Pacific coast and the Oregan & Washington associations lately reported that the inspection bureaus had been joined.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

SLOWLY DYING

THOUSANDS ARE SLOWLY DYING FROM CATARRH, BUT DON'T KNOW THEIR DANGER.

A Case in Point

Mr. Ulric Berault, a young gentleman who has lived for years in Sweetsburg, Quebec, inherited Catarrh from his mother. The disease spread through his system till he was a physical wreck.

"As a child," said Mr. Berault, "I was prone to an ulceration of the mucous lining of the throat and nasal passages.

"I grew pale and emaciated, lost all desire for food, and got into such a dreadful condition that my friends said that Catarrh was fairly eating me up.

"Every organ of my body seemed affected and the doctor said it was the first stage of consumption. He advised Catarrhozone, and I inhaled it ten minutes at a time every few hours, and was rewarded in a few days by a wonderful improvement.

"Catarrhozone pleased me and the doctor so well that I used it continually, and took Ferrozone Tablets after each meal to build up my strength. In about three weeks I was quite recovered, and the doctor says no remedy but Catarrhozone could work such a miracle.

"Every one in town knows I was just about dead with Catarrh, and my cure is an evidence of what Catarrhozone can do. It is a pleasure to recommend Catarrhozone."

(Signed) Ulric Berault."

Catarrhozone beyond question is the proper remedy for catarrhal and bronchial troubles. The medicated air goes all through the air passages of the head, throat and lungs. It kills the germs, heals the sore spots, allays irritation and keeps the breath pure.

Complete outfit, sufficient for two months' treatment, price $1.00; trial size 25c. Druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

An Early Morning Fire.

A rough cast house occupied by Mr. Ed. Webb, and owned by Mr. John Marvin, took fire early yesterday morning, and was completely gutted. The blaze was with difficulty kept from spreading to the adjoining buildings. Loss about $1,000.

The New Cars.

The new pay-as-you-enter cars will be ready for service about the first of November. They will be placed on the George street line, and subsequently, if they prove to be entirely satisfactory, the other branches of the road will also be similarly equipped.

Mr. Henderson's Lecture.

Rev. Mr. Henderson, pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist Church, delivered an interesting address in St. James' Church last night on "Plodders, Loafers and Croakers." At the conclusion of the lecture a vote of thanks was tendered the speaker.

FOOD AGAIN

A Mighty Important Subject to Everyone.

A Boston lady talks entertainingly of food and the changes that can be made in health by some knowledge on that line. She says:

"An injury to my spine in early womanhood left me subject to severe sick headaches which would last three or four days at a time, and a violent course of drugging brought on constipation with all the ills that follow.

"My appetite was always light and uncertain and many kinds of food distressed me.

"I began to eat Grape-Nuts food two or three years ago, because I liked the taste of it, and I kept on because I soon found it was doing me good.

"I eat it regularly at breakfast, frequently at luncheon, and again before going to bed—and have no trouble in 'sleeping on it.' It has relieved my constipation, my headaches have practically ceased, and I am in better physical condition at the age of 63 than I was at 40.

"I give Grape-Nuts credit for restoring my health, if not saving my life, and you can make no claim for it too strong for me to endorse." Name given by Canadian Postum Co. Windsor, Ont.

Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. "There's a reason."

Ever read the above letter? A new one appears from time to time. They are genuine, true, and full of human interest.

Several Drunks at Court.

Yesterday Police Magistrate Dumble dealt with three drunks, two of whom pleaded guilty and one was still carrying the jag and was remanded until he could sober up. The first was discharged.

Regimental March Out.

The 57th Regiment paraded last night at the Armouries and had a march out, headed by both bands. There was a good turnout and the corps presented a fine appearance.

Mrs. Davies' Funeral.

Announcement of the date of the funeral of the late Mrs. Alfred Davies will be made in to-morrow's issue of The Times.

Trophy for the Church League.

The weekly meeting of the representatives of the Church Football League will be held at the Y.M.C.A. at eight o'clock this evening. In connection with football it may be mentioned that Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., has generously offered a handsome trophy to the Church Football League, which will be emblematic of the championship of the League.

Y.W.C.A. Gymnasium.

The Y.W.C.A. gymnasium season opens October 2nd, with Miss Coventry in charge. The following classes are scheduled: Morning class for senior members; evening class for business girls; afternoon class for school girls; Saturday morning class for juniors. Basketball. Call at the Y.W.C.A. or phone 223 for fuller particulars regarding all class work, which opens next week.

Disorderly on Train.

A man named Michael Scott, who came here from the east, was charged with being drunk and disorderly on a C. P. R. train while en route to this city. He pleaded guilty and was remanded until Monday, when the Provincial Constable, Mr. George Broddy, will be present and will give some information relative to the incident. His disorderly conduct, it is understood, consisted of refusing to show his transportation certificate, and raising a racket in general.

PIANO TUNING.

Mr. Worden, piano tuner of E. F. Wilks & Co., Toronto, will be in Peterborough in a few days. Orders left at The Times' Bookstore will receive attention.

Y.W.C.A. Rally.

The Y.W.C.A. annual educational and social rally has been arranged for Friday evening of this week. The Association has much pleasure in announcing Miss Knox, Dean of Havergal College, as speaker for the evening. There will be a short musical programme, followed by a social half hour, over a cup of coffee. The public are cordially invited to enjoy this evening with the members of the association. The evening is free to all.

Happiest Girl in Lincoln.

A Lincoln, Neb., girl writes, "I had been ailing for some time with chronic constipation and stomach trouble. I began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and in three days I was able to be up and got better right along. I am the proudest girl in Lincoln to find such a good medicine." For sale by all dealers.

Street Car Extension.

The Street Railway extension to Byersville will be gone on with as soon as the material arrives, so that the line will be open for traffic before the winter sets in. The Company, under the capable management of Mr. Munro, will develop extensions as rapidly as circumstances will permit.

Will Go to St. Catharines.

A unanimous call has been extended to Rev. George W. Henderson, pastor of the Charlotte street Methodist church, by the congregation of the Welland avenue Methodist church, St. Catharines, which Mr. Henderson has decided to accept. A deputation from St. Catharines quietly visited Peterborough a short time ago and heard Rev. Mr. Henderson preach, and a call was the result. Mr. Henderson's four-year term in the Charlotte street church expires in June next. He will be greatly missed by his congregation and by the citizens generally.

Never leave home on a journey without a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed and cannot be obtained when on board the cars or steamships. For sale by all dealers.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Harold Dunsford of Superior, Wis., is home on a visit.

Mr. and Mrs. James have returned from a trip to England and Ireland.

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Jones of Port Hope, spent Sunday in the city as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Jobbitt.

Rev. A. E. Taylor left yesterday for New York City to pursue postgraduate studies at Columbia University, and the General Theological Seminary.

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Reid, of Vancouver, B.C., formerly of Peterborough, Ont., announce the engagement of their daughter, Ada Winnifred, to Chas. T. Hamilton, B.A.Sc., the wedding to take place the middle of October.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. George Westlake.

The death is announced of Elizabeth Metheral, relict of the late Mr. George Westlake, which took place at the residence of her son-in-law, Mr. Thomas Tindle, lot 2, con. 3, Smith. The deceased lady had reached the ripe old age of 90 years and six months, and had been a resident of the township for over 40 years. She was held in high esteem by all who had the pleasure of her acquaintance. Mrs. Westlake was born in Cornwall, England, and came to Canada 56 years ago. She had been in poor health for about four months.

The late Mrs. Westlake is survived by four sons, John of Cavendish, Philip of Smith, and William and Giles of Peterborough, and by two daughters, Mrs. J. K. Stabler and Mrs. Thomas Tindle of Smith; one sister, Mrs. Marks, is living in Cornwall, England, and hale and hearty at the remarkable age of 95 years.

The funeral will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from the family residence of her son-in-law, to Little Lake cemetery.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIETIES

St. Andrew's Young People's Association is the New Name.

An enthusiastic meeting of the young people of St. Andrew's church was held on Monday evening, when plans on a large and promising scale were formulated for the coming season's work. In future the young people's societies will be known as the St. Andrew's Young People's Association, which takes in the Young Men's Guild, the Young Ladies' Mission Band and the Y.P.S.C.E. The two first societies, however, will have their regular meetings as formerly.

The following officers were elected for the organization:

President—Mr. Rutherford.

1st Vice-Pres.—Miss Maggie Gillespie.

Rec.-Sec'y—Miss Helen Harper.

Cor.-Sec'y—Miss Jennie Richardson

Convenor of the Social Committee—Miss Margaret Rae.

Convenor of Program Committee—John Sharpe.

Pianist—Miss Lizzie Shearer; Assistant, Miss Girvin.

The program of meetings for the coming season was mapped out. The main reason of the amalgamation of the societies into one is to promote as much as possible the sociability of the society, and to endeavor to bring new members into the church. During the winter, sleigh drives and various other forms of social functions will be given for that purpose. Once a month there will be a district meeting of the association, when prominent men from outside places will be secured to address the society.

Deaths.

KENNEDY—Yesterday morning at 546 Park street, Gavin Kennedy, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Gavin Kennedy, passed away, aged 5 months.

The funeral will take place this afternoon to Little Lake cemetery.

PERRY—On Monday evening, at 469 McDonnell street, Lillian Gladys, the nine-year-old daughter of Mr. Wm. Perry, passed away after an illness of only two days.

Interment took place at the Little Lake cemetery yesterday afternoon.

CONSERVING THE WATERS OF OUR CANAL SYSTEM

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., evidently intends to make himself acquainted with the water conditions of the chain of lakes which feed our canal. He will in a few days take a trip through the entire system, accompanied by Superintendent McClellan, with a view to becoming thoroughly acquainted with the conditions that exist and the improvements that are needed, in order to better conserve the waters of the system. On Monday Mr. Burnham and Mr. McClellan paid a visit to the old Roger's dam, to make preparations for the building of a new Weir dam, so that the water which now has to be used at the Quaker Oats Co., dam, to flush the logs through may be saved. A few years ago the eastern portion of the old Roger's dam was washed away, the consequence being that the basin above the dam is almost dry. When the logs came down to be washed through it means a serious waste of water.

This will now be remedied, and the water will be saved. This waste of water has meant the frequent shutting down of several of our large industries, which mean a big loss to them. Every effort will be made to correct this state of affairs, which has been allowed to exist much too long. The conservation of the water by series of dams, chutes and other expedients will be proceeded with, with renewed vigor, and what ought to have been done years ago, it is confidently hoped will now be done properly.

SCORES OF PAPER MILLS WILL CROSS THE BORDER INTO CANADA

The defeat of reciprocity meant more to the paper manufacturing industry in Canada than perhaps to any other. With scarcely an exception the Liberal and Conservative owners of paper mills united in the common cause of blocking the trade agreement that indirectly sought to discourage the manufacture of pulp products in the Dominion. Although the victory is but a few days old, the promises of good results are already being fulfilled. It was stated during the reciprocity campaign that the paper mills were holding back nearly all extensions until the fate of the measure was known. That this was emphatically true is shown by the sudden activity in every paper making centre of Ontario and Quebec whereby the manufacturer, the workmen and the country benefit to many millions of dollars.

The Interlake Tissue Mills, at Merritton, Ont., which was incorporated some months ago, construction of the plant being delayed until reciprocity was decided, will proceed at once to erect the first tissue manufactory in Canada. The St. Lawrence Paper Mills at Mille Roches are adding two machines, and putting up new buildings. The president of both the above companies, Mr. I. H. Weldon, made a statement, that he was proceeding as a direct result of the settled trade policy.

SCORES OF NEW MILLS.

"There are dozens of paper mills throughout Canada," he said, "which looked upon the passage of the reciprocity agreement as a menace to the future of the industry in Canada. What would have happened if reciprocity had passed is not pleasant to think upon. But in the uncertain period, with the question before the electorate all plans for extensions of plants, etc., were postponed. The victory against the pact has given a splendid impetus to paper making, and within a very few years you will see scores of new mills coming over the Canadian border within reach of our pulp supplies."

AGAINST RECIPROCITY FROM THE VERY START.

Editor Morning Times

Sir,—I notice that many Liberal politicians, as well as Liberal newspapers, attribute the defeat of their party to the annexation cry. This is not true. Reciprocity was most unpopular from the very start. Had the question been submitted to a vote of the people in the form of a plebiscite, it would have been turned down just the same, only to a greater extent. Canada prefers closer relations with the mother land than anything Uncle Sam has to offer. Sir Wilfrid's attitude at the Imperial Conference last summer was enough to assure his defeat when he asked for a renewal of public confidence. Mr. Face-both-ways got his deserts.

STREET RAILWAY TO EAST CITY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I wonder if we are ever to get an extension of the street railway to East City? It is really too bad that something is not being done in this matter. It is unfair to the residents of this portion of the city. With a car line here, property would increase in value and a far greater amount of building would be undertaken.

Some months ago a suggestion was made by The Times regarding a new overhead bridge on Hunter street, the cost of which would be borne equally by the city, the street railway, the government and the Quaker Oats Company. It was a brilliant idea, for each of the parties are vitally interested. But the matter developed no farther. I hope Ald. Morgan, who is ever on the alert when the interests of his constituents are at stake, will get busy in order to compel, if possible, the extension of the street railway to the east side of the river.

East City.

Right in your busiest season when you have the least time to spare you are most likely to take diarrhoea and lose several days' time, unless you have Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand and can take a dose on the first appearance of the disease. For sale by all dealers.

Doing Good Work.

The St. George's Society is doing a great amount of missionary work in the city. Many cases have come to hand where strangers have been helped, as in the case of two Englishmen, who arrived but a few days ago. By good fortune they observed the card in the waiting room showing the addresses of the officials, and they at once got into communication with them and received a hearty welcome with some good advice. A boarding house was found for them and they were directed to where they could find work and are now quite settled in the city. The St. George's Society appeals to every Englishman in Peterboro for their support.

ITALY PREPARES TO PLACE TROOPS IN TRIPOLI--WAR SHIPS ONLY 20 MILES OFF

TURKS REFUSE TO GRANT ITALY'S DEMAND FOR A PRIVILEGED POSITION IN TRIPOLI

PORTE IS DISPOSED TO MAKE SOME ECONOMIC CONCESSIONS BUT BELIEF IS THAT ITALY HAS COMMITTED HERSELF TOO FAR TO DRAW BACK.

WARSHIPS TWENTY MILES OFF PORT OF TRIPOLI

In Event of Outbreak of War Turkey Will Deprive Italians of All Benefit of Capitulation—A Dark War Cloud.

Tripoli, Sept. 27.—The uneasiness of Europeans residents here increases through the apprehensions of native demonstrations.

A French steamer sailing yesterday took aboard many Europeans for Tunis, but was compelled to refuse others who sought passage because of the lack of accommodations or even room for them.

London, Sept. 27.—A letter from Tripoli, dated September 21st, says: "On the day that the Italian newspapers intimating that the Italians contemplated an expedition to occupy Tripoli were received here every cafe and theatre, all the shops and stores were instantly closed and word was passed immediately to the Arabs throughout the town to meet in the great Mosques to decide what they should do.

"They agreed that they would resist the Italian landing to the last, and if they had to yield that they would go to the British Consulate and seek British protection."

Constantinople, Sept. 27.—The Tanin's leading article to-day says: "The Tripolitan question brings upon the Tapis the whole question of the relations between Christianity and Islam. The Turks have trespassed on nobody's rights, yet Italy is preparing to occupy Turkish territory on the pretext that Germany and France have taken away the independence of Morocco.

Such conduct is a violation of the principles of international law humanity and civilization. It is evident that there is no justice in Europe. Treaties are merely instruments of deception which are destroyed when an advantage is to be gained thereby.

"The Italian aggression is really the outcome of the animotity on the part of Christianity toward Islam.

The Tanin regrets its former belief in Germany's friendship and adds that it is apparent that Turkey has no friends in Europe.

It is understood that Germany is trying diplomatically at Rome and Constantinople, to arrange an understanding, but there is no hope here that the effort will succeed.

The Turkish transport Berna, which sailed with ammunition from Constantinople and was detained for several days at Smyrna, arrived at Tripoli yesterday.

AWAIT THE PORTE'S ANSWER.

Rome, Sept. 27.—Italy's next move on Tripoli will depend upon the answer which the Porte makes to the note which was presented by the Italian Charge de Affaires at Constantinople, in which the Government at Rome demands guarantees against a repetition of certain acts on the part of Turkey that have been made the subject of complaint by the Italian residents of Tripoli. These guarantees are very extensive, and include the right of Italy to supervise all measures which she considers necessary for the conduction of affairs in that Province. The note is vouched in the strongest terms and is, in intent, an ultimatum.

According to Constantinople advices received here, the Porte is disposed to make important economic concessions to Italy, but the belief is held in Rome that there is little likelihood of their acceptance, for Italy has gone so far that it would be difficult for her to adopt so quickly a policy completely at variance with that which she announced a day or two ago.

It is said that Great Britain, France and Russia have been solicited by Turkey to intervene, but have refused.

It is reported that four Italian torpedo boats are patrolling the Barbary coast to prevent the landing of Turkey troops of war materials. There is no indication yet when the expedition will start for Tripoli.

Italy Sends an Ultimatum

London, Sept. 27.—A News Despatch from Paris to-day says that Italy has sent an Ultimatum to Turkey saying that the latter must agree to an Italian occupation of Tripoli and that unless a reply is received by to-morrow Italy will immediately proceed with the threatened occupation.

PETERBORO' PRESBYTERIANS ASKED TO RAISE $8,500

At the meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery held at Campbellford on Tuesday, Dr. McKay and Rev. F. W. Anderson of Toronto, told of the great needs of the work, and its enormous growth. They explained the new system by which appeals for separate funds would cease and the total amount required would be divided among the congregations, so that each would have a definite amount to raise.

After the addresses the Presbytery took up the allottment to each congregation within the bounds. St. Paul's, Peterborough, is asked to raise $5,000, St. Andrew's $2,000 and Knox in view of the heavy demands of their building fund, $550. The Peterborough delegates accepted these amounts as fair and within the region of possibility. This would make it possible for St. Paul's church to have their own foreign missionary and six home missionaries without interfering with their proportion to augmentation and the small schemes. And St. Andrew's would have three home missionaries and make a proportionate contribution to all the other schemes.

WEDDING BELLS

Boucher—Belcher.

God, the best maker of all marriages,
Combine your hearts in one.
—Henry V.

THE handsome home of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Belcher, of 269 Edinburgh street, was the scene of an event of more than ordinary interest, when their charming daughter Miss May Georgina, was united in marriage to Mr. George Boucher, Brock street, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends. The bride, who was a granddaughter of the late Lieut-General John MacDonald, of H.M.S. Bengal Army, was given away by her father She was attired in her travelling costume of dark broadcloth with hat to match. Her bridesmaid was Miss Flora MacDonald Belcher, who was also most attractively gowned in mauve and wore a black picture hat. Rev. Canon Davidson, of St. Johns Anglican church, officiated at the tying of the nuptial knot.

Mr. and Mrs. Boucher left on the evening train for a trip to the coast and it is probable that on their return they will take up residence in Montreal.

The bride, who is one of Peterborough's most popular young ladies, was the recipient of a large number of beautiful and costly presents, which included some extremely rare and costly China. Gifts were received from London, Eng., and British Columbia.

Russell—Merrill.

Yesterday afternoon a very pretty wedding was celebrated at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Merrill, Benson avenue, when their eldest daughter, Miss Hazell Zisda Winnifred, and Geoffrey P. Russell, formerly of Guelph, were united in marriage.

The bride was charmingly attired in white satin voile, with satin and insertion trimmings, wearing the customary veil and carrying a shower bouquet of white roses.

To the strains of the Lohengrin wedding march, played by her sister, Miss Myrtle Merrill, the bride entered the parlour on the arm of her father, and took their places under an arch of ferns, mountain ash berries, and white asters.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. I. Couch, after which the company adjourned to the dining room, where a dainty dejeuner was served.

The bride's "costume de voyage" was of navy blue serge and black picture hat.

Powers—Clancy.

St. Joseph's church, Douro, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, at 9.30 o'clock on Monday morning, when Miss Christina Clancy was united in holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. John Powers, of Peterborough.

The bride, who was attired in a gown of white silk with black picture hat, was attended by her sister, Mary, of Toronto, while Mr. Patrick Allen efficiently performed the duties of best man.

After the wedding ceremony the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents, on the fourth concession of Otonabee, where guests to the number of thirty-five partook of a sumptuous wedding dejeuner.

Among the many costly presents, which testify to the high esteem in which the young lady is held, was a handsome silver tea set, the gift of the groom. In the evening the happy couple left on the 4.38 train for an extended honeymoon to Detroit and other points [illegible] the border. ...

[illegible] Anderson.

St. A[illegible] church, was the scene of a very [illegible] wedding yesterday afternoon, when Miss Ivye Jamieson, eldest daughter of Mr. John Jamieson, Boswell avenue, and Mr. William A. Richardson, Cedar street, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony by Rev. Jas. Rollins.

The bride was the recipient of a large number of lovely presents among which was a grandfather's clock, from the employees of the Canadian Canoe Co., where both of the contracting parties have been employed.

Auto Omnibus Fell Into River and Score Drowned.

Paris, Sept. 27.—An auto-omnibus, occupied by about twenty persons, was crossing the bridge Archeveche, over the Seine, near the Cathedral of Notre Dame to-day when suddenly it left the roadway and crashed through the parapet, fell into the water. The auto-omnibus was a closed vehicle, with the passengers inside. Thirteen bodies have been recovered.

Ne Temere Likened to Inquisition Tortures

Hon. S. H. Blake says in speaking of the ne temere decree, that the Church of Rome has brought misery, degradation and grief into many homes through this outrageous decree. Can Canada be compelled to submit to the dictation of Rome on the subject of validity of marriage? He believed that a test case should be prepared and submitted to the privy council, so that the question of a church's interference in a civil contract would be finally settled.

"No torture of the inquisition could more hurt the chaste woman than the unwarrantable presumptions of this decree, Mr. Blake declared.

ALARMED BRITISHERS RAISE UNION JACK IN TRIPOLI

Malta, Sept. 27.—The Anglo-Maltese colony of Tripoli has petitioned the Governor of Malta for protection Telegrams from Tripoli say that great uneasiness exists among the British subjects. They have raised the Union Jack over their houses.

The British cruisers Suffolk and Barham are here.

London, Sept. 27.—The British Consul at Tripoli is expected to notify the Government if British subjects are in danger. If such notice is received warships will be sent thither immediately.

REMARKABLE EFFECTS OF FIRING SHIP'S BIG GUNS

London, Sept. 27.—The battleship Orion's 13.5-inch guns have been tried with remarkable effect. So tremendous was the concussion that the windows were shaken in Southsea, ten miles away. The structure of the ship well withstood the test and showed no damage.

All those engaged in the firing operation wore wool-padded earlaps. Hardened glass skylights and portholes were badly fractured and the coverings of canned goods in the ship's stores burst, and much crockery was smashed.

The decks were not buckled by the blast, thanks to the manner in which they were especially strengthened, but the bottom of one of the ship's boats fell clean out.

THIRTY M. P.'S PLEDGED TO HELP THE DEPOSITORS

Toronto, Sept. 27.—Representatives of the depositors of the defunct Farmers Bank after a meeting in Toronto to confer in regard to the steps to be taken further to secure relief for those called upon to suffer through as "The Farmers Bank Depositors Relief Committee." Rev. Geo. Gilmore, of Fingal, who has been so active in the interests of depositors, was elected chairman, Rev. C. F. Clarke, of Kerwood, Ont., secretary, and Mr. W. H. Pollard, Pontypool, treasurer. Messrs. Minthorne, of Lindsay, and J. A. Ashmore, of Duntsford, were added to the officers to form the executive committee, which is to have full power to proceed with whatever will advance the interests of the depositors. Mr. I. E. Weldon, of Lindsay, barrister, is to be counsel, and he was instructed to proceed in the most aggressive manner in co-operation with the executive committee.

In a statement in regard to this meeting, Rev. Mr. Gilmore says: "It was felt the time had come for the pushing of the depositors' claims and that no stone should be left unturned in seeking the payment in full from whatever source obtainable. A lengthy discussion took place as to the best means available in the effort and a well-defined plan was prepared. It was agreed that the case for the Farmers Bank depositors stands alone in the annals of bank failures."

BORDEN WAS DRAWN THROUGH CAPITAL CITY IN TRIUMPH

Ottawa, Sept. 27.—Forty Thousand people acclaimed Mr. R. L. Borden, Prime Minister-elect in Ottawa last night and gave him one of the most notable demonstrations of his political career. Fully six thousand were in the line of the parade organized by the Conservative Association in celebration of Thursday's victory and as it progressed it assumed monstrous proportions. It is fifteen years since Ottawa Conservatives have had a chance to shout in their militant enthusiasm, last night they made up for lost time as well as giving vent to the natural elation over the party's victory. The capital seldom witnessed such a turnout. The only occasion when it was anywhere near equalled being the memorable departure of Lord Dundonald. The Conservative chieftain was obviously delighted and gracefully bowed his acknowledgements to the cheering crowds.

MR. C.E. SHERIN, NEW YORK, DEAD

An Old Peterborough Boy Passes Away on Saturday.

There passed away after an operation, performed in St. Elizabeth hospital, New York City, on Friday evening last, Mr. Clarence E. Sherin. Mr. Sherin became ill on Thursday, while on the train returning to New York from Rochester.

Mr. Sherin was born in the township of Emily, Victoria County, and was educated in Peterborough, where he lived until he was 20 years of age. He was the eleventh of a family of eight boys and four girls, in which the first break occurred only two years ago.

Mr. Sherin had a very successful business career. On going to the United States he became special newspaper representative for about three years, when he sold out and started the general advertising agency which bears his name, doing business at 452 Fifth avenue, New York City. He was President of the C. E. Sherin Co.; President of Repetti; a large stockholder in the New York and Kentucky Company and many other business enterprises. Previous to going to New York he was publisher of the St. Paul Daily News and was also for a time manager of the St. Paul Despatch.

Mr. Sherin resided in Bound Brook, New Jersey, a few miles from New York, where he had a beautiful residence. He is survived by a wife and two daughters—Mrs. Arthur F. Hetherington and Miss C. Eloise Sherin, also a brother, J. W., Emily, Henry Toronto, and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, of this city. Mr. H. P. Kennedy is a nephew of the deceased.

Personally, Mr. Sherin was widely esteemed for his companiable qualities which made him friends far outside the immediate range of his business. He was a great lover of nature and nature's works and to indulge this predolietion, he bought an extensive property at Bound Brook, N.J., on the Raritan River, and made it a show place where practical farming, landscape gardening and kindred occupations engaged his liesure. There Mr. Sherin surrounded himself with cattle and horses and dogs and other living creatures for which men of his temper have an honest love. One of his horses "Interpreter" was a prize winning jumper at most of the horse shows in New Jersey. Mr. Sherin fished and hunted and out of these diversions got the pleasure full-blooded men usually do. No one had a keener sense of the joys of the sportsman. He was a member of the Beaverkill Trout Club, Beaverkill, Sullivan County, N.Y., New York Club, New York Athletic Club, the Wachung County Club and other social organizations, and a Mason (Palestine Commandery Knights Templar).

The funeral took place yesterday afternoon.

RECIPIENT OF PURSE OF GOLD.

Rev. Chas. Carpenter Handsomely Remembered on Eve of His Departure for Campbellford.

At the meeting of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew, in the Parish House of St. John's church last night, Rev. Chas. Carpenter, who has assisted Rev. Canon Davidson, the past 12 months, and will next Sunday enter upon the rectorship of Campbellford church, was presented with a purse of gold. The presentation was made by Wardens Stratton and Coulthard, and was accompanied by a eulogistic address in testimony of the high esteem in which the Reverend gentleman is held by St. John's people, and their deep regret at his departure for another field of labor. Mr. Carpenter acknowledged the congregation's recognition of his faithful services in fitting terms and tendered his heartiest thanks for the courtesy and many acts of kindness and consideration experienced by him during his connection with St. John's

A Dangerous Practice.

The caretaker of Jackson's Park has been more or less annoyed all summer long on account of boys and young men shooting birds, and squirrels in the park. On Tuesday a lad was caught in the act of using a 22 calibre rifle and the gun was taken from him and handed to the police. He will be obliged to explain his conduct to Police Magistrate Dumble The use of fire arms in such a place is exceedingly dangerous and must be stopped.

Met Last Night.

There was a meeting of the Church Football League last night in the Y.M.C.A. It has been decided to hold a concert in the S.O.E. hall on Oct. 11, in aid of the Church League. Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P. has kindly consented to act as chairman. At the meeting last night, the delegates from the different clubs expressed themselves as being very grateful to Mr. Burnham for his kindness in donating a trophy to the league.

A Presentation.

On Tuesday evening the office staff of the C. G. E. Co. met in the boarder's parlours of the Y.W.C.A. and presented one of their number Miss Bayles, with a half dozen silver fruit knives, with ivory handles, accompanied by an address. Miss Bayles, who is leaving the city in a few days, has been very popular with her coworkers, and they took this means of showing their regard and appreciation for her. A very enjoyable evening was spent, refreshments being served and a pleasant social time enjoyed. Those present are very grateful to Mrs. Reid of the Y.W.C.A. for her kindness in allowing them to use the parlours for the event.

PREPARING FOR ANOTHER BATTLE

Local Politicans Look For Provincial Elections This Year

SITUATION IN PETERBORO'

Conservatives Think That Mr. E. A. Peck May Favor Bi-Lingual Schools—The Outlook in East Peterborough, With Prospects of a Three Cornered Fight.

WHEN the smoke of battle over the Dominion elections has cleared away, politicians will begin to gird on their armour for another contest in which all the forces of both political parties will be called into action. It is said that Premier Whitney will bring on the Provincial elections before this year is out, and that November or early December may see another wildly exciting election contest. The fact that the Government has lost ten of its members through their election to the commons and in other ways, and that bye-elections to fill their places will be necessary before the next session, first gave rise to the talk and on top of this comes the announcement that Premier Whitney's Cabinet held long sessions on Friday and Saturday about which all were as mum as oysters. They were asked if they had anything to say as to the probability of a general election in the province and all gave evasive answers. Some of the local Conservative politicians feel that Sir James could not find the province in a frame of mind more favorable to him than it is at present, with the sweeping victory of September the 21st fresh in mind and that he is very likely to take advantage of this, especially as so many bye-elections have been made necessary by resignations.

Along with surmises about an election are those as to the probable Liberal candidate in West Peterborough. The Times has heard that Hon. J. R. Stratton may be tendered the nomination. He is reported to have said that he would not be adverse to accepting nomination in order to show his friends and the public, with the reciprocity poopoo removed, that he could easily carry the riding. There is no doubt of Mr. Stratton desires the nomination it is his. The other names mentioned as possible candidates are Messrs. R. R. Hall, ex-M.P., Mayor Morrow, G. N. Gordon, J. E. L. Goodwill, and Geo. A. Gillespie.

Mr. A. E. Peck the Conservative candidate, it is understood, will be asked what his position will be in regard to bi-lingual schools. If his answer is not satisfactory, he will not receive the united support of the party here.

IN EAST PETERBOROUGH.

In East Peterborough, the fight will be between Mr. Jas. Thompson, the sitting Conservative member, and Mr. Edward Hawthorne, the Liberal candidate. Mr. David Andrews, of Asphodel, has also announced himself as an independent candidate. He informed The Times a short time ago that he will enter the contest to stay. It is said that all three candidates will be asked to define their attitude on the school question which is likely to be the leading feature of the campaign.

THE DREDGE "LITTLE LAKE."

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I would like to ask through your valuable paper if the dredge which is supposed to belong to William Irwin and David Conroy, is still in the employ of the government. Also, if the steamer Myrtle, which is said to be owned by a government official, is also in public service. I am in a position to disclose some startling facts which will make it not only expedient, but absolutely necessary to investigate the above.

SOUTH AFRICAN CONTINGENT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Would you kindly inform me through the columns of The Times, which country—Canada or Australia—furnished the largest number of men for the Boer war. By doing so you will oblige.

A Reader.

Reply—Canada sent 130 officers and 286 non-commissioned officers and men to South Africa during the Boer war. In addition these men: 6 saddlers, 10 shoesmiths, 5 wheelers and 1783 horses.

Australia, including New South Wales and Queensland, sent about 4,000 men. We have not the figures exactly, but the above is approximately correct.—Ed. Times.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

put the planks over the hole and got back to my bunk. I was glad to see him go, and yet, knowing that he would come back no more, save in irons, I missed him. I felt utterly alone and forsaken, lying there simulating sleep — with every nerve in my body on tiptoe.

It was a rule of the guardhouse that a prisoner must lie with his feet to the door, so that his head could be seen by the passing guard. Just opposite our door, a lamp was bracketed on the wall. What light it gave shone through the bars, directly on our faces, while we slept. Rules or no rules, a man would shade his face with his arm or a corner of the quilt when the lamp glare struck in his eyes. And Barreau, perhaps with that very emergency in mind, had slept with his hat pulled over his face. None of the guards had voiced objection. They could see him easily enough. Now, this very practice made it possible for him to fool them, with a trick that is as old as prison breaking itself. Skillfully he had arranged the covers to give the outline of a body, and his hat he left tilted over the place where his head had rested.

The simplicity of the thing, I dare say, is what made it a success. At least it fulfilled its purpose that night.

Here a prisoner snored, and there another turned on his bunk, with faint scrapings against the wall. Out in front the policemen conversed in low-toned. I could hear every sound in the building, it seemed; the movements of sleeping men, the scurrying of a rat, the crackle of a match when one of the guard lit his pipe. But I did not hear that for which my ears were strained, and I was thankful.

Twice a trooper made the round, seeing nothing amiss, although I imagined the thump of my heart echoed into the corridor, when he looked in on me and let his glance travel over the place where Slowfoot George should have been — but was not.

It was nearing the time for his return, and I sat up, nerving myself to give the alarm. For, to clear me of complicity and the penalty thereof, Barreau had instructed me to apprise them, after an hour. I was to tell them that he was armed, and so had compelled me to keep silent while he worked. And I was to say that he had but gone. There would be nothing but his foot-prints, and by those they could not reckon the time of his flight.

As I sat there waiting for the guard, and steeling myself to lie boldly, shamelessly for Barreau's sake and my own, my gaze rested speculatively on the pieces of flooring I had laid over the hole. I intended to kick them aside, as I rushed to the window and gabbled my tale to the guard. But I did not rush to the window, nor did I gabble to the guard; for I saw the pieces of plank slide softly apart, and a hand came through the opening thus made — a hand that waved imperative warning for me to lie down. The guard passed as I drew the cover over me. He barely glanced in. Before the squeak of his chair, out in front, told of his settling down, I was up on elbow, staring.

Again the planks slid apart, this time clear of the hole. In the same moment, something took shape in the black square, something that rose quickly till I could see that it was the head and shoulders of a man. I sat mute, startled, filled with wonder and some dismay. The dull light touching his features showed me Barreau, dirt-stained, sweatdrops on his forehead, beckoning to me. I leaned to catch his whisper.

"I came back for you, kid," he breathed. "You're slated for trouble. The cabin of the Moon's purser was robbed the night you left, and it's laid to you. There's a deputy from Benton here after you. You'll get a hard deal. Better chance it with me."

"Robbery," I muttered. "Good God! What next?"

"Extradition — and a hard fight to clear yourself. Weeks, maybe months, in the calaboose. Come on with me. You'll get home sooner, I'll promise you that."

"I've a mind to go you," I declared bitterly. "I seem doomed to be an Ishmael."

"Hurry, then," he admonished, "or we'll be nabbed in the act. Slip in here quietly and crawl after me, just as you are. Bring your shoes in your hand."

Thus, willy-nilly, I found myself in the black, dank space between the floor and the ground. The blackness and musty smell endured no more than a few seconds. The passage to the outer wall was shorter than I had thought. Presently I followed Barreau through a tight hole, and stood erect in the gloom of a cloudy night — a night well fitted for desperate deeds.

"Give me your hand," said Barreau, when I had put on my brogans.

The dark might have been made to order for our purpose. I could barely see Barreau at my elbow. His hand was a needed aid. Together we moved softly away from the guardhouse, and, once clear of it, ran like hunted things. Looking back over my shoulder once, I saw the guardhouse lights, pale yellow squares against a back ground of solid ebony.

I do not know whither Barreau led me, but at length, almost winded from the long run, he brought up against some sort of deserted building. A vague blur resolved into two horses, when he laid hands upon it. Barreau jerked loose the fastening ropes. And as my fingers closed on the reins of one, a carbine popped away in our rear, then another, and a third. Hard on that came the shrilling of a bugle.

"Up with you!" Barreau commanded. "They've found our hole. Stick close by me. If they do run us down, we must take our medicine; we cannot fight the men in red with such odds against us. But I think they'll look long and sorrowfully ere they come upon us, a night like this," he finished, with a short laugh.

Side by side, two dim figures in the murk, we loped away. Barreau kept a steady, unhurried gait. We passed a building or two, dipped into a hollow, splashed through what may have been a river or a pond, for all I could tell, and presently came out upon level plain. Behind us, MacLeod's few lights twinkled like the scattered embers of a camp fire. Soon these, also, dwindled to nothing, and the solid black of the prairies surrounded us. Keenly as I listened, I caught no sound of following hoofs. And Barreau seemed to think himself tolerably safe, for he began to talk in his natural tone as we galloped into the night.

"If the police overhaul us now," he asserted confidently, "it will be only because of a lucky guess at the direction we have taken. They are more than likely to think we have gone south. And if they don't beat us to the Blood Flats, we can snap our fingers at them for many a moon. Are you itching with curiosity, Bob?"

"Not altogether itching," I replied, truthfully enough. "I'm too glad to be out of that iron-barred box to be worrying much over the why of things. Just so the programme doesn't call for another spell in some guardhouse, I'll be satisfied. I'm putting a good deal of faith in what you said about eventually getting to St. Louis."

"Cultivating the philosophical attitude already, eh?" he returned. "You're progressing. To be perfectly frank, there is little chance of our seeing either the inside or outside of a guardhouse again. The redcoats fight shy of the country we are bound for."

"Where is that?" I asked quickly.

"I knew you were wondering," he laughed. "Unconsciously you are bristling with question marks. Natural enough, too. But all in good time, Bob. To-night we have food and clothing, another horse or two, and arms to get. If previous calculations haven't been upset, these things will be forthcoming, and we shall go on our way — if not rejoicing, at least well provided against the wilderness. And then, if you still choose to paddle in my canoe, I'll go into details."

"That's fair enough," I answered. "There's just one thing — that Moon robbery business. How came you to know a deputy sheriff was after me?"

"Simply enough," he returned. "When I got out, I had to sneak around and find a man from whom I could get a horse — I have a friend or two there, luckily. And he told me. The Circle men gave you away, when they were told you had stolen money from the boat. The deputy had just ridden in. He was a mouthy brute, and noised his business about."

"It beats the devil," I declared. "Ever since those two thugs tackled me on the St. Louis water front, I seem to have been going from bad to worse; stepping from one hot stone to one still hotter."

"I've done it, myself," he said laconically. "But they will have to catch their hare before they can cook it; and it takes more than accusation to make a man a thief."

With this, he relapsed into silence. There was a sort of finality in his way of speaking that headed me off from asking more questions. I busied myself digesting what he had told me. Occasionally, as we rode, he drawled a remark; a few words about the country we traversed, or our mounts, or a bull train he hoped to overtake. Between whiles, I speculated on what mysterious link connected him with the girl who had come to the guardhouse in MacLeod. The rancor of her speech had fixed itself irrevocably on my memory. What lay behind their bitter stabbing at each other, I could not say. Nor was it anything that should have concerned me. I had my own troubles to beset me. I knew not whither I was going, or why — except to escape trial for a crime I had not committed. There were many points upon which I desired light, things that puzzled me. All in all, as I put aside the disturbing influences of flight, I did, as Barreau had said, fairly bristle with interrogations.

Once in the night we halted on a small creek for the best part of an hour, letting our horses graze. Only then did I become aware that Barreau rode without a saddle.

"No man ever quitted a mounted police guardhouse without help from the outside," he replied, when I spoke of this. "And the man who took a chance on letting me have two horses had only one saddle to spare. I can ride easier on a blanket than you. It is only for another hour or two, at most. See — we are just come to the trail."

I could distinguish no trail at first. He followed it easily, and after a time I began to get glimpses of deep-worn ruts. Two hours of riding brought us into the bed of a fair-sized creek, and, when we had turned a bend or two of its course, a light blinked ahead. In another minute we brought up against a group of wagons. Barreau rode straight to the tent, through the canvas walls of which glowed the

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

Mr. F. W. G. HAULTAIN, M.L.A.

Though not a Canadian by birth Frederick William Gordon Haultain, K.C., is one of the men who have put their impress on the Great North West. As a member of the old North-west Assembly up to its dissolution and as a member of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Saskatchewan from its creation, he has been an active figure and has taken a leading part in the changes and developments which have taken place on the Western Prairies during the past quarter of a century. Mr. Haultain was born at Woolwich, England, in 1857 and came to this country when a boy receiving his education at

Montreal High School, Peterborough College Institute and Toronto University. He was called to the Ontario bar in 1882 and elected a member of the Northwest Assembly in 1888. He remained a member of the Assembly until its dissolution on the creation of the two new provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta in 1905. He was then elected to the Saskatchewan Legislature of which he is still a member. He represented the Northwest Territories at the Coronation of King Edward in 1902.

It would be difficult to estimate what Mr. Haultain's name stands for in the West. He is universally respected, even by political opponents and indeed it would be hard to overestimate his influence in the provinces he has made his home.

Mr. HUGH GUTHRIE, K.C.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie, K.C., for South Wellington and Chairman of the Railway Committee in the House of Commons, is one of the best known men in Canada. Born of good old Ontario stock at Guelph on August, 1866, he was educated at Guelph Collegiate In-

He was appointed chairman of the House of Commons Railway Committee in 1907 and still holds that important post. Mr Guthrie resides in his native city, Guelph, Ont.

CONTROLLER WANKLYN

When the citizens of Montreal decided to use the sweeping brush at the City Hall and adopt a new form of civic administration they cast about them for qualified and trustworthy men to place in charge of the city's affairs. The great majority of the citizens favoring the system of government by Control it was decided to appoint four controllers, with the mayor as chairman. It was realised by all that the city's future administrative well-being depended on the personnel of the Board and the greatest care was exercised in selecting the right men. One of the first to be selected by the Citizen's Association was Mr. F. L. Wanklyn, M.I.C.E., whose extensive and varied engineering experience in different countries, knowledge of local conditions, and reputation for sound integrity eminently fitted him to act as a Controller. Nor have those who selected him been disappointed, for his work since he became one of the Controllers is a living testimonial to the wisdom of the selection.

Few people gazing on the fine Saxon profile and commanding figure of Mr. Wanklyn would dream that he was a Latin-American by birth.

Controller Wanklyn is a member of the Institute of Civil Engineers, London, and a member of the Council of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. He is a keen sportsman and his favorite holiday is spent with rod or gun by some quiet stream or amid the game frequented woods.

St. Catharines, Ont., Sept. 20.—Frederick Wilson of Merriton, the married man who induced fifteen year old Gladys Terryberry to go away with him on a tramp this summer, the pair being caught in Ann Arbor, Mich., was found guilty at the fall assizes before Justice Riddell and a jury on the charge of abduction. He also pleaded guilty to seduction. The judge sentenced him to three years and a half in Kingston penitentiary.

BLACKFEET INDIANS' LAST "MEDICINE LODGE"

Picturesque Festival Which Will Be Held No More.

A short time ago the people of Little Dog, better known as the Blackfeet Indians, who occupy a reservation 508,000 acres in extent in the Two Medicine country of North-western Montana, just east of the new Glacier National Park, gave their last big medicine lodge and grass dance near Browning. Infinite pathos attaches to these ceremonies of a vanishing race. Six thousand redmen of the most stalwart race remaining on the continent participated in the festivities of the week.

Near the camp were horses scattered all over the landscape, sturdy Indian stock that in the old days was the measure of wealth among the people. Of course, there were dogs—of all sizes, colors and kinds, just as there used to be in every Indian camp. Moving here and there were groups and solitary figures on foot and horseback. In the background was the circle of lodges all facing the east, where the sun shines first.

At noon the camp was quiet. By two o'clock a tomtom here and there began its intermittent throbbing and the people donned their finery for the afternoon festivities. By three o'clock many Indians were about in full dress, the men with war bonnets, slashed buckskin costumes decorated with bead and porcupine quill work and hung profusely with skins of the medicine weasel. The women were in bright colored, heavily, beaded skirts and jackets of cloth or buckskin, some of them literally covered with elk teeth, many of them covered with miniature bells that tinkled musically as they walked; their faces were painted with vermilion, ochre, black, or combinations of these and other colors. Horses galloped in every direction and there was an air of activity all over the camp. The medicine lodge, in the middle of the camp circle, was the rendezvous for all, for the medicine was to be made there. By and by the sharp, short notes of the eagle wing bone medicine whistle began to help the drum, for Yellow Owl was making strong medicine. It was time to go to the medicine lodge and watch the mystery.

On the west side of the medicine lodge an alcove was built of green boughs. This was Yellow Owl's private place and it faced the door of the medicine lodge, which always opens to the east. Hung about the great medicine centre pole of the lodge were many offerings of clothing, blankets and other belongings which these people had given to the sun as sacrifices. These could not be touched or taken away by any man.

Inside the lodge a circle of chiefs in full regalia were gathered, and behind them the people crowded, watching Yellow Owl make medicine to the sun. The drumbs throbbed in ceaseless booming, which Yellow Owl accompanied with his eagle wing bone whistle while he stood staring at the sun, whistling and swaying his body continuously.

Back to the circle of chiefs were gathered the Indians in a solid mass, sober faced, keen eyed and watching all the proceedings, for they understand what this mystery means, as no white man can ever understand it unless he has lived with the Indians.

The grass dance is of a semi-religious nature, the same as all these ceremonies are among savage peoples. It is designed to call the attention of the gods, big and little, wherever they may be, to the fact that the people desire a good season with what probably was the last great grass dance.

A MILLIONAIRE'S MISADVENTURE

When the White Star liner Baltic was about to sail the other day, John J. O'Riley, a wealthy Texan, and his family went aboard to visit their home town in Ireland. After they had gone to the stateroom, Mr. O'Riley decided to go ashore to have a $500 note changed into English money. When the time for sailing came, O'Riley had not returned, and, fearing that something had happened to him, his family returned to the pier, to begin a search for the head of the family.

No trace of him could be found, however, and his wife and children were becoming greatly alarmed, when a wireless message reached them from the Baltic, which by that time was out on the ocean. The message was from Mr. O'Riley and informed his wife that he was on board the Baltic and that he would wait for them at Liverpool. It seems that Mr. O'Riley returned to the ship just before the gang plank was removed, which connected the pier with the steerage entrance. While he made his way to the cabin, his family went ashore by way of the cabin gang plank. Mrs. O'Riley and the children sailed on the next steamer to join Mr. O'Riley in Liverpool.

The Safest Place

A city gentleman was recently invited down to the country for "a day with the birds." His aim was not remarkable for its accuracy, to the great disgust of the man in attendance, whose tip was generally regulated by the size of the bag.

"Dear me!" at last exclaimed the sportsman, "but the birds seem exceptionally strong on the wing this year."

"Not all of 'em, sir," was the answer. "You've shot at the same bird about a dozen times. 'E's a-follerin' you about, sir."

"Well, sir," came the reply. "I dunno, I'm sure, unless 'e's 'angin' 'round you for safety."

The Games, the Thing.

PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper National Park, 1037 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

THE NEW PRIME MINISTER.

The News makes the new Prime Minister the subject of a leading article, every word of which we endorse.

In Mr. Borden the country will have a wise, prudent and progressive Prime Minister. Ever since he became leader of the Opposition he has borne himself with dignity and with distinction. If, as his opponents contend, he is deficient in the craft of the politician, he is strong in the integrity and solidity of a statesman.

Throughout his term in Opposition he has done laborious service for the Conservative party. He has made no serious mistake. More than once he has refused to be stampeded by demagogues into sacrificing either the permanent interest of his party or the permanent welfare of the country to influences which might have brought an immediate success but could have had no enduring result.

Nothing in his career is finer than his dealing with the Western Grain Growers a few months ago and his frank and courageous declaration that he was against reciprocity and would not support the agreement with Washington even if by so doing he could become Prime Minister. All through the campaign he spoke moderately but strongly, careful of the delicacy of international relationships in all his references to the United States, but firmly insisting upon the right of Canada to conserve her own resources, to be faithful to her own ideal of nationality and to adhere to the connection with the Empire.

In all the Provinces Mr. Borden has splendid support. He will go to Ottawa with a great national party at his back. No doubt he will give the country a Ministry that will represent the spirit of the contest in which he has just been engaged and the various aggressive Canadian and British elements which combined against the Laurier Administration. If he does this we should have a long era of Liberal Conservative Government, satisfactory relations with other countries, and an ever closer relation with the Empire.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

Home for Christmas

The Steamship Lines are expecting a large home-going exodus for the holiday season this year, and are making extensive preparations to take care of all of those who are planning to visit the Old Country.

The White Star-Dominion Line has arranged for three special Christmas sailings, viz. the "Canada" December 2nd, "Megantic" December 9th, and "Teutonic" December 14th, from Portland, Me., and Halifax, N. S., to take care of these passengers. These steamers will arrive in ample time to enable passengers to reach their homes before Christmas whether in England or on the Continent.

The railways have recognized the growing popularity of these annual Christmas excursions and now run special trains from Montreal and the west to connect with the steamers, and the most complete arrangements are made by both the steamship companies and the rail lines to further the comfort of the homeward bound ones during the holiday season.

New Oil Field
A legitimate chance to make a fortune, by the investment of a small amount of money is what every investor wants. Usually the difficulty is to be able to satisfy yourself as to the safeguards and probabilities of success, and thus select the good from the bad. The newest, and what promises to be the richest oil area in the world is just beginning to be developed, in what is known as the Tampico field in Mexico. The flow of oil from the first few wells drilled there has broken all records. Beyond a doubt this is one of the greatest opportunities for investment ever known.
A Company has just been organized to develop 3500 acres of the choicest, and best located property in the producing field. For this purpose we will offer a limited number of shares of stock for subscription at ½ its par value. We are certain we can interest you, and satisfy you of the merit of the enterprise if you will let us.

The Best Medium for Reaching Investors in Eastern Ontario

VOL XXXIV NO 224 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 28 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 50 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

HON. FRANK OLIVER

Hon. Frank Oliver is another of the plucky Ontario men who turned their faces westward to the great prairies of the Northwest when still boys. Born in Peel county, Ontario, in 1853 we find him thirty years later when the big boom which has changed the West from a lonely wilderness to a prosperous and rapidly filling farming country dotted with rising towns and cities, was beginning, a member of the Northwest Council. In 1888 when the Council was dissolved he was elected to the Legislative Assembly which succeeded it. He remained a member of the Assembly during the next eight years till 1896 when he entered the arena of Federal politics and was returned to the House of Commons as an Independent Liberal. Later on he joined the official Liberal Party and in 1906 became Minister of the Interior in the Laurier cabinet and a Privy Councillor.

HON. FRANK OLIVER,
Minister of the Interior.

As Minister of the Interior he has had much to do with shaping the immigration policy pursued by the Dominion Government in recent years. In fact his admirers claim that the big colonization wave which has been sweeping into Saskatchewan and Alberta and has transformed Regina, Moose Jaw, Edmonton and Calgary from small towns to flourishing cities is in large measure due to Mr. Oliver's energyand initiative At any rate it cannot be denied that from the start he was one of the men who pinned their faith in the West and told the world what it was going to be.

Hon. Mr. Oliver is a journalist by profession and is owner of the 'Edmonton Bulletin' which he established in the early eighties and which is now one of the most successful dailies in Western Canada.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

Electric Fixtures at First Cost.

We call the attention of the public to the advertisement of the Electrical Wiring, Fixture and Supply Company, 261 College street, Toronto, which is to be found in another column. Those who contemplate changing their fixtures, as well as those who have electric wiring to do, should communicate with the company. By doing so they will procure fixtures at first cost—wholesale to all. Peterborough references as to the high quality of their fixtures given if desired.

Right in your busiest season when you have the least time to spare you are most likely to take diarrhoea and lose several days' time, unless you have Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy at hand and take a dose on the first appearance of the disease. For sale by all dealers.

DELIVERY OF THE TIMES.

Subscribers to The Times are asked to immediately report to the office every case of irregular or late delivery of their paper.

Hearty co-operation in this regard is appreciated because in no other way may such errors be remedied.

It is the determination of The Times to provide a prompt and regular delivery to its subscribers and the latter by reporting ALL complaints can do much to guarantee a perfect service.

Phone 101, or notify The Times Printing Co. by post card.

Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

MONEY NO OBJECT

WHEN PEOPLE ARE SEEKING HEALTH OR RELIEF FROM ANY DISEASE THE PRICE NEVER COUNTS.

It is a fact that not less than a million is spent every year by people seeking a satisfactory cure for Catarrh, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption.

Probably the best and most highly recommended preparation is Catarrhozone which treats the local symptoms very effectually by means of medicated air supplied through a convenient hard rubber inhaler. The poisons in the blood are driven off by Ferrozone Tablets, which are taken after each meal. They promote appetite, aid digestion, and make the blood rich and pure; so that it will nourish all parts of the body.

This combined local and constitutional treatment in catarrhal diseases has met with wonderful success and can be relied upon to cure every time. The inhaler stops sneezing, coughing, droppings in the throat, and brings quick relief and cure to all the disagreeable symptoms of catarrh.

The following testimonials from well-known Canadians furnish abundant proof what Catarrhozone accomplishes in stubborn cases.

Mrs. James Tweedie, of Jay Bridge says: "For years my daughter doctored unsuccessfully for Catarrh. She had droppings in the throat, hawkings, nausea, and could not sleep at night. The first day's use of Catarrhozone benefitted and ultimately cured my daughter so that Catarrh has never returned. I can recommend Catarrhozone as a grand remedy for Catarrh."

Thousands of strong letters could be given like the above if necessary, but all that is required to prove the merit of Catarrhozone is a trial. It is sure as death to cure and if it fails your money will be refunded. Catarrhozone cured lots of cases worse than yours and can do it again.

Complete outfit costs $1.00. Small size 25c. Sold by druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a volume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a muzzle velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while "paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another cartoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

High Class Advertising.

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd has been 258,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grands Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

CAN WEIGH THE SOUL

It Tips Beam at Ounce To Ounce and Quarter.

Dr. Duncan MacDougall, of Haverhill, Mass., who has long been a student of psychical phenomena, declared his belief, in an interview here that the human soul weighs from one half ounce to nearly an ounce and a quarter, and further that the soul substance is blended with the protoplasm of the brain and spinal cord in life.

Dr. MacDougall says it has been his experience in a dozen instances to watch a dying man or woman stretched on a bed that was part of a delicately adjusted scale, and to hear, as the patient's last breath leaves the body, the noise of the dropping out of the weight.

Again, sitting in a darkened room, he has watched a strong ray of pure white light rest along the body of a dying man, covering him like a silver bar from feet to head, and over the face. Dr. MacDougall believes that this ray of light is the "soul substance."

HOW INSANITY IS PROPAGATED

(1) Insanity will be inherited by all the children if both parents are insane.

(2) When one parent is insane and the other is normal, but has the insanity taint from one grandparent, half the children will be insane and half will be normal, but all will be capable of transmitting the insanity taint to their descendants.

(3) If one parent is insane and the other is normal and of pure normal ancestry, all the children will be normal, but they will be capable of transmitting the insanity to their descendants.

(4) If both parents are normal, but each inherits the insanity taint from one grandparent, one-fourth of the children will be normal and will be incapable of transmitting the insanity to their progeny; the remaining half of the children will be normal, but will transmit the insanity taint to their offspring.

(5) Both parents being normal, one having a pure normal ancestry and the other with the insanity taint from one grandpatent, all the children will be normal, and only half of them will be capable of transmitting the insanity taint to their descendants.

(6) When both parents are normal and of pure normal ancestry, all the children will be normal, and will not be capable of transmitting an insanity taint to their progeny.

For the sake of simplicity and brevity the word "insanity" has been used in the foregoing paragraphs to include feeble-mindedness as well as certain — but not all — forms of mental disease.

A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD.

By Constance Romanne-James.

John Chalmers was finishing the portrait of a child, the best thing he had ever done, when his wife entered the studio. That he was conscious of her entry was attested by the frown which darkened his face as she closed the door. Yet he neither spoke nor loked round, but drawing a thin silk curtain over the picture proceded leisurely to scrape the paint from the palette in his hand.

Mrs. Chalmers stood for a moment by the door, watching him, then moved one step forward and stopped again.

"Jack."

He turned to look at her with a grave face.

"So you have come back?"

She clasped and unclasped two thin white hands nervously. It was so difficult to explain he errand. If only her husband would storm and rage. Instead of which he stood calm, unruffled, apparently not very much interested in her re-appearance.

"Will you not sit down?" he asked presently, with cold politeness. "You seem a little upset."

"Upset!" with an angry flush that dyed her pale cheeks scarlet. "A little upset! That is so like you, John Chalmers."

A faint smile played over the man's handsome face.

"I have not altered much in six months, Beatrice. But what can I do for you? You have left Mr.—er—Mr. Waring?"

"For the moment, yes."

"How very interesting." Each word came deliberately. "And if one may venture to inquire, what do you intend to do now?"

His words stung her pride into expression. "You need have no fear," she said bitterly. "I did not come here to-day to propose that you should take me back again."

"I must confess," he answered blandly, "that the idea never occurred to me. You make for happiness, at whatever cost. And we discovered, did we not, that our union was not conducive to happiness?"

"But it might have been." The words came quickly, almost before she realised she had spoken.

Chalmers looked at his wife sharply. "It might have been?"

"Yes, yes, yes," she cried passionately, leaning forward in her eagerness. "It might have been. If you had been more human——it might have been. People worship you for your art's sake. If you had been a little less self-sufficient, a little more attentive to me, your young wife—it might have been. Above all, if you had not taken me to live with your stern, Puritanical sister, Isabella, who misjudged me as only a soured, middle-aged woman can hate and misjudge the high-spirited vivacity of a young girl—I tell you again, it might have been."

"And was it to point out my faults you condescended to honour me with a visit to-day?"

Mrs. Chalmers gave a miserable little laugh. "I forgot. Pointing out faults is your prerogative, yours and Isabela's. No, John, I did not come to upbraid you. I came to ask you—to talk about—Bubbins."

"The child."

"Our child."

"She is well looked after in every way. Isabella——"

Mrs. Chalmers put her hands to her ears. "No! For God's sake not that. Don't tell me Isabella is a second mother to her, John." She crossed over to where she sat beside the easel playing indicerently with palette and brushes, and bent her tall, girlish figure down to his level. "John, the child is nothing to you. Though only three, it's already plain to see how unlike you she is in every way. She has all my characteristics. Every day you are reminded of the unfortunate fact. You must hate her——"

"Won't you give me credit for any fatherly feeling?" he interrupted.

"It is not your fault." The full gaze of her sad eyes was turned upon him. "When the gods endowed you, they decided you could do without anything as commonplace as affection. There was a time once—long ago—when you seemed to be alive. I thought to have married a flesh-and-blood man, and I found him only a thing of stone, feelingless—cold." She gave a little shiver.

"And did you find what I lacked in the man of your maturer choice? Did he understand you as no one else could? I am curious to know."

"You speak in enigmas. I have no idea what you are driving at. Don't you understand? I have come to ask you to let me have Bubbins."

"Bubbins? Let you have the child?" He was startled out of his pose.

"Why do you speak like that? I did wrong in leaving you, and I have suffered. If I am a foolish woman, I am not a bad one. Let me have her, for pity's sake. I can't"—a little sob—"I can't live without her. Rise above yourself, Jack. Mrs. Chalmers laid her hand pleadingly on her husband's arm. "Will you?"

"No," shaking off her hand roughly. "No, no; it is impossible."

"Why? Will you tell me why?"

"You know why. When you left this house as—as you did you forfeited the right to——"

"Daddy!" cried a small imperative voice.

"Daddy!" She pulled his sleeve to attract his attention. "Daddy, somefinks the matter wif Mumty. She's crying. I 'spect you'd better kiss her and make her well. Come!

The big man reluctantly allowed himself to be led to his wife, who still sat with her face hidden in her hands.

"Beatrice!"

A hand was laid on the bowed head. At his touch she looked up, and Bubbins climbing on to the settee, laid her cool cheek against her mother's tear-stained one with a sigh of relief.

"Listen, Beatrice. After all, I am only human. I cannot deny you what you ask. You shall have the little one, provided you let me see her sometimes.

MEXICO FOR THE MEXICANS.

Under New Government English Language to be Eliminated

One cause of the recent uprising in Mexico was found in the extent to which the resources of the country had been exploited by foreigners for the benefit of the foreigners. Under the new government an attempt is apparently to be made to secure a larger share of the profits from these resources for the Mexican people. Among other things railways, which have heretofore been operated largely by men from the United States and Canada, are, if present intentions are carried out, to be operated by natives. As part of this movement a convention of railway men from all parts of Mexico has been called to meet in the City of Mexico next month to devise the most effective plan to abolish the foreign languages on the railroads." When it is remembered that on account of the employment of so many American locomotive engineers and conductors on the National lines and other roads, train orders are given in English, this movement has an ominous look. It is further declared that "the convention will have a political side, and railway men will select their presidential candidate and support him in a body."

Police Rather Than Soldiers.

It has been revealed in the British Parliament how the English avoid the stigma of sending troops to quell rioters. Learning that 500 London policemen had been despatched to Hull to fight off seamen strikers there Keir Hardie asked the Prime Minister by what right such a thing was done, and further asked why the London taxpayers ought to pay the salaries of policemen doing duty in another part of the Kingdom. The answer was a confession. It was to the effect that throughout the British isles there is a mutual exchange of policemen. Whenever there is a strike on the city affected calls upon one of its neighbors for aid. The Government encourages this and defrays part of the expense. It looks better to send policemen than to send soldiers.

Lord Aberdeen's Snore.

Lord Aberdeen, the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, and a former Governor-General of Canada, is one of the three or four richest Peers in Great Britain. But he lives unostentatiously and when travelling between London and his Scotch estate he always takes a single berth in an ordinary sleeper. One morning, just as the train was rolling into York, a stranger leaned across a seat back and enquired of Lord Aberdeen:

"May I ask whether you are Lord Aberdeen?"

"Yes, I am Lord Aberdeen," was the answer.

"You're one of the wealthiest men in England, aren't you?"

"Why," smiled the Peer, I am pretty well off."

"Well, your Lordship," said the stranger, "Permit me to inform you that I slept next to you last night, and, if I had your money and your snore, I'd take a whole car when I wanted to travel at night."

Mohammedanism in the Sudan.

Dr. Karl Kumm, an adventurous missionary explorer, who has lately returned to Johannesburg after a journey across the Sudan from the Niger to the Nile, has created some sensation by a series of lectures on the inroads which Islam is making in the Sudan. He says that a considerable number of Mohammedan students are being sent into the Sudan from Cairo to Islamize the people, who are regarded as the best negro fighting population in the world.

Illustrating his contention that but little is generally known of Sudan affairs Dr. Kumm mentioned the recent liberation of 200,000 slaves in one district alone as the result of the intrusion of European Powers, stating that it was an event which had hitherto not been published.

Dr. Kumm declared that unless counteracting Christianizing influence were forthcoming all over the Sudan Islam must become a great menace to southern as well as to northern Africa.

Gaining Experience.

Before one of the present Bishops was elevated to his see a prominent part of his work was that in connection with the missions, in which ambulance lessons were held and the members taught to render "first-aid." One day an elderly woman asked him if he could persuade her husband to join the ambulance classes, to keep him out of the public-house.

The reverend gentleman said he would try, and after some trouble he succeeded in persuading the "hubby" in question to join the ambulance class

Some weeks after the clergyman met the woman, and asked her how her husband liked the classes.

"Oh, he's that keen on it, yer don't know, sir. Why, when there's no class to go to he stays at home and bandages the cat!"

Sabbath Description.

Bishop John L. Nuelsen, in an address in Omaha, said of intolerance: "These intolerant people make me think of young Parson Brownslow. Parson Brownslow, one Sunday morning, was passing a pond when two young skaters went through the ice. The parson, a good swimmer, plunged into the cold, black water promptly, and after a deal of diving and floundering and struggling, he managed to rescue the two boys. He laid their limp forms on the bank side by side and then he began to work their arms vigorously, so as to restore animation, when a deep, reproachful voice cried from the mud: 'Parson!' He looked up and beheld the drowning widow of Deacon Jones. 'Parson,' said the deacon's late wife, 'hain't them babies?'

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the peoperty, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE:

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

POWERS FOR PEACE.

The New York Herald's financial correspondent in Paris says it will take Germany years to recover from the financial losses resulting from the Moroccan war scare. He writes:

"For many years the economic evolution of Germany and the great expansion of her commerce and industry have forced her to have ever greater recourse to credit.

"The military power of the Empire, it must be admitted, has facilitated this. Foreign money has poured in from all sides, especially from England and still more from France, to German banks, where it was at once employed at very remunerative rates of interest.

"At the present moment German megalomania has put Europe within a hair's breadth of a universal war, the consequences of which would be incalculable. The Berlin Borse took fright, savings bank depositors lost their heads and rushed to obtain repayment. Is it not natural that in these conditions foreign countries should act in the same manner and call in the capital they have invested in Germany?

"The movement in this sense is general and the German market will have to face demands for repayment, not only from London and Paris, but also from St. Petersburg, Vienna and even Peru."

Here is another proof of the essential truth of Norman Angell's dictum that the time has come when no nation can afford to go to war. Science and commerce between them will, ere long, permanently retire the war lord.

Mr. Knox's Secretary.

A clever young woman who is a member of the Washington staff of a Cleveland paper had occasion to call on Mrs. Knox the other day on a matter of important news. Mrs. Knox was not at home, the man servant who answered the bell informed the journalistc.

'Well, hasn't she a secretary who can give me the information I am after?' persisted the newspaper woman.

'Certainly, madam,' answered the footman — 'this way, please.' Leading the way along the hall, he ushered her into the presence of a very important looking person.

'Are you Mrs. Knox's secretary?' asked the newspaper girl.

The man laughed. 'I guess I am,' he admitted. 'I'm her husband, and I'm the secretary of state. What can I do for you?'

Why He Was a Democrat.

'I always like to tell this story, especially if I am with Democrats,' said Prof. R. L. Lyman, of the University of Wisconsin.

'A man had a 'coon, which he offered to give to one of three boys who would give the best answer to the question: 'Why I am a Democrat.'

'"I'm a Democrat because I believe in free silver," said one lad.

'"I am a Democrat because I believe in free trade," answered the second.

'"I'se a Democrat 'cause I want dat 'coon," answered the third, a negro boy, looking hungrily at the coon.

'It's needless to tell which got the 'coon,' finished Mr. Lyman.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

THE POWER OF COMPOUND INTEREST.

A man may secure an absolutely sure income of $600 a year for his little 5 year old daughter, or granddaughter, from the time she is 55 to the end of her days, if he will pay to the Canadian Government the sum of $964.75. If she should die at any time before reaching the Annuity age the money paid together with 3 per cent. compound interest will be refunded to the purchaser, or as he may direct. There are but few parents who, when they understand the matter, will not be anxious to make the investment, if they can spare the money, in order to have the assurance that their daughter, no matter what reverses overtake her after she is 55, would have a comfortable income in her old age—an income that she cannot be deprived of by any person or by any process of law.

Full particulars of this excellent scheme may be had on application to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, to whom letters go free of postage.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman, writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

In Castle for Summer

The King and Queen of Italy and their young people have gathered in their Piedmontese castle of Racconigi, only twenty miles from Turin, to spend the summer quietly after the recent mourning. The castle, which once, together with Moncalieri, where Princess Clotilde died, and Stupinigi, where Queen Maria Pia breathed her last, was one of the strongholds of Piedmont, is now surrounded by a peaceful village of 10,000 inhabitants, and contains very sad relics for the Italian royal family, as in one corner of the edifice there are gathered the furniture of the bedroom in which King Charles Albert, the king who granted the constitution in 1848, died a voluntary exile at Oporto, Portugal, and the furniture of the bedroom occupied by King Humbert just before he was shot by the anarchist Bresci at Monza.

LONG ODDS FOR HIM.

J. W. Colt, the horseman, had a jockey who was sick. He told the boy to go to town to a certain doctor for some medicine.

When the jockey got back Colt asked him: "Did you go to that doctor?"

"No, sir. When I got there I found it said, 'Hours, one to two,' on his door."

"Well, what difference did that make?"

"Why, Mr. Colt just across the street there was another doctor that had on his door, 'Hours, twelve to one; and I took the long odds."

ADMIRALTY'S SENSE OF JUSTICE

Big Compensation for Wronged Cadet

The British Admiralty has paid £7,120 to Cadet Archer-Shee as compensation and costs for his wrongful dismissal from the Royal Naval College at Osborne. The amount was divided as follows: £3,000, compensation; £4,120, the full costs of the legal proceedings in connection with the matter.

The case, it will be remembered, arose out of the following circumstances: In October, 1908, a postal order for 5s., belonging to one of the cadets of the Royal Naval College, Osborne, was stolen and cashed. Some days later the father of George Archer-Shee, another of the cadets, received a letter from the Admiralty ordering him to withdraw his son from the college, the implication being that the boy had been guilty of dishonesty. The boy, who strongly protested his innocence, was withdrawn, and Mr. Archer-Shee at once took steps to have the matter investigated. Only with the greatest difficulty were he and his legal advisers able to obtain the actual form of the charge, the evidence on which the lad was adjudged guilty, and the nature of the inquiry which was stated to have been held. The inquiry, it was ascertained, consisted of the boy being called before the commander and being ordered to write his own name and the name of the cadet to whom the postal order belonged. The postmistress who cashed the order stated that she could not identify the boy who cashed it.

The father took the only means in his power to obtain a full and open inquiry by bringing an action at law, in the form known as a petition of right. The Admiralty evaded the issue by putting forward the technical plea — which proved successful — that no action could be brought against the Crown, inasmuch as the real plaintiff, being a naval cadet, was in His Majesty's service under the regulations by which he was admitted to the Naval College. Sir Edward Carson, who appeared for Mr. Archer-Shee, stigmatized the course taken by the Admiralty as "a gross outrage," and said, "It is a case of the grossest oppression without remedy I have ever heard during the thirty-five years I have been at the Bar." On July 18, 1910, the Judges of the Court of Appeal held that Mr. Archer-Shee was entitled to have his petition of right against the Crown tried by a jury, the question of law, as to whether or not the Crown could be made liable for breach of contract, being postponed till the jury had pronounced on the main issue as to the justice or otherwise of the treatment of Mr. Archer-Shee's son. The Court of Appeal further marked their sense of the procedure of the Admiralty by awarding Mr. Archer-Shee the costs of the appeal and of the abortive trial in which the demurrer of the Crown had been upheld.

Made Cranky By Rain

Day after day the lover of animals had stopped to pet the baker's horse, which happened to be hitched at a certain corner at the hour when the animal lover passed, and the horse apparently appreciated the attention. But one day his mood changed and he snapped viciously.

"Well, of all things," exclaimed the animal lover. "He never did that before."

"Probably because you never petted him before in rainy weather," said the man who knows a bit about horses. "As you value your ten fingers and general safety of limb, don't get familiar with a horse when he is soaked with rain. No matter how peaceable his disposition the rain makes him cranky, and there is no telling how he will take unsolicited fondling."

Mrs. Hashleigh—Yes, we've been having considerable trouble with our milkman lately. Do you take your coffee with or without?

New Boarder—I take it within.

"Did your husband bring home any game?"

"No," replied young Mrs. Torkins. "I understand Charley had bad luck on this trip. He got into a game of cards and lost the money he took with him to buy fish."

SPORTING COLUMN.

PUGILISTS ARE BORN AND NOT MADE.

John L. Sullivan was Intended for the Church. — So Was Jeffries, Whose Father Was a Circuit Rider.

It is as natural for some men to be prizefighters as it is for others to be poets, musicians and artists. Circumstances often develop the pugilistic nature in the successful fighting man, but nobody can become a top-notcher in the prize ring unless he has the natural requirements in his makeup.

John L. Sullivan's parents often declared that they intended their husky son for the church, but that nature made the big fellow a champion prizefighter. It was about the same with the parents of Jeffries. His father, who is a travelling preacher up and down the Western rivers, tried hard to have his big son follow in the same path, but again nature stepped in and declared Jim a gladiator. It is almost always the case that parents of pugilists are opposed to the fighting game.

When Sullivan was a young fellow in South Boston, his father put him to work in a factory to learn the trade of tinker. John had refused to study for the priesthood and wanted to be his own boss. He developed a fondness for baseball, and at each dinner hour, he would join his friends in a game in a nearby lot. The boss of the factory was a big burly fellow who ruled the apprentices with an iron hand. When the whistle blew at one o'clock he would accept no excuses from the boys who were a few minutes late.

One afternoon Sullivan was so taken up with his ball playing that he did not hear the factory whistle and was about ten minutes late when he came back to the shop. With no word of warning the boss rushed at John L. like a cyclone, clouted him in the face, and kicked him in the body. Like an infuriated tiger Sullivan turned, and shooting out his mighty right fist he landed on the boss's jaw, sending the latter flying through a window into the yard.

Sullivan lost his job, but it was not long after that he came to be known as "the strong boy." The first time he ever put on a pair of boxing gloves was at a variety entertainment in the Dudley Street Opera House, in Roxbury, Mass. John attended the show not expecting to take any part in it. But it so happened that as a muscular young man named Scannel came on the stage and announced that he was ready to meet anybody in the house, some of Sullivan's friends induced him to accept the challenge. So after a parley John climbed over the footlights. He had no boxing togs with him, but just pulled off his coat, rolled up his shirt sleeves and drew on the gloves.

Sullivan and Scannel went at it hammer and tongs. In a mixup John received a terrific blow on the back of his head. His eyes flashed fire, and he came back at his antagonist with a punch so hard that Scannel was knocked clean over the piano, which was near at hand. That settled Scannel and also started Sullivan on his pugilistic career. From that night on his sole ambition was to become a champion fighter.

Jeffries a Boilermaker

Jeffries began his business career as a boilermaker in Los Angeles. He was fond of swinging the heavy hammer and soon developed great physical strength. Jim was never in the habit of looking for trouble, but when it was up to him he generally sailed in and won. Among his co workers in the boiler factory Jeff soon gained a reputation for his rough and ready fighting ability, so that very few cared to cross his path.

THE COLDEST SPOT ON EARTH

Central Siberia Has This Distinction

The coldest place on the earth's surface of which there is authentic record is in Siberia. The lowest temperature ever recorded in the open air was 90 degrees below zero (Fahrenheit) at Werchajansk, Central Siberia, on anuary 15, 1885.

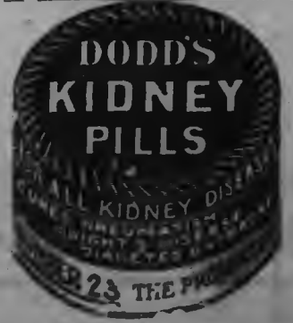
The highest temperature of which there is an authenticated record is 124 degrees above zero (Fahrenheit) in Algeria, Northern Africa, on July 17, 1879. These places of extreme heat and extreme cold give a range of temperature covering the whole inhabitable world of 214 degrees or two degrees more than from zero to the boiling point.

In the United States the lowest temperature ever recorded in winter is 64 degrees below zero in North Dakota, and the highest ever recorded in summer is 115 degrees above zero in Arizona. This gives a total range of 179 degrees within about 1000 miles.

There is an unauthenticated report from Aumale, an outpost of the Algerian bad lands, which gives a temperature record in the open air of 172 degrees above zero (Fahrenheit). This, if correct, exceeds by 48 degrees that of the hihgest on record. It is also stated that the temperature at this place rarely gets down to 140 degrees. On one or two occasions it dropped to 120 degrees and the natives shivered with the cold. Strange as it may seem, the death rate of French soldiers stationed at this post is lower than that at most northerly places having equitable temperatures.

People who inhabit these places of extreme heat and cold are found to be exceptionally healthy and live to a ripe old age.

White men in all parts of the world make their homes in these exceptionally hot or cold places, and move from one to the other without any apparent physical discomfort, it is found that animals or plants which would flourish in one could not survive in the other.



Invaluabe to Every Farmer

Its Wonderful Power in Curing Sick Cattle and Colicky Horses Makes "Nerviline" Worth Its Weight in Gold.

The stockman or farmer that doesn't know of the thousand and one uses of "Nerviline" around the stable, has a great deal to learn. "Why, I wouldn't think of locking my stable door at night without knowing I had a supply of 'Nerviline' on hand. I always get a dozen bottles at a time from my druggist.

"To cure colic, indigestion and bad stomach in a horse or cow there is no remedy on earth in the same class as 'Nerviline'. Last summer I had a $250 horse that got the scours, and I would have lost him if I hadn't been able to give him Nerviline. I poured a full bottle of Nerviline in a pint of water down his throat and saved his life. I know of neighbors who have saved many heads of valuable stock, stricken with colic, just by using Nerviline. It is equally good as a rub-on liniment, and I know from my experience that for man or beast internally or externally, 'Nerviline' is worth a dollar a drop."

The total polling for Mr. Stratton was 2,902, and for Mr. Burnham, 2,944, making the difference of 42 in Mr. Burnham's favor.

Death of Mr. David Little.

There passed away on Wednesday evening last, at the home of his nephew, Mr. S. J. Little, North Monaghan, Mr. David Little, aged 74 years. The deceased was born in England, and came to Canada 25 years ago after losing his wife. He settled at Cobourg and lived there until two months ago, when he went to live with his nephew. He is survived by one brother, Henry, who resides in England. The funeral will take place this afternoon.

DEATH AFTER A SCRATCH.

Morris Quatzam, an eleven-year-old Windsor boy, fell off his bicycle and scratched his wrist. He thought nothing of the injury, but blood poison set in and he is dead.

Such incidents as these — by no means infrequent—ought to make people realize the danger that may lie even in the smallest flesh wound.

Take a simple illustration. When a knife, a rusty needle, a splinter of dirty wood, a barbed wire fence, or a thorn, scratches the hand, the latter is inoculated with germs, of which the air about us is full.

The way to avoid serious results is to cleanse the wound and apply Zam-Buk. Zam-Buk is a powerful, yet painless germ-killer, and when applied to the broken skin is absorbed into the tissue, instantly destroying the germs that spread disease and stopping the pain and smarting. That is why Zam-Buk is so popular with children.

The flesh thus soothed and purified, the wound is made perfectly healthy, and all poison and cause of festering removed. Having done this, Zam-Buk then proceeds to heal the wound or sore, and new healthy tissue is built up in a quick, painless and perfect manner.

Zam-Buk must not be confused with ordinary ointments. Zam-Buk is a unique preparation, possessing antiseptic, soothing and healing qualities that are not to be found together in any other preparation. It is not only a unique healing balm, but it is also a skin food. For all skin diseases and injuries — cuts, bruises, burns, eczema, chafing, ulcers, ringworm, etc., it is without equal. It is also used widely for piles, for which it may be regarded as a specific. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Refuse harmful imitations.

COTTESLOE.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Barr spent Sunday in Belmont the guest of Mrs. Barr's parents and also of Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P.

Miss Helen and Miss Gladys Webster leave this week for Rainy River district.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Baptie and daughter Lola of Lakefield, spent Saturday with the former's cousin, Mrs. G. H. Barr.

Mrs. Jas. Dewart, a life-long resident of this district, died very suddenly on Thursday last. Cause of death being heart disease. The funeral, which took place to Warsaw cemetery on Saturday was largely attended.

Mrs. James of Toronto, is spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders.

Messrs. Clysdale and Kidd, also Misses Cuffe were to the exhibition at Lakefield last week.

Excitement waxed high in Warsaw election night, when the reports showed a margin in favor of Sexsmith. His supporters, at least some, headed by a loud sounding bugle marched through the principal streets and saluted the more prominent Liberals, some of whom treated the rejoicers to cigars, while others gave them a rather troubled welcome.

APSLEY.

Apsley is about to lose another citizen, in the person of Mrs. Masters, who for a number of years has resided in the village and during that time was an earnest worker in the Methodist church and also President of the Ladies' Aid Society, which had many pleasant gatherings at her home. The members of the society showed their appreciation of her services in a tangible form last Friday evening when they gathered at Mrs. Master's home to the number of about 60 and presented her with an address, handsome toilet set, and a leather hand bag. It was a complete surprise to Mrs. Masters, who thanked the donors for their kindly remembrance and would treasure it as a last momento of her many friends of Apsley.

Apsley, Sept. 22, 1911.

Dear Mrs. Masters.—

We, the members of the Ladies' Aid Society having learned of your intention to leave our midst, feel that it would be great ingratitude on our part to allow you to pass from our ranks without in some way expressing our respect for you, not only as a member of our Society, but as a citizen of our neighborhood.

We appreciate your services as President of our society and recognize the fact that responsible positions are not held without exercise of patience and self-sacrifice. The breaking of the ties which bind us together as Christian workers are not always the most pleasant experiences of our lives, but can be over-ruled by the master-hand of God to result in higher good.

We ask you to accept this gift, not as a remuneration for your services, but as a slight token of our appreciation of your services amongst us, and further pray that the blessing of God may attend you and yours in your new home.

Signed on behalf of the Ladies' Aid of Apsley.

After the address and presentation, refreshments were served and a pleasant and sociable evening was spent.

Communion service was held on Sunday, 24th, Rev. Mr. Brown, Presbyterian Minister of Warsaw officiating. Five communicants were admitted to the church and received the sacrament.

The Methodist student, Mr. Mutton preached his farewell sermon Sunday night. He had only been appointed to this field in June, but is going back to college as is Mr. Soules, the Presbyterian student, who will deliver his farewell sermon next Sunday.

Now the elections are over and reciprocity is not likely to pass, the people up here can again go on with their regular occupations without the fear of a Yankee invasion. Many in some parts of Chandos were in great terror for fear some morning a Yankee gun boat might appear on Loon Lake, as they were led to believe reciprocity would certainly mean war or annexation.

SMITH.

Mr. J. Roseborough and his friend, Mr. Wilson, spent Friday in Lindsay attending the fair.

The farmers here are rather backward with their fall ploughing on account of the dry weather.

Mr. Albert Armstrong has been very fortunate in catching two loons.

VOL XXXIV NO 225 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 29 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

LIBERAL DEFEAT WAS DUE TO AN AROUSED PROTESTANTISM

The Orange Sentinel Discusses Real Cause of the Defeat of the Liberal Government

The Orange Sentinel in a lengthy article on the result of the elections, says :—

"As the Liberal party made reciprocity the one issue in the campaign, it is, perhaps, inevitable that the collapse of the Laurier Government should be attributed solely to opposition of the electors to the proposed trade arrangement. There were other causes, however, that operated to make the rout of the Government complete. Chief among these was an aroused Protestantism.

"The obtrusive way in which the authorities of the Roman Church have pushed their claims during the past five years was largely responsible for this. The surrender of Sir Wilfrid Laurier to the ultramontanes as disclosed by the terms of the Autonomy Bills was the beginning. It offended thousands of Liberals, who still sought for excuses for the Government. But it stuck in their minds. And when the Eucharistic Congress assembled at Montreal the growing distrust of the Government was strengthened far beyond the knowledge of the politicians.

"As the members of the Government and the judiciary prostrated themselves before the emissary of the Pope the anger of the people began to grow. It increased to a formidable degree as Father Vaughan hurled his insults at all the Protestant churches, and slandered the women of Protestantism. Following immediately thereafter the Ne Temere decree was applied in different parts of the country in such a heartless fashion that Canadian manhood and womanhood was challenged to declare their opposition. The Protestants of Ontario accepted the challenge, and the result is recorded in the majority for Mr. Borden.

35,000 MEN TO BE CALLED OUT ON THE HARRIMAN LINES

Chicago, Sept. 28.—A strike on all the Harriman lines, including the Illinois Central, will be called as soon as the Presidents of the Shopmen's International Unions involved can fix upon the day and hour, according to J. W. Kline, president of the International Blacksmiths and Helpers Unions, to-day.

"A strike is inevitable now," said Mr. Kline, "Kruttschnitt replied unfavorably to our final request for a conference and after a talk this morning with other union presidents we have decided that the strike must be called.

The strike order is said to be in the hands of local union heads. Thirty-five thousand men, including machinists, boilermakers, car repairers, sheet metal workers and blacksmiths will be affected.

It had been intended to call the men out at noon to-day unless a conciliatory reply to the latest demands were received from Vice-President Julius Kruttschnitt, who is in New York.

The ultimatum sent to Mr. Kruttschnitt yesterday was in substance, that the Harriman lines recognize the Federation of various railroad unions in the same way that railroads now deal with the individual unions.

OTHER ROADS REJECT DEMAND

New York, Sept. 28.—Announcement was made by officials of the Union and Southern Pacific Railroads at noon to-day that they had rejected the demands of the Federation of Railway Employes on their line.

CLARKE SMITH COMMITTED MUST REMAIN IN JAIL

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Clarke H. Smith, who is charged with conspiracy to obtain the charter for the Farmers Bank, was to-day committed for trial. Mr. H. E. Rose, of the Beattie, Blackstock firm represented him and applied for bail, which was refused.

Smith was the secretary of the Provincial Board of Directors of the Bank and was arrested in Vancouver.

He was brought back by Detective Guthrie, who says they had a pleasant trip from the coast. Through his counsel, Mr. Smith made a strenuous objection to going to the cells, but he had to go.

Some of the committal papers were not ready, and it was suggested that instead of suffering the indignities of going to jail, he should be temporarily housed in the detectives' room, but Mr. Corley explained that those quarters were already more than occupied, and there was no room for strangers. Mr. Corley aptly remarked that the detectives were already falling over one another in their limited quarters.

Wherat the Magistrate smiled and asked the Crown Attorney if he would accept bail.

Mr. Corley said : "No."

With apparent cheerfulness, Mr. Smith went to the cells to await his trial.

CONDEMN ITALIAN PRETENSIONS A DESPERATE RESISTANCE

PRESS OF TURKEY IS CALM BUT THERE IS UNDERCURRENT OF ANGER.

AT THE BRINK OF WAR

Government is Reproached for Having Reposed Blind Confidence in Germany.

Constantinople, Sept. 28.—Leading newspapers here condemn the Italian pretensions and advocate desperate resistance, but they preserve a calm tone. Some of them bitterly reproach the Government with having led the nation to the brink of war by reposing blind confidence in Germany.

Apparently the Cabinet is seeking to justify its policy with respect to German assistance by further efforts to obtain German intervention. It is still believed here that the difficulty will not reach an acute stage at least until the arrival of the new Italian Ambassador.

ORDER IN THE CITY.

Paris, Sept. 28.—A special despatch from Tripoli says that the Government is preserving order and that the city and outlying districts are quiet. The Consular corps have confidence in the ability of the Governor to protect the foreigners and keep down disorders.

Nevertheless a panic prevails among a large portion of the European and Jewish residents. Several hundred of these left by steamers yesterday for Malta. More than two hundred Italians slept last night aboard the Italian steamer Hercules, which has been detained here by order of the Italian Consul. The rest of the Italian colony has been ordered aboard the steamer which leaves to-night for Syracuse.

BANK CLOSES ITS BOOKS.

The Banka Di Roma has closed its books, which have been deposited in the Italian Consulate. Business is suspended, the merchants and shopkeepers having closed their establishments. The wealthy natives and the Arab traders are disturbed by fears of the Bedouins flocking to the city for the purpose of looting, as they are in a desperate condition from famine, due to loss of crops.

POWERS TURN DEAF EAR.

Constantinople, Sept. 28.—It is officially stated that several small Italian warships are cruising eight miles off Tripoli. They examined by means of electric searchlights the Turkish transport Derna, which arrived at Tripoli from the Bosphorus on Tuesday, having on board heavy artillery and munitions of war.

The Italian cruisers did not interfere with the passage of the Derna which is now discharging her cargo at Tripoli.

The Cabinet renewed its consideration of the situation at the Palace this morning. Secrecy was observed as to the deliberations. It was evident, however, that the replies of the powers to Turkey's appeal for intervention had produced the bitterest disappointment.

Although the precise nature of these replies has not been made public, the powers apparently expressed their inability to interfere in the action of the Italian Government.

There was no developments reported in the situation this morning Italy not having communicated her final demands to the Porte as yet, but in official circles the belief was expressed that a conflict would be avoided inasmuch as Turkey was prepared to make concessions to Italy provided the former's dignity was preserved and her territorial integrity unimpaired.

The directors of the local newspapers have been requested by the authorities to abstain from publishing anything of a nature to excite public feeling on pain of immediate suppression.

The newly appointed Governor of Tripoli, Bekirsamy Bey, is leaving to-day for his post on the transport Sham, which is also taking a cargo of war material to Tripoli.

The leading papers of the capital, while guarding their utterances, make it plain that they favor resistance to the Italian demands. Some of them attack the Government for having placed too great reliance upon the friendship of Germany.

TRYING TO PROVOKE TURKEY.

Chiasso, Switzerland, Sept. 28.—Latest despatches from Rome indicate that Italy is trying to put Turkey on the aggressive in an endeavor to provoke an incident which would amount to a casus belli, justifying a declaration of war or the sudden occupation of Tripoli. Turkey is determined not to give any such pretext, and is ready to do almost anything, while the much-talked-of Mussulman fanaticism has not as yet manifested itself.

The Italian Government is pressed by public opinion and by international considerations, and sees the necessity for hurrying things. The first expedition of 23,000 men will sail, it is understood, October 3, and will be followed by a second expedition of 13,000 men, if nothing occurs to change the present plans.

KAISER'S DILEMMA.

The deadlock in the negotiations between Italy and Turkey is causing great uneasiness, especially in Germany, which is divided between its duty towards its ally, Italy, and the desire not to lose Turkey, where Germany has powerful interests at work with the object of replacing Great Britain commercially.

In Milan, Rome, Florence and other large cities, troops are held in readiness. Groups of carbineers guard the streets and squares and the outskirts are patrolled by cavalry. In the industrial towns railway stations are occupied by the military. These places are practically in a state of siege. A few encounter between manifestants and the police and troops, have occurred, but the casualties have been few.

The town authorities everywhere have been instructed to do all possible to avoid bloodshed, which would complicate the international situation with serious home troubles.

MORE HOSTILE NOTE.

Turin, Sept. 28.—The Corriere Della Sera says that Italy has received an unsatisfactory reply from Turkey and will answer with a more hostile note.

The Corriere D'Italia says that the landing of men and munitions at Tripoli by the Turkish steamer Derna, constitutes a casus belli. The Italian Government the paper says, was awaiting such an act before proceeding to the occupation of the Province.

TURKEY WILL BE FIRM.

Vienna, Sept. 28.—The Neue Freie Presse learns from an official Turkish source that the Porte is determined to concede no political privileges to Italy in Tripoli and will regard an Italian landing as a casus belli.

BRITAIN'S DANGER.

London, Sept. 28.—The Right Hon. Ameer Ali, member of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council and a noted authority on Mohammedan law, writes to The Times, pointing out the gravity for Great Britain of the Italian invasion of Tripoli. He says : "A hundred million Mussulmen acknowledge British sway, and the fury and hatred such a wanton and unwarrantable act of aggression would be sure to give rise to will react in every part of the Moslem world. Egypt and the whole Northern Africa will be immediately affected and the work of conciliation and the progress of good-will will be thrown back centuries.

"I appeal to every lover of peace and good-will to protest with all his power, before it is too late, against the flagrant breach of all the canons of international morality on the part of a nominally Christian country."

Seemed to Give Him a New Stomach

"I suffered intensely after eating and no medicine or treatment I tried seemed to do any good," writes H. M. Youngpeters, Editor of The Sun, Lake View, Ohio. "The first few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets gave me surprising relief and the second bottle seemed to give me a new stomach and perfectly good health." For sale by all dealers.

ANOTHER ARREST IN QUEBEC WEST

Quebec, Sept. 28.—Another election scandal burst in Quebec last night, when John Quinn, a plumber, was arrested on the complaint of Mr. Wm. Price, the defeated candidate in Quebec West.

There are three charges against Quinn of subornation of personation, namely by having paid money to three different persons to have them impersonate other men at the polls. Quinn, who was arrested last night has been admitted to bail. The case of Louis Letourneau and Ledepeyre, charged with having bribed Rene Leduc in Quebec East, has been postponed until the 4th of October on that day the Quinn case will also be heard.

New York, Sept. 28.—With Reciprocity killed by the Canadians, with foodstuffs kiting and with no reduction in the tariff on woolen and cotton goods, which make up the bulk of our raiment, it may be of some consolation to read that there is at least one lady who is alleged to have felt the pinch of hard times so little that she ordered a "nightie" for $450. The lady is Mrs. Leslie Carter, the actress, known in private life as Mrs. Caroline Leslie Carter Payne.

Her taste in the selection of apparel was revealed in a suit filed in the Supreme Court by Henri Bendel, a costumer, of No. 520 Fifth avenue, against John Cort, Mrs. Carter's manager, for $3,000, which Mons. Bendel swears Mr. Cort promised to pay him for gowns and other raiment constructed for the actress a year ago.

Mr. Cort in defence says the gowns were not delivered in the stipulated time, failed to fit, and were so "careless and inartistic" that Mrs. Carter promptly rejected them.

ITALIAN FLEET IS AT TRIPOLI

Tripoli, Sept. 28.—The first Italian squadron, commanded by Rear Admiral Aubrey, composed of four dreadnoughts, three cruisers and a number of torpedo boats, is now anchored in line off Tripoli.

The second Italian squadron is at Taranton waiting orders to convoy the transports. Up to the present no Italian force has been landed in Tripoli.

WAS ENSLAVED BY A CHINAMAN TO WHOM SHE TAUGHT RELIGION

New York, Sept. 28.—Six thousand dollars of crude opium that had been smuggled was seized by the Government officers in a raid on four shops in the Newark, (N.J.) Chinatown yesterday. The raid followed the Federal agent's arrest of a Chinaman on a ferryboat going from Jersey city to New York, he had $1,500 worth of opium in a suit case.

Four Chinamen, one Charlie Song, and an American woman, Mrs. Chas. Song, were taken yesterday, but Mrs. Song was permitted to go free. It is hinted that the first arrest and the raid were made possible by information she gave.

Mrs. Song declared she is weary of "the life of white slavery" she has been leading to which Charlie Song forced her to descend after she had been a Methodist missionary among the Chinese of Newark. She charged, too, that Song had been trying to poison her.

MRS. SONG'S HISTORY.

Mrs. Charlie Song said her maiden name was Mabel A. Weis, that she is the daughter of a prosperous farmer of Washington, Warren County, N.J., She married a man named Wayton, who died four months later. Then she went to Newark and joined the Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church, one of the leading Methodist churches of the city. She said she took up missionary work among the Chinese pupils of the church's branch Sunday school.

There she met Charlie Song seven years ago ; he was intelligent and seemed particularly anxious to be taught religion, and, incidentally English. She fell in love with him and listened more readily to his importunities to marry him, because, she said, she hoped to accompany him to China, and with his aid to find a larger field for her missionary work. The Rev. Geo. A. Dowkontt, 90 Madison street, this city, married her to Song in 1905, Mrs. Song said.

Song had professed Christianity and for several months they travelled together doing missionary work. Then Song opened a tea store in Newark ; he quickly reverted to paganism, his wife said, and made a slave of her to be disposed of as he saw fit.

GENERAL ELECTION MAY BE SPRUNG IN SASKATCHEWAN

NOVEMBER 8th IS THE DAY THE WISE ONES HAVE PICKED UPON.

Haultain vs. Scott—Effect of Borden Victory and Opposition Leader's Reciprocity attitude.

Regina, Sask., Sept. 28.—It is stated quite positively, although not officially, that a Provincial general election will be held in Saskatchewan on November 8th. This will mean the dissolution of the second Legislature since the formation of the new province, the present house having been elected in August, 1908. It was overwhelming Liberal. Of the forty-one members the opposition had only thirteen members, of whom eight were Conservatives, and five Provincial Righters. The leader of this little band, F. W. G. Haultain, announced himself in the Legislature last March as a strong supporter of the reciprocity agreement. In the heat of the recent Dominion election campaign he turned over, and spoke just as strongly against reciprocity. But in spite of Mr. Haultain's fight against the agreement, his province remained almost solidly Liberal in Dominion affairs. It is an interesting question whether his attitude on reciprocity will effect him adversely in the Provincial elections, or whether the change of Government at Ottawa will be in his favor.

Hon. Walter Scott, the Premier, is an old Middlesex County boy. He was a newspaper man, and editor in turn of the Moosejaw Times and the Regina Leader. He is president of the company now owning the Leader. He was amember of the Dominion House at the time the new Province was formed, and assisted in drawing up that legislation. He has been Premier since then.

Mr. Haultain was born in England, but was educated in this country, and is a graduate of the University of Toronto. He is a barrister. He was Premier of the North-West territories.

A well known Des Moines woman after suffering miserably for two days from bowel complaint, was cured by one dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. For sale by all dealers.

London, Sept. 27.—It has been officially announced that the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, accompanied by Princess Patricia, will sail on October 6th on the Empress of Ireland for Canada. Miss Pelly has been appointed lady-in-waiting to the Duchess.

Chest Inflamation

Suffered From a Heavy Cold, Pleuritic Pains in Side—Constant Coughing

"NERVILINE" CURED QUICKLY

"Anyone that goes through all that I suffered last winter will appreciate the value of a remedy that cures like Nerviline cured me." These are the opening words of the solemn declaration of E. P. Von Hayden, the well-known violinist of Middleton. "My work kept me out late at night, and playing in cold drafty places brought on a severe cold that settled on my chest. I had a harsh rasking cough and severe pains darted through my sides and settled in my shoulders. I used different liniments, but none broke up my cold till I used Nerviline. I rubbed it on my neck, chest and shoulders, morning and night, and all the pain disappeared. Realizing that such a heavy cold had run down my system, I took Ferrozone at meals, and was completely built up and strengthened. Since using Nerviline I have no more colds or pleurisy, and enjoy perfect health."

NERVILINE CURES CHEST COLDS

It's because Nerviline contains the purest and most healing essences and medicinal principles, because it has the power of sinking through the pores to the kernel of the pain—these are the reasons why it breaks up colds, cures lumbago, stiffness, neuralgia, sciatica and rheumatism. Refuse any substitute your dealer may suggest—insist on Nerviline only. Large size bottles 50c, or sample size 25c. Sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the peoperty, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE :

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

The Following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments :

No. of Shares.	Amount of First Call.	Half-yearly Payments.

NO BONUS STOCK shall be issued for any purpose whatsoever, and even the Directors, who are very heavy stockholders in the Company, have paid the SAME PRICE for their shares as the general public. NOT ONE SHARE has been or will be issued to any person at a price less than $115.00 per share.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST :

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations ; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

APPLICATION FOR CAPITAL TOCK

I ..... hereby apply for ..... shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each of the Capital Stock of the Canada National Fire Insurance Company at the price of One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars ($115) per share, being at a premium of fifteen (15) per cent. ; and I covenant and agree with the said Company to pay for the said shares as follows : Twenty-five dollars per share on application, which shall include the premium of fifteen dollars per share, and the balance in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of nine dollars per share ; the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of said shares.

I further agree to accept said shares when they are allotted to me, and I do hereby request that my name be duly registered on the books of the Company as the holder of such shares.

Applications for stock will be filed in the order received, and on approval of same by the Board of Directors a Stock Certificate will be issued and mailed forthwith.

The holder of these shares will be paid the dividends that may be declared on the same from time to time by the Board of Directors. Dividends shall be declared and apportioned in proportion to the amount paid into the Company on the par value of the shares.

Calls on shares may be paid prior to due dates, and when all of such calls have been paid a fully-paid certificate will be issued to the holder of these shares.

These shares are transferable only on the books of the Company by the owner in person or by attorney on surrender of the Certificate of Stock properly endorsed. Transfers shall not be valid unless approved by the Board of Directors.

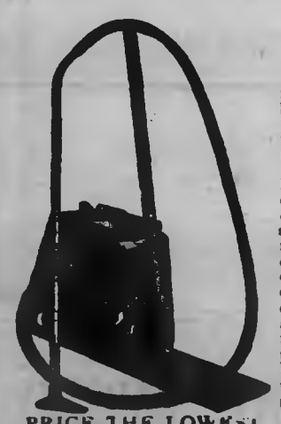
KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER



You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Accepted Insult.

She—"And knowing my sentiments on the subject, did that odious Mr. Binks insult you by offering you a drink?"

He—"That's what Mr. Binks did."

She—"And how did you resent it?"

He (meekly)—"I swallowed the insult."

Puzzling.

When Bilkins was away from home on a long business trip he got a letter from his wife that still puzzles him. It ended thus: "Baby is well and lots brighter than she used to be. Hoping you are the same. I remain, Your loving wife."

How To Get Down.

Once in a while the farmer gets back at the 'city feller' and this is the brief tale of how a well-known Milwaukee lawyer, sojourning in the country for a week, fell a victim o' Uncle Josh's subtle sense of humor.

The legal light had gone to the country to work. He just shed his coat and kicked right in as 'twere. He had been assisting in stacking the first crop of hay and was working on top of the stack.

When 'knocking off time' came the stack was pretty high and the city chap didn't just know how to return to terra firma.

'Say, how'm I goin' to get down?' asked the lawyer person.

The farmer considered for a moment. Then he shouted:

'Oh, just shet your eyes and walk around kind o' keerless, an' you'll get down.'

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Mr. Knox's Secretary.

A clever young woman who is a member of the Washington staff of a Cleveland paper had occasion to call on Mrs. Knox the other day on a matter of important news. Mrs. Knox was not at home, the man servant who answered the bell informed the journalists.

'Well, hasn't she a secretary who can give me the information I am after?' persisted the newspaper woman.

'Certainly, madam,' answered the footman — 'this way, please.' Leading the way along the hall, he ushered her into the presence of a very important looking person.

'Are you Mrs. Knox's secretary?' asked the newspaper girl.

The man laughed. 'I guess I am,' he admitted. 'I'm her husband, and I'm the secretary of state. What can I do for you?'

Why He Was a Democrat.

'I always like to tell this story, especially if I am with Democrats,' said Prof. R. L. Lyman, of the University of Wisconsin.

'A man had a 'coon, which he offered to give to one of three boys who would give the best answer to the question: 'Why I am a Democrat.'

'"I'm a Democrat because I believe in free silver," said one lad.

'"I am a Democrat because I believe in free trade," answered the second.

'"I'se a Democrat 'cause I want dat 'coon," answered the third, a negro boy, looking hungrily at the 'coon.

'It's needless to tell which got the 'coon,' finished Mr. Lyman.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a volume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a muzzle velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw' and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another cartoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet, Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

Strawberry Shortcake

Strawberry pie made like other berry pies is delicious. Mix and sift twice, two cups flour, four teaspoons baking-powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in one-fourth cup butter, using the tips of the fingers. Then add gradually three-fourths cup milk. Toss on a floured board and divide into two parts. Pat, roll out, and bake twelve minutes in a hot oven in buttered tins. Split and spread cut surfaces with butter. Sprinkle washed and hulled strawberries with sugar, place on back of range until warmed, crush slightly, and put between and on top of shortcakes. Cover with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla, and garnish with a few choice strawberries that have been reserved for the purpose.

Mr. JUSTICE BRODEUR

The Hon. Louis Philippe Brodeur, K.C., LL.D., late Minister of Marine and Fisheries, comes of one of the best known French-Canadian families. A comparatively young man as politicians go — his nativity only dates from 1862 — he has made rapid strides in offices of state since his first election to Parliament in 1891. When the Laurier Government went into power five years later, Mr. Brodeur was made Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons and Chairman of Committees. After the election of

HON. L. P. BRODEUR
Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada.

1900 he became Speaker of the House, and in 1904 entered the Cabinet with the portfolio of Minister of Inland Revenue. Two years later he became Minister of Marine and Fisheries and held that office till August 1911, when he resigned to become a Supreme Court Judge. Hon. Mr. Brodeur accompanied Sir Wilfrid Laurier to England as a delegate to the Imperial Conference of 1907 and was a delegate to the Imperial Defence Conference of 1909. By profession he is a lawyer, having been called to the Bar in 1884 after graduating from Laval University. Beloeil, P.Q., is his birth place and his early education was received at St. Hyacinthe College.

Schoolboy "Howlers."

Some amusing schoolboy "howlers" were recounted by Mr. W. Elwyn Fiske, headmaster of the Elm House School, Surbiton, at the Christmas prize distribution. In the general papers worked by the students one boy described "coup d'etat" as a French dish played in musichalls as a voluntary.

Credit, said another boy, signifies "a person who gets nice things said behind his back." A third boy illustrated the meaning of gender by explaining that a camel is masculine and a dromedary feminine.

Asked to quote some exceptions to the rule "Ladies first," a boy wrote, "When you are going to be hung." "Ladies first except for votes" and "Ladies always first except when the door is too small" were other replies. The boys were also asked what they would wish for if they were granted five wishes. Among the replies were "To be able to eat anything" and "To be a porcupine, because I could prick people."

How strange it is that life must be to live.

LONG ODDS FOR WIN.

J. W. Colt, the horseman, had a jockey who was sick. He told the boy to go to town to a certain doctor for some medicine.

When the jockey got back Colt asked him: "Did you go to that doctor?"

"No, sir. When I got there I found it said, 'Hours, one to two,' on his door."

"Well, what difference did that make?"

"Why, Mr. Colt just across the street there was another doctor that had on his door, 'Hours, twelve to one; and I took the long odds."

Tom Sharkey Was a Navy Man

Tom Sharkey learned to box in Uncle Sam's navy, which has turned out a number of pugilists. Tom gave up his deep sea career when he had walloped the champion of the British navy at Honolulu. After this triumph Sharkey immediately set sail for Frisco, which was then the Mecca of pugilism. He was a novelty in the fighting game and was soon pitted against such stars as Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Jeffries.

How Dempsey Started Fighting

Jack Dempsey started his athletic career as a collar and elbow wrestler. He and Jack McAuliffe worked together as coopers in a shop in Williamsburg. In the same shop was an old time fighter who gave the two Jacks boxing lessons during the noon hour. Dempsey developed into the middleweight champion with a wonderful record of hard skin glove battles, while McAuliffe, because of his remarkable generalship and gameness, became the lightweight champion of the world. This particular cooper shop also turned out several other noted pugilists who have earned fame in the ring.

LEAGUE PLAYER BREAKS

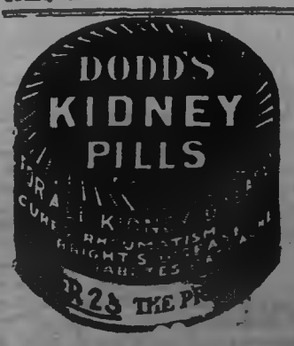
Mike Lyons

Mike Lyons, right fielder of the Hopkinsville team of the K. I. T. league, known as the Mogul, has created a new batting record — seven hits in one game.

To accomplish this feat Lyons broke the long-standing record held jointly by Ed Delhanty and Gene Beaumont, who are credited with six hits in one game.

Lyons made his record against the Vincennes team, accumulating 14 bases, two three base hits, three doubles and two singles. He faced four pitchers.

Charles Evans, the Edgewater golfer who made a remarkable showing abroad, lost his first match since returning to America at the Essex County links.



LUNG TROUBLE

PROMPTLY RELIEVED AND PERMANENTLY CURED BY INHALING CATARRHOZONE.

Mrs. Bley Brown of Tenecape, N. S., was cured by Catarrhozone of lung trouble and catarrh after hundreds of other remedies failed.

If your lungs are weak; if there is consumption in your family; if Colds, Catarrh and Bronchitis bother you, be sure to use Catarrhozone. It is especially adapted for these diseases, and cures every time.

Mrs. Brown took cough mixtures, but they made her sick. Then she used an atomizer, but, after resorting without benefit to poultices and numerous other remedies, she tried Catarrhozone.

"I used Catarrhozone Inhaler," writes Mrs. Brown, "five minutes every hour, and soon recognized that it was going to cure me. I could feel the soothing medicated air spreading through the air passages of the throat, and it touched the sore spots in the lungs that other remedies failed to reach. Catarrhozone seemed to go just where it was needed most, and soon put a stop to my cough. It restored me to perfect health, and I am convinced that no cough, cold or catarrh can exist if Catarrhozone is used."

No treatment is so clean, so pleasant, so certain to cure as Catarrhozone. By means of the Inhaler the local symptoms such as coughing, inflammation and congestion are speedily corrected. Ferrozone tablets, which are taken after each meal, purify and cleanse the blood of all poisons and build up and strengthen the system.

This local and constitutional treatment is always effective, and cures cases that have been given up as hopeless. Money can't buy or produce anything better, and to get cured it is absolutely necessary to use Catarrhozone.

Complete outfit costs $1; small size, 25c. At druggists, or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

SIR WILFRID TO REMAIN.

The country generally will learn with pleasure that Sir Wilfrid Laurier has reconsidered his determination to retire from public life. The vigorous manner in which he fought through the recent campaign would be a credit to a much younger man, and shows that he is as physically fit as ever. With his long experience and acknowledged parliamentary ability, he can yet be of great service to the country as leader of the opposition and critic of the new government.

It has been said, remarks the Ottawa Citizen, that Sir Wilfrid owes it to his party to continue the leadership, because it has been so badly wrecked in attempting to carry out his policy, and he owes it to his political survivors to aid in the work of reorganization. Be that as it may, the people generally will feel that parliament will be strengthened by his presence as a rallying point for the opposition, which otherwise would be very weak. Only five or six of his cabinet are still in public life, and one of them, Sir Richard Cartwright, is in the senate. In a sense, a weak opposition is a detriment to a government, as well as to the people governed. No government is perfect, but the nearest to perfection, as a rule, is one which has an ably led and alert band of critics on the opposition benches.

And besides the Canadian house of commons without Sir Wilfrid Laurier would be almost like the play of Hamlet with the melancholy Dane under eclipse.

ITALY AND TURKEY.

Italy has decided that she must assert her claims in Tripoli now, or for ever forego them. France has magnanimously given her a free hand. Britain, Germany, Austria and Russia have told her to proceed. Turkey alone stands in the way. It happens that Tripoli is a Turkish province, and that its people are Mahometans. With England in control of Egypt under the nominal overlordship of the Sultan, and France the protector of Tunis, Algeria and Morocco, Italy sees in Tripoli her last hope of dominion in North Africa. The ancient pirate state, whose name recalls to Americans memories of Decatur and of Preble, and of the bold declaration "Millions for defence, not a cent for tribute," is conveniently situated for Italy's purposes. There are many Italian subjects doing business at the capital, at Benghazi and at other points, and it is now complained that these people are being treated harshly by the Turkish governors. It is also charged that Turkey is not keeping faith in the matter of certain trade conventions. Italy offers to pay an annual rent to the Porte for control of the region. This would make of it another Egypt, and the present rulers at Constantinople will not hear of it.

It would be unjust to deny the strength of Turkey's case. Besides, the new regime is face-to-face with the necessity of satisfying a large element at home that the advent of a progressive administration is not to be followed by loss of Ottoman territory. Better, say the Young Turk leaders, a sanguinary war, even if resulting in defeat, than to give to the reactionary element at home a chance to charge them with pusillanimity. It is likely that stubborn resistance will be made. Ottoman defences are in neglected condition, and her sea forces cannot hope to contend with the Italian navy; but if religious and national spirit are aroused, she may prove dangerous.

PASSING OF THE CLOWN.

Perriots and the Huge Three-Ring Circus the Cause.

Mr. Alfred Miaco of the circus deplores the passing of the clown.

This is largely the observation of the European-bred artist. Strictly speaking, while we have developed many clowns, they have been clowns mostly in an invidious sense. Miaco, with the training to qualify him as a legitimate actor, in less distracted surroundings would give us finished pantomime in rare play with the eyes and hands.

Continental Europe has its perriots who are public idols. Plays are written for them and composers of standing write their incidental music.

Of men like these, England's Grimaldi was famous. George Caron, the last of a long line of clowns and the funniest of them all, died a few years ago at the height of his career.

While these instances are of the theatre rather than of the circus, the school which developed Miaco did not take into calculations three rings and a jumble of changing sights. The clown held the centre and was the mainstay of the entertainment. For him to have to be dependent upon sudden collapse under the weight of a slap stick would have been the sign of the passing of art.

Gold That Is in the Sea.

Apart from the treasures which find their way to the bottom of the sea, and occasionally come to light again, there is more gold in the sea than has ever been coined into money. Such, at all events, is the opinion of Prof. Wilde, of Brussels University. All sea water contains a certain amount of gold, in the proportion of about one grain to each ton of water. Reckoning the total weight of all the oceans at the very moderate figure of 1,000,000,000 tons, Prof. Wilde estimates that they would yield gold to nearly a hundred thousand times as much as

Why, bless you! you can bathe in gold.

Sumptuary Laws of Capetown.

Capetown once lived under so severe a code of sumptuary laws that anything like display was restricted to the Governor and his immediate circle. Thus runs Article VI. of the Dutch laws against luxury and ostentation: 'No one less in rank than a junior merchant and those among the citizens of equal rank and the wives and daughters only of those who are or have been members of any council shall venture to use umbrellas.' In practice this restricted the possession and use of umbrellas to about fifty persons in Capetown.

THE CANADIAN MINT.

One of the Most Interesting Institutions in the Dominion.

The place where money is made or what is perhaps more accurate where it is created has always appealed as most seemingly mysterious things do to the general reader. In Canada the Mint is located in Ottawa. Here are made our gold and silver coins — the real money of the country. The paper medium of exchange is in the hands of the engraving firms and one does not see any trace of it in the Sussex Street establishment.

The Mint is open to visitors after certain formalities have been complied with. The essence of these, as with every thing connected with the institution is punctuality.

Unless the workman arrives exactly on time he finds himself locked out. It is necessary for him to telephone in and get a written order, before he is allowed to enter. Prior to the worker beginning his day he must change his clothes, put them in a locker which is locked and dons special garments supplied by the Mint. The employees are not permitted to leave for dinner, therefore each department has a kitchen of its own, which supplies the midday meal to the staff. The metal to be used for the day's work is weighed out in the morning and no employee of the Mint is allowed to leave the building till the weight of the coins made and the material left over tally exactly with the weight of gold and silver handed out in the morning. Aside from all this, each member of the staff is locked in his or her department and is not permitted, even in case of illness to leave without a written permit. Thus, in the Mint chances for dishonesty are reduced to a minimum.

The concluding process of weighing and automatically packing the coins into packages requires the most finely adjusted machinery of all.

In this department is a scale so delicate that it had to be mounted on a concrete pier, sunk in the ground down to bedrock.

This machine automatically weighs the coins, throwing them into three different compartments, to the centre go the perfect ones, those under or overweight are deflected to the other two.

A Rising Financier.

The old man was perched upon a high stool, figuring up the day's sales of dry goods, groceries and hardware, when his son came in with a rush

"Say, pop," exclaimed the young man, "If I can buy a $300 horse for $150 will you take a chattel mortgage on him and help me out with the cash?"

"What kind of a hoss, my son?" enquired the father cautiously.

"Say, four years old, fifteen hands high, weighs a thousand pounds, and sound in wind, limb and bottom."

"That sounds good to me, my son, and I want to do all I can to help you along in the world," and he reached down into the safe for his roll. "How much do you want?"

"A hundred and forty-nine fifty"

The old man gasped and caught hold of the desk.

"What!" he exclaimed.

"A hundred and forty-nine, fifty. I've got half a dollar."

Slowly the old man shoved the roll back into the safe.

"My son," he said softly, "you are wasting time trading hosses. What you ought to do is to go into the loan and trust business."

Cranks and Climate.

Under the title, "An Englishman in America," a writer in the New Age has been writing about things American. His point of view is not always accurate, but he says some interesting things. Among others, in a recent screed on New Thought in America, he condemns many of their "isms," attributing them to "superficial thinking." He says:

There are more "cranks in America than there are in the whole of Europe combined. This is not my opinion; it is a simple fact of arithmetic known to all visitors to America who have given this interesting question any serious consideration. America is the home of the cynic and the sentimentalist, the materialist and the metaphysician, the philosopher and the fanatic. Extremes meet here in society as in the climate. I am convinced that the climate has much to do with all these outbreaks of strange and impossible "isms." The atmosphere being highly electric, imaginative brains become overcharged with thought and an outlet is needed. Mere impressions and whims are mistaken for truth, and the victim begins to write or to preach, to form some small groups and then societies.

Generous London.

A young Spanish gentleman who recently arrived in the metropolis to be trained in the London office of his father's firm, has formed a very flattering opinion of the tradesmen. One day he was requiring a rubber catch for his umbrella, and entered a Bond Street shop for one.

The shopkeeper was very polite, put on the rubber ring, and rolled up the umbrella neatly. "And what am I to pay?" asked the young Spaniard. "Oh, we make no charge for that!" was the reply.

A day or two later, and again in Bond Street, a button had come off one of his boots, so he promptly went into a shop and had a new button fixed. For this the shopman also refused payment.

How Money Wastes in Circulation.

Money, both gold and silver, wears out at a startling rate. It is reckoned that there is usually a hundred million pounds in gold coin in England, a very large proportion of which is locked in the strong rooms of banks. Yet of that which is in active circulation the wastage is so great that during every twelve months seventy thousand pounds ($350,000) worth of gold and silver are rubbed off into fine dust.

Welland, Sept. 27.—A monster demonstration of Conservatives is being planned to be held here this week, the date to be arranged later. It is expected that Premier Whitney will be present.

Lighthouse Without a Keeper

"What do you think of a perpetual lighthouse, needing no keeper and yet as regular in its flashes of light as one maintained by the Government" says a writer.

"This natural light never fails, and that means much for navigation. It is a volcano on the island of San Salvador. This volcanic lighthouse is about eight miles inland from the port of Acajutla. It is a veritable pillar of cloud by day and the flash of its light by night has been valuable to mariners for years. It can be seen far out at sea and a burst of flame has gone upward every seven minutes without the variation of a second for many years.

"A lighthouse fee is collected of all vessels that put in at the harbor nearest the volcano and no skipper objects. He knows that the volcano is more reliable than the lighthouses kept by human beings on other coasts and the novelty of the light is worth the price charged by the Government."

Pants and Propriety

The group of statuary before Pennsylvania's $13,000,000 palace of graft at Harrisburg, after having been "draped" to suit the Pennsylvania purists, has been again unveiled. Stone "pants" have been bolted to the statues whose nakedness particularly offended the good folks of the Keystone state. Now they call it the "Pantsylvania group."

The episode has nearly broken the heart of the sculptor, Barnard, and has brought chagrin and shame to all who are seriously interested in the advancement of American art, but the average person can afford to take it for its fun value.

The Best Position.

Prior to the commencement of a boys' cricket-match there were several candidates on the fielding side for the position of long-field.

"Harris had it last week and the week before," complained two or three of the boys to their captain. "It's about time someone else had a turn."

The discussion seemed likely to end in a free fight when the local curate came on the scene and endeavoured to pour oil on the troubled waters.

"You surprise me, boys," he said. "Harris has done especially well in that position, hasn't he?"

"He has so," agreed the malcontents. "If he's had to climb Bliggins's wall after the ball once, he's had to a dozen times."

"Well?" queried the reverend gentleman.

"That's why we want a chance," snapped a podgy youngster; "Old Bliggins's gooseberries are ripe and his bulldog's dead!"

A Summer Night Hint

When the summer days are blistering hot, and comfort in sleep is discovered not, don't sit up and blame the weatherman; but follow this cool sprinkling plan:

When getting ready for bed, annex a basin of water and one whisk broom. Carefully sprinkle the top sheet, just as you would do it for ironing, then get right into the bed between the sheets. In this way you will get delightfully cool, and should be able to get to sleep in a few minutes.

Pat had been to the races, and had lost all his cash on "dead certs" which had not "come off." Feeling excessively thirsty, he called upon his native wit to help him, and walked into a hostelry, where he entered into conversation with a gentleman, and inquired his age.

"My age is thirty-seven," answered the stranger. "What's yours?"

"Bedad, ye're a gintleman," replied Pat. "Oi'll just be afther havin' a drop of the cratur."

This Cow An Actorette.

At the commencement of a Canadian Agricultural college a cow was brought out on the stage to demonstrate butter making. Separators, churns, molds and the like were there and the cow milked in full view of the crowd, the cream was separated and the butter made.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

light. There he dismounted and tied his horse, whistling to me to follow suit. Then I followed him into the tent.

A man lay stretched on a camp cot at one end, the blankets drawn over his head. Him Barreau shook rudely; and when he sat up, with a growl of protest, I found myself face to face with Montell, the portly fur merchant who had come upriver on the Moon.

CHAPTER IX.

Mr. Montell.

"Oho, it's you, George," Montell purred—that sounds exaggerated, but I cannot otherwise describe his manner of speaking. He made an odd figure sitting up in bed, with his fat, purple face surmounting a flannel shirt, and a red knitted cap on his head.

"So you made it, eh? Who's this with you, George?"

"None of your damned business!" Barreau snapped. He stood back a little from the bed, looking down at Montell. By the glint in his eyes, he was angry. "You needn't concern yourself about any man who travels with me."

"Tut, tut, George," the other pacified, "that's all right, that's all right. You're mighty touchy, to-night. I did the best I could for you, I'm sure."

"The best you could! You did that though not in the way you would have me believe." Barreau's voice stung like a whiplash. "You double-faced Mammon worshipper, if it would mend matters, I would gladly jerk you out of your bunk and stamp your swinish features into the earth. Do you think you can pull the wool over my eyes? For two pins, I'd break with you right now."

Montell did not at once reply. He sat, for a few seconds, softly rubbing the palm of one pudgy hand over the back of its fellow.

"Now, what's the use of that sort of talk, George?" he finally said, quite unperturbed. "We can't afford to quarrel. We've got to——"

"I can," Barreau interrupted.

"No, no, George, you're mistaken there. We've got to stick together," he declared. "Hang it, you had bad luck. But you shouldn't blame me for the misfortunes."

"I don't—altogether." Barreau cut in again. "But you took advantage of my mischance, to help along a little scheme that you've been nursing some time. I had a glimpse of your hand in MacLeod. You have done the mischief. Why should I trouble myself further in your affairs, unless it be to call you to account for the dirty trick you have played?"

"Oho, I see now." Montell nodded understandingly. "I didn't catch what you were driving at. But you're wrong, dead wrong, George. Why, I tried every way to send Jessie back from Benton. Yes, sir, tried every way. You've no idea how willful that girl is." He spread his fat hands deprecatingly. "She'd come to MacLeod, spite of hell 'n' high water. I couldn't stop her. And with every Tom, Dick, 'n' Harry talkin' about you, and them dodgers stuck up every place, and you really in the guardhouse—why, you see how it was. No way to keep it dark. But it's not as bad as you think. Of course she's kinda excited—but pshaw! When you see her again, she won't think of it. You're dead wrong, George, when you blame me. Yes, sir. Wouldn't I have kept it quiet, if I could? You know it, George. I've got somethin' at stake, too."

"You have that," Barreau returned grimly, "and you had better keep the fact in mind. But don't ask me to believe such rot as your not being able to prevent her from making a radical change of plan. However, the milk is spilt; the crying part will come later. I'll keep to my part of the bargain. Does everything stand as originally laid out?"

Montell nodded. "There's no call to change," he said, and again the purring, satisfied note crept into his voice.

"I want another good horse, a saddle, a pack layout, and grub for a month," Barreau enumerated. "Rout Steve up—you know where he sleeps—and have him get those things. We need guns, too. Where is my box?"

"It's on the tail end of the first wagon outside. Steve's sleepin' just beyond. Couldn't you just as well wake him, George?"

"No," Barreau refused bluntly. "Bestir your fat carcass, and set him to work. The night air won't hurt you. We have no time to waste. For all I know, a troop of police may be on us before we can get started again." Montell grunted some unintelligible protest, but nevertheless heaved his flesh-burdened body up from the cot. He gathered about him a much-worn dressing gown, and, thrusting his feet into a pair of slippers, left the tent.

"Now let us see about clothes," Barreau said to me, and I followed him to the wagon end.

He climbed up on the hind wheel. After a second or two of fumbling, he upended a flat steamer trunk. I held it while he leaped to the ground, and between us we carried it into the tent.

"The police have my key—much good may it do them," he remarked, and pried open the lid with a hatchet that lay near by. He threw a few articles carelessly aside.

"Peel off those roustabout garments," he said to me. "Here is something better. Lucky we're about of a size."

He gave me a blue flannel shirt to begin with, and, when I had discarded the soiled rags I wore and put on the clean one, he held out to me a coat and trousers of some dark cloth, a pair of riding boots similar to those on his own feet, and clean socks. Other clothing he hauled from the trunk and laid in a pile by itself. Lastly, he brought forth a new felt hat.

"Does this fit you?" He stood up and set it on my head. "Fine. No, I'll get a hat from Steve before we start." He silenced my protest. We had both ridden bareheaded.

Montell returned while I was getting into the welcome change of apparel.

"Steve's gettin' you what you need, George," he informed. "There's a new tarpaulin by the bed you can use for your pack. Steve'll get you blankets. Go softly. I'm none too sure of all these bull whackers I got."

Barreau went on spreading his clothes in a flat heap, as if he had not heard. Presently he closed the trunk. Getting to his feet, he glanced about.

"Oh, yes," he said curtly, as if he had but recollected something. "I want some of that port you've been guzzling. Dig it up."

"Certainly, George, certainly." Montell's face broadened in an ingratiating smile, though Barreau's tone was as contemptuously insulting as it could well be. He reached under the box upon which the candle stood, and brought out a bottle. Barreau took it, held it up to the light, then laid it by his clothing without a word; Montell watching him with a speculative air, meanwhile.

"That's fine stuff, George," he said tentatively. "Fine stuff. I ain't got but a little."

"Damn you, don't talk to me!" Barreau whirled on him. "I'm sick of the whole business, and I want none of your smooth palaver, nor whining about what I do."

The older man's florid face took on a deeper tint. One of his fat hands suddenly drew into a fist. Barreau had penetrated his hide, in a way that I could not quite understand. And I imagine there would have been some sort of explosion on the spot, but for the timely diversion of a man's head parting the door flaps.

"Them hosses is ready," he announced briefly. And Barreau turned his back on Mr. Montell forthwith. I did likewise.

For all I did, I might as well have stayed in the tent. Barreau and Steve went silently about saddling one horse and lashing a pack tree on another. In the dull light from the tent I could barely make shift to see, but they seemed to know every strap and tying place, and the thing was quickly done. Last of all, they folded Barreau's clothing and two or three pairs of heavy blankets in the tarpaulin, and bound the roll on top of the food supply. Then Barreau stepped once more within the tent.

What he said to Montell did not reach my ears. At any rate, it was brief. Watching his shadow on the canvas walls, I saw him turn to come out, saw him stop and bend over something on the ground near the flaps. He straightened up, with a sharp exclamation, and this time I heard distinctly what he said.

"By the Lord, you have been fool enough to let her come farther even! Oh, you miserable——" His words ran into a blur of sound.

Montell raised in his cot again. I could see the bulk of him outlined against the farther side.

"Now, see here, George," he burst out irritably. "This is goin' too far. Between you and Jessie, I've had a heap of trouble this trip. And my patience has got limits. Yes, sir. It's got limits! I'm doin' the best I can, and you got to do the same. You go to backin' old man Montell into a corner, and the fur'll fly. You act like you was a schoolboy, and I'd took your cap away."

I don't think that Barreau made any reply to this. If he did, the words were softly spoken; and he was not the man to speak softly, considering the mood he was in just then. He was out of the tent almost before Montell had finished.

"Steve," he said, in a matter-of-fact way, as he laid hold of his stirrup—I was already mounted—"let me have your hat. I lost mine in the shuffle."

Without comment Steve took the hat from his head, and handed it up to him.

"So-long," he grunted laconically.

"So-long, Steve," said Barreau.

The candle in Montell's tent blinked out with the words. Barreau caught up the lead rope of our pack pony, and then, as silently as we had come, we rode away.

CHAPTER X.

"There's Money In It."

A brisk wind sprang up ere we were well clear of the Montell camp in half an hour it was blowing a gale.

Overhead, the clouds ripped apart in the lash of the wind, and a belated moon peered tentatively through the torn places. It lightened the way, so that we could see sudden dips in the prairie—buffalo wallows, and other abrupt depressions—before we reached them. With the lifting of the solid black that had walled us in, Barreau set a faster pace.

"It will soon be day," he broke a long silence, 'and, though I am loath to overtax our mounts, we must reach the Blood Flats. If we are being followed, they will scarcely think to look for us there. And I know of no place in this bald country where our pickets

Mr. F. W. G. HAULTAIN, M.L.A.

Though not a Canadian by birth Frederick William Gordon Haultain, K.C., is one of the men who have put their impress on the Great North West. As a member of the old North-west Assembly up to its dissolution and as a member of the Legislative Assembly of the Province of Saskatchewan from its creation, he has been an active figure and has taken a leading part in the changes and developments which have taken place on the Western Prairies during the past quarter of a century. Mr. Haultain was born at Woolwich, England, in 1857 and came to this country when a boy receiving his education at

Montreal High School, Peterborough College Institute and Toronto University. He was called to the Ontario bar in 1882 and elected a member of the Northwest Assembly in 1888. He remained a member of the Assembly until its dissolution on the creation of the two new provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta in 1905. He was then elected to the Saskatchewan Legislature of which he is still a member. He represented the Northwest Territories at the Coronation of King Edward in 1902.

It would be difficult to estimate what Mr. Haultain's name stands for in the West. He is universally respected, even by political opponents and indeed it would be hard to overestimate his influence in the province he has made his home.

Mr. HUGH GUTHRIE, K.C.

Mr. Hugh Guthrie, K.C., for South Wellington and Chairman of the Railway Committee in the House of Commons, is one of the best known men in Canada. Born of good old Ontario stock at Guelph on August, 1866, he was educated at Guelph Collegiate In-

He was appointed chairman of the House of Commons Railway Committee in 1907 and still holds that important post. Mr Guthrie resides in his native city, Guelph, Ont.

CONTROLLER WANKLYN

When the citizens of Montreal decided to use the sweeping brush at the City Hall and adopt a new form of civic administration they cast about them for qualified and trustworthy men to place in charge of the city's affairs. The great majority of the citizens favoring the system of government by Control it was decided to appoint four controllers, with the mayor as chairman. It was realised by all that the city's future administrative well-being depended on the personnel of the Board and the greatest care was exercised in selecting the right men. One of the first to be selected by the Citizen's Association was Mr. F. L. Wanklyn, M.I.C.E., whose extensive and varied engineering experience in different countries, knowledge of local conditions, and reputation for sound integrity eminently fitted him to act as a Controller. Nor have those who selected him been disappointed, for his work since he became one of the Controllers is a living testimonial to the wisdom of the selection.

Few people gazing on the fine Saxon profile and commanding figure of Mr. Wanklyn would dream that he was a Latin-American by birth.

Controller Wanklyn is a member of the Institute of Civil Engineers, London, and a member of the Council of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. He is a keen sportsman and his favorite holiday is spent with rod or gun by some quiet stream or amid the game frequented woods.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

BLACKFEET INDIANS' LAST "MEDECINE LODGE"

Picturesque Festival Which Will Be Held No More.

A short time ago the people of Little Dog, better known as the Blackfeet Indians, who occupy a reservation 508,000 acres in extent in the Two Medicine country of North-western Montana, just east of the new Glacier National Park, gave their last big medicine lodge and grass dance near Browning. Infinite pathos attaches to these ceremonies of a vanishing race. Six thousand redmen of the most stalwart race remaining on the continent participated in the festivities of the week.

Near the camp were horses scattered all over the landscape, sturdy Indian stock that in the old days was the measure of wealth among the people. Of course, there were dogs—of all sizes, colors and kinds, just as there used to be in every Indian camp. Moving here and there were groups and solitary figures on foot and horseback. In the background was the circle of lodges all facing the east, where the sun shines first.

At noon the camp was quiet. By two o'clock a tomtom here and there began its intermittent throbbing and the people donned their finery for the afternoon festivities. By three o'clock many Indians were about in full dress, the men with war bonnets, slashed buckskin costumes decorated with bead and porcupine quill work and hung profusely with skins of the medicine weasel. The women were in bright colored, heavily, beaded skirts and jackets of cloth or buckskin, some of them literally covered with elk teeth, many of them covered with miniature bells that tinkled musically as they walked; their faces were painted with vermilion, ochre, black, or combinations of these and other colors. Horses galloped in every direction and there was an air of activity all over the camp. The medicine lodge, in the middle of the camp circle, was the rendezvous for all, for the medicine was to be made there. By and by the sharp, short notes of the eagle wing home medicine whistle began to help the drum, for Yellow Owl was making strong medicine. It was time to go to the medicine lodge and watch the mystery.

On the west side of the medicine lodge an alcove was built of green boughs. This was Yellow Owl's private place and it faced the door of the medicine lodge, which always opens to the east. Hung about the great medicine centre pole of the lodge were many offerings of clothing, blankets and other belongings which these people had given to the sun as sacrifices. These could not be touched or taken away by any man.

Inside the lodge a circle of chiefs in full regalia were gathered, and behind them the people crowded, watching Yellow Owl make medicine to the sun. The drumbs throbbed in ceaseless booming, which Yellow Owl accompanied with his eagle wing bone whistle while he stood staring at the sun, whistling and swaying his body continuously.

Back to the circle of chiefs were gathered the Indians in a solid mass sober faced, keen eyed and watching all the proceedings, for they understand what this mystery means, as no white man can ever understand it unless he has lived with the Indians.

The grass dance is of a semi-religious nature, the same as all these ceremonies are among savage peoples. It is designed to call the attention of the gods, big and little, wherever they may be, to the fact that the people desire a good season with what probably was the last great grass dance.

A MILLIONAIRE'S MISADVENTURE

When the White Star liner Baltic was about to sail the other day, John J. O'Riley, a wealthy Texan, and his family went aboard to visit their home town in Ireland. After they had gone to the stateroom, Mr. O'Riley decided to go ashore to have a $500 note changed into English money. When the time for sailing came, O'Riley had not returned, and, fearing that something had happened to him, his family returned to the pier, to begin a search for the head of the family.

No trace of him could be found, however, and his wife and children were becoming greatly alarmed, when a wireless message reached them from the Baltic, which by that time was out on the ocean. The message was from Mr. O'Riley and informed his wife that he was on board the Baltic and that he would wait for them at Liverpool. It seems that Mr. O'Riley returned to the ship just before the gang plank was removed, which connected the pier with the steerage entrance. While he made his way to the cabin, his family went ashore by way of the cabin gang plank. Mrs. O'Riley and the children sailed on the next steamer to join Mr. O'Riley in Liverpool.

The Safest Place

A city gentleman was recently invited down to the country for "a day with the birds." His aim was not remarkable for its accuracy, to the great disgust of the man in attendance, whose tip was generally regulated by the size of the bag.

"Dear me!" at last exclaimed the sportsman, "but the birds seem exceptionally strong on the wing this year."

"Not all of 'em, sir," was the answer. "You've shot at the same bird about a dozen times. 'E's a-follerin' you about, sir."

"Well, sir," came the reply. "I dunno, I'm sure, unless 'e's 'angin' 'round you for safety."

The Games, the Thing.

Infatuated Farmer (to golfer who has driven out of bounds, and is vigorously searching for his ball among the growing crops) — 'Now, then, you've no business to be there!'

Modest Player — 'I know. Rotten shot, wasn't it?'

Necessity is so often disagreeable as to suggest that it might be the mother-in-law of invention.

PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper National Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

High Class Advertising.

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd has been 258,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

Home for Christmas

The Steamship Lines are expecting a large home-going exodus for the holiday season this year, and are making extensive preparations to take care of all of those who are planning to visit the Old Country.

The White Star-Dominion Line has arranged for three special Christmas sailings, viz. the "Canada" December 2nd, "Megantic" December 9th, and "Teutonic" December 14th, from Portland, Me., and Halifax, N. S., to take care of these passengers. These steamers will arrive in ample time to enable passengers to reach their homes before Christmas whether in England or on the Continent.

The railways have recognized the growing popularity of these annual Christmas excursions and now run special trains from Montreal and the west to connect with the steamers, and the most complete arrangements are made by both the steamship companies and the rail lines to further the comfort of the homeward bound ones during the holiday season.

A Presentation.

On Tuesday evening the office staff of the C. G. E. Co. met in the boarder's parlours of the Y.W.C.A. and presented one of their number Miss Bayles, with a half dozen silver fruit knives, with ivory handles, accompanied by an address. Miss Bayles, who is leaving the city in a few days, has been very popular with her co-workers, and they took this means of showing their regard and appreciation for her. A very enjoyable evening was spent, refreshments being served and a pleasant social time enjoyed. Those present are very grateful to Mrs. Reid of the Y.W.C.A. for her kindness in allowing them to use the parlours for the event.

New Oil Field

A legitimate chance to make a fortune, by the investment of a small amount of money is what every investor wants. Usually the difficulty is to be able to satisfy yourself as to the safeguards and probabilities of success, and thus select the good from the bad. The newest, and what promises to be the richest oil area in the world is just beginning to be developed, in what is known as the Tampico field in Mexico. The flow of oil from the first few wells drilled there has broken all records. Beyond a doubt this is one of the greatest opportunities for investment ever known.

A Company has just been organized to develop 3500 acres of the choicest, and best located property in the producing field. For this purpose we will offer a limited number of shares of stock for subscription at ½ its par value. We are certain we can interest you, and satisfy you of the merit of the enterprise if you will let us.

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth $3 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

Mr. JOHN STANFIELD

That the duties of a party whip are no sinecure will be admitted by anyone who has had opportunity of looking at the whip's work from the inside. The position demands a man of uncreasing energy, great tact and unusual organizing ability. Such a man the Conservative party of Canada were lucky to find in the person of Mr. John Stanfield, member of parliament for the Colchester division of Nova Scotia.

Mr. Stanfield was appointed whip to the party on its re-organization. He was first elected for Colchester in 1907, winning a spectacular bye-election and was re-elected at the general election in the following year. Mr. Stanfield has extensive business interests in Nova Scotia, being president of Stanfield's Limited, which now operates the plant formerly known as the Truro Knitting Mills Company. He is forty-three years of age having been born in 1868.

JOHN STANFIELD

Amount of Rest Workers Need.

Persons who may be unwilling to accept the Sabbath as a day of rest prescribed by the Infinite may heed the observations recently made in behalf of the German Army. Germans as a people, long have been regarded as a people open to convincing, scientific observations and deductions. In drilling, marching and manoeuvring its troops the German Government has discovered that in long marches especially, no commissary will supply to troops the waste of carbohydrates without rest intervals. In this connection army experts more than double the period in the Scriptural injunctions and have decided that after three days marching the marchers should have a full days rest for recuperation. To keep an army column longer in heavy marching order is to weaken the physical forces of the soldier.

"What comes after a million, pa?" asked the boy who was just learning to count.

"Generally some bogus nob's coming," answered his millionaire father.

Hush It Up.

"Congratulations!"

"For what?"

"I hear one of your exhibits took a prize at the dog and poultry show."

"Well, keep still about it. I entered a Skye terrier, and he took first prize as a Mongolian hen.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

A Correction.

In our issue of yesterday a letter appeared, asking The Times for information regarding the number of men supplied by Canada and Australia respectively for the Boer war. In our reply we gave the number from Canada as 288. It should have been 2805, the last figure having been omitted.

The Addition to the Post Office.

Work on the addition to the Post Office is not making satisfactory headway. Things have pretty nearly come to a standstill for some reason or other. It is to be hoped that steps will be taken to complete the contract as soon as possible, so as to relieve the congested condition of things in the mailing room.

Burning the Leaves.

With the autumn comes the downpour of leaves from the trees, and the burning of these in heaps on the road sides. Care should be taken to prevent children playing with these fires, especially little girls, whose dresses are liable to catch fire. Last fall there were several accidents of this kind.

Col. Hughes' Majority.

The Times stated about a month ago that Col. Sam Hughes would "win in a walk." But he came to the finishing line in a veritable whirlwind, with no less than 1339 votes to the good. We hope to see the gallant Colonel in charge of the Militia Department. He would make an ideal Minister of Militia, and his selection would no doubt be applauded the country over.

Mr. Bogue Get Settlement.

Campbellford Herald: The Council of the town of Campbellford, through their solicitors Messrs. Watson and Payne, have at last effected a settlement — subject to the will of the people. It will be remembered that Mr. Bogue asked for the sum of $26,000 and the case had been hanging on for about three years. The Council will submit a by-law to the people some time next month to raise the money. The settlement is made on condition that the amount be raised in sixty days.

Had Eye Injured.

While at work in the C.G.G. yesterday morning, Mr. Jack Taylor, of Chamberlain street received a severe and painful injury to his left eye. It appears that he had completed a job in the punch press department and was conveying the finished material to another department when he tripped and he was struck in the eye. Dr. Young was summoned and when he had attended to the injury Mr. Taylor was taken to Nicholls hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance. He may lose the sight of the eye.

Making Observations for Mapping Out Canadian Rockies.

In a letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, the well-known mountain climber and topographer, who is at present in the Canadian Rockies making observations for the purpose of mapping out the district, he says:

"We have a great amount of splendid material for publication and a collection of photographs that cannot be surpassed. We have just completed what is very nearly a 100 mile circuit around Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The peaks and valleys, lakes and waterfalls on all sides of it, and the glaciers are very fine. The region is immense, and there is work for years to come, exploring, mapping and depicting.—There is a fine bunch of high peaks and large snowfields and glaciers southwest of Tete Jaune Cache. There are also great peaks on the Athabaska and Fraser headwaters, tributary to your line. The most showy part of Mt. Robson is the Robson Pass and Glacier, and Berg Lake."

In addition to the above Mr. Wheeler reports that his party have collected over 600 specimens of animal and bird life, and a good botanical collection as well. This expedition which was organized by the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been a most successful one, and when its results are published will be of great value. The facts now known bear out the general impression that the territory contiguous to the mountain division of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will surpass in scenic beauty that which can be seen on any other of the North American transcontinental lines.

Laid at Rest.

The funeral of the late Mrs. Alfred Davies took place yesterday morning at ten o'clock, service being held at St. John's church, conducted by Rev. Canon Davidson, assisted by Rev. Chas. Carpenter. As the casket, which was covered with beautiful floral offerings was being carried into the church, the organ pealed forth "O rest in the Lord," and "I know that my Redeemer Liveth." At the conclusion of the service, Mr. R. J. Devey, the organist, played Chopin's Funeral March. Mr. Devey and Mr. Warran Dean, represented the Sunday school in which the late Mrs. Davies had been a devoted teacher. The beautiful service was attended by a large congregation, who sang the hymn "On the Resurrection Morning" Several hymns, including "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Peace, Perfect Peace," were played on the chimes. The cortege proceeded to Little Lake cemetery, where interment took place.

SECRECY OF BALLOT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—An interesting point was raised the other day by a writer in The Times in regard to the secrecy of the ballot. Why should the returning officer put the ballot in the box? Not knowing the reason myself, I presume it is because he is so instructed. Now I think that the law should be amended and the voter should deposit his ballot paper himself in the ballot box, for several reasons. The chief one being with a view to secrecy. The writer noticed the scrutiny of the returning officer when handed the ballot paper, when marked by voters. He would compare the end with the stub in the book, which same was torn out of. This is probably done to avoid stuffing; but surely this could be done, if necessary, after the voting was all over, as this act of the returning officer is somewhat suspicious to the voter. The returning officer knows how many ballots he has issued and it is a simple matter of count. Now, if your ballot is to be secret, let everything be cut out that is of a suspicious nature to electors, and I venture to say the result would be a much larger vote polled, and the voter would have the satisfaction that only himself knew how he voted, which at present he doesn't seem to have.

Secret Ballot.

CAUSES OF DEFEAT.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—It makes me tired to read in so many papers the alleged causes which led to the defeat of the Liberal party. Reciprocity may have, and no doubt was, a factor in the struggle, but there were three leading causes that have not been referred to by the press, not because the writers do not know of them, but because they are afraid to do so. They are:

1. Protestant Canada did not forget the conduct of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and other members of the Cabinet in connection with the Eucharistic gathering in Montreal a few months ago. How they tendered the "homage" of Canada to the Papal delegate and his party. How the Government steamer was used to convey his party to Montreal, and how the Montreal militia gave him an official welcome. All of which was most offensive to avast majority of the people of this country, and which they will be slow to forget.

2. They also did not forget that when the constitution of the new provinces was being granted, confessional schools were saddled on the people there, and that Rome had a representative in Ottawa to practically dictate our school policy.

3. And finally, the people were alarmed and disgusted at the attitude of the Prime Minister last summer at the Imperial Conference. He was against everything that stands for closer ties with the Mother Land.

I say, therefore, that it is no wonder the people voted him out. It is no wonder that Protestant Liberals turned in thousands against their own party in order to show the Romish Church and the world that we would no longer be classed as a vassal of Rome.

A Protestant Liberal.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

More Votes Polled Than Were On The List.

Devlin by a majotiy of over a thousand, to-day stated the he had definitely decided to protest the election. He alleges corruption, and also that in one poll there were 14 more votes polled than were on the list.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

PRESBYTERIANS WILL EASILY RAISE REQUIRED AMOUNT

The week's work, from Tuesday until Tuesday, which has been undertaken by canvassers belonging to the three Presbyterian churches of the city, is progressing splendidly, and there is every prospect that the necessary amount will be forthcoming at the end of the period. The sum required from St. Paul's church is $5,000, from St. Andrew's $3,000 and from Knox $500.

The splendid addresses last Sunday delivered by Rev. Dr. McKay, Rev. Dr. Grant and Rev. Mr. Armstrong, awakened a degree of enthusiasm amongst the members and adherents of the three churches, that made the work of soliciting contributions comparatively easy. People who are possessed with an abundance of means, as well as those who are not so favored have come to regard it their duty, as well as their privilege to carry out the injunction of the Master to go and preach the gospel to every creature. In view of the tremendous influx of foreigners to the Dominion the responsibility of each individual church member is very great, in order that the strangers may be given proper religious attention and care, so that our land may be truly a Christian land. This is supposed to be an enlightened age, yet there are some who will not give to the missionary objects of their church. One who knows, says they are simply repudiating their vows which they took upon themselves when they united with the Church of Christ.

It's A Bad Habit—

That of taking tonics for digestive troubles.

Indigestion is usually caused by wrong food.

Drugs won't and can't cure the trouble, so long as the cause is continued; and any one who tells you that they will is evidedtly ignorant of the facts.

The sure quick way to relief is to remove the cause- change your mode of eating.

A good start is to begin on

Grape-Nuts

with cream for breakfast.

Chew the crisp granules of this food thoroughly, as Nature intended food should always be eaten.

Grape-Nuts is made of Wheat and Barley and contains all the food elements in these cereals, including the Phosphate of Potash (grown in the grain) put there by Nature for rebuilding Brain and Nerve cells.

FOOD FACTS
What an M. D. Learned.

A prominent physician of Rome, Ga., went through a food experience which he makes public.

"It was my own experience that first led me to advocate Grape-Nuts food and I also know from having prescribed it to convalescents and other weak patients that the food is a wonderful rebuilder and restorer of nerve and brain tissue, as well as muscle. It improves the digestion and sick patients always gain just as I did in strength and weight very rapidly.

"I was in such a low state that I had to give up my work entirely and go to the mountains of this state, but two months there did not improve me; in fact, I was not quite as well as when I left home. My food absolutely refused to sustain me and it became plain that I must change. I began to use Grape-Nuts food and in two weeks I could walk a mile without the least fatigue and in five weeks returned to my home and practice, taking up hard work again. Since that time I have felt as well and strong as I ever did in my life.

"As a physician who seeks to help all sufferers I consider it a duty to make these facts public." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ont.

Trial 10 days on Grape-Nuts when the regular food does not seem to sustain the body will work wonders.

THREATENED WITH PARALYSIS

BEFORE TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers led me to think I was going to be feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, were an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, through I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the NEW METHOD TREATMENT and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

Old Cabinet Clearing Up Arrears of Work—The New Government Will Probably Come in Power Next Week—Claimants for Portfolios.

Ottawa, Sept. 29. For some days the old cabinet has been engaged in clearing up arrears of business before transferring their offices over to their successors. Hon. Frank Oliver, Minister of the Interior is rushing to Ottawa as fast as steam can carry him as is also Hon. Wm. Templeton, of Vancouver. Another meeting of the cabinet took place yesterday afternoon and another hole has been made in the accumulated pile of pending orders-in-council relating to routine departmental business. The ministers have an immense amount of correspondence on hand which will take days of hard work to overtake. Yesterday Sir Wilfrid Laurier had an interview with Earl Grey relative to the date of the formal transfer of the administration. It is not yet definitely known when the change will take place, but present indications are that it will not be until about the middle of next week. Hon. Frank Oliver and Hon. Wm. Templeman will arrive to-day, and they will require two or three days to clear up the work of their departments. Mr. Borden will take two or three days to get his cabinet together, and if the new administration is to be installed before Earl Grey leaves, it now looks as if his departure would have to be postponed for a week or so from October 6, the date originally fixed.

The Penalty of Victory.

Mr. Borden is now paying the penalty of victory. He is inundated with correspondence and besieged with callers. He is working strenuously in his study at his residence, where he has a little greater opportunity for privacy than he would have in his office on Parliament hill. Letters at the rate of three or four hundred per day are pouring in on him, extending congratulations or volunteering advice as to the selection of his cabinet.

Claimants for Portfolios.

Over a score of Conservative members-elect are in the field for cabinet honors, and their friends are busy pressing their claims. Mr. Borden is of course, preserving a discreet silence. A deputation from the eastern townships advocated the claims of Rufus Pope, ex-M.P., for a portfolio. Mr. Pope, was one of the principals in the cabal against Mr. Borden's leadership last spring, and Mr. Borden's sense of humor must have been tickled by the bland request of the deputation. He promised "due consideration." Another deputation urged the claims of Samuel Barker, M.P. for East Hamilton, and got the same answer. Mr. Pope may be solaced with the Quebec senatorship, rendered vacant by the death of Senator Baker some months ago. Mr. Barker will likely be given the chairmanship of one of the parliamentary committees. Hon. T. Chase Casgrain, of Montreal, is believed to be practically sure of one of the portfolio's allotted to Quebec. He will probably secure the right of succession to Mr. Forget's second seat in Montmorency. Mr. Bergeron, who was defeated in Beauharnois, is slated for the vacant postmastership of Montreal.

Col. Sam Hughes' Chances.

Col. Sam Hughes, M. P., of Lindsay, is spoken of for the Department of Militia and Defence, to succeed Sir Frederick Borden. His appointment we believe, would be satisfactory not only to Eastern Ontario, but to the country generally. He has many qualifications that would specially fit him for the duties. Possessed of a splendid military training, as well as experience in actual warfare, he would, it is believed, speedily bring the Canadian militia up to a high standard of perfection. This section of country has not had cabinet representation in the past, and the opportunity now appears to have arrived when our claims should be considered.

HAS ANYBODY HERE SEEN JOHN SMITH?

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 26.—Five women—and there may be more—are seeking one, John Smith, with vengeance in their eyes. They say they were married to Smith. He has escaped arrest so far because of his name.

The wives hail from the Atlantic to St. Louis, and thence to Sabinal, Texas, and date from 1887 to last week.

U. S. FARMERS FLOCK INTO THE NORTH-WEST

A statistical statement issued by Mr. Bruce Walker, Chief Commissioner of Immigration for the Dominion Government, shows that no less than 65,269 United States Farmers crossed the border into the Canadian Northwest between April and August of last year, while for the same period in 1911, the number was 76,794. The majority of the new citizens, it is claimed, have settled down to extensive farms in Alberta and Saskatchewan, bringing with them large sums of capital.

ROME AFTER CARNEGIE BECAUSE OF HIS METHODS

Our esteemed contemporary, the Orange Sentinel, says that a vicious attack is being made upon Andrew Carnegie by the Roman Church in the United States because his foundation for the superannuation of teachers does not apply to the parochial schools.

The unpardonable sin in the eyes of a Roman Catholic bishop is to make a grant of money to any institution which does not recognize the authority of the papacy. Carnegie's foundation is for teachers in the Public schools, and it is described by Father Brennahan, at a meeting of the National Catholic Educational Association, as "a menace to the intellectual and moral well-being of the American people and is aiming at the de-Christianization of the people of this country."

If Mr. Carnegie had made his gift apply to the Separate, or Parochial schools, he would have been entitled to rank in the estimation of Romanists as a philanthropist of the highest type. But because he refuses to allow his money to be used for the purpose of separating the children of the community into two hostile camps he is denounced with all the invective for which priests are distinguished.

Rome claims to give a Christian education. It does nothing of the kind. It teaches a sectarian catechism which breathes a spirit of uncharitableness that is deplorable in this enlightened age. What Father Brennehan would characterize as Christian education is that instruction in dogmas which teach that everybody outside of the Church of Rome is heading straight for eternal damnation. In the Province of Quebec they take the money of Protestants to teach the children that kind of thing. The complaint against Andrew Carnegie is that he does not contribute to the same kind of education.

If Rome desired to teach the essentials of Christianity it would not protest as it does against the use of the Bible in the public schools. But the incident illustrates the mendacity of the campaign which is conducted across the border for the purpose of securing public funds to teach sectarian doctrines.

EUROPE IS IN DREAD OF A GENERAL FLARE-UP

War between Italy and Turkey having been declared, the efforts of the powers will be directed to preventing the spread of hostilities, and a general conflagration in Europe. The danger of this is very real, and is evidently the purpose of Turkey in threateneing an attack on Greece. Her object is doubtless to force the powers to intervene, so as to prevent a much-dreaded free-for-all fight.

The Turks are natural-born fighters but in this struggle they are sadly at a disadvantage, their army proper being isolated from the field of combat. That is one reason—the people demanding a fight—that the Porte turns their attention on the neighboring and inoffensive nation. In the last Turco-Grecian war the Turks swept all before them, and the powers had to intervene to save Greece from annihilation.

Italy has not always been successful in her wars in Africa. In the Abyssinian campaign in 1896, when Turkey was beating Greece, the Shoans of Abyssinia inflicted a terrible defeat on the Italian army at Adowa, with a loss of 150 officers and 7,000 men.

TURKEY MAKES LAST APPEAL TO POWERS FOR JUSTICE—ITALIAN CONSUL WARNS FOREIGNERS.

Strong Fleet of Battleships Steaming Up and Down Just Outside the Port—Turkish Parliament Convoked.

Declared at 2.30 P.M.

Rome, Sept. 29.—Italy has declared war on Turkey. The official announcement was made late this afternoon. It declared that the two countries were in a state of war beginning at half past two o'clock on the afternoon of Friday, September 29th.

This is the hour at which the Italian ultimatum to Turkey expired, and followed a session of the Cabinet at which the Turkish reply was considered and found unsatisfactory.

Though every indication pointed to this action by the Italian Government there was always a possibility that good offices of other Governments would be successful in avoiding hostilities, and when the final decision of the Cabinet was announced the excitement throughout the city was intense.

Orders to Act Immediately.

Rome, Sept. 29.—It is officially announced here that the Minister of Marine has sent wireless orders to the Italian fleet off Tripoli to act immediately.

This action followed a meeting of the Cabinet at 11 o'clock at which it was decided to proceed with the measures previously determined upon.

Italy will provide for the safety of Italians and all other foreigners in Tripoli and Cyrena using to this end all the means at her disposal.

Turkish Parliament Convoked.

Cologne, Sept. 29.—A despatch to the Cologne Gazette from Berlin says that a decree was issued to-night convoking the Turkish Parliament at Constantinople.

The blockade of the entire coast of Tripoli and Cyrena will be undertaken immediately, and a notification of this act will be sent to all neutral powers.

Turkey's Protest.

The Minister of Foreign Affairs, Signor Di San Culliano received the Turkish reply from the Turkish Ambassador this morning and immediately went into conference with his associates in the Ministry. It is understood that the Ottoman Government completely conceded Italy's economic claims in Italy, but evaded a direct answer demanded by this Government which had set forth in his ultimatum that Turkey must say that she would not resist the proposed occupation of Tripoli and Cyrena. It was known that at the same time Turkey transmitted a note to the powers, in which it assumed that she represented herself as the injured party and by inference at least sought their intervention.

Stand By The Ultimatum.

The Italian Government decides to stand absolutely by their ultimatum of yesterday and in the absence of the reply called for, to declare Italy and Turkey in a state of war from the hour that the ultimatum of 24 hours expired.

Malta, Sept. 29.—It is believed here that the Italians have landed at Tripoli.

Chiasso, Sept. 29.—It is reported that Admiral Aubrey has been instructed when the occupation is decided upon, to demand the immediate surrender of Tripoli and if this is refused or delayed to give the population six hours within which to escape, at the expiration of which time he shall bombard the place until a landing is possible.

Tripoli, Sept. 29.—This city, which is threatened with a hostile occupation, was desolate this morning.

TURKS WILL NOT RESIST LANDING

THE MOROCCAN QUESTION IS STILL UNSETTLED

Paris, Sept. 29.—A semi-official note issued yesterday says that the observations presented by the German Government upon the last French proposals for a settlement of the Moroccan affair reached Paris this morning and that the reply includes new questions and maintains reservations which require serious examination.

Premier Gailloux declared to-night that Germany's new demands, in his opinion, were not of a nature to compromise the final result in the negotiations on the Moroccan question. He explained that the new Government proposals, to be exact, were rather of modifications of formulas, and did not involve the going over of points already settled, notably the scheme concerning the economic administration of Morocco.

Nearly all of the Europeans left last night upon orders from the Italian Consul, and to-day the streets were deserted except for squads of Turkish soldiers who are enthusiastic over the situation.

The Arabs have held mass meetings in all the mosques and taken a solemn oath of unity and allegiance to the Turkish flag "to the last drop of blood."

The Turkish transport Derna has discharged 20,000 tons of ammunition, stores and 13,000 Mauser rifles. These have been taken into the interior, 450 camels being used in moving the supplies.

Hamburg, Sept. 29.—The German Levant Steamship Line has served notice that it cannot accept freight for ports in Tripoli at present.

LORD STRATHCONA PAYS CANADA FLYING VISIT.

Will Sail Again on Wednesday Next—Has Crossed Atlantic a Hundred Times.

New York, Sept. 29.—Lord Strathcona arrived last night on the Mauretania, accompanied by the Hon. Mrs Robert Howard, on a flying trip to Montreal and Ottawa.

He intends to sail for England again on Wednesday next.

"The High Commissioner remarked in the course of conversation that he could not recall how many voyages he had made across the ocean. "It is well upwards of a hundred, and I have gone across in all kinds of ships. When I crossed the first time seventy-three years ago, I came over in a sailing vessel. We made the passage to Canada in forty-three days, and the vessel was considered a very fast one at that. Now I have come over and will be back again in half the time."

Lord Strathcona laughed when asked if he had consented to spend another year in England as High Commissioner.

INSPECTING THE TRENT CANAL

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., Looks Over the Waterway

VISITS UPPER SECTIONS

He Will Have Something to Say Regarding the Canal When the Time Comes—It is Understood He Will Urge Early Completion of the Work.

LIKE a good general before going in to battle, Mr. J. H. Burnham, the newly elected member for West Peterborough has personally looked over the route of the Trent Canal, and has fortified himself with information regarding this most important public undertaking, so that when the time comes he will be able to present its claims in a satisfactory manner. Mr. Burnham left on Thursday last, proceeding to Lakefield by train, where the government steamer "Bessie Butler" was in waiting, and the party proceeded to Stoney Lake, where the various wharves were inspected, and where other proposed improvements have been under consideration. Superintendent McClellan explained the work which has already been done as well as the work proposed.

At Bobcaygeon the party was joined by Mr. W. T. C. Boyd, who accompanied them on their trip further north. They spent the night in Bobcaygeon, leaving for Fenelon Falls about ten o'clock yesterday morning, where they arrived in due course. The proposed changes in the lock and swing bridge at this place were explained. While in the cataract village Mr. Burnham had opportunity of meeting several of the leading citizens, who gave him a hearty welcome. Mr. J. H. Brandon joined the party here, and the boat proceeded to Cobcconk and other points between Fenelon Falls and Lake Simcoe. The party were unable for lack of time to proceed all the way to Orillia and Barrie, but returned to Fenelon Falls yesterday, and will reach Peterborough to-day. Mr. Burnham coming by train from Lindsay.

TEMPERANCE MEN SATISFIED

The Feeling is That They Got Enough to Last for Another Year

WILL CONSERVE ENERGY

No Campaign for License Reduction Likely This Year—The Present Law Works Out Fairly Well—The Blacklisters Have Hard Time of It.

EVERYTHING just now points to perfect peace and harmony in temperance circles so far as the hotel licenses are concerned. The law is being obeyed, little or no illicit selling being done. The License Inspector is "on his job" every day, so that any complaints that are made receive prompt attention. The licence holder no longer feels that he is forced to violate the law in order to hold his trade, simply because his competitor risks doing so. This kind of business is absolutely cut out. The proposal to still further reduce the number of hotel licenses in the city will hardly appeal to a majority of the people, who feel that with a rapidly growing community the number of hotels should be increased rather than decreased.

It is possible, however, that in a year from now the temperance party may seek another vote on local option, although the fairly satisfactory way the law is being enforced at present would naturally make the carrying of local option somewhat difficult. The Commissioners will be asked to consider other qualifications from those who are entrusted with licenses than merely that of obeying the law. Such a man should be a citizen of good repute and not a low-down blackguard. The Times has in its mind's eye a man of this character, who is the holder of a license, and who is totally unfit to keep hotel. There may be others of this class, but we scarcely think so. It will be our duty as well as our privilege, when the time comes for the receival of licenses, to take such action as will protect the public in this particular case.

The blacklister is having a rather hard time of it these days. He finds it difficult to get liquor, and when he succeeds in doing so, he is usually up against a fine of $10. We believe that this feature of the License Act is working wonders in sobering up old topers and making men of them. The law punishes not only the man who is on the prohibited list, but also the seller, as well as the procurer.

THE PAVEMENT

Republished in The Times by Request and Respectfully Dedicated to Mayor Morrow and Members of the City Council.

"They took a little gravel,
And they took a little tar.
With various ingredients
Imported from afar.
They hammered it and rolled it,
And when they went away
They said they had a pavement
That would last for many a day.

But they came with picks and smote it,
To lay a water main,
And they called the workmen
To put it back again.
To lay a pair of car tracks
They took it up some more;
And then they put it back again
Just where it was before.

They took it up for conduits,
To run the telephone,
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone.
They took it up for wires
To feed the 'lectric light,
And then they put it back again
Which was no more than right.

Oh, the pavement's full of furrows;
That are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare.
It's a very handsome pavement,
A credit to the town,
But they're always diggin' of it up
Or puttin' of it down."

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the property, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE:

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

The Following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments:

No. of Shares.	Amount of First Call.	Half-yearly Payments.
1	$ 25.00	$ 9.00
5	125.00	45.00

50	5,750.00
100	11,500.00
200	23,000.00
300	34,500.00

NO BONUS STOCK shall be issued for any purpose whatsoever, and even the Directors, who are very heavy stockholders in the Company, have paid the SAME PRICE for their shares as the general public. NOT ONE SHARE has been or will be issued to any person at a price less than $115.00 per share.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,561,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where applation blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

APPLICATION FOR CAPITAL TOCK

I ..... hereby apply for ..... shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each of the Capital Stock of the Canada National Fire Insurance Company at the price of One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars ($115) per share, being at a premium of fifteen (15) per cent.; and I covenant and agree with the said Company to pay for the said shares as follows: Twenty-five dollars per share on application, which shall include the premium of fifteen dollars per share, and the balance in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of nine dollars per share; the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of said shares.

I further agree to accept said shares when they are allotted to me, and I do hereby request that my name be duly registered on the books of the Company as the holder of such shares.

Applications for stock will be filed in the order received, and on approval of same by the Board of Directors a Stock Certificate will be issued and mailed forthwith.

The holder of these shares will be paid the dividends that may be declared on the same from time to time by the Board of Directors. Dividends shall be declared and apportioned in proportion to the amount paid into the Company on the par value of the shares.

Calls on shares may be paid prior to due dates, and when all of such calls have been paid a fully-paid certificate will be issued to the holder of these shares.

These shares are transferable only on the books of the Company by the owner in person or by attorney on surrender of the Certificate of Stock properly endorsed. Transfers shall not be valid unless approved by the Board of Directors.

SWALLOWS' NEST OF BANK-NOTE

Also How a Mouse Stole $40 Worth of Notes to Make a Home.

A pair of swallows of Fiberbrunn, in the Tyrol, have stolen a number of ten-kronen bank-notes to line their nest.

The parent birds discovered that the new notes were just the shade of blue to match their eggs, the tissue being tough but flexible, and exactly the material they needed. The nest and the missing notes were only discovered when the swallows had abandoned it and it fell to the ground.

This feat has been equalled by that of an enterprising mouse in Bernbirn, which abstracted a number of twenty-kronen notes to the value of $40, of a delicate reddish brown shade, from the cash drawer of a butcher, and, tearing them to pieces, adapted them to the purpose of making a nest for her family of seven. The butcher in his search for the notes suspected and traced the house, and found the nest under the boarding. He carefully picked out the remains of the notes and returned them to the bank, where they were pieced together. The butcher recommends cats.

An ordinary case of diarrhoea can, as a rule, be cured by a single dose of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. This remedy has no superior for bowel complaints. For sale by all dealers.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Mr. Knox's Secretary.

A clever young woman who is a member of the Washington staff of a Cleveland paper had occasion to call on Mrs. Knox the other day on a matter of important news. Mrs. Knox was not at home, the man servant who answered the bell informed the journalists.

'Well, hasn't she a secretary who can give me the information I am after?' persisted the newspaper woman.

'Certainly, madam,' answered the footman — 'this way, please.' Leading the way along the hall, he ushered her into the presence of a very important looking person.

'Are you Mrs. Knox's secretary?' asked the newspaper girl.

The man laughed. 'I guess I am,' he admitted. 'I'm her husband, and I'm the secretary of state. What can I do for you?'

Why He Was a Democrat.

'I always like to tell this story, especially if I am with Democrats,' said Prof. R. L. Lyman, of the University of Wisconsin.

'A man had a 'coon, which he offered to give to one of three boys who would give the best answer to the question: 'Why I am a Democrat.'

'"I'm a Democrat because I believe in free silver," said one lad.

'"I am a Democrat because I believe in free trade," answered the second.

'"I'se a Democrat 'cause I want dat 'coon," answered the third, a negro boy, looking hungrily at the 'coon.

'It's needless to tell which got the 'coon,' finished Mr. Lyman.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 4c a pound on cheese, we charge them 2c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a volume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a mumble velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another cartoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with fine fields which make them very beautiful."

Strawberry Shortcake

Strawberry pie made like other berry pies is delicious. Mix and sift twice, two cups flour, four teaspoons baking-powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in one-fourth cup butter, using the tips of the fingers. Then add gradually three-fourths cup milk. Toss on a floured board and divide into two parts. Pat, roll out, and bake twelve minutes in a hot oven in buttered tins. Split and spread cut surfaces with butter. Sprinkle washed and hulled strawberries with sugar, place on back of range until warmed, crush slightly, and put between and on top of shortcakes. Cover with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla, and garnish with a few choice strawberries that have been reserved for the purpose.

"Highwaymen.

City Girl—"Did you ever see any highway robbers?"

TRYING TO BREAK A RECORD.

Will Use Aeroplanes, Racing Automobiles, Private Racing Yachts, Special Trains and the Fastest Boats.

In an endeavor to lower the world record for a round-the-world trip Andre Jager Schmit, son of the vice president of the French Conseil d'Etat, will leave Paris shortly.

Schmit will use aeroplanes, racing automobiles, private racing yachts, special trains, transcontinental express and the fastest liners of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

The present record is held by an American newspaper man who made the trip in something like 40 days. Schmit expects to do it in 38 days or less.

The Frenchman will journey via Moscow, Vladivostok, Tsuruga, Yokohama, San Francisco (or Vancouver) Chicago, New York, Queenstown (or Liverpool), London to Paris by aeroplane. Where regular fast trains are not to be had special trains or racing autos will be used. In case he touches at Queenstown, Ireland, a racing yacht will take him off the boat and on to Cherbourg, France.

CANADA'S NAVY

How to Tell a Naval Officer's Rank.

Two stripes indicate a lieutenant, an engineer-lieutenant, a surgeon, or a paymaster — always having regard to the gold circle on the uppermost stripe for the lieutenant, or the purple, red, or white cloth between the stripes, and no circle, for the other branches. Three stripes, of which the middle one is only half the thickness of the other two, indicate a senior lieutenant or senior engineer, a staff-surgeon, or a staff-paymaster; while three stripes all of the same thickness denote a commander, a fleet-surgeon, or a fleet-paymaster.

A captain has four stripes. Officers of admiral's rank have always one broad gold stripe nearest the cuff, and from one to four thinner gold stripes above it. Thus, a rear-admiral has the broad stripe and one stripe above it; a vice-admiral has two above, an admiral has three, while an admiral of the fleet — of whom there are only five on the active list, one of whom is King George—has four. An admiral always wears a aiguillettes, as do the officers on his staff, such as his flag-lieutenant or his secretary.

Midshipmen have no stripes, as they are not commissioned officers; but they have a small square of white cloth on the 'front of the collars of their coats.

How To Get Down.

Once in a while the farmer gets back at the 'city feller' and this is the brief tale of how a well-known Milwaukee lawyer, sojourning in the country for a week, fell a victim of Uncle Josh's subtle sense of humor.

The legal light had gone to the country to work. He just shed his coat and kicked right in as 'twere. He had been assisting in stacking the first crop of hay and was working on top of the stack.

When 'knocking off time' came the stack was pretty high and the city chap didn't just know how to return to terra firma.

'Say, how'm I goin' to get down?' asked the lawyer person.

The farmer considered for a moment. Then he shouted:

'Oh, jest shet your eyes and walk 'round kind o' keerless, an' you'll get down.'

Accepted Insult.

She—"And knowing my sentiments on the subject, did that odious Mr. Binks insult you by offering you a drink?"

He—"That's what Mr. Binks did."

She—"And how did you resent it?"

He (meekly)—"I swallowed the insult."

Puzzling.

When Bilkins was away from home on a long business trip he got a letter from his wife that quite puzzled him. It ended thus: "Baby is well and looks brighter than she used to be. Hoping you are the same, I remain, Your loving wife."

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

SIR DONALD MANN

The world respects a self-made man. It still more honours and venerates a generous one of this type, one who uses his dollars not alone for selfish accumulative purposes but expends them for the betterment of his country and its people. In the end he shares more largely in the prosperity he has created than anyone else. Sir Donald Mann is Canada's foremost example of such a man. His upward career has been meteoric and reads like fiction. He has had a life full of adventure. His activities had their origins in places where a man was what he was and where no weakling could prosper. It was an indomitable energy and a fixedness of purpose which brought Sir Donald Mann to the top of the ladder. His early training moulded the character of the future Railway King. The place of his birth, Acton, Ont., was but a small village. His boyhood days made the man, who has done things. He soon found farming did not offer enough scope to his latent abilities and transferred his energies to the lumber business. A man of his stamp could not be a failure. At the age of 21, the then plain Donald Mann had already risen to the position of foreman.

The West was at this time making its appeal for men of the right sort. Its lure seized Sir Donald and in 1879 he went to Winnipeg. This made him. By 1880 he was a contractor building portions of the C. P. R. contracts between Whitemouth east of Winnipeg and the Selkirk Mountains, which occupied him till 1885. It was shortly after this date that the famous partnership of Mackenzie and Mann was formed. Amongst many other important works this Company built the Calgary and Edmonton, the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railways, as well as the C. P. short line through Maine. By 1899 the firm had become so eminent and well known that it was offered railway contracts in Panama, Eucador, Peru and Chili as well as in China. Sir Donald Mann after visiting and carefully examining all these places decided to decline all the above projects.

It was then that Sir Donald began his now great railway system. He formed its nucleus by purchasing the charter of the Lake Manitoba Ry and Canal Company. From this has grown The Canadian Northern Railway system embracing upwards of 5,000 miles of line through the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec and Ontario. To-day Sir Donald Mann is Vice-President of the Canadian Northern, the Canadian Northern Ontario and the Halifax and Southwestern Railways. All of which have reached their present high standing through his energy and genius.

Sir Donald Mann's work has chiefly consisted in directing construction. In this branch he has achieved an unsurpassed reputation for speed, efficiency and economy. Perhaps even more important has been his success in convincing public opinion that legislative aid to his projects would be for the public benefit. It is through this diplomacy and tact that his great systems have achieved their remarkable success. Canada has and will prosper still more through the efforts of Sir Donald Mann's fertile mind.

A Popular Judge.

In a popularity contest somewhere near the top would be found Mr. Justice Teetzel. He was born "Teetzel," and christened "James V."

"Most of us called him 'Jim' before he was elevated to the high court bench in 1903," recalls one barrister, "and, between you and me, he hasn't changed much since his promotion. His exalted position has failed to rob him of his individuality."

He was born on March 6, 1853, educated at Woodstock College, Galt, and Toronto, and was called to the Bar in 1877. Made a Q.C. in 1889, he was elected a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada in 1891, 1896, and 1901. He was made Doctor of Law by McMaster University in 1907.

His Lordship belonged to Hamilton before the high court plucked him away from mountain and mountaineers. He was mayor of the Ambitious Centre in 1899 and 1890, and in the latter year he contested a Federal seat there in the Liberal interest.

Mr. Justice Teetzel plays golf and rides a horse. He is a member of the Toronto Club, the Hamilton Club, and the Toronto Golf Club.

There comes a time in a woman's life when all her pet theories fall flat and useless and when every 'doll' she has worshipped is demolished.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

SIR DONALD MANN

The world respects a self-made man. It still more honours and venerates a generous one of this type, one who uses his dollars not alone for selfish accumulative purposes but expends them for the betterment of his country and its people. In the end he shares more largely in the prosperity he has created than anyone else. Sir Donald Mann is Canada's foremost example of such a man. His upward career has been meteoric and reads like fiction. He has had a life full of adventure. His activities had their origins in places where a man was what he was and where no weakling could prosper. It was an indomitable energy and a fixedness of purpose which brought Sir Donald Mann to the top of the ladder. His early training moulded the character of the future Railway King. The place of his birth, Acton, Ont., was but a small village. His boyhood days made the man, who has done things. He soon found farming did not offer enough scope to his latent abilities and transferred his energies to the lumber business. A man of his stamp could not be a failure. At the age of 21, the then plain Donald Mann had already risen to the position of foreman.

The West was at this time making its appeal for men of the right sort. Its lure seized Sir Donald and in 1879 he went to Winnipeg. This made him. By 1880 he was a contractor building portions of the C. P. R. contracts between Whitemouth east of Winnipeg and the Selkirk Mountains, which occupied him till 1885. It was shortly after this date that the famous partnership of Mackenzie and Mann was formed. Amongst many other important works this Company built the Calgary and Edmonton, the Qu'Appelle, Long Lake and Saskatchewan Railways, as well as the C. P. short line through Maine. By 1889 the firm had become so eminent and well known that it was offered railway contracts in Panama, Eucador, Peru and Chili as well as in China. Sir Donald Mann after visiting and carefully examining all these places decided to decline all the above projects.

It was then that Sir Donald began his now great railway system. He formed its nucleus by purchasing the charter of the Lake Manitoba Ry and Canal Company. From this has grown The Canadian Northern Railway system embracing upwards of 5,000 miles of line through the provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Quebec and Ontario. Today Sir Donald Mann is Vice-President of the Canadian Northern, the Canadian Northern Ontario and the Halifax and Southwestern Railways. All of which have reached their present high standing through his energy and genius.

Sir Donald Mann's work has chiefly consisted in directing construction. In this branch he has achieved an unsurpassed reputation for speed, efficiency and economy. Perhaps even more important has been his success in convincing public opinion that legislative aid to his projects would be for the public benefit. It is through this diplomacy and tact that his great systems have achieved their remarkable success. Canada has and will prosper still more through the efforts of Sir Donald Mann's fertile mind.

A Popular Judge.

In a popularity contest somewhere near the top would be found Mr. Justice Teetzel. He was born "Teetzel," and christened "James V."

"Most of us called him 'Jim' before he was elevated to the high court bench in 1903," recalls one barrister, "and, between you and me, he hasn't changed much since his promotion. His exalted position has failed to rob him of his individuality."

He was born on March 6, 1853, educated at Woodstock College, Galt, and Toronto, and was called to the Bar in 1877. Made a Q.C. in 1889, he was elected a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada in 1891, 1896, and 1901. He was made Doctor of Law by McMaster University in 1907.

His Lordship belonged to Hamilton before the high court plucked him away from mountain and mountaineers. He was mayor of the Ambitious Centre in 1899 and 1890, and in the latter year he contested a Federal seat there in the Liberal interest.

Mr. Justice Teetzel plays golf and rides a horse. He is a member of the Toronto Club, the Hamilton Club, and the Toronto Golf Club.

There comes a time in a woman's life when all her pet theories fall flat and useless and when every idol she has worshipped is demolished.

SWALLOWS' NEST OF BANK-NOTE

Also How a Mouse Stole $40 Worth of Notes to Make a Home.

A pair of swallows of Fiberbrunn, in the Tyrol, have stolen a number of ten-kronen bank-notes to line their nest.

The parent birds discovered that the new notes were just the shade of blue to match their eggs, the tissue being tough but flexible, and exactly the material they needed. The nest and the missing notes were only discovered when the swallows had abandoned it and it fell to the ground.

This feat has been equalled by that of an enterprising mouse in Dorabirn, which abstracted a number of twenty-kronen notes to the value of $40, of a delicate reddish brown shade, from the cash drawer of a butcher, and, tearing them to pieces, adapted them to the purpose of making a nest for her family of seven. The butcher in his search for the notes suspected and traced the house, and found the nest under the bedding. He carefully picked out the remains of the notes and returned them to the bank, where they were pieced together. The butcher recovered his worth.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Mr. Knox's Secretary.

A clever young woman who is a member of the Washington staff of a Cleveland paper had occasion to call on Mrs. Knox the other day on a matter of important news. Mrs. Knox was not at home, the man servant who answered the bell informed the journalists.

"Well, hasn't she a secretary who can give me the information I am after?" persisted the newspaper woman.

"Certainly, madam," answered the footman — 'this way, please.' Leading the way along the hall, he ushered her into the presence of a very important looking person.

"Are you Mrs. Knox's secretary?" asked the newspaper girl.

The man laughed. 'I guess I am,' he admitted. 'I'm her husband, and I'm the secretary of state. What can I do for you?"

Why He Was a Democrat.

'I always like to tell this story, especially if I am with Democrats,' said Prof. R. L. Lyman, of the University of Wisconsin.

'A man had a 'coon, which he offered to give to one of three boys who would give the best answer to the question: 'Why I am a Democrat.'

'"I'm a Democrat because I believe in free silver," said one lad.

'"I am a Democrat because I believe in free trade," answered the second.

'"I'se a Democrat 'cause I want dat 'coon," answered the third, a negro boy, looking hungrily at the 'coon.

'It's needless to tell which got the 'coon,' finished Mr. Lyman.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 2c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a volume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a mumble velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another cartoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

Strawberry Shortcake

Strawberry pie made like other berry pies is delicious. Mix and sift twice, two cups flour, four teaspoons baking-powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in one-fourth cup butter, using the tips of the fingers. Then add gradually three-fourths cup milk. Toss on a floured board and divide into two parts. Pat, roll out, and bake twelve minutes in a hot oven in buttered tins. Split and spread cut surfaces with butter. Sprinkle washed and hulled strawberries with sugar, place on back of range until warmed, crush slightly, and put between and on top of shortcakes. Cover with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla, and garnish with a few choice strawberries that have been reserved for the purpose.

"Highwaymen.

City Girl—"Did you ever see any highway robbers?"

Farmer—"Nope, I ain't exactly seen any. But I've had experience with some fellars that undertook to swindle me $3 I once contributed for good roads."

Alphabetical Time.

A Chicago firm finding that there were twelve letters in their name erected a clock over their door with letters instead of numerals. One day a passer-by gazed at the dial, deeply puzzled.

Mrs. Hambleigh—Yes, we've been having considerable trouble with our milk lately. Do you take your coffee with or without?

New Boarder—I take it within.

TRYING TO BREAK A RECORD.

Will Use Aeroplanes, Racing Automobiles, Private Racing Yachts, Special Trains and the Fastest Boats.

In an endeavor to lower the world record for a round-the-world trip Andre Jager Schmit, son of the vice president of the French Conseil d'Etat, will leave Paris shortly.

Schmit will use aeroplanes, racing automobiles, private racing yachts, special trains, transcontinental expresses and the fastest liners of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

The present record is held by an American newspaper man who made the trip in something like 40 days. Schmit expects to do it in 38 days or less.

The Frenchman will journey via Moscow, Vladivostok, Tsuruga, Yokohama, San Francisco (or Vancouver) Chicago, New York, Queenstown (or Liverpool), London to Paris by aeroplane. Where regular fast trains are not to be had special trains or racing autos will be used. In case he touches at Queenstown, Ireland, a racing yacht will take him off the boat and on to Cherbourg, France.

CANADA'S NAVY

How to Tell a Naval Officer's Rank.

Two stripes indicate a lieutenant, an engineer-lieutenant, a surgeon, or a paymaster — always having regard to the gold circle on the uppermost stripe for the lieutenant, or the purple, red, or white cloth between the stripes, and no circle, for the other branches. Three stripes, of which the middle one is only half the thickness of the other two, indicate a senior lieutenant or senior engineer, a staff-surgeon, or a staff-paymaster; while three stripes all of the same thickness denote a commander, a fleet-surgeon, or a fleet-paymaster.

A captain has four stripes. Officers of admiral's rank have always one broad gold stripe nearest the cuff, and from one to four thinner gold stripes above it. Thus, a rear-admiral has the broad stripe and one stripe above it; a vice-admiral has two above, an admiral has three, while an admiral of the fleet — of whom there are only five on the active list, one of whom is King George—has four. An admiral always wears a aiguillettes, as do the officers on his staff, such as his flag-lieutenant or his secretary.

Midshipmen have no stripes, as they are not commissioned officers; but they have a small square of white cloth on the front of the collars of their coats.

How To Get Down.

Once in a while the farmer gets back at the 'city feller' and this is the brief tale of how a well-known Milwaukee lawyer, sojourning in the country for a week, fell a victim of Uncle Josh's subtle sense of humor.

The legal light had gone to the country to work. He just shed his coat and kicked right in as 'twere. He had been assisting in stacking the first crop of hay and was working on top of the stack.

When 'knocking off time' came the stack was pretty high and the city chap didn't just know how to return to terra firma.

'Say, how'm I goin' to get down?' asked the lawyer person.

The farmer considered for a moment. Then he shouted:

'Oh, jest shet your eyes and walk 'round kind o' keerless, an' you'll get down.'

Accepted Insult.

She—"And knowing my sentiments on the subject, did that odious Mr. Binks insult you by offering you a drink?"

He—"That's what Mr. Binks did."

She—"And how did you resent it?"

He (meekly)—"I swallowed the insult."

Puzzling.

When Bilkins was away from home on a long business trip he got a letter from his wife that also puzzled him. It ended thus: "Baby is well and lots brighter than she used to be. Hoping you are the same. I remain, Your loving wife."

The Morning Times

SATURDAY, SEPT. 30, 1911.

WHITNEY CALLED TO OTTAWA

Toronto, Sept. 28.—Sir James Whitney left for Ottawa this morning accompanied by his private secretary, Mr. Horace Wallis, to meet Mr. R. L. Borden, the Premier-elect. He will return to the city by Saturday morning.

Ontario's Government is represented by one other member at Ottawa to-day, Hon. Frank Cochrane, who took charge of the organization during the late election with such remarkable results.

Mr. Cochrane was enjoying a fishing expedition as a rest after the campaign when atelegram summoning him to the capital arrived two days ago. His private secretary, Mr. G. W. Yates, set out at once and arrived home only this morning after delivering the message to the Minister. Mr. Cochrane, with a party of friends, was in Algonquin Park and to reach him Mr. Yates had to make a 20 mile canoe trip with guides in a rain and wind storm.

GERMANY RAISES SERIOUS ISSUE

Paris, Sept. 28.—A semi-official note issued to-day says that the observations presented by the German Government upon the last French proposals for a settlement of the Moroccan affair reached Paris this morning and that the reply includes new questions and maintains reservations which require serious examination.

HELD FOR MURDER OF HER SISTER.

Young New Orleans Woman Admits That She Administered Morphine —Girls Had Life Insurance.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 28.—Annie Crawford, a young woman of French-American extraction, under arrest for the murder of a younger sister, whose life was insured in her favor, has admitted to the District Attorney that she had administered morphine to the girl, but had done so by mistake.

If the law succeeds in establishing her in the network of circumstantial evidence, it is attempting to cast about her, Miss Crawford, aged 29, may have to answer not only for the death of her sister, Elise, a pretty stenographer, but also for the poisoning of three other members of her family who have died mysteriously within the past 15 months, all carrying life insurance in her favor.

Two Months in the Rockies.

Messrs Dr. N. Collie and A. L. Mumm of London, England, have returned to Edmonton after two months spent in the Canadian Rockies on the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. These gentlemen have been exploring a hitherto unknown region in the vicinity of Mount Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, and were accompanied by a train of 20 pack horses, and they state that in some places the forests were so impenetrable, that they had to cut their way through. Several discoveries were made. In one locality they came across two great glaciers larger than any known in the Rockies, and sighted a towering peak that had the appearance of being even larger than Mount Robson, which is 13,700 feet above the level of the sea. One of the glaciers was 40 to 50 miles in length, and 7 to 8 miles in width, and of striking formation.

CLYDESDALE.

The threshing mill is in the neighborhood at present. Farmers report rather a poor yield.

Rev. Mr. Brown of Warsaw, attended service in the Presbyterian church on Sunday and dispensed with Communion.

Miss Neta McCaskie, Belleville, who has been visiting relatives here, returned to her home last week.

Miss Dorothy Trotter left last week for Toronto, where she has secured a position.

Mr. Soules exchanged services with the Rev. Mr. Brown of Warsaw, on Sunday.

The picnic held at St. Mary's church on Tuesday proved a success. In spite of the threatening appearance of the weather in the morning, which may have detained some from being present. A large crowd assembled and spent a very enjoyable afternoon. After partaking of a splendid fowl dinner, served by the ladies, the sports, which created much excitement began. The following is a list of those to whom prizes were awarded: High jump, Rev. Mr. Soules; Old Men's Race, Mr. E. Huffman; Fat Man's Race, John Gooley and Fred Bullied tied; Boys' Race, Leslie Martin; Girls' Race, Agnes Gooley. Another interesting feature of the afternoon was several interesting addresses by prominent members of the Reform party. A splendid variety of fruit was displayed in the cantene. The dancing platform was also appreciated by the young people.

Many of our men are wearing a broad smile. I wonder why? Election is over. We sympathize with our defeated candidate, but he may be sure it was owing to the important question of reciprocity so many were misled.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

AN ORIENTAL REBUKE

Must Have a Waterfall to Wash Out a Graft Proposal.

Inscriptions upon Oriental ware, vases, jars, fans, and textiles are often examined with an amused but baffled curiosity. What can they mean? It is certain that they mean something. Even on the cheap halfpenny fans there are curious and grotesque faces which could not have been painted for their beauty. Only the initiated can read their story, and even among the Japanese themselves probably these specimens of pictorial rebus require classical knowledge for their interpretation. History and fable and myth must be understood and a Japanese who can understand must be equal in imagination to a commentator of Shakespeare. A recent traveller in Japan gives the story of one of these riddles. It is as good as any Egyptian hieroglyph. A Japanese of historic renown is represented as washing his ear in a water-fall. No basin would answer and no placid stream suffice. He must have the full force of a cataract to cleanse the ear into which an improper proposal had been spoken. At a pool below the fall a cow is drinking, but her owner, standing near her, glowers with anger at the ear-washer who is contaminating the stream. If individually people took to cleansing their ears from scandal and other unpleasant inpourings, no "waterworks" would suffice. Lady Macbeth's query would be in order—"Will all great Neptune's ocean do it?"

ORIGINALITY IN THE INDIVIDUAL

Competition Too Keen for Ordinary Business Methods.

Competition gets keener every year, and this means that the difficulty of the customer in selecting a firm to do business with becomes proportionately greater. His custom in the end must eventually go to the house which, by originality and difference from its competitors, simplifies this selection for him. The rapid and brilliant success of many of our great businesses to-day may all be attributed to this originality as the first cause.

If this is true with regard to a business it is equally so with regard to the individual. The man who differs from his fellows is the man who is noticed and, if his originality is backed by other good qualities, cannot but come to the front. Merit usually tells, of course, but my point is that merit is best recognised when it is advertised, as it were, by originality.

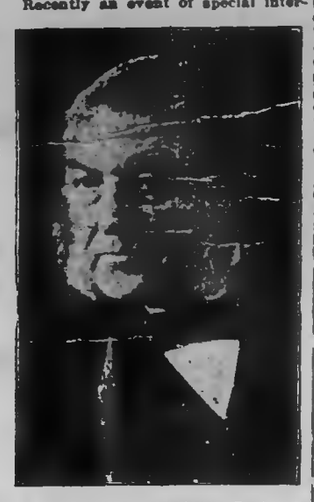
CANADA'S SONS

CANADA'S GRAND OLD MAN

It takes a big man to command interest from the whole nation fifteen years after retiring from active political life. That is Sir Charles Tupper's record. Although he now spends most of his time in England, no one follows the trend of political affairs in Canada with a keener eye. At ninety years of age his occasional contributions to the press show the same fire which enlivened politics in the early nineties. "Age cannot dim," as one man lately discovered when the doughty Knight corrected the Finance Minister's memory on several points.

Recently an event of special interest took place in London when a tablet was unveiled to commemorate where the articles of Confederation were drawn up. It was Sir Charles Tupper's day. The gallant old man with his unabated willingness to take any adversary spoke vigorously, and well. He is the last survivor of the Fifteen of Confederation. It was a great thing to see him standing there and to hear him speak. Sir Wilfrid Laurier's tribute addressed to him of "Well done, good and faithful servant" was hailed as one of the Canadian Premier's happy inspirations. He had said the right thing at the right time.



SIR CHAS. TUPPER, Bart.

HON. WALTER SCOTT.

Walter Scott, printer's devil, compositor, publisher, politician and premier of his province. It is not an exceptional story for Canada offers to every youth the opportunity to ascend. Mr. Scott, who was recently elected for a second term to the highest office in the gift of the people of Saskatchewan, can review a career that is an inspiration to any young man of ambition. To find the secret of his success one must know the man. If asked to name the qualities which led to the distinction, enjoyed so early in life, his friends would say that courage and stick-to-itiveness combined with an affable disposition were the predominant characteristics. It is not every boy who serves as an apprentice at a trade who has the determination to soar beyond the calling he had selected for life. No one would have dreamed that back in the early days of Regina, when it was a small town, its only claim to note being the headquarters of the Territorial Government, that the boy sweeping the office, pulling proofs and doing other chores in connection with a country weekly, would reach the honor of being the chief adviser of His Majesty in one of the principal provinces of this great common wealth. In political warfare Mr. Scott is a hard hitter. He wouldn't thrive in the West unless he were. He never strikes below the belt but when it is necessary to make a charge he does it without resort to suggestion, or surmise. When Walter Scott says anything unpleasant it's generally uncomfortably definite. As a speaker, he cannot be classed as an orator. He is not prosaic, however, and is pleasing to listen to. He has a free, easy, conversational style and holds his audience without difficulty. He is not a man to trifle with as many an interrupter has learned to his chagrin.

Walter Scott was born in Ontario in 1867.

HON. WILLIAM SCOTT
Premier of Saskatchewan.

FATAL CATARRH

Pneumonia, Consumption and kindred evils follow in its trail.

CATARRHOZONE

The great inhaler treatment, cures and prevents catarrh and should be used now.

Have you ever had Catarrh? Have you been subject to coughs and colds lately? Are you all run down? Do you take a cold easily?

If so you are liable to a severe attack at any time and should have Catarrhozone on hand, because it is a marvelous safeguard against coughs colds and catarrh.

Catarrhozone is the greatest protection against these complaints ever known. You just breathe it, that's all, and it cures. The Inhaler is suitable to carry in the vest pocket or purse, and can be used while at work, in the church, theatre, any place, any time. Carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler, use it now and again, it is quite pleasant, and you won't have colds or catarrh.

Breath? Catarrhozone for five minutes occasionally, and it cures coughs and colds.

Breathe it five minutes four times a day and it cures Bronchitis and Catarrh.

Breathe it ten minutes every hour and it will cure consumption.

Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this and if it fails your money will be refunded.

It is highly endorsed by doctors and druggists as the most reliable and surest cure for bronchitis, colds and catarrh, and no case is recorded where it failed to give satisfaction.

Don't let your cold run on any farther. Cure it now by Catarrhozone. Complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, and sufficient liquid for three months' use costs but one dollar; small size 25 cents. At druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

A RAVENOUS INDUSTRY.

How the Paper Makers Are Destroying the Forests of the United States.

The forests of the United States now cover 550,000,000 acres, or about one-fourth of the area of the country. Forests publicly owned contain one-fifth of all timber standing. The timber privately owned is not only four times that publicly owned but it is generally more valuable.

Forestry is not practised on 70 per cent. of the forests publicly owned and on less than 1 per cent. of the forests privately owned, or on only 18 per cent. of the total area of the forests.

The original forests of the United States contained timber in quantity and variety far beyond that upon any other area of similar size in the world. They covered 850,000,000 acres with a stand of not less than 5,200,000,000,000 board feet of merchantable timber, according to present standards of use. There were five great forest regions—the northern, the southern, the central, the Rocky Mountain and the Pacific.

The present rate of cutting is three times the annual growth of the forests of the United States. The great pineries of the Lake States are nearing exhaustion and great inroads have been made upon the supply of valuable timber throughout all parts of the country.

The heavy demands for timber have been rapidly pushing the great centres of lumber industry towards the South and West. In consequence, the State of Washington has led for several years in lumber production, followed in order by Louisiana, Texas, Mississippi, Wisconsin and Arkansas. In 1908 the production of yellow pine lumber amounted to eleven and one-quarter billion feet; the Douglas fir of the Northwest held second place, with three and two-thirds billion feet; while white pine came third, with three and one-third billion feet.

The annual cut from the forests, including waste in logging and in manufacture, is 20,000,000,000 cubic feet of wood.

There is used in a normal year 90,000,000 cords of fire wood, 40,000,000,000 board feet of lumber, 113,000,000 hewn ties, 1,500,000,000 staves, over 133,000,000 sets of heading, nearly 500,000,000 barrel hoops, 3,000,000 cords of native pulp wood, 165,000,000 cubic feet of round mine timbers and 1,253,000 cords of wood for distillation.

In 1909 4,002,000 cords of wood were used in the manufacture of paper, of which 794,000 cords were imported from Canada. The demand for pulp wood is making a severe drain on the spruce forests, which furnish the principle supply. The Forest Service of the United States Department of Agriculture is conducting investigations to determine what other woods such as scrub pine, white fir, tupelo and the like, can be successfully used.

A larger drain upon forest resources is made by the demand for railroad ties, of which 123,754,000, equivalent to three and three-quarters billion board feet, were used in 1908. White oak, hitherto the chief source of supply, is not plentiful enough to meet this demand indefinitely, and in many parts of the country the supply of chestnut, cedar and cypress is dwindling; however, seasoning and treating methods are being found, largely through the work of the Forest Service, by which cheaper and more plentiful woods, such as lodgepole pine in the Northwest and loblolly pine in the South, are made fit for use as ties. Timber to the amount of two and one-half billions feet was used in 1907 for mine timbers. A great saving has been effected in the naval stores industry, also largely through the work of the Forest Service, by the introduction of the so-called "cup" system of turpentining in place of the old destructive system of "boxing." The new systems insure a larger product of better quality and prolong the life of the longleaf pine forests upon which the industry depends.

ed horses would not stand out like the nose on a man's face. How it blows."

It did—so that speech was next to impossible, even had we been inclined to talk. The wind struck us quartering, and muffled a shout to inconsequent syllables. But, beyond those few words, Barreau kept mute, leaning forward in his stirrups at a steady lope. We must have covered near twenty miles, before the eastern skyline gave a hint of dawn. With that Barreau pulled his horse down to a walk.

"Well," he said lightly, "we made it easily enough. Now for a bit of a climb. It will be awkward if a bunch of unfriendly Stonies have taken possession of the one spot that will serve us. But that's hardly thinkable. Are you tired, Bob?"

I was, and freely owned it. He swung sharply aside while I was speaking, and in a few minutes an odd-shaped butte loomed ahead. It upreared out of the flat country like a huge wart. The bald slope was weather-worn, rain-scarred, naked of vegetation; but on its crest tangled patches of cherry brush and sallow willows made a ragged silhouette against the sky. The east blazed like the forefront of a prairie fire when we reached the top. Then it became plain to me why Barreau had sought the place. The scrub growth stood dense as a giant's beard, but here and there it enfolded little meadows of bunch grass, and, winding in and out through these, Barreau finally drew up by a rush-fringed pool that proved to be a spring.

"Water, wood, and grass," said he, as his heels struck the earth, "and all securely screened from passers-by. Now we can eat and rest in peace. Let us get a fire built, and boil a pot of coffee before it gets so light that the smoke will betray us."

The horses we picketed in one of the little glades. Shut in by the brush, they could graze unseen. Then we cooked and ate breakfast, hurrying to blot out the fire, for dawn came swinging swiftly across the plains.

"Come over and take a look from the brow of the hill," Barreau proposed, when we were done.

Wearily I followed him; I could have stretched myself in the soft grass and slept with a will; every bone and muscle in my body protested against further movement, and I was sluggish with a full stomach. But Barreau showed no sign of fatigue, and a measure of pride in my powers of endurance kept me from open complaint.

It was worth a pang or two, after all. He led the way to the southern tip of the plateau; no great distance—from edge to edge the table-land was no more than two hundred yards across. But it overlooked the Blood Flats from a great height, four hundred feet or more, I judged. Barreau sat down beside a chokecherry clump, and rolled himself a cigarette. Ten paces beyond, the butte fell away sheer to the waste levels below.

"There is nothing that I have ever seen just like this," he murmured. "And it is never twice alike. Watch that rise take fire from the sun. And the mountains over yonder; square-shouldered giants, tricked out in royal purple."

The sun slid clear of the skyline, and a long shaft of light brushed over the unreckoned miles of grass land till it fell caressingly on our butte. Hollows and tiny threads of creeks nursed deep, black shadows that shrank and vanished as the sun rays sought them out. Away beyond, to the west, the snow-tipped Rockies stood boldly out in their robes of blue. And as the yellow glare bathed the sea of land that ringed the lone pinnacle, I saw why the flats were so named.

Impassive, desolate, vast in its sweep, the plain took on a weird look at the sun's kiss. Barren of tree or shrub so far as the eye could reach naked even of shriveled blades of grass, when the last, least shadow was gone, it spread before us like a painted floor; red to its outermost edges, a sullen, dried-blood red. A strange colored soil, as if it were a huge bed of dull-glowing coals.

"Blood Flats! There is no incongruity in the name," Barreau vouchsafed. "It is almost beautiful. Yet I have seen the sun strike it of a morning—and felt a foolish, oppressive dread. Just after a rain, I remember, once. The sun lay like a lake of blood. The light played on pools here and there now that glowed like great rubies fancy it! Ninety miles square of that blood-stained earth. A monstrous shambles. It has often seemed to me. It breeds strange thoughts when one faces it alone. Or take it on a day of lowering clouds. Then it almost voices a threat of evil; it is so void of life, so malevolent in its stillness. The psychology of environment is a curious thing. How is it that mere inanimate earth, a great magnitude of space, a certain color scheme, can affect a man so? Sometimes I wonder if we inherit past experiences of our primitive ancestors along with the color of our eyes and the cast of our features. Our surroundings work upon our emotions as the temperature affects a thermometer, and we cannot tell why. Even the hard-headed bull whackers hate this stretch of country."

He made himself another cigarette, and sat quiet for a time, staring off across the red waste.

"We may as well go back to camp," he said, rising abruptly. "There is no sign of men, mounted, afoot, or otherwise, that I can see."

Back by our saddles and packs lay-out, Barreau divided the blankets, and showed me how to fold mine to make the most of them. Thankfully I bedded myself in a shaded place; but he, before following my example, unstrung from his saddle a rifle that he had procured at Montell. He looked it over, snapped the lever forward and back, slid another cartridge or two into the magazine. This done, he laid it by his blankets.

"I grudge the police my two good nags, and my repeater," he remarked, as he drew off his boots. "What extra weapons Montell had were stowed in a wagon, and I had no time to hunt for them. So we will have to make shift with one rifle — for a while, at least. For that matter, unless we run foul of some young bucks prowling for a scalp, one gun will serve as well as two. If you elect to take a different trail, the best I can give you will be an ancient derringer and a scant number of cartridges. But I am inclined to think we will not part company, yet a while."

He sat upon his blankets, regarding me with a measuring air; and I, from my comfortable position, answered drowsily:

"I have a full stomach, a clear conscience, and a tired body; and I am going to sleep right now, if I never travel another trail."

He laughed softly. Whether he said anything further, I do not know. I was too near worn out to care. My last faint impression was of him sitting cross-legged on his blankets, emitting sporadic puffs of smoke, and looking at me with his black brows drawn together. And the next thing I remember was a tang of wood smoke in my nostrils. I sat up and stared about, puzzled at first, for I had slept like a dead man. Twilight wrapped the butte. Barreau was bent over a small fire, cooking supper.

"Oh," he said, looking around. "You've come to life, at last. I was about to wake you. The chuck's ready."

I washed in the trickle of water that ran away from the spring, and felt like a new man. And eat — I was ravenous. Never had food made such an appeal to my senses. When the meal was over, Barreau settled back against his saddle.

"There will be a moon somewhere near midnight," he declared. "We'll move, then. After to-night we can travel without cover of the dark. Meantime, lend me your ears, Robertus. Let us see where we stand."

"Fire away," I replied. "I am pretty much in the dark — in more ways than one."

"Exactly," he responded. "And I imagine you have little taste for walking blindfolded. So we will spread our hands on the board. First, let us look a few facts cold-bloodedly in the eye. Here are two of us practically outlawed. I — well, it should be obvious to you that I am a very much-wanted man in these parts. My capture — especially now — would be the biggest feather any policeman could stick in his cap. There are others who would cheerfully shoot me in the back for what it would bring them. Hence, the sooner I get out of this part of the country, the better I will be suited. You have killed a man for a starter. That——"

"But I had to," I broke in. "It was forced on me. You know how it was. There's a limit to what a man can stand."

"I know all that," he replied quietly. "I'm not sitting in judgment on you, Bob. I'm merely setting forth what has happened, and how we are affected thereby. Tupper got no more than he deserved, and he did not get it soon enough — from my point of view. But, as I said, you killed a man, and the killing has taken on a different color in the minds of others, since you are also accused of theft."

"Do you believe that infernal lie?" I interrupted again. It galled me to hear him enumerate those ugly details in that calm, deliberate manner.

"It makes little difference what I believe," he answered patiently. "If it is any comfort to you, I can hardly conceive of you plundering the Moon's cabin. But voicing our individual beliefs is beside the point. Certain things are laid to us. Certain penalties are sure as the rising and setting of the sun, if either of us is caught and convicted. And" — he pinched his eye-brows together until little creases ran up and down his forehead, but his voice was cold, matter of fact — "if we were clean-handed as a babe unborn, we have forever damned ourselves before Canadian courts by breaking jail. You see where we are? Forgetting these other things that we may or may not have done, of this one crime we are guilty. We can't dodge it, if we are taken. It is a felony in itself.

"If I were a free agent," he went on, after a momentary pause, "I would have made no attempt to escape; or, having escaped, I would quit this damned country by the shortest route. But I can't. I have got into a game that I must play out a finish. Further, I have given my word to do certain work, and in the doing of it, I am bucking elements that I cannot always cope with alone. I need help. I want some one whom I can trust absolutely if he gives his word; a man I can depend upon to stick by me in a pinch. That" — he turned his gaze squarely on me — "is principally why I took long chances to get you out of the guardhouse, last night. It seemed to me I could help myself best

HOW 'LLOYDS' BEGAN

Founder of Enterprise Was Coffee House Keeper Whose Shop Vessel Owners Frequented.

Primarily 'Lloyds' is a corporation employed in marine insurance and having a world wide agency for the collection of marine intelligence. Incidentally other insurance is taken. 'Lloyds' had its origin in the enterprise of Edward Lloyd, a London coffee house keeper, whose place, opened in 1688, became a resort for ship owners and ship captains. So much was learned of marine matters and so general became the interest in this information, that in 1692 an office was opened in Lombard st., and shortly afterwards 'Lloyd's News', a paper issue three times a week and devoted to shipping news, made its appearance.

Adverse criticism of the paper by the British government, coupled with a demand for an apology for an item of news which appeared in the paper, decided Mr. Lloyd to discontinue the publication. The insurance feature of 'Lloyd' originated from a method of mutually insuring of 'underwriting' each other's shipping risks by the owners frequenting Lloyd's establishment. Their method of doing this was to subscribe or 'underwrite' their names to a document which stated the amounts that each was willing to give in the event of disaster to the risk.

The present system of 'Lloyds' does not differ in any essential particular from the method employed at the beginning, but it is much better organized and the business has been vastly increased in volume. Its radius of operation now practically covers the whole world.

PUCCINI ON "LA TOSCA"

Signor Puccini, the composer, refers his strangest musical reminiscence to Milan. Unknown as he supposed himself to be, he attended in that city a production of his own opera, "La Tosca."

"'La Tosca' was received warmly by a crowded house. The applause was almost frantic. In fact, a young lady seated on my left got so annoyed because I didn't clap and shout that she rebuked me, a frown wrinkling her pretty brow.

"'Masterpiece?' said I, and I laughed sarcastically, 'Masterpiece? O, dear!'

"'Don't you like the music?' she demanded, in amazement.

"'No,' said I. 'It's the work of an amateur.'

"'You know nothing of art,' she cried, 'or you wouldn't talk like that!'

"'Oh, don't I?' said I. And then I proceeded to prove to her, according to the laws of thorough-bass and counterpoint, how poor a work 'La Tosca' was. I told her this aria suggested Verdi, that chorus was a reminiscence of Bizet. In a word, I knocked my own music into a cocked hat.

"When I had finished the young lady said:

"'Is that your real opinion — your sincere conviction?'

"'Absolutely,' said I.

"'Very well,' she said, with an odd little laugh; and at breakfast the next morning the first thing I saw in my newspaper was the headline, 'Puccini on Tosca.'" And there I read, word for word, my remarks of the night before. The young lady, a musical critic, had recognized me. When I thought I was gulling her, she was gulling me."

The Mutton and the Fan.

It is the custom in Paris for the cook to do all the marketing. This adds considerably to the cook's income; for every dealer allows her five centimes — one cent — on every franc — or twenty cents — she spends. So French cooks insist on their marketing prerogative, and the mistress who denies it to them is deemed a very mean, small, niggardly sort of a person. A person of this sort, an elderly woman, was in the habit of doing her own marketing in a long duster. The duster hid her purchases. It prevented her, while usurping her cook's rights, from being detected in the act. As the woman, one hot morning, was walking homeward in her duster from the Marche St. Honore, she stumbled in the Rue Hyacinthe, and a leg of mutton fell and rolled across the sidewalk. A passing stranger picked up the leg of mutton and returned it with a bow and smile. "Permit me, madam — your fan," he said.

IT WAS A SURPRISE

"We have the surprise beautifully planned," said young Mrs. Westerleigh to the guests, "and Frank doesn't suspect a thing. I think he has even forgotten that to-day's his birthday. He will get home from the office at about seven o'clock. Then he always goes upstairs to take off his coat and put on his smoking jacket for the evening. When he is upstairs I will call out suddenly, 'Oh, Frank, come downstairs — be quick! The gas is escaping.' Then he will rush down here and find the crowd of friends waiting for him."

It went exactly as planned. Westerleigh came home at the regular hour and went directly upstairs. The hidden guests held their breath while Mrs. Westerleigh called out excitedly, "Oh, Frank, come down quick. The gas is escaping in the parlor."

Every light had been turned out, and the parlor was in perfect darkness. There was a rapid rush of feet down the stairway, then a voice said, "I don't smell any gas."

"Better light the jet," Mrs. Westerleigh suggested tremulously. "Here's a match."

The match was struck, and suddenly the room was flooded with light. Everybody screamed. The hostess fainted. For there in the center of the room stood Westerleigh, attired only in a natty union suit, with a fresh pair of trousers carried over his arm.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

CHARACTER IN HAIR.

Red Haired People Considered Smart

Men with fine, light hair are smart, conceited, and, if they do not marry until late in life, are apt to grow cross and selfish. If a girl wishes to select a husband, she should learn to read his disposition by his hair. Men with fine brown hair, light or dark, make the best husbands; they are quick, thoughtful, and less apt to be selfish than the very light-haired, or very dark-haired brothers. Those whose hair turns gray prematurely are nearly always good fellows; are a little nervous, but brainy, sympathetic, and very honorable. A prematurely gray-haired person is generally very scrupulous in money matters and in friendships, and very tolerant of one's shortcomings. Nearly all red-haired persons are smart, whether the hair is coarse or fine, but the finer the hair the finer the smartness. Pale, blond-haired women, of the colorless, ashen kind, are impulsive, loving, and ficklet; not to be depended upon, but usually good company while they like you. Women with very dark brown hair are loyal, sympathetic, and usually of tireless patience where they love; they are full of sentiment, emotional, enjoy keenly and suffer in like proportion, are easily touched by the woes of others, and are to be trusted. Women with fine black hair, touched with brown, are high-strung, loyal, and brainy. Those with very black hair, if it is coarse, are usually mean and suspicious. All women with very dark hair are quick tempered, and where dark eyes and dark complexions go with the dark hair, they have strong feeling. The dark-haired women are more faithful than the light-haired, and if finely organized, just bubble over with sentiment.

WORKING TO KEEP YOUNG

When a Busy Man Retires He Soon Leaves This Old Earth.

Friends of J. P. Morgan who keep in close touch with him assert that although he goes to Europe primarily for rest he works harder during his absence than the average man works when at his desk. Between his visits to art galleries and connoisseurs, to kings and other rulers, he contrives to attend to a vast amount of business. The cables between the house at the corner of Wall and Broad streets and the foreign offices of Morgan & Company are kept busy every day. Not only so, but Mr. Morgan always has a secretary along with him to assist in the transaction of his huge affairs, a position that is by no means a sinecure.

Mr. Morgan, it is said, has no intention of retiring completely from active business life. In this connection it may be interesting to narrate a conversation that took place some time ago. A middle aged friend of Mr. Morgan said to him: "Why don't you retire, Mr. Morgan? You have already done a big life's work."

"Umph, when did your father retire?" came the quick reply.

"In——"

"And when did he die?"

"Oh, he died about a year later."

"Just so; if he had continued in business he would have been alive still," was the rejoinder that closed the conversation. This is Mr. Morgan's theory.

And there are others who share the old belief that a man is only as old as he feels.

Her Church Testimony

If brevity is the soul of wit, one of the wittiest speeches on record was made by a woman. Mrs. Briggs lived in the northern part of Indiana, a long distance from any village. Hearing that Rev. Mr. Goodwin was to preach in a township some twenty miles distant, she resolved to be present, and as no other way offered, she walked the twenty miles.

The pastor heard of this, and was so pleased at the appreciation which it showed that at the close of the sermon he mentioned the fact to the congregation and called upon Mrs. Briggs to tell them how she came.

Rising slowly, she looked over the audience with great solemnity and said:

"I hoofed it."

Then she sat down again.

Turn About is Fair Play

A young married woman recently had a novel experience when she engaged her first Chinese cook.

"What's your name?" she asked when the preliminaries had been settled.

"My name Hong Long Loo," said the Celestial with much gravity.

"And I am Mrs. Harrington Richard Buckingham," said his new employer. "I am afraid I shall never be able to remember your name — it's so long. I shall call you John."

"All light," returned the Chinese with a suspicion of a smile. "Your names too long too, I callee you Charley."

His Money's Worth.

"Sixtane shillins a da' did they charrge me for my room at the hotel in Lunnon. Mon, mon, ye dinna supnantly, on his return to Croburgh Burghs from a sight-seeing expedition.

"Ou, aye, it wasna cheap," agreed his father; "but ye must 'a' had a gey fine time seein' the sichts.'

"Seein' the sichts!" roared Sandy. "I didna see a sicht a' the time I was in Lnunon. Mon, mon, ye dinna suppose I was going to be stuck that much for a room, an' then no get the proper use o't!"

The Stumper Stumped

A political speaker, while making a speech paused in the midst of it and exclaimed, "Now, gentlemen, what do you think?"

A man rose in the assembly, and with one eye partially closed, modestly, with a strong Scotch brogue, replied, "I think, sir, I do, indeed, sir — I think if you and I were to stump the country together we would tell more lies than any other two men in the country, sir, and I'd not say a word myself during the whole time, sir!"

PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper National Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

High Class Advertising.

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd has been 258,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

Home for Christmas

The Steamship Lines are expecting a large home-going exodus for the holiday season this year, and are making extensive preparations to take care of all of those who are planning to visit the Old Country.

The White Star-Dominion Line has arranged for three special Christmas sailings, viz. the "Canada" December 2nd, "Megantic" December 9th, and "Teutonic"—December 14th, from Portland, Me., and Halifax, N. S., to take care of these passengers. These steamers will arrive in ample time to enable passengers to reach their homes before Christmas whether in England or on the Continent.

The railways have recognized the growing popularity of these annual Christmas excursions and now run special trains from Montreal and the west to connect with the steamers, and the most complete arrangements are made by both the steamship companies and the rail lines to further the comfort of the homeward bound ones during the holiday season.

A Presentation.

On Tuesday evening the office staff of the C. G. E. Co. met in the boarder's parlours of the Y.W.C.A. and presented one of their number Miss Bayles, with a half dozen silver fruit knives, with ivory handles, accompanied by an address. Miss Bayles, who is leaving the city in a few days, has been very popular with her co-workers, and they took this means of showing their regard and appreciation for her. A very enjoyable evening was spent, refreshments being served and a pleasant social time enjoyed. Those present are very grateful to Mrs. Reid of the Y.W.C.A. for her kindness in allowing them to use the parlours for the event.

New Oil Field

A legitimate chance to make a fortune, by the investment of a small amount of money is what every investor wants. Usually the difficulty is to be able to satisfy yourself as to the safeguards and probabilities of success, and thus select the good from the bad. The newest, and what promises to be the richest oil area in the world is just beginning to be developed, in what is known as the Tampico field in Mexico. The flow of oil from the first few wells drilled there has broken all records. Beyond a doubt this is one of the greatest opportunities for investment ever known.

A Company has just been organized to develop 3500 acres of the choicest, and best located property in the producing field. For this purpose we will offer a limited number of shares of stock for subscription at ½ its par value. We are certain we can interest you, and satisfy you of the merit of the enterprise if you will let us.

Write for full information, and map.

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 80 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

$60 cash, or $12 down and $12 a month for four months, buys 200 shares.

$120 cash, or $24 down and $24 a month for four months, buys 400 shares.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

FARM AND FIELD

STOCK RAISING IN SIBERIA.

The Mongols Make the Best of Land Horse in Siberia.

The most important occupation in the Province of Transbaikal is stock raising. Cattle, horses and sheep predominate, altho a limited number of camels, deer, goats and swine are raised. The horses average between twelve and thirteen hands high, and can draw a load of over one thousand pounds, and if driven in a troioka (three horses harnessed abreast) they can cover thirty to forty miles a day. Journeys of thousands of miles at an average rate of forty miles a day have been made by riding these animals. The horses are kept in the open throughout the year, and in winter find their food under the snow. Some improvement has been made in breeding these horses, and only recently Arab blood was introduced.

The cattle are of Mongolian origin and are inferior and very small. They live in the same manner as the horses, and it is remarkable how they can withstand the severe climate and lack of food. Experiments have been made to improve the stock, but the results are noticed only in the first and second generation, the probable reason being that they are given so little care. These cattle produce little milk or beef. The camel is also of Mongolian origin, and the sheep are a little over two feet in height, the tail varying in weight from two to ten pounds. The wool is coarse, thick and of medium length.

BEE HIVES.

Successful Farmers Have Their Section Boxes Ready for Swarming.

The wideawake farmer does not wait until his bees have swarmed and are clustered on a treetop before he thinks of preparing a hive for them. All preparatory work, such as making and painting hives, wiring brood frames and getting the section boxes ready for the anticipated honey crop, should be done at leisure times during winter and early spring, before the rush of other work takes place. How easy it will be to manage a dozen or more colonies of bees next summer if everything is set in readiness now. For instance, if a swarm issues it will only be the work of a few minutes to take a hive from the barn and hive the swarm into it. If a honey flow bursts forth suddenly, what satisfaction it will give you to know that you have on hand a few hundred section boxes ready to set on the hives at once. If this work is put off until summer time, it is more than probable it will not be done at all. When feeding the bees be careful and not spill any of the sweets about the apiary, for robbing is often started in this way.

In a Bad Way.

Special to The Times.

St. Louis, Mo., Sept. 25.—The St. Louis Post Despatch says: "With reciprocity defeated in Canada, the Taft administration is now left without any achievements whatever in the way of tariff reform and reduced cost of living."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

PUBLISH MY LETTER THE WORLD OVER

The Words of Harold P. Bushy, Who Was Permanently Cured of Chronic Lumbago by "Nerviline."

"Three years ago I discovered that a man subject to lumbago might just as well be dead as alive." These words open the sincere straightforward letter of H. P. Bushy, a well-known man in the plumbing and tinsmithing business in Portland.

"One attack came after another, and lumbago got to be a chronic thing with me. I could scarcely get in a day's work before that knifing, cruel pain would attack my back. I used a gallon of liniments; not one of them seemed penetrating enough to get at the core of the pain. I read in the Montreal Witness about Nerviline, and got five bottles. It is a wonderful medicine—I could feel its soothing pain-relieving action every time it was applied. When I got the disease under control with Nerviline, I built up my strength and fortified my blood by taking Ferrozone at meals. This treatment cured me permanently, and I urge everyone to give up the thick, white, oily liniments they are using, and try an up-to-date, penetrating, pain-destroyer like Nerviline.

The first entry for the Examiner Road Race, which is to take place on Thanksgiving day, has been made by Harold Smith, of the Y.M.C.A. Several other boys who tried last year, intend to enter again this season.

English Cheese Man Here.

Mr. A. W. Prince, chairman and managing director of the Richard Dickeson Co., Ltd., of London, Eng., was in the city yesterday for the purpose of inspecting the cheese factories in this district. His company are large buyers of Canadian cheese, and he is therefore, interested in its manufacture.

Police Changes.

Policeman John Brown resigned his position on the force, and his namesake, John Brown, as well as P. S. Newsholm applied for the job. The Commissioners who met to consider the matter, made no appointment. P. C. Kidd, who was on the temporary list, was made a permanent officer of the force at $500 per annum. The salary of P. C. Meagher was increased to $650.

His Auto Skidded.

A well known autoist had an exciting experience yesterday. He was driving at a fair clip for a few miles in Otonabee, when in turning a corner his auto skidded and went down an embankment. Fortunately the machine did not upset, or a fatality might have occurred. The auto was released with the assistance of a farmer and a team of horses.

Is Totally Blind.

Scott Wilson, the 18 year old son of Mr. Alex. Wilson, of Spokane, Wash., formerly of Peterborough, will regret to learn that he has lost the sight of his one eye, and is totally blind. About seven years ago, as some of our readers will remember, while the family resided in Peterborough, he was shot in one eye with an air rifle in the hands of a neighbor's boy and he has not been able to see out of that eye ever since. Thus losing the sight of the other eye makes him doubly unfortunate.

Mr. Sexsmith for the Cabinet.

The Times cordially endorses the Havelock Standard's suggestion that the claims of Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., for a Cabinet position be brought to Mr. Borden's attention. Mr. Sexsmith would make an ideal Minister of Agriculture, and if his friends in the West as well as in the East would get busy in his support, he might get the call. Mr. Sexsmith has developed into a good speaker, and when he delivers an address he always knows what he is talking about. A farmer himself, he knows exactly what is most needful for the benefit of the agriculturists of the country.

Ald. Morgan Back.

Ald. Morgan, chairman of the Fire Water and Light Committee, has returned from the Fire Chief's Convention which he attended at Milwaukee with Fire Chief Howard and Mrs. Howard, September 18th to 22nd. The Chief and Mrs. Howard went to London, Ont., for a few days where they will visit the Chief's mother before returning home. Ald. Morgan, in referring to the meeting, said that 1,000 fire chiefs were present, and a very interesting and instructive time was spent. The ladies of the party were entertained to an auto drive around the city while all the delegates were the guests of the Pabst and Schlitz firms at a big banquet. The manufacturers gave the visitors, a ride on the fire apparatus and a demonstration of their use at a fire.

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

EQUAL RIGHTS FOR ALL.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—When we remember that both Mr. Burnham and Mr. Sexsmith were elected without the aid of the Roman Catholic vote, as it is correctly called, which measures up over one-fifth of the total electorate of the two ridings, it is indeed a triumph for equal rights. There is no desire on the part of Protestants to secure any advantage from the Government of the day. They want nothing that they are not prepared to concede to their Roman Catholic fellow-citizens. But what they do insist upon is a fair deal—no special privileges to that church.

Now, in view of the approaching elections for the Ontario Legislature, it is absolutely necessary that the position of the candidates be disclosed in regard to bi-lingual schools and other matters in which the Roman heirarchy is making itself busy.

The whole trouble between Protestant and Catholic would soon disappear if the Romish church would prevent its priests from meddling in politics.

Equal Rights.

A GOOD MAN.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I noticed in The Times of Thursday last, there appeared an article suggesting the names of several persons from whom a suitable candidate might be chosen to represent West Peterborough in the Parliament at Toronto. The gentleman who appeals to me, and I believe also to a large majority of Liberals, outside of our old and true friend, the Hon. J. R. Stratton, is Mr. G. N. Gordon the well known lawyer. Mr. Gordon is a man who is bound to come to the fore. He is possessed of splendid abilities, has a strong personality and is a fluent speaker. He would make an ideal representative, and a few sessions in opposition would qualify him for a seat on the Government side of the House. When the Liberals get back to power, as they assuredly will in a short time, Mr. Gordon would then not only be on the Government side, but undoubtedly be called to aCabinet position.

It is young men of Mr. Gordon's high class that the country needs at the present time.

An Old Liberal.

LICENSE INSPECTOR'S DUTY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I have noticed from time to time those poor unfortunates who happen to be on the Indian list and fall away from the sober path, are brought before the Police Magistrate but those who sell him the liquor are seldom punished. How is this? Is not the inspector lax in his duty, when he fails to punish the seller as well as the buyer? I would think so.

The duty of aLicense Inspector is to enforce the law, without fear, favor or affection." Our local inspector does not always do this, I fear, or he would be less anxious to get after the poor unfortunate victim, and more willing to punish the real culprit.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

PIANO TUNING.

Mr. Worden, piano tuner of R. F. Wilks & Co., Toronto, will be in Peterborough in a few days. Orders left at The Times' Bookstore will receive attention.

Stand by The Times.

We ask our friends—those who believe in the position taken by The Times—to stand by our advertisers. Those merchants and others who use the advertising columns of this journal we hope will be made to feel that they are making no mistake in so doing. These are the men to patronize, these are the men to be encouraged. Hundreds of new subscribers have been added to our lists during the past few months, and hundreds more will come in during the present autumn. Let all unite, therefore, in giving a liberal share of their trade to the merchants who stand by The Times. In this way you will be helping to build up a newspaper that will ever, we trust, fearlessly advocate equal rights and special privileges to none.

To Defeat Mr. Lake—The Election Will Be Protested.

Regina, Sask., Sept. 28.—The Government influence among foreigners and homesteaders was a big factor in the recent election. The province was overrun with officials of every description coercing voters. Mr. Lake's defeat is bitterly regretted here. The Government spent thousands of dollars to defeat him and all [illegible] the machinery of the local Government was used against him.

The seat will be protested and Mr. Lake will be in Parliament after the first session. Many irregularities are coming to light. There is a strong revulsion of feeling since the Conservative victory.

EXPECT $250,000 FOR KEELEY MINE.

Property That Ruined Farmers Bank Offered to Highest Bidder—Wettlaufer's Veins Adjacent.

Toronto, Sept. 29.—The Keeley Mine will be sold to the highest bidder. The price expected for this most celebrated property that "broke" the Farmer's Bank, ruined shareholders and depositors alike and sent Travers to prison, is approximately $250,000. Over half a million was spent on it by Travers and his associates, before the bank became hopelessly engulfed.

The liquidators of the bank intend to realize as quickly as possible on all available assets and will call for tenders on the mining property.

It was stated this morning by an official interested in the wind-up that engineers and workmen had been kept on the property during the past six months doing some development work While there have been no "finds" of great note, the promise of values is considered bright. What is looked upon as a favorable factor is the Keeley Mine's proximity to the Wettlaufer. This is expected to make the Keeley's sale well worth while for the liquidators.

Mr. Borden Believed to Have Completed His Cabinet

WESTERN MEN ARE SLOW

Canadian Leaders Gather at Home of Premier-Elect—Hon. Richard McBride Offered Interior Department Portfolio—Hon. Frank Cochrane is Likely to Become Member of New Cabinet.

Ottawa, Oct. 1. ROBERT L. Borden, the premier-elect, has plenty of Cabinet material to work with, and will be able to present a slate that will at once meet with the approval of the country. It is said that some delay has been caused by the difficulty of securing western men. Hon. Richard McBride, Premier of British Columbia, has been offered the Department of the Interior, while Hon. Mr. Roblin, Premier of Manitoba, has been tendered a cabinet position. Hon. Robert Rogers has also, it is said, been slated.

It looks like Hon. Frank Cochrane as the new man from Ontario. Sir James Whitney, accompanied by Mr. Cochrane, reached Ottawa on Thursday evening. Sir James proceeded to Mr. R. L. Borden's residence on Wurtemburg street and was in conference with the Premier-elect for a couple of hours, during which time the situation with respect to Ontario's representation in the new government was thoroughly canvassed.

It is understood that the Ontario Premier consented to part with his minister of lands, forests and mines, and that Mr. Cochrane will be placed in charge of one of the large spending departments at Ottawa.

After leaving Mr. Borden's house Sir James Whitney talked things over with Mr. Cochrane. The Ontario Premier left for home on Friday evening. As to the suggestion that he might himself move to Ottawa, he said:

"I have no such intention."

May Resign To-Morrow.

Hon. Frank Oliver's arrival on Friday completed the ministerial list and the work of house-cleaning in the departments is being rushed. Tuesday is now mentioned as the earliest date for the resignation of the Laurier ministry.

No Announcement Yet.

Among the arrivals in the Capital included Hon. J. J. Foy, Attorney-General of Ontario. Sir James Whitney, accompanied by Mr. Foy and Mr. Cochrane, proceeded to Mr. R. L. Borden's house, where further consideration was given to the matter of the make-up of the Conservative cabinet.

No matter what the decision may be in regard to the personnel of the new ministry, a definite announcement will naturally not be made until Mr. R. L. Borden has been formally called upon by His Excellency Earl Grey to form a Government.

Hon. Mr. Foy said he was not here to take part in any conference with Mr. Borden as regards the new Dominion cabinet, but on other business of which he could not speak at present.

Rumor, however, has it that Hon. Mr. Foy's advice will not be overlooked in the conferences that are being held. It was noticed that when Sir James left the hotel and drove off in a hack in the direction of Mr. Borden's residence Hon. Mr. Foy accompanied him and no one else.

"Bob" Rogers Arrives.

Hon. Robert Rogers arrived in Ottawa to-day (Sunday), coming in response to a telegram from Mr. Borden, and will give his advice and assistance in organizing the new government. He will be offered a portfolio in the new cabinet, and when he returns to Winnipeg it will be as a full-fledged Dominion minister. It is rumored now that the constituency which will be opened for him will be MacDonald instead of Winnipeg. W. D. Staples has offered to retire and will be given one of the new government appointments.

THE REASON WHY THE LIBERAL PARTY WAS BEATEN

The Haney Case Had a Great Deal to Do with The Vote in Ontario

In discussing the result of the elections and the causes which led to the overthrow of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, our esteemed contemporary the Orange Sentinel says that if there was any way of discovering how many votes were lost to Laurier through the discussion of the Haney case, it would supply one of the most interesting sidelights of the whole campaign. In every city, town and hamlet from Halifax to Victoria the mother's pathetic letter to her daughter was read and reread by the wives and mothers of Canada. Their hearts burned within them as they read what she had to say of Father Burke. Is it any wonder that this letter should arouse resentment against Rome, whose agent was responsible for so much distress. Here is her letter:

"Reports have reached me from "time to time of the reason given "which caused me to leave my home "in December. I think it would be "wise to have those know who are "interested that my sole reason was "the continued presence in my home "of Father Burke, you know dear, "how our lives have altered since his "coming, nine months ago. His curiosity of things not concerning him, "his rudeness, both to me and to "your children, his sly insinuations "about my friends, and things we "held sacred, his complete disregard "for our privacy and comfort generally, may all have come from ignorance rather than intent, but have "been none the less hard to bear. I "begged many times that he might "make his home elsewhere, saying I "was willing that he might visit our "home at any time so long as he did "not make his home there. And my "wish, as you know, was ignored.

"Finally, when it came to a choice "whether he or I remain, I was told "I could go, that Father Burke "would remain! And how soon you "and —— followed me!

"I alone am responsible for my action. It was never suggested, nor "did it occur to me, to leave my "home until it was made impossible "for me to stay there with so objectionable a tenant."

Written merely as a defence from the calumnies of a priest, this was a most effective piece of campaign literature against the Laurier Government. Taken along with the Hebert case, and a hundred other cases which have not received publicity, there grew up a settled conviction in the minds of Ontario citizens—Liberals and Conservatives—that the time had come to put an end to Roman Catholic rule in this Dominion.

FIVE HUNDRED LIVES WERE LOST WHEN DAM GAVE WAY

Buffalo, N. Y., Sept. 30.—The Emporium Lumber Company's office in this city received a long distance phone message late this afternoon stating that between 300 and 500 persons are reported to have lost their lives at Austin, Pa., this afternoon, when a huge dam gave way.

The city was inundated and no one had an opportunity to get to places of safety in other parts of the surrounding territory. It is said the debris has taken fire and the catastrophe may be even worse than now reported.

The despatch to the lumber company came from saw mills, seven miles from Austin. The manager of the mill stated that no accurate estimate of the loss of life was possible, but that all reports indicated it would be appalling. He asked what action he should take and was instructed by the local officials to close down his plant and go with his men to the rescue of the victims.

RESULT OF THE CHURCH LEAGUE FOOTBALL GAMES

The result of the games played on Saturday afternoon show wins for "All Saints" and "St. James." The first named club played Park Street on Park Street grounds, and a good game was witnessed. Both teams were out to win. Park Street showed good form and proved themselves a good bunch, but the Saints were a faster team and displayed splendid combination. The Saints scored a goal in the first half and again towards close of play. Result — All Saints 2, Park Street 0. Referee, Mr. Paget.

KNOX VS. ST JAMES.

The Jimmies scored their first win this season by defeating Knox Church The game was very even all through, both teams shaping up well, and St. James had their work cut out to win Result—St. James 1, Knox Church 0. Referee, Mr. Parkins.

Much keener interest is displayed by all the League teams since the news of Mr. Burnham's generous gift has been known. All teams are anxious to win the Burnham Trophy, and speculation is rife as to which club will be the lucky winners. On all sides are heard expressions of pleasure that the new member has shown such a practical interest in sport and in the Church Football League all vote him a good fellow and a thorough sportsman.

STRATHCONA YOUNG AT 91

Ottawa, Sept. 30.—A little rosy-cheeked old gentleman, with beetling white eyebrows, and a beaming smile stepped lightly off the private car Matapedia, when the 1.15 Montreal train got in this afternoon, and chuckled gleefully at the sight of Sir Sanford Fleming his old-time friend.

The little old gentleman was Lord Strathcona, who had come to spend the whole of two hours and forty-five minutes in the capital in one of his characteristic rushes.

A MISTAKE SOMEWHERE.

They say that Lord Strathcona is 91 years old, but somebody must be wrong somewhere. Lord Strathcona isn't really more than 35 or 40. He had been traveling for the last ten days at a dizzy clip and wound up with a swing round Ottawa that came near to fracturing the speed regulations in several places.

The Premier-elect was on the platform to greet him, as were Sir William Mackenzie and several other gentlemen. The ex-High Commissioner for Canada, for he confirmed the story of his resignation in Montreal last night, had a hearty hand-grip and a broad smile for everybody. His intention was to go at once to the house owned by the Bank of Montreal on O'Connor street, but he suddenly changed his mind, and flew up to the East Block for a few moments' chat with Sir Wilfrid.

The two came blithely down the steps, jumped into the motor, and went careering off to Government House for a few moments. Back to town again they came after a short stay, and then Lord Strathcona shot off at a merry clip to call on Mr. Borden on Wurtemburg street. His various gyrations were too much for the corps of newspaper men who were trying to see him and who got dizzy trying to follow his flying motor around town. He finally got back to the station just in time to board his private car before the Montreal train pulled out.

THE BOMBARDMENT BEGUN

(Special to The Times)

Tripoli, Sept. 30.—The Italian squadron opened fire upon the forts at 10.30 o'clock.

TROOPS ASSISTING ATTACK
(Special to The Times)

Paris, Sept. 30.—A news agency dispatch received here to-night confirms the earlier rumor that the bombardment of the city of Tripoli has begun. Landing parties of Italian troops are reported to be operating in conjunction with the fleet and are making a simultaneous land attack, according to the dispatch.

WILL FIGHT AT TRIPOLI.
(Special to The Times)

Paris, Sept. 30.—A special received here to-night from Constantinople states that Mahmoud Schefket Pasha has wired the commander of the Turkish garrison at Tripoli that he must hold his position at any hazard and that a surrender will mean a court martial.

WILL PROTECT FOREIGNERS.
(Special to The Times)

Rome, Sept. 30.—In the event of the bombardment of Tripoli Italian and other foreigners including newspaper correspondents will be taken on board the vessels of the Italian fleet.

BRITAIN'S PLACE IN WAR BETWEEN HER TWO FRIENDS

ENGLAND HAS CLOSE RELATIONS WITH ITALY, AND HAS BEEN FINANCIER OF TURKEY.

Germany In Tight Fix—Ally of Italy and Has Large Investments in Ottoman Empire.

With War declared between Italy and Turkey, what is the position of England? The friendship between England and Italy is traditional and strong, and has not declined greatly since the days of Gladstone and Garibaldi. The Italian navy, now of importance, is understood to have been largely financed by English money. On the other hand England has been a godfather to the "Sick man of Europe," and only English influence has prevented the breaking up of the Ottoman Empire long before this. However, in recent years there has been some tendency on the part of Turkey to pin her faith to German rather than English financiers. But Germany can hardly support Turkey in the present juncture, because Germany and Italy, with Austria, constitute the Triple Alliance. There is, therefore, a fine snarl of conflicting interests to unravel.

It is probable that Britain has been using her influence to hold Italy back from acts of aggression. At the same time it is evident that England has not gone to the point of saying that an act of aggression on Italy's part would be regarded as an unfriendly act, and that England would continue to support the Ottoman Empire. Had she done so, it is not likely that Italy would have taken any action.

Italy gives as her reason for aggression the fact that Tripoli, lying a few miles from the Italian coast, is under Turkish government in such a state of disorder that it is a constant source of danger to her.

The Italians have an honorable record in battle, though they have not shown themselves by any means to be invincible. The Turks are regarded as slothful and indolent, but as Christian nations have learned time without number, the Mohammedan fights like a fiend.

On land the Turkish army is larger and probably stronger than the Italian. But this looks like a war on sea, and in a straight fight with Turkey Italy should win handily. Italy's fleet is fairly large and efficient. Turkey's is understood to be a joke.

ITALIAN TROOPS HAVE LANDED WEST OF TRIPOLI

(Special to The Times)

Tripoli, Sept. 30.—9 a. m.—There have been no hostilities here up to the present. The Turks and the Italians are in a waiting attitude, but reports in native circles have it that Italian troops have landed to the westward of Tripoli.

ADDING TO THE FLEET.
(Special to The Times)

Spezia, Italy, Sept. 30.—The Italian dreadnought San Marco, accompanied by three torpedo boat destroyers sailed to-day to join the fleet before Tripoli. The vessels were given an enthusiastic send-off by enormous crowds that gathered on shore, waving flags and shouting: "Long live the war."

TURKS ARE PREPARING FOR DESPERATE FIGHT

WOULD WELCOME GENERAL EUROPEAN WAR RATHER THAN SUBMIT TAMELY TO LOSS OF TERRITORY

EMPIRE IS THREATENED

Italy Has Carried Out Operations in Aggressive Manner, and Is Landing Troops at Tripoli and Blockading East and West Coasts of Turkey.

London, Sept. 30.—Turkey made it clear to all Europe to-day that it will submit to no more losses of its territory without a desperate fight.

European statesmen, always fearful that a war anywhere in the old world once started, will spread beyond control, hoped when Italy declared war yesterday, that Turkey would yield. The Turks ignored all such suggestions. In fact, a general European war seems what they want. They may lose Tripoli, indeed, but they propose to make up the loss by territorial acquisition somewhere else.

The Ottoman Government also evidently feels that its back is definitely against the wall. It lost two provinces to Austria recently. Italy is now attempting to seize another. Greece is after Crete. Russia's Black Sea fleet is anchored off Trebizond in readiness to occupy the north-east corner of the Ottoman Empire's Asiatic possessions. Bulgaria is threatening the Province of Macedonia. Montenegro is eyeing northern Albania enviously.

Ready to Fight Europe.

Patriotic Turks are convinced that the partition of their entire country is imminent, and, as the Committee of Union and Progress expressed it, in a proclamation issued to-day, 'the Ottoman nation prefers death to dishonor," and if it must perish, proposes to go down in a war in which all Europe is involved.

Now that European diplomats see this, the most furious efforts are being made to settle the Turko-Italian trouble before it goes farther. London, Paris, Berlin, Vienna, and St. Petersburg are in constant communication, and there is high authority for the statement that an agreement on some plan to "keep the lid on in the Balkans" is likely to be reached almost at any moment.

Italians Aggressive.

In the meantime Italy is taking the aggressive with the utmost energy. Following the exchange of a few shots between the Italian ships off Tripoli and the Turkish batteries ashore, the Italians resumed to-day their landing begun last night. The troops are not going ashore at the city of Tripoli, where they might be effectively resisted, but at either side of the town, whence they have already started to march upon the antiquated fortifications.

Movements in Turkey.

A more or less effective blockade has been established by the Italians of the western Turkish coast, and, following the bombardment of the town of Prevassa, a landing is reported at this point. War Minister Chefket Pasha is hastening troops to all threatened coast points, however, and though he cannot raise the blockade, will certainly put a speedy end to landings on Turkish soil.

As a counter-move to the Italian attack, Turkish troops are occupying the Greek Province of Thessaly and skirmishing has already occurred between the Turks and Greeks there.

London, Sept. 30.—With two big Italian cruisers following closely off their port quarter, just out of range, a Turkish fleet of warships is making for the Dardanelles, and will arrive there early Sunday morning. A despatch to The Times confirms this information through British Admiralty advices.

London, Sept. 30.—The Daily Mail's special courier to the frontier sends the following despatch from there. The Italian Governmental censorship being so severe that it is impossible to telegraph freely from there.

There is war between Italy and Turkey. The Italian fleet has established a complete blockade of the Trinolitan coast and hostilities have begun.

CANNIBALS KILL AND EAT WHOLE FAMILY OF WHITES

SOUTH SEA ISLANDS THE SCENE OF SEVERAL AWFUL TRAGEDIES OF LATE.

Whole Family Was Killed in New Caledonia—Two Frenchmen Were Eaten in the New Hebrides.

Sydney, N.S.W., Sept. 30.—News has reached Sydney of the murder of several Europeans in the South Sea Islands, some of the victims being cooked and eaten by the murderers.

The Rev. Frederick Daniells, a Queensland missionary, was killed in the Solomon Islands. He was conducting a Sunday service in the open air, when suddenly a shot was fired by a native who was concealed in the scrub. The bullet struck the missionary in the breast. He fell backwards, murmured "Lord, save me," and then died.

It is not supposed that Mr. Daniells was shot because he was a missionary. "The natives," says an officer of the mission, "take a pride in getting scalps, and the murder of a white man is a special glory. Mr. Daniells is the first white missionary to be killed in the Solomon Islands."

From New Caledonia comes an account of the butchering of a family of three—father, mother, and child. The name of the victims was Devaux. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the crime. The bodies had been trated with great brutality.

The French warship Kersaint has brought news of an outrage at Maewo, one of the northern islands of the New Hebrides group, two French residents, named Gerolino and Baleau, having been killed by natives and afterwards eaten.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. 40,000 MEN OUT ON STRIKE

Chicago, Sept. 30.—Reports received here this afternoon indicate that about 40,000 men, members of the Harriman lines and the Illinois Central, have obeyed the order to strike, in an effort to enforce recognition of the federation by the railroad heads.

The strike, labor men declare, eventually will spread all over America, unless the federation of unions is recognized.

THE CRETANS TO STRIKE

Chiasso, Switzerland, Sept. 30.—The Cretans notified their representatives in Italy to-day that they did not intend to permit the opportunity afforded by the Tripoli affair to pass without obtaining their long-desired annexation to Greece.

Chiasso, Switzerland, Sept. 30.—A wireless message received in Italy from Rear-Admiral Aubrey, in command at Tripoli, expresses the hope that the occupation of the Tripoli coast will be practically accomplished to-night. THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST :

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations ; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers' are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the peoperty, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE :

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

CHARACTER IN HAIR.

Red Haired People Considered Smart

Men with fine, light hair are smart, conceited, and, if they do not marry until late in life, are apt to grow cross and selfish. If a girl wishes to select a husband, she should learn to read his disposition by his hair. Men with fine brown hair, light or dark, make the best husbands; they are quick, thoughtful, and less apt to be selfish than the very light-haired or very dark-haired brothers. Those whose hair turns gray prematurely are nearly always good fellows, are a little nervous, but brainy, sympathetic, and very honorable. A prematurely gray-haired person is generally very scrupulous in money matters and in friendships, and very tolerant of one's shortcomings. Nearly all red-haired persons are smart, whether the hair is coarse or fine, but the finer the hair the finer the smartness. Pale, blond-haired women, of the colorless, ashen kind, are impulsive, loving, and ficklet; not to be depended upon, but usually good company while they like you. Women with very dark brown hair are loyal, sympathetic, and usually of tireless patience where they love; they are full of sentiment, emotional, enjoy keenly and suffer in like proportion, are easily touched by the woes of others, and are to be trusted. Women with fine black hair, touched with brown, are high-strung, loyal, and brainy. Those with very black hair, if it is coarse, are usually mean and suspicious. All women with very dark hair are quick tempered, and where dark eyes and dark complexions go with the dark hair, they have strong feeling. The dark-haired women are more faithful than the light-haired, and if finely organized, just bubble over with sentiment.

WORKING TO KEEP YOUNG

When a Busy Man Retires He Soon Leaves This Old Earth.

Friends of J. P. Morgan who keep in close touch with him assert that although he goes to Europe primarily for rest he works harder during his absence than the average man works when at his desk. Between his visits to art galleries and connoisseurs, to kings and other rulers, he contrives to attend to a vast amount of business. The cables between the house at the corner of Wall and Broad streets and the foreign offices of Morgan & Company are kept busy every day. Not only so, but Mr. Morgan always has a secretary along with him to assist in the transaction of his huge affairs, a position that is by no means a sinecure.

Mr. Morgan, it is said, has no intention of retiring completely from active business life. In this connection it may be interesting to narrate a conversation that took place some time ago. A middle aged friend of Mr. Morgan said to him: "Why don't you retire, Mr. Morgan? You have already done a big life's work."

"Umph, when did your father retire?" came the quick reply.

"In——"

"And when did he die?"

"Oh, he died about a year later."

"Just so; if he had continued in business he would have been alive still," was the rejoinder that closed the conversation. This is Mr. Morgan's theory.

And there are others who share the old belief that a man is only as old as he feels.

Her Church Testimony

If brevity is the soul of wit, one of the wittiest speeches on record was made by a woman. Mrs. Briggs lived in the northern part of Indiana, a long distance from any village. Hearing that Rev. Mr. Goodwin was to preach in a township some twenty miles distant, she resolved to be present, and as no other way offered, she walked the twenty miles.

The pastor heard of this, and was so pleased at the appreciation which it showed that at the close of the sermon he mentioned the fact to the congregation and called upon Mrs. Briggs to tell them how she came.

Rising slowly, she looked over the audience with great solemnity and said:

"I hoofed it."

Then she sat down again.

Turn About is Fair Play

A young married woman recently had a novel experience when she engaged her first Chinese cook.

"What's your name?" she asked when the preliminaries had been settled.

"My name Hong Long Loo," said the Celestial with much gravity.

"And I am Mrs. Harrington Richard Buckingham," said his new employer. "I am afraid I shall never be able to remember your name — it's so long. I shall call you John."

"All light," returned the Chinese with a suspicion of a smile. "Your namee too long too, I callee you Charley."

His Money's Worth.

"Sixtane shillins a da' did they charrge me for my room at the hotel in Lunnon. Mon, mon, ye dinna supnantly, on his return to Croburgh Burghs from a sight-seeing expedition.

"Ou, aye, it wasna cheap," agreed his father; "but ye must 'a' had a gey fine time seein' the sichts.'

"Seein' the sichts!" roared Sandy. "I didna see a sicht a' the time I was in Lnunon. Mon, mon, ye dinna suppose I was going to be stuck that much for a room, an' then no get the proper use o't!"

The Stumper Stumped

A political speaker, while making a speech paused in the midst of it and exclaimed, "Now, gentlemen, what do you think?"

A man rose in the assembly, and with one eye partially closed, modestly, with a strong Scotch brogue, replied, "I think, sir, I do, indeed, sir — I think if you and I were to stump the country together we would tell more lies than any other two men in the country, sir, and I'd not say a word myself during the whole time, sir!"

IT WAS A SURPRISE

"We have the surprise beautifully planned," said young Mrs. Westerleigh to the guests, "and Frank doesn't suspect a thing. I think he has even forgotten that to-day's his birthday. He will get home from the office at about seven o'clock. Then he always goes upstairs to take off his coat and put on his smoking jacket for the evening. When he is upstairs I will call out suddenly, 'Oh, Frank, come downstairs — be quick! The gas is escaping.' Then he will rush down here and find the crowd of friends waiting for him."

It went exactly as planned. Westerleigh came home at the regular hour and went directly upstairs. The hidden guests held their breath while Mrs. Westerleigh called out excitedly, "Oh, Frank, come down quick. The gas is escaping in the parlor."

Every light had been turned out, and the parlor was in perfect darkness. There was a rapid rush of feet down the stairway, then a voice said, "I don't smell any gas."

"Better light the jet," Mrs. Westerleigh suggested tremulously. "Here's a match."

The match was struck, and suddenly the room was flooded with light. Everybody screamed. The hostess fainted. For there in the center of the room stood Westerleigh, attired only in a natty union suit, with a fresh pair of trousers carried over his arm.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

DEATH OF FENIAN RECALLS OUTRAGE.

Joe Casey, Center of a Gun Powder Plot, Passes Away in Paris.

Irishmen all over the world have heard of the Clerkenwell explosion that formed the climax of the Fenian outrages of 1867 in London. The story is recalled by the death in Paris of Joe Casey, who was a star actor in the terrible drama.

He and a fellow-Fenian named Burke were locked up in Clerkenwell prison, but the Fenians determined to liberate them. A barrel of gunpowder was placed against the wall of the jail by Michael Barrett, aided by Casey's two brothers, Pat and Andrew.

They planned to blow a hole in the wall at the time the prisoners were exercising and then help the pair to escape in the confusion. But the authorities smelled trouble and shifted the exercise to an inner yard.

Bang went the powder just before 4 in the afternoon, killing six bystanders outright and fatally injuring 11 others, while no less than 102 lost eyes or limbs. It cost $100,000 to repair the surrounding property.

A few weeks later Michael Barrett was denounced by another prisoner named Mullany, arrested and hanged. The Caseys got clear away to France under the name of Potter. Joe Casey and Burke were acquitted at their trial, and Joe joined his brothers in the French capital. They all fought for France in the seige of Paris in 1870 and Joe became almost as Parisian as a Frenchman.

NEW TERRITORY OPENED UP

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a volume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a muzzle velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another artoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Strawberry Shortcake

Strawberry pie made like other berry pies is delicious. Mix and sift twice, two cups flour, four teaspoons baking-powder and one-half teaspoon salt. Work in one-fourth cup butter, using the tips of the fingers. Then add gradually three-fourths cup milk. Toss on a floured board and divide into two parts. Pat, roll out, and bake twelve minutes in a hot oven in buttered tins. Split and spread cut surfaces with butter. Sprinkle washed and hulled strawberries with sugar, place on back of range until warmed, crush slightly, and put between and on top of shortcakes. Cover with whipped cream, sweetened and flavored with vanilla, and garnish with a few choice strawberries that have been reserved for the purpose.

New Boarder—I take it within.

JOHN STANFIELD

Mr. JOHN STANFIELD

That the duties of a party whip are no sinecure will be admitted by anyone who has had opportunity of looking at the whip's work from the inside. The position demands a man of unceasing energy, great tact and unusual organizing ability. Such a man the Conservative party of Canada were lucky to find in the person of Mr. John Stanfield, member of parliament for the Colchester division of Nova Scotia.

Mr. Stanfield was appointed whip to the party on its re-organization. He was first elected for Colchester in 1907, winning a spectacular bye-election and was re-elected at the general election in the following year. Mr. Stanfield has extensive business interests in Nova Scotia, being president of Stanfield's Limited, which now operates the plant formerly known as the Truro Knitting Mills Company. He is forty-three years of age having been born in 1868.

Amount of Rest Workers Need.

Persons who may be unwilling to accept the Sabbath as a day of rest prescribed by the Infinite may heed the observations recently made in behalf of the German Army. Germans as a people, long have been regarded as a people open to convincing scientific observations and deductions. In drilling, marching and manoeuvring its troops the German Government has discovered that in long marches especially, no commissary will supply to troops the waste of carbohydrates without rest intervals. In this connection army experts more than double the period in the Scriptural injunctions and have decided that after three days marching the marchers should have a full days rest for recuperation. To keep an army column longer in heavy marching order is to weaken the physical forces of the soldier.

"What comes after a million, pa?" asked the boy who was just learning to count.

DISCOVERING AFFECTING CLAY ROADS

By Using Pottery Methods a Smooth and Dustless Road Can Be Made.

A roadmaking discovery, which, if the claims made for it can be substantiated, is of national importance, has been made by an Ontario man, who for some time has been residing in the west. The discovery has been submitted to the Dominion Department of Agriculture. Like many other important inventions, it is a by-product of another. The inventor was interested in the pottery trade, and produced and patented a compound intended to temper clay for the manufacture of brick, tile, and other products. Its effect is to overcome the alkali, which to a greater or less extent is present in all clays. As alkali is responsible for cracking in drying and checking and melting in firing, a saving of waste is made, and firing may be proceeded with more rapidly when the danger of melting is eliminated.

When he got this length the potter began to experiment on the effect of the treatment of clay roads. After experimenting he asserts that a relatively inexpensive treatment of a clay road would transform such a road into a smooth, noiseless, and dustless one that would not absorb moisture and would therefore give forth no mud. The effect of the compound is to close the pores, and one treatment would last for years.

Uncovering an Ancient City

One of the most remarkable discoveries in connection with exploratory work on the sites of ancient cities is reported from Africa where the ancient Ethiopian capital Meroe has been partially uncovered. The first modern knowledge of these ruins was gained in 1772, but it is only within the last year that real exploratory work has been carried on. Great temples, royal palaces, and public buildings have been restored to view and the value of the gold recovered alone is said to be almost equal to the cost of the expedition. Tombs were found in the city of an unknown type. These were securely cemented down and for a long time they baffled the excavators. At last a plan was devised for opening the tombs and thousands of vases were brought to light, as many as thirty or forty being found in a single chamber. Some of these were of thin pottery decorated with paintings in colors. Tombs of soldiers were found to contain weapons of iron, and in a few cases the frame of a decayed wooden bed could be traced. In all cases the vases and dishes seemed to have contained drink and food when first placed in position.

A HOME MADE ELECTRIC SIGN

One ingenious druggist uses some very effective electric signs of his own making.

He first secured some black, opaque paper. On this he drew the letters he wished to appear on the sign — then cut them out with a sharp knife. On the back of the cut-out letters he pasted colored transparent paper. Next he secured some heavy white glazed cardboard, cut it into stripe and pasted it around the edge of the back paper, thus making a frame for it. This was then hung up in the shop and an electric light placed behind it.

The cut out portion was thus prominently displayed in letters of fire, being readable at a considerable distance. Several of these signs with the display letters of each in different colors make a very effective display and rivet the customer's attention.

A sign of this nature does the work of a more expensive one and can be made at small cost.

Iron Ore Resources of the World

The report of the International Geological Congres on iron ore gives the total amount of the actual known reserve of the world as 22,048,000,000 tons, of which 12,032,000,000 is in Europe, 9,855,000,000 in America, 260,000,000 in Asia, 136,000,000 in Australia, and 125,000,000 in Africa. Of the 22,408,000,000 tons of iron ore, the proportion of iron is 10,192,000,000 tons, of which 5,154,000,000, or more than half, is available from the 9,955,000,000 tons of iron ore in America.

And now there is an "aerial post card." It is to be dropped from an aeroplane, and bears a printed request that the person finding it on the ground mail it at the nearest post-office.

Disappearance of the Sailing Ship

Another of the few windjammers still plying around the Horn was taken off the other day to be converted into a barge, and when the Panama canal is opened this trade will fall almost entirely to steamships. Just now sail power is steadily losing ground, with no prospect of regaining it till the gradual exhaustion of cheap fuel makes wind a more economical force than carbon. At present the sailing ships only keep what it is not worth while for steamships to take, but there are enough such odds and ends to keep the seas dotted with sails for a long time to come.

Burmese Ingenuity

Eastern ingenuity is often diverted into curious directions. The Burmese use a junk on the Irrawaddy, so rigged and with sails so secured that it can run only before the wind. It is particularly adapted to local conditions. As roads were till comparatively recent times, unknown in Burma, river navigation was of particular importance as a means of communication. Unusually there is considerable difficulty in ascending a river. This is not so on the Irrawaddy, for the winds blow almost constantly dead against the current.

AN ORIENTAL REBUKE

Must Have a Waterfall to Wash Out a Graft Proposal.

Inscriptions upon Oriental ware, vases, jars, fans, and textiles are often examined with an amused but baffled curiosity. What can they mean? It is certain that they mean something. Even on the cheap halfpenny fans there are curious and grotesque faces which could not have been painted for their beauty. Only the initiated can read their story, and even among the Japanese themselves probably these specimens of pictorial rebus require classical knowledge for their interpretation. History and fable and myth must be understood and a Japanese who can understand must be equal in imagination to a commentator of Shakspeare. A recent traveller in Japan gives the story of one of these riddles. It is as good as any Egyptian hieroglyph. A Japanese of historic renown is represented as washing his ear in a water-fall. No basin would answer and no placid stream suffice. He must have the full force of a cataract to cleanse the ear into which an improper proposal had been spoken. At a pool below the fall a cow is drinking, but her owner, standing near her, glowers with anger at the ear-washer who is contaminating the stream. If individually people took to cleansing their ears from scandal and other unpleasant inpourings, no "waterworks" would suffice. Lady Macbeth's query would be in order—"Will all great Neptune's ocean do it?"

ORIGINALITY IN THE INDIVIDUAL

Competition Too Keen for Ordinary Business Methods.

Competition gets keener every year, and this means that the difficulty of the customer in selecting a firm to do business with becomes proportionately greater. His custom in the end must eventually go to the house which, by originality and difference from its competitors, simplifies this selection for him. The rapid and brilliant success of many of our great businesses to-day may all be attributed to this originality as the first cause.

If this is true with regard to a business it is equally so with regard to the individual. The man who differs from his fellows is the man who is noticed and, if his originality is backed by other good qualities, cannot but come to the front. Merit usually tells, of course, but my point is that merit is best recognised when it is advertised, as it were, by originality.

CARNEGIE ON GOLF

The Laird of Skibo Castle Trys Writing.

Andrew Carnegie says in his latest essay on "Dr. Golf": "I notice a recent estimate of the money already expended in greens and club houses in the United States is fifteen million dollars. The charm of golf — who can analyze and decide in what it really consists? We are under the sky, worshippers of the 'God of the Open Air.' Every breath seems to drive way weakness and disease. A cousin of mine made his first trial one morning on Skibo links, and, as is often the case when taking it all easily and not trying hard, he succeeded wonderfully. He could hardly wait for the morning game. We started and he foozled everything, and at last I heard exclamations, and called out to him: "What "nation," Morrison?' He replied apologetically: 'I know, I know, I felt it, but I didn't think I said it.' We have a celebrated professor who was lost from sight for a time. His caddie at last came in sight, and being asked, 'Where's the professor?' called out 'He's down among the whins, talkin' to his sel'.' A deacon was reported as having resigned from his office in the kirk. Being asked why he did so by his minister, he explained that he had either to resign or quit playing golf, and he knew he couldn't do that."

A Rice Pudding Two Centuries Ago.

The thrifty housewife would be considerably put about nowadays were she called upon to use the following recipe for a rice pudding, culled from a manuscript cook-book of the 17th century:—Take a quarter of a pound of rice, and boil it in a quart of milk till it be very tender, then put it into a cullender, and let all the milk drain from it, then beat it in a mortar very well, then grate in a quarter of a pound of Naples biscuits, and a pint of cream and six eggs, one nutmeg grated, a little beaten cinnamon, two spoonfuls of sack, a little rosewater, a little salt, and as much sugar as will season it to your taste, then take a cloth which is dipped in boiling water, and butter it very well, and strew it all over with flour, and tie it up close, and boil it one hour, then make sauce for it, rosewater, butter and sugar, and butter melted thick, pour it upon the pudding, scrape on sugar and strew on a little beaten cinnamon, and serve it up to the table.

If the modern epicure is not satisfied with the above, our ancient gastronomer gives further instructions as follows:—"If you design to bake this pudding, then put in half a pound of currants, and half as many raisins and plums, and three-quarters of a pound of beef suet, shred fine, and so bake it; one hour will bake it. The oven must not be too hot." Truly the dishes of other days would not be suited to the hurried and harried days of quick lunch.

The Wrong List.

One of Lady Regy's recollections is of a dinner party at which she had for her neighbour Gladstone, in happiest mood. He told her of his Eton experiences and tales of terrible little Dr. Keate. The latter always had the names of those doomed to be flogged written down on a narrow slip of paper.

One day, picking up such a list, he called up for flogging the boys whose names were inscribed upon it. Upon such occasions the delinquents were not permitted to offer explanations, so boy after boy was castigated, and returned sore and savage to his seat. Not until the operation was complete did he learn that, instead of the flogging list, he had picked up the slip on which were the names of the boys about to be confirmed.

The Date is Fixed.

And now it is 1915 which is set for the millennium. Religious enthusiasts have been guessing at the end of the world for years, but date after date has passed, and the world still wags on. Each one of these has had a system of reckoning as certain — and as fallible — as the various systems with which it has been proposed to break the bank at Monte Carlo. The only effect of their predictions has been to upset nervous temperaments. There is nothing surer than that "no man knoweth the day nor the hour."

A Matter of Training.

The disappointed person carps at everything and makes all those in her vicinity feel ill at ease; if anything can be done to cure her, it should be done in the interest of humanity. The modern rush and worry render it more easy for anyone to lapse into that condition, for our nerves are effected to an extent which our grandmothers neither experienced nor anticipated. The way out of the trouble is a matter of training and, as the child is the mother of the woman, it is well to commence with the little one.

The Making of a Nation

A nation is made powerful, and to be honored in the world not so much by the number of its people as by the ability and character of that people; and the ability and character of that people depend in a great measure upon the economy of the several families, which, taken together, make up the nation. There never yet was and never will be a nation permanently great, consisting for the great part of wretched miserable families

Another Reason.

Here's a new reason for the abolition of Hansard. An English financial schemer excuses his failure because he was "influenced regarding the value of the Canadian railways by reading reports of the Dominion Parliament." What sins these M.P.'s do have to answer for to be sure!

Japan's Budget

The main features of Japan's Budget, which balances at $29,000,000 yen $(264,500,000), are the reduction and reform of taxes, the increase of the salaries of Government officials, economy in administrative expenses, and the increase of the sinking fund.

CATARRH

Remember the best Catarrh medicine that money can buy is Catarrhozone; it cures quickly and permanently when all others fail.

The remedy doesn't exist that will cure Catarrh as quickly as Catarrhozone. It relieves the most stubborn cases in a short time, and drives the disease so thoroughly from the system that it never returns.

Druggists boldly recommend Catarrhozone in preference to other remedies, because they know it is the best, and every progressive doctor prescribes it for the same good reason.

Catarrhozone is a rational, common-sense treatment that finds favor with everybody. It cures by the inhalation of medicated air, which comes into contact with the mucous surface of all the breathing organs. It gets at the source of the trouble, kills the germs and drives every vestige of catarrh right out of the system.

It doesn't matter how deep-seated or chronic your case may be, Catarrhozone can cure it. Even though a thousand other remedies have failed, don't give up hope till you have used Catarrhozone. It has cured other cases probably worse than yours, and will cure yours if it gets a chance.

Mr. Dutcher Law, a prominent citizen of Italy Cross, N. S., says: "I experimented with hundreds of catarrh remedies and found the majority to be worthless, dismal failures. Catarrhozone was the first to give lasting relief; it cured me and I am with pleasure testifying to its merits as a cure for Catarrh of the nose and throat.

(Signed) DUTCHER LAW.

You are sure to derive the most pleasant results from Catarrhozone. It has been tested many times and never found wanting. Every druggist in Canada sells it. Complete two months' treatment, guaranteed to cure costs $1, or a trial size 25c. By mail from the Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

DRESS REFORM FOR MEN

A New German Scare.

The latest German scare takes the form of an attempt to reform men's clothing. A society organized in Berlin aims at abolishing trousers, substituting knicker-bockers, while coat and waistcoat are to give way to a sort of loose blouse hanging well down to the knees. Linen of all sorts is to be discarded. There seems to be a lack of German thoroughness in these proposals. Why should the loose blouse come to the knees, if the knickerbockers are to be worn? Or why the knickerbockers, if the upper garment is to come to the knees? What is really needed is a blanket, which can be worn short or long, and moulded into any form that may suit the taste of the wearer.

But reform in men's clothing is not likely to be revolutionary. Its progres is one of evolution, like that of the British constitution. Freedom broadens slowly down from precedent to precedent. The silk hat gives way to the fedora, the hard, unyielding straw to the easy Panama. The tightly buttoned coat with tails is worn only upon State occasions, as if to keep us in mind of the bondage of the past, and of the maxim that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty. There was a time when trousers clung to the skin one season, and the next flapped idly like sails on a listless sea. There was a time when a man who wanted easy clothing all the time was sternly informed that they were not worn that way this season, and meekly submitted to the decrees of fashion. But now the rebels have the upper hand. They boldly telephone to the tailor to make another suit of clothes "like the last."

We have thus achieved self-government in the sober British fashion. And in clothes, as in politics, order and freedom go hand-in-hand. The result of liberty is sobriety. The exuberance of youth will occasionally find expression in socks of orange and green, while middle age will indulge in a red waistcoat. But these are merely innocent saturnalia, giving vent to that strain of wildness which lingers in all of us.

HE WAS KEPT WAITING

Senator John Sharp Williams was once made executor of a wealthy man's estate, all of which had been left to his only son. The father had kept this young man, who was just turned 21, in pretty close leash during his youth, and it was with eyes bulging with expectancy of a good-far-flung fling that the son called on the executor a few days after the funeral to learn when he was coming into his kingdom. Senator Williams relates: "I haven't qualified as executor yet, Bob," I told him, "but come around in a week or so and you can get what you want." Promptly on the dot Bob turned up. "The period of advertising for claims against the estate will not expire for a fortnight yet," I told him this time, "so I cannot legally pay you anything until then. Drop in in a couple of weeks and I'll fix you out." Bob swallowed his disappointment and took his departure. At the end of a fortnight he promptly appeared again. "Sorry to disappoint you a third time, Bob," I said, "but there have been some purely formal claims filed against the estate that can not be disposed of until next month's term of court. If you'll call after that you can get all the cash you want, but I really don't see my way clear to pay out anything until these matters are disposed of. Come back in a month and it will be all right then." Bob moved slowly to the door. With his hand on the knob he turned to me. "Mr. Williams," he said, sadly, "do you know sometimes I'm right sorry the old man died!"

Actors Don't Grow Old!

An actress, at the recent luncheon in New York of the Actors' Church Alliance, said of dramatic criticism: "There is one part of dramatic criticism that strikes me as cruel. I refer to the criticism that reproaches an actor or actress with growing old. It is very hard to be reminded of one's age. One is conscious enough of that, dear knows, without being told about it in the papers. Such critics," she continued, "are almost as bad as Lord Lacland. Young Lord Lacland came over to New York and proposed to a rather elderly heiress. She refused him. 'I am sorry, Lord Lacland,' she said, 'but I can never be anything more to you than a—' 'Just my luck!' he interrupted, reaching for his hat and [illegible] by helping you. I will be frank. My motive was not purely altruistic Men's motives seldom are."

"You flatter me," I commented bitterly. "Considering that I have shown myself more or less weak-kneed every time I've got in a tight place, your remark about some one who would stick by you in a pinch savors of irony. hardly see how you could put absolute faith in me, when I have so little faith in myself. Besides, I do not know what your programme calls for. I don't seem to have the faculty of holding my own in a rough game; nor the right sort of nerve—if I have any. My instinct seems to be to give ground, until I'm cornered. I'd rather be at peace with the world. I don't like war of the personal sort."

"Nor does any man—any normal man," he responded soberly. "But there are times, as you have seen, when we cannot escape it. So far as your capacity for holding your own is concerned, let me be judge of that. I know men more or less well — by bitter experience. Under certain conditions I could probably guess what you would do better than yourself. You may be sure I wouldn't ask you to accept certain risks and hardships with me, if I thought a yellow streak tinged your make-up. So we will not argue along that line.

"What I need your help in is a legitimate enterprise; clean enough of itself — though I have acquired a dirty reputation in the way of it. I'll give you a few details. Four years ago chance sent me north to a Hudson's Bay post on the Saskatchewan. From there I drifted farther — to the Great Slave Lake country, almost. I've known more or less of the fur trade all my life. My father was in it. And so I was quick to see how the Hudson's Bay Company holds the North trade in the hollow of its hand. It was a revelation to me, Bob. Fortunes gravitate to their posts by the simplest process in the world. They barter a worthless muzzle-loading gun and a handful of powder and ball for a hundredfold its worth in pelts. From one year's end to another — yes, from generation to generation — the tribes have been kept in debt to the company. They make a scanty living out of the company, and the company builds colossal fortunes out of them. You and I would call it robbery. To the company it is 'trade.'

"Ever since the granting of its charter, close on two centuries ago, the company has lorded it over the North, barring out the free trader, guarding jealously against competition. Only the Northwest Fur Company ever held its own with the Hudson's Bay, and the two combined when the Northwest established itself. The others — lone traders, partnerships — the company fought and intimidated till they withdrew.

"Technically, it is a free country—has been since sixty-nine. But north of the Saskatchewan the company still holds forth in the ancient manner, making its own law, recognizing no higher authority than itself. It is a big country, the North; and the Canadian government has its hands full in the east and south. A white man takes his own risks north of latitude fifty-four.

"All this I knew very well. But, like many another purse-broken man, I wanted a fling at the trade. I saw that a man could get in touch with the tribes, give them fair exchange for their furs — give them treble the Hudson's Bay rate of barter — and still make a fortune. I needed the fortune, Bob; I am still on the trail of it. But I had too little capital to play a lone hand. So I hied me to St. Louis and broached the scheme to Montell. I have known him all my life. He also is an old hand in the trade. He had the capital I lacked."

Barreau stopped for a minute, digging at the earth with his heel. The fire had dwindled to a few coals. I could not see his face. But his voice had changed, a note of resentment had crept into it, when he began again.

"Montell jumped at the plan. Later I learned things that led me to believe he was near the end of his rope, financially, at the time. So my scheme was in the nature of the straw that drowning men are said to clutch at. I had a little money, and every dollar I could raise I put in. It was to be an equal partnership; my knowledge of the country and the conditions to offset his extra capital.

"The first year we made expenses, and a little over. But we were getting known among the Indian hunters, convincing them that we would treat them better than the Hudson's Bay. Secure in their established grip on the tribes, the company passed us up. The second year we made money. Then the company woke up, and fought us tooth and toe nail. Not openly, by force of arms; that is not their way. They fought us, nevertheless. There were reprisals. The brunt of it fell on me. They seemed to guess that, with my teeth drawn, their fight was won. So they carried the war systematically into the open country. Our jail-breaking last night took its inception in that struggle for and against a monopoly.

"This year, if things do not go awry we stand to clear more than a hundred thousand dollars. And it will be the last. No individual trader can break lances with the company on its own ground. They are lords of the North beyond gainsaying. At the best, we can but take a slice and leave the loaf to them. Next spring sees the last of our trading. This fall there will be fierce work to do, tramping here and there, issuing guns and powder and foodstuffs, bargaining with the hunters for the winter's take of pelts. A hundred lodges have promised to trade with us this season, and an Indian rarely breaks his word, once given in good faith. We will get others, in spite of the company runners. But we must be on the alert; we cannot sit in our posts and wait for these things to come about of themselves. And that brings me to the point.

"If I had only the Hudson's Bay Company to contend with, I would have little fear for the outcome. With them it is largely a question of strategy. If there is any violence, it will come from some sealot in their service, and we can hold our own against such. But Montell is an eel. He looms more threatening than the company. In these three years I have had no accounting with him. I have done the risky work, while he holed up at the post, or looked after the St. Louis end. I have more than once come near tripping him up in petty tricks. Secretly he hates me. At bottom he is an unprincipled freebooter. And, for all his groveling last night, he is a dangerous man. By one means and another, I know that he has made up his mind to leave me in the lurch once this winter's trade is turned. Without me he can do little in the way of getting furs. Otherwise, I would be cooling my heels in the MacLeod guardhouse yet. You may have guessed that he was the spirit which moved Blackie to pass in the knife and saw.

"But once full arrangements are made, and the pelts begin to come in with spring, why, then—I don't know what he will do, how he will engineer his plan to eliminate my interest in the profits. He has some card up his sleeve. Half of everything is mine, but I have nothing to show it. There is nothing between us but his word; and that, I have learned at last, is a thing he can twist to suit the occasion. He has begun shaping things to suit himself on this trip. He cut a bit of the ground from under my feet, back there in MacLeod. I'll pay him for that, though; and he knows it. The finishing touch will come this winter, or in the spring. He hates me, just as he hates any man whom he cannot lead by the nose; and he will move like the old fox he is. There's money in it — for him. And money and power are Simon Montell's twin gods.

"Between these cross fires, I will have my hands more than full. I can only be in one place at a time. There is not a man with the bull train, or among the few that remain in the North, but is under Montell's thumb. Most of them could not understand if I told them. The thing is too subtle for their simple, direct minds. For that reason, I sought for some one I could trust to keep a clear eye open, and his ears cocked; for whatever Montell does he will do by stealth. That evening we fell in together at the foot of the Sweet Grass, I was headed for the Sanders ranch, thinking to get Walt to come North with me. He would have enjoyed this sort of thing. You know how we fared that night. And you can see why, when the police raid put him beyond my helping, I turned to you. I had you in mind all the while we lay in the guardhouse, but I hesitated to drag you into it, until I learned of the robbery charged to you. Then I went back for you, judging that of the two evils you would choose the one I offered.

"That is the way of it, Bob," he concluded. "If you help me play the game this winter, you accomplish two things with tolerable certitude. You will be safe from the police and those Benton idiots; and you will get to St. Louis in the spring. Montell himself will see to that, when he learns who you are. He knew your father slightly, and he has all of a rank parvenu's snobbish adulation of wealth and family. So you are doubly safe. On the other hand, if you are minded to work out your own salvation, I will share with you what I have, set you in the right direction, and wish you good luck. Don't be hasty about deciding. Think the thing over."

But I had already made up my mind. How much the lure of a strange land and stirring things to be done had to do with my decision, I cannot say. How much, at the moment, George Barreau's personality dominated me, I cannot quite compute. Individual psychology has never been a study of mine; but I know that there is no course of reasoning, no mental action, no emotion, that has not its psychic factors. Whatever these were in my case, I lost sight of them. I think that what influenced me most was his way of putting it man to man, so to speak. Unconsciously that restored to me, in a measure, the self-respect I had nearly lost in those brutal days on the Moon, and the skulking and imprisonment that followed. Here was a man before whom I had seen other strong men cringe, asking me in a straightforward way for help. I had no wish to refuse; I felt a thrill at the opportunity. For the time I forgot that Montell's daughter had called him a thief and a murderer, and he had not denied. I took him at his face value, as he took me, and we shook hands on the bargain, and cemented it further with the bottle of port so unwillingly relinquished by Montell.

"I'm with you," said I, "till the last

IN THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD.

A NEW ANESTHETIZER

A Surgeon Has Devised a Method for Taking Gas or Ether Safely.

Two little gas bags, attached to a simple contrivance have robbed ether of its sickening terrors — and its dangers.

The discovery of the anesthetic value of ether was hailed as a wonderful boon to humanity 60 years ago, but it remained a boon of bitter memory to all who took it.

The old way of giving ether is to pour it on a sponge, over the patient's nose He is half asphyxiated and when he comes to himself he is so sick that he's sorry he ever came to at all. Then follow terrible hours of nausea and thirst. The victim mustn't have water, because water induced vomiting and that sometimes bursts out stitches.

SIR JAMES GRANT,
K.C.M.G., M.D., F.R.S.C.
This distinguished scientist has done much for the uplifting of Canada.

Sometimes the patient never does come to.

The new way eliminates ether-sickness and the danger of asphyxia. It makes ether as safe as laughing gas and as pleasant, without entailing the enormous expense involved in using that anesthetic for long operations.

Dr. Pyle's anesthetizer is a "mixer" through which the patient can breathe air, vaporized ether (or chloroform), nitrous oxide (laughing gas), or oxygen, either singly or in any desired combination or proportion.

The apparatus consists of a glass globe, or mixing chamber, to which are connected three atomizers and two gas bags, and from the top of which proceeds a rubber hose ending in a face mask equipped with valves. There is a cock for the admission of air to the mixing chamber In two of the atomizers is ether; in the other chloroform (for emergencies demanding that anesthetic). In one of the gas bags is laughing gas; in the other pure oxygen. Layers of gauze in the mixing chamber insure the perfect mixing of the gases.

Perfume is sprayed on a piece of gauze in the mask before it is strapped on the patient's face. He smells white roses. Presently the odorless laughing gas is turned into the globe. When that subtle anesthetic has done its work ether is substituted. The patient, already happily asleep, breathes the fumes of ether till the operation is over, and never knows the difference. Then he is given pure oxygen till the ether has been driven from his lungs.

This application of concentrated oxygen following ether or chloroform brings the patient out of his sleep free from the dreadful nausea so long the bugbear of surgery.

CURIOUS NATURAL DECEPTIONS

Our senses deceive us curiously at times. A flash of lightning lights up the ground for one-millionth of a second, yet it seems to us to last ever so much longer.

What happens is that the impression remains in the eye or the retina for about one-eighth of a second or one hundred and twenty-four thousand times as long as the flash lasts. If on a dark night a train speeding at sixty miles an hour is lit up by a lightning-flash, it appears stationary yet in the eighth of a second during which we seem to see it the train travels eleven feet. But we really only see it during one-millionth of a second, and in that time it travels only one-hundredth of an inch.

We do not actually perceive different distances with the eye, but judge them from various indications. When our judgment is at fault we are deceived. If you see a person in a fog, for instance, he seems to be much bigger than usual. The same thing happens when you see men or cattle on the top of a hill against the horizon in twilight. In both cases you judge them to be farther away than they really are, and consequently they appear uncommonly large.

The Fir Trees of the Pacific

"Next to the big tree of California, or sequoia, as it is termed by the scientists, the fir as found in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, has the largest diameter of any tree in America, and probably in the world. Some have been cut down which actually measured 15 feet in diameter at the point where the incision was made As they decay very rapidly after the timber has been removed, usually the interior can be hollowed out with little difficulty. Sometimes they are used for dancing platforms... some being large enough to accommodate four couples."

TO CROSS THE CONTINENT.

Berlin, Ont., Sept. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Debourgneuf of this town start Thursday morning on a journey to Los Angeles, California, a distance of 2,626 miles, on horse back. They expect to reach their destination within eighty days. Mr. Debourgneuf is a former newspaper man and rancher.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

GREAT RAILWAY MAGNATES

The men who have been instrumental in building the great railways of Canada which stretch from ocean to ocean across a continent, uniting the people of a large country, have performed a work which cannot be overestimated. First among these is Baron Mount Stephen, G.C.V.O., D.L. He was born in Scotland in 1829, and twenty years later came to settle in Canada. He was for some years connected with the Bank of Montreal, and later became President of the St. Paul, Minn., and Manitoba Railway. His chief work was in connection with the C. P. R., and it was largely through his efforts that this railway was built. It was for his services in this connection that he was created Baronet in 1886, and Baron in 1891. His generous donation towards founding the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal, is well known.

Sir William Cornelius Van Horne was given the title of K.C.M.G., in 1894. He was born and educated in the United States. At the age of fourteen he entered the railway office of his native town and steadily worked his way up through the various stages of railway service, until in 1874 he became General Manager of the Southern Minnesota Railway. For many years he filled supervising and managing positions on various railroads of the United States. Then, in 1881, he came to Canada and became General Manager of the C. P. R. Later he was made Vice-President of that Company, and in turn, President and Chairman of the Board of Directors, from which latter position he recently resigned. He has been connected with the C. P. R. since 1882. His thorough knowledge of railroad affairs is evidenced by the fact that he occupies positions of trust with several other railways. He is a Knight of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

SIR ALAN BRISTOL AYLESWORTH

Between Edward Arthur Lancaster and Sir Alan Bristol Aylesworth there is a feud of long standing. Years before the Minister of Justice was tapped on the shoulder and told to "rise Sir Alan," the energetic lawyer from St Catharines was camping on his trail, and the mutual dislike sprang from the somewhat contemptuous treatment which the head of the country's legal department meted out to Mr. Lancaster's efforts to bring the railways to time in respect to the level crossing evil. It was under the circumstances a matter of astonishment to the House when Mr. Lancaster for the first time on record, agreed with the views of Sir Alan on the merits of a certain divorce bill discussed recently. The Minister of Justice had delivered a ponderous argument against granting relief to husband and wife on mere heresay evidence, and after he was through, Mr. Lancaster rose and supported the contentions made by his old time enemy. Hon. Charles Murphy, Secretary of State, who acts as reporter for the Minister of Justice when his desk mate, George Graham, is not there, leaned over and in a stage whisper said:

"Lancaster is agreeing with you." Quick as a flash came the return whisper of Sir Alan, loud enough to be heard all over the House, "In that case I must be wrong!"

Mr. Sexsmith for the Cabinet.

The Times cordially endorses the Havelock Standard's suggestion that the claims of Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., for a Cabinet position be brought to Mr. Borden's attention. Mr. Sexsmith would make an ideal Minister of Agriculture, and if his friends in the West as well as in the East would get busy in his support, he might get the call. Mr. Sexsmith has developed into a good speaker, and when he delivers an address he always knows what he is talking about. A farmer himself, he knows exactly what is most needful for the benefit of the agriculturists of the country.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper National Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

High Class Advertising.

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd has been 258,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

HELD FOR MURDER OF HER SISTER.

Young New Orleans Woman Admits That She Administered Morphine —Girls Had Life Insurance.

New Orleans, La., Sept. 25.—Annie Crawford, a young woman of French-American extraction, under arrest for the murder of a younger sister, whose life was insured in her favor, has admitted to the District Attorney that she had administered morphine to the girl, but had done so by mistake.

If the law succeeds in establishing her in the network of circumstantial evidence, it is attempting to cast about her, Miss Crawford, aged 29, may have to answer not only for the death of her sister, Elise, a pretty stenographer, but also for the poisoning of three other members of her family who have died mysteriously within the past 15 months, all carrying life insurance in her favor.

Real Estate, Mining and Industrial Investments

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 80 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

Pants and Propriety

The group of statuary before Pennsylvania's $13,000,000 palace of graft at Harrisburg, after having been "draped" to suit the Pennsylvania purists, has been again unveiled. Stone "pants" have been bolted to the statues whose nakedness particularly offended the good folks of the Keystone state. Now they call it the "Pantsylvania group."

The episode has nearly broken the heart of the sculptor, Barnard, and has brought chagrin and shame to all who are seriously interested in the advancement of American art, but the average person can afford to take it for its fun value.

The Best Position.

Prior to the commencement of a boys' cricket-match there were several candidates on the fielding side for the position of long-field.

"Harris had it last week and the week before," complained two or three of the boys to their captain. "It's about time someone else had a turn."

The discussion seemed likely to end in a free fight when the local curate came on the scene and endeavoured to pour oil on the troubled waters.

"You surprise me, boys," he said. "Harris has done especially well in that position, hasn't he?"

"He has so," agreed the malcontents. "If he's had to climb Bliggins's wall after the ball once, he's had to a dozen times."

"Well?" queried the reverend gentleman.

"That's why we want a chance," snapped a podgy youngster; "Old Bliggins's gooseberries are ripe and his bulldog's dead!"

A Summer Night Hint

When the summer days are blistering hot, and comfort in sleep is discovered not, don't sit up and blame the weatherman; but follow this cool sprinkling plan:

When getting ready for bed, annex a basin of water and one whisk broom. Carefully sprinkle the top sheet, just as you would do it for ironing, then get right into the bed between the sheets. In this way you will get delightfully cool, and should be able to get to sleep in a few minutes.

Pat had been to the races, and had lost all his cash on "dead certs" which had not "come off." Feeling excessively thirsty, he called upon his native wit to help him, and walked into a hostelry, where he entered into conversation with a gentleman, and inquired his age.

"My age is thirty-seven," answered the stranger. "What's yours?"

"Bedad, ye're a gintleman," replied Pat. "Oi'll just be afther havin' a drop of the cratur."

This Cow An Actorette.

At the commencement of a Canadian Agricultural college a cow was brought out on the stage to demonstrate butter making. Separators, churns, molds and the like were there and the cow milked in full view of the crowd, the cream was separated and the butter made.

Respecting Her Woe.

A healthy looking woman dressed in deep mourning stepped on to the platform scales and requested the grocer's clerk to ascertain her weight. He looked, and said, 'One hundred and forty pounds."

"You made a mistake of twelve pounds in that woman's weight," said another man who had also watched the scales. "She weighed 153 pounds instead of 140."

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 80,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

LAME BACK

Just the Sort of Case That Proves to the World That the Best Liniment Ever Made is

NERVILINE

When it comes to determining the real merit of a medicine, no weight of evidence is more convincing than the straightforward statement of some reliable and well-known person that has been cured. For this reason we print the verbatim statement of Juan E. Powell, written from his home in Carleton. "I am a strong, powerful man, six feet tall, and weigh nearly two hundred. I have been accustomed all my life to lift great weight, but one day I overdid it, and wrenched my back badly. Every tendon and muscle was sore. To stoop or bend was agony. I had a whole bottle of Nerviline rubbed on in one day and by night I was well again. I know of no liniment possessing one-half the penetration and pain-subduing properties of Nerviline. I urge its use strongly as an invaluable liniment and household cure for all minor ailments, such as strains, sprains, swellings, neuralgia, sciatica, lumbago, rheumatism, and muscular pain."

LETTER NO. 4769

No better medicine for curing pain was ever put in a bottle than Nerviline—over one million bottles used every year—better try it yourself. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. At all dealers or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

Monday, October 30 has been officially decided on as the date of Thanksgiving Day throughout the Dominion of Canada.

Sexsmith Had 593.

The official majority for Mr. J. A. Sexsmith in East Peterborough is 593.

Two Drunks Fined.

At the Police Court on Saturday two men, charged with being drunk, were arraigned, and pleaded guilty. They were fined $2 and costs each, and given 10 days in which to pay the fine.

Train Delayed.

The early Grand Trunk train from Port Hope on Saturday morning was delayed about 40 minutes by the breaking of a drawhead on one of the cars. A strong chain was used to hold the cars together until their arrival here.

Annual Field Day.

The annual field day of sports in connection with the Collegiate Institute, will take place on Thursday afternoon next at Riverside Park, the pupils being given a half holiday for the occasion. With good weather, one of the best meets in the history of the School is expected. A full report will appear in Friday's Times.

Saturday's Market Prices.

The following were the prevailing prices on the market on Saturday: Live hogs, $6.75; hay, $13 to $14 per ton; lamb, 13 to 15c; apples, 25c per peck; onions, $1.75 per bag; potatoes, $1.35 per bag; butter, 30c; geese, $1.20; chickens, 60c to 80c; eggs, 28c.

Wheat Looking Well.

Reports from the surrounding country are satisfactory in reference to the growth of fall wheat. Many farmers who had soil fit to produce a good crop, were unable to cultivate the same for want of moisture in the soil. Everything at present indicates a big crop of fall wheat next season.

Returned Saturday.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., and Mr. J. H. McClellan, Superintendent of the Trent Canal, returned on Saturday from a three days' trip over the upper sections of the Trent waterway. Mr. Burnham took this opportunity of seeing for himself how water conservation was being carried out. He no doubt will have some important recommendations to make to the department regarding this, as well as other matters, at an early date.

Young Lady Honored.

Miss Bessie Crowe, who has been connected with Mark street Church for many years, was presented with an address, accompanied by a beautiful sunburst of pearls at the Congregational meeting on Friday evening last. The address was read by Mr. Callander and Miss Effie Fowler, of the League, made the presentation. Miss Crowe, who was completely taken by surprise, acknowledged the honor done her in a few brief words. She will remove to Toronto, where she will reside in future.

After More Men.

Mr. W. J. Kearns, the well-known contractor, is advertising for 500 men, to whom he is prepared to pay wages ranging from $1.75 to $2.50 per day. To The Times Mr. Kearns stated that he could place 5,000 men if he could get them. He says good men are scarce. He can get hundreds who are either unable or unwilling to work, but men who are capable either as choppers or laborers, are not at all plentiful.

Mr. Louis Jackson Honored.

The employees of the Cordage Co. presented their fellow workman, Mr. Louis A. Jackson, with an address, accompanied by a valuable suit case, on the occasion of his leaving town to go to his new position with the International Harvester Co., Auburn N. Y. Mr. Jackson carries with him not only the good wishes of his fellow-employees, but also of many citizens as well, by whom he is highly esteemed.

A Short-Sighted Policy.

A lady residing a short distance from the city in Smith, called on The Times on Saturday and said that the storekeepers of Peterborough who do not use the advertising columns of The Times hardly know what they are missing. She said she understood that The Times went regularly to every one who was on the rural mail routes. This meant several hundred of the best farmers in the district, who usually did their shopping in Peterborough. People want the "store news," and those stores who use The Times are sure to get this large trade.

A Splendid Display.

In connection with the Grand Trunk Exhibit at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, further advices dated September 12th have been received from London regarding the awards that were given to the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is gratifying to know that these companies have received four "Grand Prix" for their splendid display, instead of two that were announced in the cable received on Sept. 1st.

These awards have been made under the following:—"Arts and Crafts"; "Engineering, Lighting, and Transportation"; and "Building Trades"; also "Advertising." This is considered by the Companies named as a great honor, as other railways exhibiting at the Exhibition have only received one award.

The official report from the Grand Trunk representative at this Exhibition, for week ending September 9th, shows that the number of persons visiting the Grand Trunk Pavilion was 21,186, bringing the attendance up to September 9th to 279,942 people.

WEDDING BELLS.

Clarke—McNeil.

A pretty church wedding was solemnized on Saturday afternoon when Miss H. O. McNeil, daughter of Mrs. S. McNeil was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. James D. Clarke, by Rev. F. J. Sawers.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke left on the 4.28 C.P.R. train on a wedding trip and on their return they will reside in Galt, Ont. Many friends of the bride and groom will extend best wishes.

Lackie—Powell.

A quiet wedding took place in Toronto a few days ago, when Miss Powell of that city, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. H. Lackie, Fraserville. Mr. Lackie is a well-known resident of Fraserville, and he will have the best wishes of his many friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lackie will reside near Fraserville.

Seabrook—Moncrief.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized on Friday last at Fraserville, when Miss Sophie Moncrief and Mr. George Seabrook, both of Fraserville were united in the holy bonds of matrimony. The young couple's many friends extend to them their heartiest congratulations.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., was in the city on Saturday.

Mrs. James Campbell is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. W. W. Garrett, Tweed.

Mr. R. E. Layfield, Toronto, is spending a few days in town the guest of friends here.

Mr. J. D. Baptie, of Toronto, is spending his holidays in Peterborough the guest of his sister, Mrs. E. Goodfellow, London street.

Mrs. W. C. Perrin, of Camden, N. J., sister-in-law of Mr. A. A. Perrin, 576 Bethune street, has been his guest for the past week and left for home yesterday.

Miss Daisy Dobbin, who has been with a patient at the Jackson Sanatorium, Dansville, N. Y., for the past six months, is home for a month's vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dobbin.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Carey announce the engagement of their daughter, Evelyn Etta, to Mr. Thomas Sutherland MacKay of Halifax, N. S. The wedding will take place quietly on the 10th of October.

Mrs. J. H. Renwick, 571 Aylmer street, will be "at home" on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 4th and 5th, from 3.30 to 6.30 o'clock, also on Wednesday evening, October 4, at 8 o'clock, and afterwards during the season every third Tuesday in the month.

COPENHAGEN'S FRESH FISH

Brought to One's Door Swimming About in Tanks of Water.

When a person buys fresh fish in Copenhagen he really gets it. More than that he gets uncontaminated fish. The sewers used to empty into the sea at the nearest convenient points. Now the sewage is collerted into a main trunk line and carried two kilometers out to sea before it is released.

Thus there is longer any contamination of the harbor or the sea front. They not noly puts an end to the nuisances that used to arise, says the 'Lancet,' but enables boats full of live fish to come close to shore and right into the town by means of the salt water canals.

In the manner at least the smaller fish are kept alive until the moment they are sold. Any number of wooden boats are pierced with holes and filled with fish; these boats just float on the surface of the water, and the living fish is taken out of them when wanted.

But as every one cannot go to the water's edge to buy fish there are water tanks on wheels and the live fish are brought to the doors of the people's houses. The principal fish market was built by the municipality and is let to a wholesale fish salesman.

It is delight to see how clean and bright these premises are kept. There is no spreading the fish on slabs so that dust and dirt may settle on them. Very pretty tessallated tanks are filled with running water, and here the smaller fish swim about. The larger fish such as cod or halibut, are too cumbersome to keep alive, and are therefore placed in the cold storage rooms.

Not only are the fish fresh, but they are generally very well, sometimes even artistically cooked. At Copenhagen the domestic servants' trade unionists instituted a school where members of the union are taught how to be clean and neat, how to sew, to wash and starch, and above all how to cook. A little restaurant is attached to this school where any one can have a cheap meal, thus giving the pupils an opportunity of exercising their art.

The trade union, while insisting that a good servant shall earn from 25 to 30 kromer (a kromer equals 1s. 2d.) a month and pay half a kromer subscription to the union, does at the same time endeavor to render her fully competent to accomplish her work. Also by providing sleeping accommodation it helps to pervent servant girls falling into bad company or suffering undue hardships when out of employment.

In the same way there is an old frigate moored in a canal close to the most fashionable centre of the town. Here there is a school for ships' cooks. On board a ship with the limited space such as prevails at sea young folks try their 'prentice hands at making dishes such as are served to passengers on sea voyages. There is an awningon the deck, tables are laid out, and numerous inhabitants of Copenhagen take their meals there; for they are both varied and inexpensive. Thus fully qualified cooks are being prepared for the sea.

Multiplying on the Fingers

We shall never be in danger of forgetting that our ancestors did their sums on their fingers so long as arithmetic retains the word 'digits.' But modern civilization knows nothing of the elaborate development of this method. It takes a Wellachian peasant to multiply 8 by 9 on his hands. This is how he does it. The fingers of either hand, beginning with the thumb, stand for the numbers from 6 to 10. So the ring finger of the one hand and the middle finger of the other are struck out to represent 8 and 9. Counting the fingers remaining on the side furthest from the thumbs he finds them 1 and 2 respectively, and 1 multiplied by 2 gives him the units of his product—2. Then he counts from the thumbs to the struck out fingers inclusive, finds them 3 and 4, adds these and gets 7 for his tens. Answer—72. All this to avoid knowing the multiplication table beyond four times four! Try it as a game.

PREVENTION OF FOREST FIRES

That it is only by observance of the utmost care that forest fire outbreaks can now be avoided in certain dangerous districts, is pointed out by Commissioner W. C. Gladwin, of British Columbia:

"In some districts," says the Commissioner, "the conditions existing at present are such that, should a fire originate, it will only be with the greatest difficulty that great loss will be prevented. The department, of course, has a considerable force of rangers out patrolling the various districts night and day, but one careless individual may cause all their efforts to count for naught and start a fire occasioning heavy loss in lives and property."

"This fact cannot be too frequently impressed upon the public mind, particularly in the dry season of midsummer," he adds.

The Harborless

Ah! there be souls none understand;
Like clouds, they cannot touch the land,
Drive as they may, by field or town;
Then we look wise at this and frown.
And we cry, "Fool!" and cry, "Take hold
Of earth and fashion gods of gold!"

Unanchored ships, they blow and blow
Sail to and fro, and then go down
In unknown seas that none shall know,
Without one ripple of renown.
Poor, drifting dreamers sailing by.
They seem to only live to die.

Call these not fools! the test of worth
Is not the hold you have on earth.
Lo! there be gentlest souls sea-blown
Now it may be the reason is
They touch on fairer shores than this.

Extending Season for St. Lawrence Navigation.

While it has been the custom with most steamship lines to discontinue their Quebec and Montreal sailings about November 15th each year and transfer their steamers to the winter ports, the White Star Line has just announced that their crack triple-screw steamer "Laurentic" will make an extra sailing to the St. Lawrence in November to accommodate the pre-Christmas traffic.

The "Laurentic" will sail from Montreal and Quebec November 22nd and will be the last of the big liners out of the river.

THE DREAMER

(Written for The Times.)

While you upon life's journey tread
The pathway crowds have known
My feet in rugged byways led
Must travel oft alone.

From toil's grim hand the scepter falls
At sunset's golden ray
And pleasure's siren voice then calls
To festive scenes, the gay.

But I around whose cheerless hearth,
No social joys await,
Thus lingering muse, unknown to mirth,
Beside the garden gate.

Perchance fond memory o'er the past
Broods with a miser care
Hones fabric wove too bright to last
And castles built of air.

Or with a restless unurbed will,
For kindred spirits pined
Seeking the hungry soul to fill,
With husks of earthly kind.

When fate or fortune calls each friend
And dear companion far,
Kind Heaven some pitying aid to lend
Deep mysteries then unbar.

How many a time I've watched the day
Melt slowly into night,
Till on the darkening shadows lay
The moon-beam's silvery light.

As silently the moon sails high
Across the vaulted dome
I see Rith fancy's eager eye
Blest spirits going home.

The fleecy clouds that float along
Their dazzling robes appear,
The gentle zephyr is their song
Soft falling on my ear.

As lightly on the opening rose
Pure dews of Heaven descend,
So through the gates that never close
Some others downward wend.

White pinons waft them gently near
From blissful scenes above,
Sent forth Salvation's heirs to cheer
By deeds of holy love.

No down draught flesh impedes their flight
No doubt obscures their way,
But through the trackless fields of light
Love points the shining way.

My being's inmost fibres wake
In rapture wild and strong,
Impatient earth born tier to break
And join the glorious throng.

But barriers viewless as the wind
Of adamant are found,
Vain, vain each effort still I find
To pass the allotted bound.

Yet death to captives freedom brings
Peace to the care oppressed,
Then close beneath those glittering wings
They'll bear my soul to rest.

Sweet rest in that eternal home
Beyond the starry skies,
Where pain or parting cannot come
Nor clouds of sorrow rise.

And never pride with haughty scorn
Life's opening prospects blight
Or slander plant a venomed thorn,
In virtue's roses white.

Better thus scale thought's dizzy steep
Though climbing brings us pain,
As oft from dreams we wake to weep
Yet sleep and dream again.

A FISH HATCHERY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Now that a new government has come into power I would once again suggest that a fish hatchery be established at Peterborough. With such a hatchery, enough bass and maskilonge spawn could be hatched as would replenish all the Kawartha lakes with these splendid fish. I hope something will be done to this end very soon.

D. CRANSTON SHOT AT RIMOUSKI, QUE.

Mark Hambourg's Business Manager Met Death in Mysterious Way — An Accident or Murder?—No one Knows Who Fired the Shot or Where Bullet Came From.

Quebec, Que., Sept 29.—A mysterious tragedy occurred at Rimouski last evening, at 8.15 on the arrival of the I.C.R. Maritime Express, en route for Halifax.

Mr. Dudley Canston, of London, England, impressario of the famous Russian pianist, Mark Hambourg, who had just arrived from Europe on board the Empress of Britain, was killed by a bullet that struck his head. The author of this tragedy is unknown, and no one can say if this is an accident or a murder. There was at that time a political demonstration going on. The new Conservative member for Rimouski, Mr. H. G. Boulay, was being given a send-off by his friends at the station. Suddenly a detonation was heard, and a man fell with a bullet in his head. He was taken into the Lenghan Hotel. Where Drs. Belisle and Drapeau attended to him. Rev. Mr. Pelletier, curate of Rimouski, was also called near the unfortunate victim, although Mr. Canston was a Protestant. The latter died an hour after. He was going to organize concerts for Mark Hambourg in the Maritime Provinces. He was married, and father of two children. The coroner's inquest will take place to-day.

Making Observations for Mapping Out Canadian Rockies.

In a letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, the well-known mountain climber and topographer, who is at present in the Canadian Rockies making observations for the purpose of mapping out the district, he says:

"We have a great amount of splendid material for publication and a collection of photographs that cannot be surpassed. We have just completed what is very nearly a 100 mile circuit around Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The peaks and valleys, lakes and waterfalls on all sides of it, and the glaciers are very fine. The region is immense, and there is work for years to come, exploring, mapping and depicting. There is a fine bunch of high peaks and large snowfields and glaciers southwest of Tete Jaune Cache. There are also great peaks up the Athabaska and Fraser headwaters, tributary to your line. The most showy part of Mt. Robson is the Robson Pass and Glacier, and Berg Lake."

In addition to the above Mr. Wheeler reports that his party have collected over 600 specimens of animal and bird life, and a good botanical collection as well. This expedition which was organized by the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been a most successful one, and when its results are published will be of great value. The facts now known bear out the general impression that the territory contiguous to the mountain division of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will surpass in scenic beauty that which can be seen on any other of the North American transcontinental lines

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out all they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and I was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

Turkish Fleet Has Reached Dardanelles---Suddenly Ordered to Postpone Bombardment?

THE MILK BY-LAW WILL NOT BE ENFORCED TILL END OF THE YEAR

THE BOTTLE CLAUSE MAY BE ELIMINATED ALTOGETHER.

Council at a Deadlock on This Question Last Night. Council to take the Matter Into Farther Consideration at an Early Date. "All Bosh," Says Ald. Buller.

Some fifteen or twenty milk dealers appeared before the City Fathers last night in protest against the milk by-law, which is supposed to have come into force September 27th. Their main grievance is the bottle clause.

The by-law was amended as follows:

The percentage of butter fat was reduced from 5 to 3.

Milk may be sold five days after cows have calved instead of 10 days.

All vehicles in which milk is purveyed must be kept clean and in a thoroughly sanitary condition.

The by-law is not to be enforced until December 27th.

And in the meantime the property committee will again consider the bottle clause and report to Council.

Milkman Hunter said it would be impossible to sell milk in clean sterilized bottles at less than 8c or 9c a quart; and even at that, but very little margin of profit would remain for the dealer, who would have to expend $500 to instal the necessary bottling and sterilizing apparatus. He contended that the people are perfectly safe in using milk delivered from cans properly scalded, when the cattle are properly inspected. Again Mr. Hunter contended, that milk containing 3 per cent of butter fat is about as high a quality of milk generally obtainable—5 per cent butter fat is too high a percentage to insist upon in the by-law.

Mr. Carlisle was present. He said in the interests of a large body of consumers. He contended that the delivery of milk in bottles no matter how thoroughly sterilized would be conducive to a spread of infectious diseases, with which dealers themselves would come in contact by reason of such a system of delivery, and which diseases would be conveyed from one house to another in the bottles. Then, in Toronto the bottle system is responsible for its present high priced milk—10c a quart, and Mr. Carlisle felt assured that such a system would entail a like experience upon Peterborough milk consumers.

Another milkman in opposition to the bottle scheme offered that he delivered milk at some houses he would have much defidence in entering himself, and bottles coming from such houses would endanger a spreading of infectious diseases.

Another dealer enquired if the institution of the bottle scheme has for its object the guarding against disease germs being conveyed in milk from family to family, what measure is to be adopted in regard to a like danger from handling money. He takes cash from all classes and conditions of people, which he distributes in the ordinary way of business.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Graham, That the milk clause be struck out, and the means of delivery—bottle or can—be optional.

Ald. Bradburn moved that the clause go back to committee for further consideration.

Ald. Anderson favored eliminating the clause. "Some dealers are clean," he said, "and some are not. But with men and rigs and cans clean I see no cause for the bottle system. On the other hand, some dealers have dirty premises and are not very cleanly themselves; under such conditions no process on earth will render their milk pure and wholesome."

Medical Health Officer Dr. McPherson was decidedly in favor of milk delivery in bottles which has, he said, the support of the People of Toronto and also of the Medical profession in Peterborough. "I have not heard the voice of one consumer in this city raised against the clause in question." He could not see that such a system should raise the price of milk, which can be delivered in that way cheaper than in cans. Dealers say themselves, he contended, that they lose 5 per cent in can delivery. This matter of distributing disease in the bottles is all bosh, the doctor went on to say. Organisms do not skip around and thrive in empty bottles, which by the way, can be cleaned in an easy manner.

Ald. Buller here replied as alluded to elsewhere.

The enforcement of the by-law was here enlarged until December 27th, and the division of the Council on both Ald. Buller's motion and Ald. Bradburn's amendment resulted in a tie.

Subsequently the worthy Aldermen agreed to thresh the vexed clause out at another meeting of the committee.

PRICE OF MILK WILL GO UP!

"The delivery of milk in bottles is an unsanitary system—No matter how thoroughly bottles are sterilised disease germs would be conveyed in them from house to house. The enforcement of such a system would also mean a raise in the price of milk, as in Toronto, where it is 10c a quart."—John Carlisle.

"The contention that disease would be distributed by means of bottles is all bosh. Germs do not skip around and thrive in empty bottles And nothing is easier to clean than glass. Then milk will go up anyway, and it should do so in comparison with the price of other food supplies. Local men are offered by Toronto dealers 4½c or 5c quart delivered."—Dr. McPherson.

"If you had said, Doctor, that the delivery of milk in cans is a menace to the community's health, is all bosh, I'd believe you. It's taken you medical men a long time to discover the alleged danger of delivering milk in cans, a system employed before you and I were born. And I want to tell you that, so far as I am concerned, I'm going to have the manner in which milk is delivered optional with the consumer if I don't sit another year in this chamber."—Ald. Buller.

THE BATTLE OF PREVESA

London, Oct. 2.—A news despatch from Rome says that the Captain of the Greek steamer Marte witnessed the engagement off Prevesa, and says that the fighting was of a determined character. Projectiles fell as thick as hail and the air vibrated with the passage of shot. When the Turkish vessel was disabled the crew of the Marte cheered for Italy.

DISASTER FOLLOWS ATTEMPT TO HELP DISABLED STEAMER

London, Oct. 2.—The British steamer Harfield from Huelva, Spain, for Rotterdam, was in collision to-day with the British steamer Glasgow, from Rotterdam for Dundee and sunk.

TWENTY MEMBERS OF CREW DROWNED.

All the members of the Harfield crew, numbering about 20 men, were drowned.

The Harfield had gone to the assistance of the Glasgow which had broken her steering gear and had signalled for assistance.

GLASGOW TOWED INTO PORT.

The Glasgow was picked up by another steamer and towed int to the harbor at Dover.

20 BODIES HAVE BEEN REMOVED FROM WRECKAGE

Austin, Pa., Oct. 2.—With the arrival of a carload of coffins here this morning the grimness of the tragedy which has practically obliterated this town, was impressed upon the survivors and a considerable number of workers who to-day began anew their efforts to mine deeply into the hard hills of debris. Twenty victims, including two at Costello, had been placed in a temporary morgue at Oddfellows' hall, one of the few buildings standing on the ruined district. The identified dead are twelve, including J. E. Baldwin, father of State Senator Baldwin.

LOSS PROBABLY 150.

The most careful and well-informed investigators are prepared to learn that more than 200 have perished. There is, indeed, a possibility that 150 will be the total.

The aspect of Austin, Costello and the valley beyond to-day is as dreary as it is appalling. The towns look like dead towns. The valley side hills in which they lie are still littered by the shattered homes of the people of business and the plants which gave large numbers employment. The total property loss is entirely a matter of conjecture. No reliable estimate has been or can be soon made, but it is safe to say it will not be less than $8,000,000.

VALLEY SWEPT CLEAN.

An approximate view from the high surrounding hills show how complete was the setting for the tragedy. Below the town dam to-day the valley for a mile or more is swept practically clean to bedrock, and Freeman's Run, the reservoir feeder, swollen by last night's rains, is sweeping along through the channels carried in the rocks where the main business portion of the town once stood.

WILL PETERBORO' CITY BE GOVERNED BY COMMISSION?

ALD. EDGAR SUBMITTED A NOTICE OF MOTION LAST NIGHT THAT HE WILL MOVE TO THAT EFFECT.

Ald. Buller Asked the Power Committee to Get Busy—To Get a Hydrant on a Small Street It Seems Necessary to Provide for Two—City May Have to Treat Sewage Before It Is Emptied Into the River.

The City Fathers met in regular monthly session last night. There were present Mayor Morrow, Aldermen Morgan, Kerneghan, Anderson, Graham, Edgar, Metheral, Bradburn, and Duncan.

LEASE OF LUMBER YARD.

The Peterborough Canoe Co., asked to lease a portion of the city's property on the river front to use as a lumber yard.—Finance Committee.

COMMUNICATIONS.

R. C. Braund and others complained of a big ditch, filled with leaves and rubbish.—Referred to Board of Works. The same ratepayers petitioned for a concrete walk.—Board of Works.

The Treasurer was authorized to pay to Protestant Home executive half of city's grant toward a new home ($5000) and that the remaining $5000 be paid on certificate that terms and conditions entered into with the city have been complied with.

A petition for a concrete crossing on south side of Hunter street, to connect with Driscoll Terrace was referred to the Board of Works, as also was a petition for a concrete crossing on Murray street, to connect with the new Baptist church.

An intimation from Dr. McCullough, Provincial Medical Health Officer, that the city's sewage must be properly treated before being emptied into the river was referred to the Committee of the Whole.

DIVERSION OF ROMAINE ST.

Regarding the diversion of Romaine street by the C.P.R., so that a right of way to the Monaghan road may be assured without crossing the tracks, Mr. W. H. Moore asked that notice be given through the public press of the city's acquiescence in the company's diversion of said road, in return for a portion of the company's property being deeded to the city equivalent to that absorbed by the railroad by such diversion. This matter was referred to the Board of Works.

COMMITTEE REPORTS.

The several committees reported their months' business.

Ald. Anderson asked that the clause in the Board of Works' report recommending that Mr. Bartlett be appointed foreman of sewer work for the balance of the year be amended, as it is uncertain if Mr. Bartlett is willing to accept the appointment. It was understood that he should commence work right away in East City, but nothing has yet been done.

Ald. Metheral explained that it was decided at the Board's last meeting that Mr. Bartlett should not start work unless with a full staff of men, the Board objected to a foreman drawing $3 a day to oversee two or three men as on occasions last summer). Hence the delay in East City, a sufficiently large staff of men has not yet been attainable. However the clause in question was amended to authorize the appointment of a suitable foreman of sewer work, should Mr Bartlett decline to act.

SETTLEMENT OF CLAIMS.

Moved by Ald. Graham, seconded by Ald Kerneghan, That John H. Briggs be paid $40 in full settlement of his claim for damages for injuries received by a fire hose; this resolution not to prejudice the city's position should Mr. Briggs refuse the settlement offered—Carried.

CITY GOVERNMENT BY COMMISSION.

Ald. Edgar gave notice that he would move at next meeting that the city of Peterborough be governed by commission.

PAVING OF CHAMBERS ST.

Ald. Bradburn moved that Chambers street be not paved until the east sidewalk is constructed. Ald. Bradburn did not get a seconder, and the work will be done this fall. If practicable, a curb on which the sidewalk is to rest being constructed before pavement is laid.

MORTGAGE FORECLOSED.

His Worship notified Council that he had received notice from the Christina Scott estate that a mortgage on the Rapid Tool Company's property had been foreclosed. This matter was referred to the Finance Committee to act as deemed advisable in the city's interests.

Ald. Edgar asked for a hydrant on Bonacord street.

Ald. Morgan said one had been ordered for Bonacord street, but the Water Commissioners object to putting less than two hydrants there.

Moved by Ald. Buller, seconded by Ald. Graham.—That His Worship interview the Commissioners and request that they consent to installing one hydrant only, as two are not necessary on so small a street as Bonacord—Carried.

POWER! POWER!! POWER!!!

Ald. Buller here raised the power question, and asked that the committee get busy. They were, he offered, to interview Hon. Adam Beck and the "powers that be" at Ottawa but had not reported to Council yet. Now that the holidays are over, he hoped the power committee would get busy, for he is convinced that No. 4 dam can be secured by this city.

The committee did not respond in any way, and an early report from them on this question is anticipated.

A WORLD-WIDE METHODIST IDEA

Ecumenical Conference of Whole Church to Open in Toronto on Wednesday

HELD EVERY TEN YEARS

Women Delegates to be in Attendance for First Time in History—No Temere Decree to Receive Attention—Matters of Interest to All Methodists to be Discussed.

NOT only are the Methodists of Peterborough deeply interested in the great gathering to open in Toronto on Wednesday, but every town, city and hamlet in the country is also concerned, as also is every community in Christendom, where the Church exists.

The occasion is the fourth Ecumenical Conference of the Methodist churches of England, Ireland, South Africa, France, Australia, the United States and Canada, which is to be held in the Toronto Metropolitan Church for two weeks beginning Wednesday of this week. It is the greatest event in the calendar of the followers of John Wesley, coming as it does once only in a decade and embracing representation from every branch of the Methodist family throughout the world. The church statistics show that at present there are over 50,000 ministers and 100,000 lay preachers officiating in 100,000 pulpits, with congregations aggregating 30,000,000, while 8,000,000 of pupils are being brought up to the faith in 85,000 Sunday schools the world over.

Five hundred official representatives divided about equally between ministers and laymen, are expected at the present conference, 200 of these coming from across the ocean and 300 representing the Methodist churches of this continent. Some of the famous laymen who are expected are Sir Robert Perks, the great engineering contractor; Right Hon. W. C. Runciman, Minister of Education in the British Parliament; Sir Howell Davies, Sir W. P. Hartley, Sir George Smith, Sir J. S. Randles, Sir Thomas Barclay, Right Hon. Sir S. J. Way, and Former Vice-President Fairbanks of the United States.

Women are Delegates.

Great interest is aroused among the Methodist women of Canada in that for the first time in the history of the Conference women will appear as delegates. In addition to the session devoted to women's work, which is set for Friday, October 13th, a public meeting for women will be held in Elm Street Church on the evening of Saturday, October 7th, when addresses will be given on the work done by women's organization in the Methodist Church throughout the world. In honor of the official and visiting women delegates, the Methodist women's societies of Toronto have united to give a luncheon, at which distinguished delegates will speak. This function will take place in the Methodist Deaconess Training School, St. Clair Avenue, on Monday, October 9th. Mrs. G. A. Walton, 15 Forest Hill Road, is in charge of the arrangements. Among the most prominent of the women delegates who are expected are Mrs. Lucy R. Meyer, of Chicago, the leader of the deaconess movement in the United States, and Mrs. George O. Robinson, of Detroit, president of the Methodist Women's Missionary Society.

The first session of the Ecumenical Conference is to be opened at ten o'clock on Wednesday, with Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, in the chair. Rev. Henry Haigh, president of the British Wesleyan Conference, who is well known in Canada will preach the opening sermon. Addresses of welcome and replies thereto will be given in the afternoon.

The No Temere Decree.

Among the matters likely to come before the Conference will be the No Temere decree, and it is expected that action will be taken that will show distinctly how obnoxious the action of Rome is to the Methodist body as a whole.

APPROPRIATE OBSERVANCE OF THANKSGIVING DAY

AGITATED FOR BY MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION AT REQUEST OF A BODY OF CITIZENS.

By Mass Meeting in Armouries Suggested. Proceedings in Which the City Council, Clergy, Societies, and Citizens in General, Irrespective of Denominational Affiliation May Take Part.

Rev. Canon Davidson and Rev. Jas Rollins waited upon the City Fathers last night with a view to getting their co-operation in a proposed fitting public observance of Thanksgiving Day. Canon Davidson offered that the Ministerial Association has acquiesced in the proposition, which has been submitted to them by a body of citizens enthusiastic in the matter. Some sort of a programme would be arranged, in which the City Council, the clergy, societies and the military might take part. The centre feature of this programme to be a mass meeting in the Armouries, addressed by a prominent speaker or speakers.

Mr. Rollins emphasized the fact that Canada is a Christian nation and the object of Thanksgiving Day is a religious one. It is a day set apart by the Government for the showing of our gratitude to the Giver of All Things for blessings bestowed upon us the past year. The Roman Catholics and all denominations would be approached to unite in a general thanksgiving. The event in the Armouries would not be a service but a massing together of all classes of people to listen to addresses suitable to the occasion.

Council promised to take the matter up in Committee of the Whole at the earliest possible moment. A committee will likely be appointed to co-operate with committee from other bodies.

Leaves for Holidays To-morrow.

Postmaster A. H. Stratton leaves to-morrow on a three weeks' shooting and hunting trip.

THE ALBANIANS IN REVOLT

TWENTY-TWO KILLED IN BATTLE WITH TURKISH GENDARMES.

1,600 Troops Landed—Servia Prepares for War—Turkish Squadron in Full Flight Towards Tripoli.

Malta, Oct. 2.—The Italian flag today flies over Tripoli. The British cruiser Aboukir arrived in the harbor here to-day from Tripolitan waters, bringing word that the Italian expeditionary force has landed from the war fleet and taken possession of the city.

ALBANIANS REVOLT.

Berlin, Oct. 2.—Revolt against Turkish rule has broken out in Albania. Twenty-two persons reported killed at Prishtina, in Vilayet of Kossova, Albana, to-day in battle between natives and gendarmes. Fifty others wounded.

TWO TORPEDO BOATS SUNK.

London, Oct. 2.—A despatch to Lloyds from Corfu early this afternoon, states that an Italian flotilla sand two Turkish torpedo boat destroyers and captured a third, in an engagement off Gomenitza.

TROOPS LANDED.

Constantinople, Oct. 2.—The Italian fleet has bombarded and destroyed the forts at Prevesa, Albania, and the city has been occupied by 1,600 Italian troops, according to a despatch received here this afternoon.

WILL NOT PERMIT IT.

Hon. S. H. Blake, in addressing the Anglican Synod a short time ago at London, Ontario, said: "The liberty of the people, the sanctity of the holy marriage law is being assailed by an audacious class something that in this land of civil and religious liberty we will not permit." This has the right ring about it, and coming from a man like Mr. Blake, means pretty nearly what it says.

SHEFFIELD CHOIR LOST $25,000

London, Oct. 2.—Dr. Harris says the Sheffield Choir's world tour cost 6,000 pounds, and resulted in a loss of 5,000 pounds. The choristers unanimously agree that they were most impressed with Canada, which is the most enterprising of the Dominions. Next comes South Africa, but Australia and New Zealand are voted slow, their people being too self-satisfied. One chorister remarked that Australia is waiting for population before extending railways, while Canada establishes railways first.

10 OFFICERS AND 180 MEN HELD PRISONERS OF WAR

Fighting Spirit of Turkey is at Boiling Point—Excited Crowds Wreck Italian Post Office at Stamboul

London, Oct. 2.—News reaching London to-day from the seat of war brings nothing but a conflicting and confusing mass of statements.

It has been rumored that the Italian squadron sunk the entire Turkish fleet. This Turkey denies, but admits the loss of one boat. The port of Prevesa was bombarded and the inhabitants frightened to such a degree that they fled inland in the direction of Janina.

Both countries are maintaining secrecy as to their intentions and the rigidity of the censorship has not been relaxed. Several Turkish destroyers are steaming along the Montenegrin coast threatening Italian commerce.

THE SULTAN IS ANGRY.

The Sultan of Turkey in receiving a delegation from the Chamber of Deputies said: "For some time past I have been desirous of convening the Chamber, but the opposition of Hakki Pasha prevented my doing so. I now order you to inform your colleagues that we decree the immediate convocation of Parliament. I am a great reader of history, but never have I encountered a more flagrant violation of the rights than that committed by Italy."

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Aetherized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,350,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension.

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the property, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE :

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

The Following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments :

No. of Shares.	Amount of First Call.	Half-yearly Payments.

200	23,000.00
300	34,500.00

NO BONUS STOCK shall be issued for any purpose whatsoever, and even the Directors, who are very heavy stockholders in the Company, have paid the SAME PRICE for their shares as the general public. NOT ONE SHARE has been or will be issued to any person at a price less than $115.00 per share.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST :

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations ; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Are You Bashful?

Bashful people invariably sit with their toes turned in. Why this should be it is undoubtedly difficult to explain, but there is no doubt about the fact. If the bashfulness runs to great embarrassment, one foot, with the toes still turned in, seeks the consoling influence of the other and poises itself on the ankle of the other foot. If the bashfulness and embarrassment are noticed when the individual is standing, one foot is sure to be placed behind the other and to be lifted up at frequent intervals, while as the embarrassment increases the raised foot rubs up and down the calf of the leg which supports the body.

Feminine Indorsement

She advanced to the paying teller's window, and, handing in a check for $50, stated that it was a birthday present from her husband and asked for payment. The teller informed her that she must first indorse it.

"I don't know what you mean," she said hesitatingly.

"Why, you see," he explained, "you must write your name on the back, so that when we return the check to your husband, he will know we have paid you the money."

"O, is that all?" she said, relieved. One minute elapsed.

Then the indorsement: "Many thanks, dear. I've got the money. Your loving wife, Evelyn."

New Gun With Range of 15 Miles to be Mounted in Battleship Turrets.

A gun that will carry its projectile clear out of sight is the style that is to be placed in the turrets of the new battleship of the New York type. One of these guns has been made at the Washington factory and a dozen others are to follow as rapidly as the great lathes can turn them out. The gun has been tried out at the proving ground and has shown that it is without doubt the most powerful naval weapon in the world. With a muzzle velocity of 2400 feet a second, the shell will have range of about 14 or 15 miles; consequently, it will land far beyond the horizon at extreme elevations. It might hit a ship that the gunners could not see; a friend or an enemy, perhaps. Hence, the ordonance officers will be unusually careful when ships mounting these great guns go out for target practice.

FRUIT GROWERS' ORGANIZE.

A meeting of interested fruit-growers of the Newcastle, Ont., District was held last week for the purpose of forming a Co-operative Fruit-growers' Association. Mr. P. J. Carey, Dominion Fruit Inspector, gave a helpfull address. The chair was occupied by Mr. R. S. Duncan of the Department of Agriculture.

The organization chose to be known as the Durham Co-operative Fruit-growers' Association. It was decided to admit no members who would not take good care of their orchards.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a volume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a muzzle velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another cartoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

The Best Position.

Prior to the commencement of a boys' cricket-match there were several candidates on the fielding side for the position of long-field.

"Harris had it last week and the week before," complained two or three of the boys to their captain. "It's about time someone else had a turn."

The discussion seemed likely to end in a free fight when the local curate came on the scene and endeavoured to pour oil on the troubled waters.

"You surprise me, boys," he said. "Harris has done especially well in that position, hasn't he?"

"He has so," agreed the malcontents. "If he's had to climb Biggins's wall after the ball once, he's had to a dozen times."

"Well?" queried the reverend gentleman.

"That's why we want a chance," snapped a podgy youngster; "Old Biggins's gooseberries are ripe and his bulldog's dead!"

A Summer Night Hint

When the summer days are blistering hot, and comfort in sleep is discovered not, don't sit up and blame the weatherman; but follow this cool sprinkling plan:

When getting ready for bed, annex a basin of water and one whisk broom. Carefully sprinkle the top sheet, just as you would do it for ironing, then get right into the bed between the sheets. In this way you will get delightfully cool, and should be able to get to sleep in a few minutes.

LORD ROSEBERRY'S BET.

How the Great English Politician Gave a Good Tip.

On one occasion Lord Roseberry was in a railway carriage on his way to a race meeting at Ayr. Opposite him sat a commercial traveller, who was rather inclined to be talkative.

Seeing his lordship (whom, of course, he did not know) reading the 'Racing Calendar, he remarked:

"Suppose you are going to the Ayr meeting?"

"I am going as far as Ayr," replied his lordship.

"Pity young swells get fleeced by blacklegs. Some noblemen, I hear, drop fortunes on the Turf."

"Indeed!"

"Do a bit myself sometimes — about a tenner or a pony is my cut. Know anything good for to-day worth my while touching?"

"I am not a tipster."

"Beg pardon. Saw you reading the 'Racing Calendar,' so thought you might know."

"Well," replied his lordship, "if I give you the straight tip will it be of service to you?"

"Depends if I fancy it."

"Put your tenner or pony on Lord Roseberry's Chevronel for the Welter Cup."

"Not for Joseph! I never back Lord Roseberry's horses. They say he's a regular chumpkin."

"Indeed! Perhaps they're right. However, you asked me. I can only add that I heard Lord Roseberry himself tell what you term a chumpkin to back his horse."

"Depend upon it, if it was all right, he would not let you overhear his conversation. Mum would then be his game. Why, there's a lot in that race! I'll bet you a pony Lord Roseberry don't win it."

"Really! I am not accustomed to bet in railway carriages with strangers."

"There's my card. Fact is, you ain't game to bet."

"I think you'll lose your money, but as you challenge me let it be a bet. You'll see me in the stewards' enclosure at the course. I have no cards with me."

"Agreed! It's a bet. I bet you an even pony against Chevronel for the Welter Cup. But what's your name, young fellow?"

"Primrose. Sometimes I'm otherwise addressed."

"All right, young Primrose; pay and receive after the race."

The companions separated at the station. Chevronel won in a canter, and the commercial received the following morning a short note by a messenger from the stewards' stand: "Mr. Primrose (Lord Roseberry) would feel obliged by Mr.——— handing to his servent £25, which his lordship will have much pleasure in forwarding as a donation to the Commercial Travellers' Orphan Asylum."

The "bagman" paid his money, looking very crestfallen, and was heard to ejaculate, "Done! Who on earth would have dreamt that the good-looking, affable young fellow, whom I imagined was a chumpkin, was in fact none other than the Earl of Roseberry, giving me a good honest tip about his own horse, by which I was fool enough to lose £25? Anyway, he's a regular trump, and he's right — I'm the chumpkin after all!"

Accepted Insult.

She—"And knowing my sentiments on the subject, did that odious Mr. Binks insult you by offering you a drink?"

He—"That's what Mr. Binks did."

She—"And how did you resent it?"

He (meekly)—"I swallowed the insult."

Puzzling.

When Bilkins was away from home on a long business trip he got a letter from his wife that still puzzles him. It ended thus: "Baby is well and lots brighter than she used to be. Hoping you are the same. I remain, Your loving wife."

Hush It Up.

"Congratulations!"

"For what?"

"I hear one of your exhibits took a prize at the dog and poultry show."

"Well, keep still about it. I entered a Skye terrier, and he took first prize as a Mongolian Pen.

CAMERON HIGHLANDERS.

The Sergeant's Story.

The Cameron Highlanders fought at Waterloo throughout the three glorious days of June, and they were "particularly mentioned" by Wellington in his famous despatch of June 19, addressed to Lord Bathurst. Fortunate in their opportunities, they have been fortunate also in winning the praise of poets. Byron, in "Childe Harold," has consecrated their immortality in a famous stanza:—

And wild and high the "Cameron's gathering" rose.

Here sounds the high note of romance, and bravely the Highlanders could echo it. But war does not always rest at the lofty plane of story, and we can sometimes realise it most clearly in homelier touches.

After the battle it is said that the 79th stripped the cuirasses off the dead Frenchmen and used them for cooking its rations. They were good enough frying-pans, though the bullet-holes let something escape. But some Belgian soldiers who passed by while the cooking was in progress, and seeing the cuirasses, went off with the legend that the Highlanders were cannibals, and no doubt the legend, which it is a pity to disturb, is repeated unto this day.

One other piece of comedy is worth remembrance. When the allied armies were in Paris Sergeant Campbell of the 79th was taken with others to the Elysee to be shown to the Emperor Alexander, and it is thus that he tells the tale himself. "The Emperor made a very minute inspection of us," he writes, "and his curiosity led him to call upon me, as being the most robust of the party, to step to the front, . . . As soon as I stepped to the front I was surrounded by the astonished nobility, and the emperor commenced his inspection and questions as follows:—First, he examined my appointments and drew my sword..... Second, he examined my hose, gaiters, legs, and pinched my skin, thinking I wore something under my kilt, and had the curiosity to lift my kilt up to my navel, so that he might not be deceived. The questions were:—If I was present at the actions of June 16, 17, and 18? How many officers and men the regiment lost? . . Whether I was in Egypt? If I wore the kilt in winter, or if I did not feel cold in that season? If I was married? If my parents were alive?" Thus it was that the Highlanders seemed beyond the general experience of mankind.

MIRIAM WATCHES OVER BABY MOSES.

Once upon a time there lived a little girl named Mariam. The bible does not tell us how old she was when she watched over her baby brother, Moses, but tradition says she was less than ten. When the mother of Moses heard that Pharaoh would kill all the little boys of the Israelities, she made a little boat of a basket and placed the baby therein and permitted it to float down the Nile among the reeds near the edge of the river.

And his sister, the bible says, stood afar off to see what would be done to him.

And so little Miriam ran along the river bank as her baby brother floated along the stream. She was on hand as though by mere accident when the king's daughter discovered the boat and the tiny sailor.

Miriam asked the princess: "Shall I go and and call to thee a nurse of the Hebrew women, that she may nurse the child for thee?"

The princess agreed and Miriam brought her own mother.

By and by Miriam grew to young womanhood. Her brother had become the leader, the emancipator of his people and following the destruction of Pharaoh's mighty host in the Red Sea, with timbrel in hand, she led the jubilant women of Israel in song and dance.

Mr. Waring and go to live with your mother."

"Leave Mr. Waring! Are you mad, John?"

"Sweetheart"—she spoke to Bubbins—"will you run into the garden and see if you can find me some white roses? You know the ones I love."

As the little girl flew off in delight, Mrs. Chalmers faced her husband.

"You mean to say you think I have been living with Hugh Waring since I left you?"

He took a step forward and caught roughly at her hand.

"Isn't it true?" he demanded.

The stern grasp of his fingers hurt, but his wife did not wince.

"How dare you ask me such a question?" she answered proudly. "Do you suppose that, even had I loved him, Hugh would ever have wronged me? Can you believe that I would ever wrong Bubbins?"

"Beatrice!"

She started to find her husband kneeling at her side. Before she could speak he had taken her hands in his with remorseful tenderness.

"Oh, my darling! What a brute I have been! What a fool, from the very beginning! Pity and forgive—forgive, Beatrice. I am sorry, little girl, sorry with all my soul. I have never ceased to love you in spite of all I believed to be true. Come back to me.

She looked down at him with sad, tender eyes. Then, rising, put her hands in his and drew him to his feet.

"You will—you will come back?" passionately. "Dear, my dear, I want you so," and he folded her unresisting form in his arms.

* * * * *

"Mumty," came a little voice, five minutes later, "here's the white wodes. Why, you're laughin' again! How quick Daddy's made you well. I knowed he could."

"Godd bless you, Bubbins," said Daddy.

THE MARRIAGE LAW.

The question of the marriage laws of Canada, has, owing to a recent decision in Montreal, come as a major topic before the Provincial Synod of the Anglican Church in Canada which met a few days ago in London. It has been referred to a committee including able jurists to recommend legislation of such a sort as will secure that marriage once celebrated in good faith shall not be liable to annulment for ecclesiastical irregularities. A report recently adopted by the synod of Toronto seems to assume that by that judgment the recent Ne temere decree had been adopted in toto into our jurisprudence. This could well be gathered from the attitude of the Roman Catholic authorities. Upon the promulgation of the decree in question the Archbishop of Montreal circulated a pamphlet setting forth its requirements under the title, 'The New Marriage Law.' There are requirements in the decree, however, which could not be held by any court. It is claimed, for instance, that a person baptized into the Roman Church, or once, in any way, an adherent of it, would necessarily remain under its jurisdiction forever. There are, however, well known legal means by which any one can emancipate himself from the authority of that church. This is necessary in the case of persons having property liable to taxation for church purposes. And even without any act of manumission, we have never heard of a case in which a person, having no property, known to be living outside of the Church, has been held to be for purposes of marriage, legally a member of it. We have never heard of a case when a marriage in which one of the parties was not a Roman Catholic has been held by the courts to be under the control of the Roman Catholic Church.

In discussing this matter the Montreal Witness thinks that the common contention is that the marriage should be by the pastor of one of the parties or at least under the usages and according to the regulations of the church to which one of them belongs. The recent decision was not in any way affected by the Ne temere decree, although no doubt any increased stringency of regulation which that decree contains would by the very promulgation of that decree become, under the same sort of ruling, the law of the province as far as marriages between Roman Catholics are concerned. That ruling, however, contradicts that of Judge Archibald in the Delpit case. Going into the matter with very great care and learning, that eminent authority concluded that neither the code, nor the authority of England since the session of the country, nor of this country under the French regime required any religious ceremony as an essential of the validity of marriage, and that our law was enacted without reference to the religious beliefs of any section of the population but as a general law to secure the publicity of marriage and the authenticity of proof. In taking this ground Judge Archibald surprised many who had been well taught in the view that as regards the marriage of Roman Catholics at least the law of the church was the law of the land.

The report to which we have alluded makes the claim that ministers of any denomination are empowered by law to perform marriages in the case of all applicants, and that the Ne temere and the recent decision are in contempt of that civil right. This is precisely the matter at issue. Under force of the principle recently enunciated, by no means for the first time, the powers of ministers to marry do not extend, in the province of Quebec, beyond the ranks of their own denominations, and it has been held and might be held, that they are limited to their own flocks. No Protestant marriage has ever been impugned on this ground, but we can see no reason why, if two Presbyterians had been married by a Methodist minister, they might not, in middle life, be declared unmarried, and their children illegitimate. We, in this province, have all lived under these absurd and perilous conditions from the beginning till now, without suspecting the danger in which we and our children or more remote descendants might be living or going to live.

The demand of the Toronto committee seems to be that it is the natural right of men and women to marry as they choose, without dictation from their own church, and that therefore Protestant ministers should be allowed to marry Roman Catholics. This claim, in so far as it is accounted a right of the Protestant ministers, seems to have little foundation. But in so far as it is based on the natural right of persons to marry whom they choose, we think it is eminently in the public interest that provision should be made for people, competent to choose, to get legally married without being required to conform to any ecclesiastical rule. It is obviously demanded by public interest that marriages performed by mutual consent should not be able to be declared null by reason of ecclesiastical irregularity. It is obviously necessary that the right to marry among Protestants, who are practically all of one faith and practice, should be clearly made independent of denomination. On general principles religious opinions and affiliations are none of the state's business, while it is the state's business to prescribe the conditions of legal marriage, and itself to provide for its ratification in a way that as far as law is concerned, will be unquestionable and indisputable, letting the parties associate that with whatever solemnities their church or sympathies may observe. In this demand the report in question will have the support of most of the people of all churches.

NO GENERAL ELECTION YET

Toronto, Sept. 30.—"I have on more than one occasion had an opportunity of consenting to join the new government at Ottawa, but have declined and have decided that whatever public life remains for me will be spent in the services of the people of Ontario."

In this manner Sir James Whitney Premier of Ontario, disposed of the rumors that he is about to join the forces under the Premier-elect, Mr. Borden. Sir James returned to Toronto this morning accompanied by Hon. J. J. Foy from the conference with Mr. Borden in Ottawa and both were at their desks as usual all day.

"Probably the Premier has something to say. I have nothing, "was the reply of Hon. Mr. Foy regarding the Ottawa visit.

"We discussed matters of a personal and public nature and under the circumstances I see no reason why I should not speak frankly in the matter," Sir James replied in answer to a question as to the nature of his mission to Ottawa.

ASKED TO JOIN BORDEN CABINET.

"I have had an opportunity more than once of consenting to join the new Government at Ottawa, but on each occasion I have declined.

"Did the circumstances permit, I should appreciate the honor of serving under Mr. Borden.

"However, the circumstances as I view them, will not permit me to do so. After the repeated expressions of confidence of the people of the Province in the Government I think I owe it to them to continue in their service and so I've decided that whatever public life remains to me will be spent in the service of Ontario."

At this point Sir James was asked what was the likelihood of Hon. Mr. Cochrane going to Ottawa. He replied: "I would rather say nothing until Mr. Cochrane returns to the city early next week.

Sir James, continuing, said: "Besides discussing the situation generally with Mr. Borden, we devoted considerable time to the consideration of questions of policy—more or less now—as indicated by Mr. Borden during his campaign and which will materially affect the Provinces.

Mostly Due to Breakdown in Human Machine

All who walk the earth in safety and apparently in a normal condition of health are not physically qualified to be aviators. This is demonstrated by Dr. R. Moulinier who writes as follows

"The rapid ascent to great altitudes exposes the body to conditions different from any terrestral ones. Mountain climbing offers some analogy, but it is different in the fact that the transition from the high atmospheric transition of the sea level to a low pressure takes place much more slowly. The author has reported some interesting observations on the blood pressure of aviators who have ascended to high altitudes. On alighting after ascending to a height of 1200 to 2000 meters the aviator presents cyanosis of the extremities, probably from the low temperature of the high regions of the atmosphere.' '

This means that the extremities turn a dusky blue color. Often there is congestion of the inner surface of the eyes. The pulse is quickened, but there is no irregularity of the heart's action, nor bleeding from the nose. There is often slight headache and ringing in the ears. Sometimes there is a tendency to sleep, and this may be felt even during flight. Rising to a great height and coming down again always increases th blood pressure, as the writer explains.

Power From Sea Waves.

At the recent meeting of the British Association the question of economical production of power from tides and winds was again under discussion, and it has been taken up widely by scientific journals in Europe "La Revue Scientifique" calls attention to a system of utilling the power of sea waves to actuate a dynamo which has been employed during the last six months at the mouth of the river Gironde. An air chamber is connected with a well, which communicates with the sea at a depth below the level of the lowest tides By the advance and recession of the waves changes of pressure are produced in the air chamber, and a system of valves enables the resulting air currents to be applied to rotating a kind of turbine. It is said that the apparatus works equally well in calm and in stormy weather.

LONG CRUISE TO SEEK A DOCTOR

Steam Whaler Sebastian Voyages Five Days With Injured Japanese to Get Medical Assistance.

For five days the steam whaler Sebastian chased about the northern coast of British Columbia recently in search for a doctor. A Japanese employed at the whaling station at Rose Harbor, while sewing a patch brought back the needle with a jerk and poked it into his left eyeball. He was hurried on board the Sebastian and Capt. Anderson started for Bella Bella, where the nearest doctor was understood to reside. When the Sebastian arrived it was found that the doctor had gone off with the villans to the Rivers Inlet salmon canneries and his whereabouts on the inlet was uncertain. The Sebastian then started back to the islands, Capt. Anderson thinking to encounter the Princess Beatrice at Rose Harbor. The C. P. R. steamer was late and the Sebastian started off again. Then her propeller became loose and the injured Japanese was landed at Jedway. After five days of cruising a doctor was found at Queen Charlotte city and after receiving medical treatment the Japanese was sent south on the Princess Beatrice. Part of his eye has been removed.

Branch Banks Curtailing Loans in West.

Recent reports from the West indicate that the leading Canadian banks, with a view of getting ready to handle the bumper wheat crop that is expected, are curtailing their loans just as rapidly as possible. Such action has already caused quite a little disturbance at some points because it has affected real estate booms.

To say that the action of the banks has been decidedly unpopular throughout the Western country is to put it mildly, mainly because the majority of the people out there have got so accustomed to trading on other peoples' money that they fail to realise that the banks have the right to curtail their lines of credit.

During the next few weeks the action of the banks will likely cause a good deal of inconvenience, but, as they figure it out, it is more important for them at the present time to get ready to handle the actual needs of the Western country, even at the cost of a temporary setback to the land boom that has affected almost every section.

THE MINSTREL BOY DIES AT A GREEN OLD AGE

An aged wandering singer, rhymster and story teller, who was said to be a descendant of one famed in the days of minstrelsy, died recently in the hospital in County Meath, Ireland. He was the last of the old school of so-called poets who lived by story telling and verse making at farmhouse firesides. His name was Thomas Smith, and, according to report, one of his ancestors wore cap and bells and served as a jester to a prince. In his boyhood Smith, it is said, wore a faded doublet of alternating stripes of yellow and blue, which had been handed down to him as a relic of his great-grandfather's fame as a countryside funmaker.

His stories for the most part had to do with the fairies, and always presented the good fairy in the part of straightening tangles and easing the path to happy marriage. His visits throughout the country were made with scheduled regularity, and an evening with the poet was the occasion for a gathering of young folk. Like most poets he was not thrifty and died poor.

COLD IN THE HEAD

What's the sense in sneezing and Sniffling, dosing with purgatives, or bothering with atomizers?

Catarrhozone

A convenient inhaler treatment is the proper remedy to cure quickly and pleasantly.

Sensible people long ago abandoned the idea of "working off" a cold by means of laxatives and purgatives for the simple reason that the cure is as bad as the disease itself.

To cure a cold in about ten minutes' time use Catarrhozone. It is aromatic, delightful to inhale, clean and very simple to use.

Catarrhozone is a vegetable antiseptic, and perfectly safe and harmless. Even children and infants can use it. The vapor is inhaled at the mouth, and after passing through the respiratory organs is exhaled slowly through the nostrils.

Catarrhozone never disappoints, it stops sneezing, coughing and running at the eyes, by a few inhalations. Inflammation, congestion and all irritation disappear under the influence of Catarrhozone more quickly than can be told.

C. B College, of Clarence Street, London, says :—"I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything with such quick results as I derived from five minutes' use of Catarrhozone. I am delighted to find a remedy that cures colds in a few minutes. Catarrhozone cures every time."

To carry a Catarrhozone Inhaler in the pocket means you won't have colds, catarrh or any lung or throat trouble. It keeps these diseases away and is warranted to protect you against all the ills of winter. Complete outfit, with Hard Rubber Pocket Inhaler costs $1.00. Small size, 25 cents. Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

POPE PIUS INTERESTED

Rome, Sept. 30.—Pope Pius to-day ordered Cardinal Merry del Val, the Papal Secretary of State, to communicate to him immediately upon receipt all messages regarding the Tripoli affair.

When the Pontiff read a despatch to-day saying that all the Italian missionaries had refused to leave Tripoli and that they remained under the protection of the Italian flag at the Italian consulate, His Holiness was considerably affected, and falling to his knees on the Prie-Dieu exclaimed: "Let us pray for those [illegible] diers of God and religion.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

dog is hung. But, if I weaken in a pinch, don't say you weren't forewarned."

He laughed. "You underestimate yourself. A man doesn't need an oversupply of nerve to play a man's part in this world. In fact, the fellow who hunts trouble for the sake of showing off his nerve is generally a damned fool with a yellow streak in him that he's deadly afraid some one will discover. After all," he reflected, "there may be nothing more to cope with than the dreary monotony of snow-bound days, and nights when the frost bites to the bone. Your part will merely be to keep tab on Mr Montell when I am not about. He is afraid of me. If he can't attain his purpose by underhand methods, he may consider the risk too great. But that we cannot foresee. Our problem, now, is to reach the Sicannie River, as soon as we can. There we need never fear meeting a scarlet jacket. It stands us in hand to be shy of those gentlemen, now."

"Amen to that," I responded fervently.

We lay back in the shadow, smoking, speaking a few words now and then, till the moon came peeping from behind the horizon, shedding its pale light on the strange, red earth of the Blood Flats. Then we saddled and packed, and bore away from the lone butte, holding to a course slightly west of the North Star.

CHAPTER XI.

A Trick of the "Trade."

A certain consecutive number of days — weeks, to be more exact — ensued, of which there is little to relate, save that we traveled steadily northward, seeing no human except from afar. Once or twice we came in sight of Hudson's Bay posts, but these Barreau was careful to avoid. It was not the season when Indians were abroad in the forests he told me, when I wondered that in all that vast land not a single lodge appeared. They were gathered in summer villages by the trading posts. Hence we crossed few fresh trails, and bespoke no man, white or red, in the four weeks of our journey.

Before the end of it, I was hardened to the saddle; and to many other things. Twice we swam big rivers—the North Saskatchewan, and, farther on, the Peace — to say nothing of lesser streams that were both deep and swift. Our food supply dwindled to flour and tea. But, with game on every hand, we suffered no hardship in that respect. The getting of meat Barreau left to me. Strangely enough, after one or two virulent attacks of "buck fever," when the rifle barrel wobbled in a most unseemly manner and the bullet therefrom flew disgracefully wide of the mark, I got into the way of bringing down whatever I shot at. Between my eye and the rifle sights and the shoulder of a deer some mysterious, rapid process of alignment seemed invariably to take place.

"Why not?" Barreau contended, when I remarked upon this sudden attaining to marksmanship. "There are the sights. Your eyes are clear, and your arm steady. That's all there is to good shooting; that and a little experience in judging distance. Some men handle guns all their lives, and never make a decent shot other than by accident. Whenever you run across such an individual, you can be sure there is some defect in his vision or he lacks muscular control over his weapon."

That trip taught me many things besides holding a rifle true; how to build a camp fire in wet weather and dry; little labor-saving tricks of the axe; the name and nature of this timber and that; the cooking of plain food; a subtle sense of direction fundamental trail wisdom that I was wholly ignorant of, but which a man must know if he would cope with the wilderness of wood and plain. I profited as much by noting how he did these things, as by direct instruction. Nor does a man forget easily the lessons he is taught in the school of necessity.

With Peace River behind us, we edged nearer to the base of the mountains, passing through a stretch of country alive with moose and caribou and deer. Bear — monster silver-tips, by their track — frightened our picketed horses of a night. The moist earth bordering every pond and spring was marked with hoof and claw. The shyer fur-bearing animals, Barreau told me, surrounded us unseen. Barring a thickly wooded plateau south of the Peace, we passed through no forest oppressively dense. Our way led over ridges and swales; timbered, to be sure, but opening out here and there into little grassy parks. Once or twice forbidding areas of dead and down trees turned us aside. Again, a vast swamp enforced a detour. But I cannot recall any features of marked unpleasantness, except the one thing that no man who crosses the North Saskatchewan can escape — the flies.

Mosquitoes of all sizes, equipped with the keenest tools for their nefarious business, green-headed bulldog flies that plagued our horses beyond endurance, black gnats, flying ants, and other winged pests assailed us day and night in hungry swarms. Some day that particular portion of the Northwest will be a rich field for entomologists and manufacturers of mosquito netting.

We held our own with the buzzing hosts, however; and when our flour sack had reached a stage of ultimate limpness, and our tea was reduced to a tiny package in one corner of the shrunken pack, we rode out of a long belt of quivering poplars and drew up on the brow of a sharp pitch that fell away to the Sicannie River.

"What in the name of the devil has been to the fore here?" Barreau exclaimed. He slid over in his saddle, staring at the scene below.

Down on the flat, just back from the river brink, I made out a clutter of small log buildings enclosed within a stockade. In the centre of the enclosure a half dozen men busied themselves about the gaunt walls of a larger building. Logs and poles strewed the ground about its four sides. The ring of axe blades on timber came floating up to us. I saw nothing amiss.

"What's wrong?" I asked.

"Nothing that matters greatly," Barreau replied. "Only that ruin you see was a fine upstanding storehouse, when I left here in the early spring. It seems to be undergoing a process of regeneration for which I cannot account. Likewise, I see no trace of a stable which stood at the west end of the stockade. There are no men missing, by my count; so I dare say no great thing has happened. Anyway, this is the end of our trail for a while. We may as well get down there. I am a bit curious to know the meaning of this."

Presently we were dismounting within the stockade. And as we greeted the men, who stopped their work to hail us, it was plain what form of disaster had overtaken the Montell establishment. The standing walls of sixteen-inch logs were smoke-blackened, and scorched by fire. The inside was gutted to the floor joists; the roof gone. A pile of charred poles and timbers, laid to one side, testified mutely to cause and effect.

"Well, Ben," Barreau addressed one man who came forward. "How did it happen?"

"She burned, that's all. 'N the stable, too," Ben made laconic answer. He drew a plug of tobacco from his hip pocket, looked it over with a speculative eye, bit off a corner, and returned it to the pocket. As he masticated the piece contemplatively, Barreau watched him, with a whimsical smile. "Yes, sir," Ben went on, "she took fire in the night, with the boys sleepin' in the doghouse, an' me in the front part uh the store. It started to rain pretty tol'able hard, or I reckon there wouldn't be nothin left but a pile uh ashes."

"In the night, eh?" Barreau repeated thoughtfully. The three of us walked around the building, and peered in through a charred doorway.

"Quite so," Barreau continued. "Save anything? There wasn't much to save, I know."

"Most all the stuff," Ben replied. "Injun name uh Tall Trees drifted in day after yuh all left. He traded out most everythin' we could spare. An the pelts was easy to get out. Some grub was burned. Not much, though. We got plenty left."

"A very nasty thing, fire," Barreau commented. "How do you think it started, Ben?"

"I ain't thinkin'," said Ben. "I know."

"The dence you do." Neither Barreau's tone nor face bespoke more than the mildest surprise. "Had a fire going, I suppose, and a live coal flew out. Eh?"

"Nary coal," Ben declared. "Some feller climbed the stockade, cut open one uh them deerskin winders, touched a match to a bucket uh oil an' gunpowder, boosted it through the window — an' there yuh are. That there's no dream, let me tell yuh."

"And then went on his way rejoicing," Barreau suggested.

"I reckon he did, all right," Ben owned, looking rather downcast at the thought. "I never got to see nothin' but his tracks. If I'd seen him he wouldn't 'a' done much rejoicin'."

"I dare say," Barreau laughed. "Meantime, the joke is on the party of the first part, it seems to me. Logs are plenty. You have ample time to put on a roof and lay some sort of floor. It would be a different matter if we should be burned out after our goods arrive; but this is a cheap lesson. I see you have put up a good stock of hay. That is fortunate, for they are bringing more stock than we figured on. Altogether, Ben, you haven't done so badly. Now hustle us some decent grub—it's near noon, and this boy and I have been living on straight meat for days."

Thus, we were once more fairly at our ease; the bugaboo of arrest and subsequent lying in jail seemed a remote contingency. The confidence born of successful escape stilled any misgivings I might have had as to the future.

We lay at the post, doing naught but eat, and sleep, and watch the long store-house creep higher, log by log, till the skeleton of a roof took form above the blackened walls. At night the eight of us would sprawl around a fire in the open, talking of everything under the sun, sometimes playing with a soiled and tattered deck of cards which these exiles cherished as their dearest possession. If we were in hostile territories, no hint of apprehension cropped out in our intercourse; except as one or another referred casually to incidents past now a fragmentary sentence that hinted of sharp action, or a joking allusion to the "H. B. C." It was all a the day's work with them. But I noticed that each night one man stood

GALLANT MEN.

More Attacks on Laws That Help Women.

Following the gallant and heroic attack of a few miserly profiteers upon the women's eight-hour law in California, notice has been given by some of the women fighters in Ohio and Missouri that they intend to test the laws enacted in those states recently establishing a maximum of 54 hours per week for female labor.

Although the best medical authorities in the world agree that modern industrial conditions are shattering the health and ruining the lives of countless thousands of the weaker sex and that shorter hours of toil are imperative as a protection to posterity and although I notice that these same greedy employers, who are everlastingly demanding that workingmen obey the laws, studiously avoid placing their own women and children on the treadmill to grind out profits, they are determined that the women and children of the working class shall not escape with an extra hour or two of freedom, so they are going to fight in the courts to quash this "special privilege."

Dog's Eye Grafted on Man's.

That a person totally blind from ophthalmia, even from birth, can be made to see by having a portion of a dog's eye grafted on his own was the startling communication made by Dr. Borsch, an American oculist, in a paper read before the meeting of the French Ophthalmological Society recently.

Dr. Borsch explained that as a result of blindness from ophthalmia, as also from some other causes, the cornea, which is the transparent membrane in front of the eye, becomes opaque, and in such a case the only chance of restoring sight is to replace the defective cornea by a healthy one.

To perform this feat Dr. Borsch first operates on a dog and lays back from its eye the conjunctiva or skin of the eyeball surrounding the cornea. He removes a portion or the latter and places it aside in blood serum. He then performs the same operation on the patient's eye, removing part of the front of the eye of the same size as the cornea taken from the animal.

The dog's cornea is now placed in position on the human eye and secured with stitches of the finest possible silk, the surrounding skin, which had been laid back, being brought into place over the edge of the cornea and also sewn.

The new graft unites with the eye in a few days, aided by a temporary glass cover to keep it in shape and injections of serum to stimulate vitality.

MORE LABOR MEN IN NEXT PARLIAMENT.

Attraction of $2000 Per Annum is Great in Great Britain.

An interesting phase of the British government's proposal to pay salaries to members of parliament in the future at the rate of $2000 per annum is the lamentations of the privileged classes. They say that with salaries about four times greater than the wages they can earn in the shops, factories and mines dangling before their eyes as prizes the labor persons will struggle about ten times harder to be elected to the house of commons.

As the labor party members are all radicals or socialists, the aristocrats, landlords and money lords are complaining that their inherited "rights" will be seriously menaced and that evil days are descending upon their houses. J. Keir Hardie, the socialist leader of the labor party, very politely agrees with the privileged personages for once in his lifetime. Hardie says the number of labor men in the next parliament will be at least doubled and progressive legislation will be put through.

Won the Bet.

They were sitting in the smoking room of the hotel, and the conversation was about endurance as shown by men of the past and present. During a lull in the conversation a young commercial traveller said:—

"Any man, if he has the will-power, can endure pain or fatigue: I know I can."

There was silence for a moment, and an older man replied: —

"I'll wager a dinner you can't hold your foot — boot on — in a bucket of hot water as long as I can."

The offer was taken, and two buckets of hot water were brought in, as well as a kettle of boiling water to raise the temperature to the point of endurance. In went a foot of each contestant. Soon the young man's face began to pale, but the other called for more boiling water.

"What on earth is your leg made of, sir?" said the former, suddenly taking his foot from the bucket.

"Cork, sir — cork!" was the cool answer, and the other left that he had indeed lost.

Darwin Caught On.

When Charles Darwin was visiting the country house of a friend the two boys of the family thought they would play a joke on the scientist. So they caught a butterfly, a grasshopper a beetle and a centipede, and out of these creatures they made a strange composite insect. They took the centipede's body, the butterfly's wings, the grasshopper's legs and the beetle's head and they glued them together carefully. Then, with their new bug in a box, they knocked at Darwin's door.

"We caught this bug in a field," they said. "Can you tell us what kind of a bug it is, Mr. Darwin?"

Darwin looked at the bug and then he looked at the boys. He smiled slightly.

"Did you notice whether it hummed when you caught it, boys?" he asked.

"Yes," they answered, nudging one another.

"Then," said Darwin, "it is a humbug."

TO CROSS THE CONTINENT.

Berlin, Ont., Sept. 25.—Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Debourgneuf of this town start Thursday morning on a journey to Los Angeles, California, a distance of 2,626 miles, on horse back. They expect to reach their destination within eighty days. Mr. Debourgneuf is a former newspaper man and rancher.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE SECRET OF POWER.

Sincerity is the Real Secret of Success.

Take from a man every gift but sincerity; let him be blind and deaf and lame, let him stammer in his speech, lack education and good manners; handicap him as you please, so you leave him sincerity, and he will command respect and attention. His work will endure. The world, which is always looking for the real thing, will gladly overlook all his infirmities.

In every relation of life, sincerity is the secret of power. The salesman who does not himself sincerely believe in the merits of his goods will generally be a failure. The business man who sets about to fool other people must end — as he has, in fact, begun — by making a fool of himself. The clergyman who preaches anything that his soul does not approve need look no farther to explain empty pews.

There is no virtue that more men believe in and fewer men practice. Many of us, it may be fair to say, are busily engaged in the utterly futile attempt to run a bluff on the rest of the world. From pillow shams and false fronts to imitation marble buildings and watered stocks, things are largely what they seem.

The chief anxiety of too many people is to keep up appearances. If they are poor, they must at any rate appear to be rich. If they are ignorant, they at least affect culture.

Be a real man — not a shoddy sport or a sham aristocrat. Be sincere with yourself, your friends, and your work. With sincerity, a few talents and a little strength may go far. Without it, genius itself must fail!

TALENT AND TACT

Talent is something, but tact is everything; talent is serious, sober, grave, and respectable. Tact is all that and more, too; it is not a sixth sense, but it is the life of all the five: it is the open eye, the quick ear, the judging taste, the keen smell, the lively touch; it is the interpreter of all riddles, the surmounter of all difficulties, the remover of all obstacles; it is useful in solitude, for it shows a man his way into the world; it is useful in society, for it shows him his way through the world.

Talent is power—tact is skill; talent is weight—tact is momentum; talent knows what to do—tact knows how to do it; talent makes a man respectable,—tact makes him respected; talent is wealth—tact is ready money.

For all the practical purposes of life tact carries it against talent ten to one.

Talent is fit for employment, but tact is fittest, for it has a knack of slipping into place, with a sweet silence and gliboess of movement as a billiard ball insinuates itself into the pocket, it seems to know everything without learning anything — it has served an invisible and extemporaneous apprenticeship, it wants no drilling—it never ranks in the awkward squad — it has no left hand, no deaf ear, no blind side — it puts on no wondrous wisdom, it has no air of profundity, but plays with the details of place as dexterously as a well taught hand flourishes over the keys of the pianoforte, it has all the air of commonplace, and all the force and power of genius.

Home of Pre-Historic Race.

"Cathedral Cave," is the name that has been given to a vast cavity in the earth eight miles south of Ash Fork, in which some of the most awe-inspiring works of nature, in the form of stalactites and stalagmites, that the eye of man ever beheld, also evidences that the place was used both as a burial ground and as a dwelling by some prehistoric race, have been discovered.

The discovery was made accidentally when a picnic party was going through a large cave that has been well known for years.

From the floor were picked up human bones and articles which indicated that the cave had been used as a burial ground by the mysterious people who inhabited the south-west before the Astecs. Implements and pottery were strewn about in profusion.

It is his belief that the place was also used as a refuge from enemies and was well stocked with ordinary domestic utensils.

One of the greatest collections of relics of primitive times that was ever unearthed can be taken from the cave.

A Novel Marriage Ceremony

Marriage by telephone, with the officiating clergyman in one place, the bridegroom in another and the bride in still another, is an innovation in weddings.

The Rev. H. B. Minton, sitting in his study, united in marriage George Prentice, at his home in Northboro and Miss Mary De Wit, who at that moment, surrounded by relatives and friends, was sitting in the parlor of her home, at Blanchard.

Coin is a small town five miles north of Blanchard, and Northboro, three miles west of Blanchard, is about the same distance southwest of the pastor's home.

At the appointed hour the minister got the DeWitt and Prentice homes on "the line," and when everything was ready the bride and bridegroom, each holding a phone to their respective ears, were married.

When they answered, "We do," the parson said, "Join hands over the wire." The rejoinder was: "We have."

The clergyman replied: "I pronounce you man and wife."

"What a Nut"

Senator La Follette, himself one of the directest of speakers has a natural horror of speeches of the rambling, boring kind. In a recent session a certain Senator, after elaborating in a speech of two hours a statement that would have been better made in a speech of two minutes, concluded: "And that's the situation, gentlemen, in a nutshell."

"Gracious," said Senator La Follette, sotto voce, "what a nut!"

PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper National Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

High Class Advertising.

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd has been 256,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

D. CRANSTON SHOT AT RIMOUSKI, QUE.

Mark Hambourg's Business Manager Met Death in Mysterious Way — An Accident or Murder?—No one Knows Who Fired the Shot or Where Bullet Came From.

Quebec, Que., Sept. 29.—A mysterious tragedy occurred at Rimouski last evening, at 8.15 on the arrival of the I.C.R. Maritime Express, en route for Halifax.

Mr. Dudley Canston, of London, England, impressario of the famous Russian pianist, Mark Hambourg, who had just arrived from Europe on board the Empress of Britain, was killed by a bullet that struck his head. The author of this tragedy is unknown, and no one can say if this is an accident or a murder. There was at that time a political demonstration going on. The new Conservative member for Rimouski, Mr. H. G. Boulay, was being given a send-off by his friends at the station. Suddenly a detonation was heard, and a man fell with a bullet in his head. He was taken into the Lenghan Hotel, Where Drs. Belisle and Drapeau attended to him. Rev. Mr. Pelletier, curate of Rimouski, was also called near the unfortunate victim, although Mr. Canston was a Protestant. The latter died an hour after. He was going to organize concerts for Mark Hambourg in the Maritime Provinces. He was married, and father of two children. The coroner's inquest will take place to-day.

Real Estate, Mining and Industrial Investments

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Pearless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realise that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Couldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth $0 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

$30 cash, or $6 down and $6 a month for four months, buys 100 shares.

$60 cash, or $12 down and $12 a month for four months, buys 200 shares.

$120 cash, or $24 down and $24 a month for four months, buys 400 shares.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

DEATH OF FENIAN RECALLS OUTRAGE.

Joe Casey Center of a Gun Powder Plot, Passes Away in Paris.

Irishmen all over the world have heard of the Clerkenwell explosion that formed the climax of the Fenian outrages of 1867 in London. The story is recalled by the death in Paris of Joe Casey, who was a star actor in the terrible drama.

He and a fellow-Fenian named Burke were locked up in Clerkenwell prison, but the Fenians determined to liberate them. A barrel of gunpowder was placed against the wall of the jail by Michael Barrett, aided by Casey's two brothers, Pat and Andrew.

They planned to blow a hole in the wall at the time the prisoners were exercising and then help the pair to escape in the confusion. But the authorities smelled trouble and shifted the exercise to an inner yard.

Bang went the powder just before 6 in the afternoon, killing six bystanders outright and fatally injuring 11 others, while no less than 103 lost eyes or limbs. It cost $100,000 to repair the surrounding property.

A few weeks later Michael Barrett was denounced by another prisoner named Mullany, arrested and hanged. The Caseys got clear away to France under the name of Potter. Joe Casey and Burke were acquitted at their trial, and Joe joined his brothers in the French capital. They all fought for France in the seige of Paris in 1870 and Joe became almost as Parisian as a Frenchman.

FALSE IDEALS

"Grabali Too Often the Height of Ambition.

False ideals of happiness haunt the ways of men and lead them on to danger and destruction through the siren song of fantasy. One markes his of wealth. He has enough now for all the purposes of refined living; but he wants that extra ,that margin, by which enough may be broadened out into excess, and refinement may be made to include frantic luxury and insolent ostentation. "When I have so much, I shall be content," he says to himself. But he is never content. If he gets a hundred thousand pounds, he wants two; if two, three; and so on till he covets a million which then, when compassed, shall positively be the term and boundary of his desires. But the million spreads out and rolls on, as the hundred thousand had done before it.

THE BOY ON THE FARM.

Kindness Does More Than Harshness for Future Farmer.

There is the making of a good man in the boy on the farm, but he can be irretrievably spoiled in the making, if too much is put upon him; if his shoulders are loaded with blame for everything that goes wrong indoors and out; if everybody feels privileged to give him orders, and if he is regarded as a mere machine without muscles to tire, sensibilities to wound, intellect to stimulate, or a soul to inspire with longings for better things. Those into whose hands are committed these youths ordained to eat their bread in the sweat of their faces, have a responsibility, above that of merely providing food, shelter and clothing. An employer may be harboring an angel unawares, and whether this be true or not, there is laid upon him the duty of dealing justly and conscientiously with the lad.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

Electric Fixtures at First Cost.

We call the attention of the public to the advertisement of the Electrical Wiring, Fixture and Supply Company, 261 College street, Toronto, which is to be found in another columns. Those who contemplate changing their fixtures, as well as those who have electric wiring to do, should communicate with the company. By doing so they will procure fixtures at first cost—wholesale to all. Peterborough references as to the high quality of their fixtures given if desired.

Is Rapidly Recovering.

Mr. J. Halliday, who was injured at the new power house slew days ago, is out of all danger, and the doctor in charge states that his condition is rapidly improving.

DELIVERY OF THE TIMES.

Subscribers to The Times are asked to immediately report to the office every case of irregular or late delivery of their paper.

Hearty co-operation in this regard is appreciated because in no other way may such errors be remedied.

It is the determination of The Times to provide a prompt and regular delivery to its subscribers and the latter by reporting ALL complaints can do much to guarantee a perfect service.

Phone 164, or notify The Times Printing Co. by post card.

Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

CANADIAN PACIFIC IMPROVEMENTS.

New compartment cars. Commencing Wednesday night from Montreal, 10.45 p.m. train, and from North Toronto Thursday night, this week, 10 p.m., Peterboro' 12.10 a.m., splendid new compartment cars, with observation end, will be run every night in the week. The very latest improvements in sleeping car designs have been observed in the construction of these cars, every comfort, elegantly equipped, electric lighted. Reservations for compartments should be made early. These cars run between Montreal and North Toronto only. W. McIlroy, Agent.

Too Hoarse to Speak

An American Doctor Tells of the Grand Results Achieved With "Nerviline."

"I had a patient with Quinsy that I found great difficulty in curing," states Dr. Wilson. "Every time he caught cold or got chilled he suffered intensely from sore throat, huskiness, throat and chest soreness. After every attack his throat and chest seemed more sensitive. This patient lived in the country, and couldn't come to the city for treatment. I concluded that the best remedy would be an honest liniment, and because of its enormous sale and well-known merit, I advised 'Nerviline.' Morning, noon, and night Nerviline was rubbed over the neck and chest, and once a day diluted with water it was used as a gargle. In a day or two my patient reported an improvement, and by continuing the treatment with Nerviline he was cured. I can recommend Nerviline for breaking up colds, for chest tightness, throat inflammation, quinsy, tonsilitis and similar conditions."

NERVILINA CURES QUINSY

Not a druggist or doctor who has examined the formula of Nerviline who won't tell you how good it is—why it contains the best medicaments known to science and for general family use has no equal. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c

CITY AND DISTRICT

DASHES HERE AND THERE BY TIMES' REPORTERS.

For Rent.

Two Offices—newly fitted—$10 per month and $6 per month respectively Light, Lavatory and Heat supplied. Apply Drawer 1168, Peterborough.

Reporter Wanted.

We have an opening on The Times' staff for a reporter. A good chance for a bright, well-educated young man. Apply at business office.

Agents Wanted.

WANTED—Canvassing agents at once for the sale of "COMPENDUM of Everyday Wants," the book of general necessity, price $1.50; also for "The DEVIL'S BRIDE," a wonderful religious allegory, price $1.00. Either outfit sent postpaid for 10 cents. 50 per cent commission to agents. Big sellers. Address A. B. KUHLMAN, Publisher, 136 West Lake St. Chicago, Ill.

PIANO TUNING.

Mr. Werdes, piano tuner of E. F. Wilks & Co., Toronto, will be in Peterborough in a few days. Orders left at The Times' Bookstore will receive attention.

Assessors Have Finished.

The assessors have returned the assessment rolls for this year. The report will be published in to-morrow's Times.

Y.W.C.A. Gym. Classes.

All girls intending to join the evening gymnasium classes should be at the Y.W.C.A. this evening at eight o'clock. Miss Coventry will take her first class on the floor.

Met Last Night.

The Young People's Association of St. Andrew's church met last night, with Mr. Neil Rutherford, president, in the chair. Some important business in connection with the fall work was arranged.

A Contradiction.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., in a letter to the Bobcaygeon Independent denies the report that improvements in connection with the canal will not go on. He says: "I will do my utmost for the benefit of the North Country as elsewhere. I believe thoroughly in the doctrine that improvements should begin at home."

Distinguished Curlers Coming.

Local curlers will be interested in learning that the Royal Caledonian Club, of Scotland, which is coming to Canada on a visit this coming winter, will pay a visit to Peterborough. It is likely that the curling clubs of this district will be invited for the competitions, which will make up the programme. They will probably be here early in February.

New County Bridges.

The County Council is at present erecting two new bridges—one at Brown's Falls, over Eel's Creek, in Burleigh Township, and one over Indian River in Dummer Township, near Warminster cheese factory. The structures are of steel and cement the steel work being supplied by the Dickson Bridge Co., of Campbellford. The cement abutments were supplied by Messrs. Baptie Bros., of Lakefield.

Will Study for the Ministry.

Mr. Sandy Donaldson, formerly of this city, is renewing old acquaintances here before leaving for Montreal on the midnight C.P.R. train, where he intends studying for the ministry. He will enter McGill University, where he will prosecute his studies. His many Peterborough friends wish him every success.

A Sunday Wedding.

A very interesting event took place at the Park Street Baptist Church, on Sunday morning, when Mr. Walter S. Townsend and Miss Majory E. Goodwin were united in the holy bonds of matrimony at 10 o'clock, Rev. W. C. Riddiford officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend will reside at 536 Patterson street.

A Painful Accident.

Mr. Wm. Gillman, engineer of the steamer Stoney Lake, met with a severe accident a few days ago. He was assisting in transferring a steel girder from a railroad car to a scow when it dropped on his right foot, crushing it severely. Mr. Hillman's many friends hope for his speedy recovery.

Fined $40 and Costs.

Michael Scott, who was charged with assaulting Detective George Brodie, on a C.P.R. passenger train on September 25, while on its way between Montreal and Toronto, was yesterday fined $40 and costs by Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court. He pleaded guilty and was assessed the above amount, with $7.90 added. Scott had not the money so he will take one month in jail as an alternative.

Wandered From Home.

The bright little two year old son of Mr. J. T. C. Lang took into his head to see the city, and struck out from his home on Edinburgh street, about 10 o'clock in the morning. He was soon missed, and a search was started by the anxious parents. Mr. Lang notified the police, and they also joined in the search. About 4 o'clock in the evening he was discovered down near the C.G.E. gate having the time of his life with some other children in that locality, totally unconscious of the excitement he had created. Little Carl will be kept under closer surveillence hereafter.

Druggist Fined $100.

A local druggist was fined $100 and costs yesterday morning by Magistrate Dumble for selling an eight ounce bottle of alcohol to a man named Herbert Johnston on Sunday, September 24th, contrary to the provisions of the Liquor Act. The charge was laid by License Inspector Stewart. W. H. Moore, K.C., assisted in the prosecution, together with the License Inspector, while Mr. Basil D. Hall, of Hall, Hayes and Hall, conducted the defence. The case and its discussion aroused great interest among other drug dealers in the city the majority of whom were interested listeners of the trial. After hearing the evidence, the Magistrate found the defendent guilty and imposed a fine of $100.

OBITTARY.

Mrs. James McCliggott.

Mrs. Eliza Jane McCliggott, aged 51 years, a life-long resident of Douro passed away on Sunday after a short illness.

In 1885 deceased was married to the late Mr. Patrick Condon, who passed away, leaving his wife and two children, Mr. John Condon and Miss Johanah of Douro. In 1896 Mrs. Condon was married to Mr. Jas. McCliggott, also of Douro, who with two children, Cecil and James McCliggott survive her.

The deceased's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Moher, Douro, six sisters, Mrs. Foley, Rochester; Sister Josephine, St. Joseph's hospital; Mrs. Michael J. Leahy, Misses Anastasia Zita and Eleanor, Douro; and six brothers, Dr. Moher, Cobourg; and Messrs. William, Peterborough; Francis and Stephen, Edmonton; Vincent, and Albert, Douro, also survive.

The funeral will take place at nine o'clock Wednesday morning, from the late residence, lot 8, con. 6, Douro, to St. Joseph's church, thence to St. Joseph's cemetery.

Mr. Alexander Edmison.

In the death of Mr. Alexander Edmison, which occurred on Sunday evening, Smith township loses one of its oldest and most esteemed citizens. The deceased was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church, and held a high place in the regard of many friends and acquaintances, not only in Smith, but throughout the district. He leaves to mourn his demise a wife, three sons, Messrs. Edmison and G. A. Edmison, Smith; also an adopted daughter Mrs. J. McEwen, Elgin, Man; three brothers, Rev. Henry Edmison, Brandon, Man; Mr. P. H. Edmison, Sioux Falls, U. S.; County Police Magistrate Edmison, city, and three sisters, Mrs. Joseph Milburn, Smith; Mrs. Wm. Andrews, St. Mary's, Mrs. (Dr.) Beattie, Perry Harbor.

The funeral will take place at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon, from the late residence, lot 9, con. 2, of Smith, to Little Lake cemetery.

Mr. James Chambers.

There passed away on Sunday morning an old and highly esteemed resident of Manvers township, in the person of Mr. James Chambers, aged 70 years. In February last deceased was taken ill with cancer, and although everything possible was done to effect a cure, he gradually grew worse as the disease progressed, and passed away as above.

Mr. Chambers was well and favorably known throughout the district in which he lived. He was a man whose "word was as good as his bond," and not only had the esteem of his neighbors and friend, but was beloved by them as well. He was a man of tender and affectionate feelings, and was never known to do an uncharitable act. He leaves a wife, six sons and six daughters to lament his death. The sons are James Henry at home, John of Toronto, Samuel of Blackstock, Albert of Milton, Norton of Huntsville, and Percy at home. The daughters are, Mrs. J. J. MacCrae of Peterborough, Margaret and Sadie, Mrs. Hart of Toronto, Mrs. Hector Takeman of Pontypool, and Lulu of Toronto.

The funeral will take place this afternoon to Pontypool cemetery.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Manning, of Vancouver, B.C., are visiting friends in Lakefield.

Miss Millie Emmerson has returned from a months' visit to her sister, Mrs. F. A. Clarke, Toronto.

Miss Florence Scott has returned after a two months' visit to Winnipeg and points farther west.

Miss Mattie B. Robertson, B.A., returned yesterday from Fenelon Falls, where she was visiting her grandmother, Mrs. M. M. Brandon.

Messrs. W. McIlroy and B. A. Rose leave for the Canadian Soo where they will attend the annual convention of the Canadian Ticket Agents' Association.

Mr. Victor Tully, son of Mr. J. D. Tully, has accepted a position with a leading jewelry firm of North Bay. His many friends will wish him every success.

CHANGE OF TRAIN SERVICE.

Commencing on October 2nd the Lakefield train service will be changed, as follows: The train which has been leaving here at 8.20 a.m. will now leave at 7.00 a.m., and returning will arrive Peterboro' 8.15 a.m. The noon train for Lakefield will leave at 12.20, and returning will arrive Peterboro' 5.15 p.m. The evening train is discontinued. The public will be glad to learn that the new service inaugurated this summer to Port Hope will be maintained throughout the winter and will thus enable all passengers to leave Toronto at 9.00 a.m. and arrive Peterboro at mid-day. This train also affords good connection for all eastern points to Montreal and Boston.

REMAINS HIGH COMMISSIONER.

Mr. Bordea Persuades Strathcona to Continue Important Duties at London.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—Canada will have the valuable services of Lord Strathcona as High Commissioner in London, for a time at least.

His Lordship made a flying visit to the Capital on Saturday afternoon, and conferred with both Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Borden. He arrived from Montreal shortly after 1 o'clock and was met at the station by Mr. Borden, Sir William Mackenzie, Sir Sandford Fleming and a few other friends. He went directly to Sir Wilfrid Laurier's office, and a little later dined with the Premier at the Rideau Club. An hour later he met Mr. Borden and discussed with him for some time matters relating to the High Commissionership. It is understood that Mr. Borden asked Lord Strathcona to continue at London his services to Canada for the present, and that his Lordship consented. It is believed here that he will continue to represent Canada in Great Britain as long as his health will permit.

Lord Strathcona will resume his official duties on arriving in London. He sails next week for England.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education will take place this evening in the secretary's office.

MEN—YOU NEED NERVE

EARLY INDISCRETIONS AND EXCESSES HAVE UNDERMINED YOUR SYSTEM

The nerves control all actions of the body so that anything that debilitates them will weaken all organs of the system. Early Indiscretions and Excesses have ruined thousands of promising young men. Unnatural Drains sap their vigor and vitality and they never develop to a proper condition of manhood. They remain weaklings, mentally, physically and sexually. How you feel? Are you nervous and weak, despondent and gloomy, specks before the eyes with dark circles under them, weak back, kidneys irritable, palpitation of the heart, bashful, debilitating dreams, sediment in urine, pimples on the face, eyes sunken, hollow cheeks, careworn expression, poor memory, lifeless, distrustful, lack energy and strength, tired mornings, restless nights, changeable moods, premature decay, home pains, hair loose, etc.

This is the condition our New Method Treatment is GUARANTEED TO CURE

THE TIMES' ADVERTISERS AND THE TIMES' READERS

The Times has many warm friends in Peterborough City and County—friends whose numbers are steadily increasing.

The Times has likewise many friends among the merchants of the city, and this friendship is shown by the fact that these merchants advertise with us.

It is only fair, then, that The Times should appeal to its friends—the readers—to support its friends — the merchants—who advertise. For that reason we ask our readers to study carefully our advertising columns, where they will find the advertisements of our friends, the merchants. These are the men to be patronized, these the men to be encouraged. They believe in The Times, as do our readers; and they are deserving of support, especially as they "have the goods."

EAST AND WEST WARD SCHOOLS TO COST FROM $80,000 TO $85,000

SUCH IS THE ESTIMATE OF THE BOARD'S BUILDING COMMITTEE.

Plans are for Twelve Room Buildings—Have Option for a Site in West Ward; But Will, if Necessary, Expropriate one in East City. The Council Will Be Waited Upon at an Early Date.

The School Board will wait upon the city fathers at an early date and ask for $80,000 or $85,000 with which to erect new and suitable school buildings in the west ward and East City. The Building Committee has an option on a site in the west, but may find it expedient to expropriate one in the East. It is thought that sufficient revenue will be forthcoming from the disposal of the old school properties to pay for the new sites. Dr. Morrison last night submitted to the School Board plans of the proposed new buildings, which were approved of, subject to any amendments that may be found desirable before detailed specifications are prepared, and construction work arranged for. The following report, which speaks for itself was unanimously adopted. To the Chairman and Members of the Board of Education,—

Gentlemen,—

Your Building Committee for the East and West Wards beg to report that they have plans completed for new schools in the East and West Wards, and have instructed the solicitor to proceed to expropriate a site in East City. We have an option on a site for the West Ward.

Our plans are for twelve room schools in each case, the buildings to be two stories. The estimated cost will be in the neighborhood of from $80,000 to $85,000 for the two buildings complete. We would recommend that the Board wait on the City Council as soon as possible and ask for an appropriation so that contracts can be let and the buildings proceeded with on the opening of spring.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

M. A. MORRISON,
Chairman.

THE BIG RUSH TO OUR WEST

Over 65,000 United States Settlers are Coming in Every Summer

NEW OFFICIAL FIGURES

Immigration Officer Gives the Estimated Wealth Nearly $1000 Each—The Number of Arrivals From the United States Likely to Greatly Increase Next Season.

Toronto, Oct. 2. OR some years the extraordinary influx of United States farmers in to the Canadian west, especially during the past year, has been emphasized in a striking manner by a statistical statement from J. Bruce Walker, chief commissioner of immigration for the Dominion government, Winnipeg, which was made public yesterday by the Canadian Northern railway, having been sent them in response to a recent enquiry. Last year, if Mr. Walker's estimates are correct, a record was made in this rush of American farmers, the number of actual settlers from the western states having considerably surpassed all expectations, and the amount of capital brought in by these men being so large as to cause incredulous amazement among people in the east. The majority of the new citizens it is said, have settled down to extensive farms along the Canadian Northern lines, bringing mechanical power into play for breaking the virgin prairie and harvesting their crops.

Mr. Walker's statement declares that no fewer than 65,969 United States settlers crossed the border between April and August of last year, divided as follows: April, 20,443; May, 14,414; June, 12,035; July, 11,012; August, 12,116. It will, therefore, be noted that, while the flood in April this year was lower by about 3000, the four later months all show substantial increases over the same months in 1910. Mr. Walker further points out that "the total estimated wealth brought in, in stock, cash and effects, by American immigrants, April to August, inclusive, 1910, was $65,500,000. This year the total estimated wealth brought in for the same period was $66,700,000. This implies it will at once be seen, an average wealth of about $1000."

It is not generally known that this trek of the western United States farmers is causing no little worry in their former country. Several representative journalistic parties have toured the Canadian west this summer to try to find the reason why. One and all they have gone back to their newspapers and magazines impressed with the tremendous possibilities of the new land, and they are coming to realize the futility of attempting to stem the tide. Information coming from Chicago makes it appear that the movement has now attracted the executive of the states of Colorado, Idaho and Wyoming. Governors John Shafforth, James A. Hawley and J. D. Carey are said to have held a conference with A. B. Hulitt, commissioner-general of the National Association of Immigration, in Illinois City; and they are stated to have discussed plans for stopping the flood into Canada, and to have expressed willingness to expend a million dollars to advertise the advantages of various sections in the United States for home-making purposes.

Farmer Killed.

Belleville, Oct. 2. Frank Hubbell, a highly respected farmer living on the town line about three miles west of Stirling was killed by the bursting of an emery wheel on which he was grinding the knives of a corn-cutter.

ITALIAN FLEET OPENED FIRE ON TRIPOLI YESTERDAY

Military Forces and Civilians Ordered to Leave---An Army of 50,000 Arabs Assembling in the Interior to Attack Italian Forces

Rome, Oct. 3.—The Italian fleet under Admiral Aubrey opened fire on Tripoli to-day.

To-day's announcement of the bombardment followed two previous reports that Tripoli had been bombarded and occupied by the Italian force.

News of the attack came by wireless.

It was stated that Admiral Aubrey had set a time limit for the complete evacuation of the city by Turkey and military forces and civilians alike.

The fire was directed against Turkish fortifications.

An army of 50,000 Arabs was said to be in the interior ready to advance upon the Italian land forces.

A THIRD APPEAL TO THE POWERS.

Constantinople, Oct. 3 Turkey to-day issued her third appeal to the powers to intervene in the Turco-Italian situation. Aside from the Province of Tripoli, Turkey's losses now total four torpedo boats, one gunboat sunk, three transports, two torpedo boats, one yacht captured.

WOMEN'S LAUGHTER THAT MEANT DEATH

Austin, Pa., Oct. 3.- The most pathetic figure is that of Margaret Decker, the stenographer at the mill, who first received the message that the dam had gone, and laughed.

The message was repeated by Harry Davis, and she laughed once more into the receiver.

To-day she still laughs, but her laughter is that of acute hysteria and punctuated by sobs that shakes the chair in which she sits.

"I not only killed a whole town," she shrieked, "but I murdered the best mother a girl ever had."

She was not the only woman who laughed on that fateful Saturday. Martha Kinnicut, who conducted a store on the main street, had two warnings that the water was coming, but in each case she made fun of the person fleeing to safety who sought to give her a chance to escape.

"It's only a small fire somewhere," she said, when the alarm was last sounded, "you're all crazy about the dam."

Unlike Margaret Decker, however, she does not laugh to-day. Her mangled body lies stark and cold under a sheet in the morgue.

DEAD AND MISSING 86, EIGHT LOOTERS ARRESTED

Austin, Pa., Oct. 4. Relief work of the night and early morning revealed no new horrors, and Austin today believes that it knows the worst of the calamity that overwhelmed it on Saturday afternoon when the waters of the broken Bayliss dam swept the valley. The list of known dead stood this morning at 32, while the hasty town census showed 54 still missing.

Effective organized relief is well under way and help is being offered from many communities in the State. Commissioner S. G. Dixon of the State Health Department has notified all proffers that money, men and food supplies were in great demand.

RAISING MONEY FOR HOMELESS

Philadelphia sent word that $5,000 had been raised and was on the way. Dubois, Pa., had 150 volunteers—and 200 laborers that would be in this morning while Wellsboro, Pa., had raised $2,200 in a few hours and had despatched the cash in an automobile. This money reached here early this morning. The cash is needed largely in transporting the afflicted to their friends and relatives in other parts of the country.

More laborers on the state payrolls have been ordered in this morning. They will come in bunk cars with three days' rations to preclude their being a drain on the relief supplies and resources.

Three camp kitchens ordered by the Adjutant-General's Department were set up in the cars this morning. These will be manned by camp cooks from the lumber regions and will feed the laborers not otherwise supplied.

COSTELLO PROVIDED FOR.

It is definitely learned to-day through a visit to Costello yesterday by Dr. B. F. Royer, State Medical Inspector, that the community does not need aid. The citizens are able to care for any distress, having several warehouses of needful supplies and all money needed. Some clothing for women and children will be needed within a week and a canvass is being made to ascertain these needs.

Great inroads have been made into the mass of tangled debris. A steam log roller at work all yesterday along the tracks of the Buffalo and Susquehanna Railroad, whose tracks lay through the middle of the wreckage, picked up and tossed aside whole buildings, clearing great spaces in a few minutes. Beneath one of these buildings three bodies were found. They were those of a mother, an infant and a child about five years old. The children were clasped in the mother's arms and all were terribly mutilated.

With daylight further inroads on the wreckage were started by the effective machinery, and indications are to-day that by the end of the week the railroad will be opened through to Costello, enabling the carting away of useless wreckage.

Much suffering for lack of drinking water is experienced since the State health officials posted notices warning against the use of many pumps and springs.

HANDS OFF ALBANIA AUSTRIA WARNS ITALY

UNCLE SAM GETS A BAD START.

Washington, Oct. 3.—The British navy is equipped with a torpedo said to be effective at 10,000 yards, or nearly three times the range of the most powerful projectile now used in the United States navy, according to information brought back to Washington by a United States naval expert, who recently discussed developments relative to the methods of target practice in the British and American navies with some British naval experts. The existence of this torpedo has been kept a secret and it was only by a mere slip by one of the experts that it became known. During the discussion with the British experts, it is said that one of them inadvertently told the American naval expert that fifteen of Britain's newest torpedos have a range of 10,000 yards.

TURKEY HEARKENS YEARNINGLY TO PEACE TALK OF THE GERMAN AMBASSADOR.

Mobilization of Troops Continues—Tripoli Before Peace; Italy's policy—German Emperor as Peace-Maker.

London, Oct. 3.—At last the powers with Germany the most active agent, are taking definite steps to arrange matters between Turkey and Italy in such a way that each nation shall save its face, and so bring to an end a condition which so far has been one of tantalizing obscurity, but which, if not arrested, may yet provoke a serious conflagration.

GERMAN EMPORER AS PEACE-MAKER.

The German Emporer has come out squarely as a peacemaker, and the German Ambassador at Constantinople has flatly proposed, on his royal master's instigation, that Turkey shall cede Tripoli to Italy, the Kaiser undertaking that Turkey shall receive adequate monetary compensation therefor.

In Berlin, the semi-official announcement is made that the German position regarding intervention between Italy and Turkey is this: That Germany is actively endeavoring through her Ambassador in Constantinople to persuade Turkey to accept terms which Germany could propose to Italy with a prospect of success.

It is held in diplomatic circles here that Baron Von Bleiberstein, the German Ambassador at Constantinople, would not have been instructed to work so actively as he is doing at the Turkish capital to effect a peaceful settlement between Italy and Turkey if the Emporer had not been assured that Italy was willing to consider these activities in a friendly spirit.

It is held here that though Italy would consider it an act of hostility on the part of any power to attempt to frustrate her long-cherished ambition to establish herself in North Africa, as soon as Italy has occupied the Tripolitan coast Germany will be ready with an offer of mediation, based on full knowledge of the minimum Italy will take and the maximum Turkey will give. It is further indicated that if this action Germany will receive the support of other powers.

Austria has also put out a restraining hand.

To-day Count Von Aehrenthal, the Austro-Hungarian Foreign Minister, informed the Italian Ambassador at Vienna that any further action by the Italians on the Albanian coast would make it necessary for Austria to despatch warships thither.

PETERBORO' IS NOW 19,300

Big Increase in Population During Last Year

According to the assessment just completed Peterborough has now a population of 19,300, being an increase of over 2,000 for the year. The assessment of the city has advanced about $500,000. It is now $11,886,920. A few more years such as the last, we will be up amongst the larger cities of the country.

The rapid increase this year may be accounted for by the steady flow of English emigrants.

The population of 19,300 is confined strictly to the city limits, and does not take into account the hundreds of people living just on the outskirts.

TWENTY-EIGHT DEAD BODIES CAME ASHORE

Amsterdam, Holland, Oct. 3.—A heavy loss of life and considerable damaged was caused in Zealand and other Provinces with which communication was restored to-day, by the storm that broke over the North Sea Coast on Sunday.

Of 130 fishing boats that belonged in the village of Bruinesse, 120 were lost or damaged. 45 vessels were wrecked in the waterways between Dordrecht, a city on an island in the Meuse, and the North Sea. Most of the crews were drowned.

Twenty-eight bodies have been washed up near Strenbergen.

WINNERS OF HIGHEST AGGREGATE MARKS AT THE LAST COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE EXAMINATIONS

At the meeting of the Board of Education held last night, the secretary read the following reply from the Deputy Minister of Education to a request made by Principal H. R. H. Kenner, that the names of the pupils obtaining the highest aggregate number of marks at the last examinations in the Institute be forwarded to him:—

Dear Sir,—

I am directed by the Minister of Education to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of recent date, and in reply to state that the names of the successful candidates who obtained the highest aggregate number of marks in their respective examinations at Peterborough Collegiate Institute, are as follows:—

Faculty Entrance—Part I.—Emma Corkery. Part II.—Leonora Park.

Normal Entrance—Elizabeth Grady.

Junior Matriculation—George M. Huycke.

Honour Matriculation—Wilmot B. Browett.

Your obedient servant,

A. H. U. COLQUHOUN,
Deputy Minister of Education.

MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P., OFFERS A GOLD WATCH TO PUPIL OBTAINING HIGHEST MARKS AT ENTRANCE EXAMS

THE BOARD OF EDUCATION MET IN REGULAR SESSION LAST NIGHT.

Mr. Duncan Walker Presents Set of Books to Collegiate Institute—Improvements to Central School All But Completed—Buildings Need Painting, However, Which Work Will Be Done.

The Board of Education met last night, chairman John Crane, Esq., presiding. There were also present Trustees Ackerman, V. Eastwood, R. Fair, T. H. Adams, Dr. Morrison, W. H. Hill, Dr. Burnham.

COMMUNICATIONS.

From Principal H. R. H. Kenner, pointing out the necessity for making provision at the Collegiate Institute for physical culture classes five months in the year, and suggesting days and hours for same.

The Deputy Minister of Education also wrote that the need for suitable gymnasium accommodation at the Institute is pressing, and stating that he was anxious to know what steps had been taken in this connection.

These two letters were referred to the Supervision Committee with power to act in regard to Mr Kenner's request for physical culture supplies.

Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., wrote, offering a gold watch to the scholar obtaining the highest number of marks at the entrance examinations—accepted with thanks and referred to the Supervision Committee with a view to re-arrangement of the scholarships.

Captain Clark, of Kingston, wrote, complimenting the local Cadet corps on earning a good report of their last inspection, and suggesting that uniforms be furnished the corps—Received.

Mr. Kenner wrote that Mr. Duncan Walker, principal of the Normal School, had kindly presented a set of 10 books to the Collegiate Institute—to be acknowledged with thanks.

H. G. Hill, secretary of the Collegiate Institute Athletic Association, wrote asking a grant of $30 to the Association's annual field sports on Thursday next, and inviting the Board to grace the occasion with their presence—the $30 asked was readily granted.

The Teachers' Association asked the use of the Assembly Hall on the occasion of their annual meeting—granted.

The reports of the school boilers inspected were on the whole highly satisfactory.

SUPERVISION REPORT.

Mr. Hill reported that the Supervision Committee has not yet been able to secure a teacher to take Mr. Hodgson's place.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE REPORT.

Mr. Robert Fair reported that the improvements at the Central School are all but completed, although some work in the way of grading is yet to be done. But when the improvements were arranged for, the question of painting was not gone into, and Mr. Fair suggested that this work be done at a cost of from $200 to $300, which expenditure he thought the Committee's appropriation would permit of. It only requires a little painting to complete what may be considered a highly satisfactory job.

The committee was given power to act in the matter of painting.

THE COST OF LIVING.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Having read in The Times that milk was likely to increase in price, I think that it is time the city was doing something in the matter. If things go on as they have been doing this few years back, working people will soon not be able to live. Six or seven years ago a family could live comfortably on $9 or $10, but now with the raising of rents and the price of foods it is hard to make ends meet on $12 a week.

FOSTER ON RECIPROCITY.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Will you please inform me if George E. Foster wrote concerning reciprocity in any of the magazines last year, and, if so, which one?

Reply—Yes, in the Toronto University Magazine about December last.

REMOVE THE POLES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir, I see it is proposed to pave some of the streets and I would like to ask the Mayor and Council if it would not be better, first of all, in order to get a proper start, to commence by having the poles removed from the streets. The advantage it would be to George street to have this done would be very great. It would make the town look like a modern city, instead of an overgrown country village, as its present appearance indicates.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the peoperty, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE:

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

The Following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments:

No. of Shares.	Amount of First Call.	Half-yearly Payments.
1	$ 25.00	$ 9.00

50	5,750.00
100	11,500.00
200	23,000.00
300	34,500.00

NO BONUS STOCK shall be issued for any purpose whatsoever, and even the Directors, who are very heavy stockholders in the Company, have paid the SAME PRICE for their shares as the general public. NOT ONE SHARE has been or will be issued to any person at a price less than $115.00 per share.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

APPLICATION FOR CAPITAL TOCK

I ..... hereby apply for ..... shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each of the Capital Stock of the Canada National Fire Insurance Company at the price of One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars ($115) per share, being at a premium of fifteen (15) per cent.; and I covenant and agree with the said Company to pay for the said shares as follows: Twenty-five dollars per share on application, which shall include the premium of fifteen dollars per share, and the balance in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of nine dollars per share; the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of said shares.

I further agree to accept said shares when they are allotted to me, and I do hereby request that my name be duly registered on the books of the Company as the holder of such shares.

Applications for stock will be filed in the order received, and on approval of same by the Board of Directors a Stock Certificate will be issued and mailed forthwith.

The holder of these shares will be paid the dividends that may be declared on the same from time to time by the Board of Directors. Dividends shall be declared and apportioned in proportion to the amount paid into the Company on the par value of the shares.

Calls on shares may be paid prior to due dates, and when all of such calls have been paid a fully-paid certificate will be issued to the holder of these shares.

These shares are transferable only on the books of the Company by the owner in person or by attorney on surrender of the Certificate of Stock properly endorsed. Transfers shall not be valid unless approved by the Board of Directors.

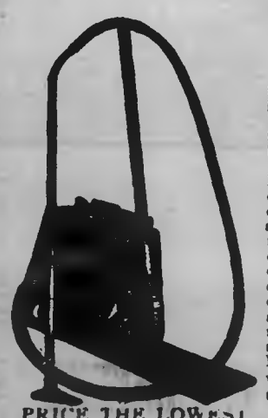
KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER



You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.
The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Preseat Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a olume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is tmerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a muzzle velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another artoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

Miss Daisy Dobbin, who has been with a patient at the Jackson Sanatorium, Dansville, N. Y., for the past six months, is home for a month's vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dobbin.

Reason Why Persons Do Not Keep on Growing.

Six pounds and a half is the weight of the average child at birth; at the end of the first year the average weight is eighteen pounds and a half, a gain of twelve pounds; and at the end of the second year the weight is twenty-three pounds, a gain of only four pounds and a half. And with each successive year the gain is less and less until maturity is reached. Why is the gain less each year? And why does it finally cease altogether?

The reason is that the absorbing surfaces inside the stomach and intestine do not, and in the nature of things cannot, grow proportionately to the growth of the body as a whole. During the first year of growth the child's body becomes approximately three times as large as it was at birth, but the interior of the stomach and bowel of the child at the age of one year is not even twice as large as it was at birth, let alone three times as large. Yet all the nourishment which supplies materials for growth has to be absorbed by the membrane which lines the inside of the stomach, and especially the small intestine. It is, therefore, plain that growth of the body as a whole must gradually subside as the tissues to be nourished gradually approach a size at which their demands balance the utmost supply of nutrition taken up by the stomach and intestine.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

FARMERS TO MEET BORDEN.

Arrangements are being made by the farmers of the three prairie provinces to meet Mr. R. L. Borden when he comes West next month. It is felt by the farmers that as Mr. Borden is Premier of Canada in prospect, he should be made fully aware of the desires of the Western people.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier toured the West last summer he was met by the organized farmers at every point where he held meetings, and the demands of the farmers were firmly and courteously placed before him.

Mr. Borden will hold thirty meetings in the West, and it is the intention to have a delegation meet him at every point and lay before him the needs of the West. The same matters will be brought before Mr. Borden as were discussed with Sir Wilfrid last summer, though the demands of the farmers are now crystallized into more definite shape.

A Lesson in Politeness.

A pretty story about the delicate wit of Mrs. Taft has recently amused Washington society.

Mrs. Taft, at a diplomatic dinner, had for neighbour a distinguished French traveller, who boasted a little unduly of his nation's politeness. "We French," the traveller declared, "are the politest people in the world. Everybody acknowledges it. You Americans are a remarkable nation, but the French excel you in politeness. You admit it yourself, don't you?"

Mrs. Taft smiled delicately.

"Yes," she said. "That is our politeness."

IT WAS A SURPRISE

"We have the surprise beautifully planned," said young Mrs. Westerleigh to the guests, "and Frank doesn't suspect a thing. I think he has even forgotten that to-day's his birthday. He will get home from the office at about seven o'clock. Then he always goes upstairs to take off his coat and put on his smoking jacket for the evening. When he is upstairs I will call out suddenly, 'Oh, Frank, come downstairs — be quick! The gas is escaping.' Then he will rush down here and find the crowd of friends waiting for him."

It went exactly as planned. Westerleigh came home at the regular hour and went directly upstairs. The hidden guests held their breath while Mrs. Westerleigh called out excitedly, "Oh, Frank, come down quick. The gas is escaping in the parlor."

Every light had been turned out, and the parlor was in perfect darkness. There was a rapid rush of feet down the stairway, then a voice said, "I don't smell any gas."

"Better light the jet," Mrs. Westerleigh suggested tremulously. "Here's a match."

The match was struck, and suddenly the room was flooded with light. Everybody screamed. The hostess fainted. For there in the center of the room stood Westerleigh, attired only in a natty union suit, with a fresh pair of trousers carried over his arm.

THE VAGRANTS' HOME.

Missions Used by Leaders to Help Them Out.

"Got any home?" said the judge to a man who had been brought in on the charge of vagrancy.

"Sure I have."

"Where is it?"

The man named a street and number.

"Your Honour," volunteered a clerk, "that ain't a house; it's a mission."

"Well, call them up, anyway," said the judge, "and see if they know anything about him."

They did not know anything, but the missionary said he would come right down and see what could be done.

"It is not an unusual case," he said. "Our mission is 'home' to many a man whom we never even heard of until he gets arrested. If a man who has been run in as a hopeless derelict can mention some address which he can call home his sentence is apt to be lighter. Lots of outcasts have been on the tramp so long that it is hard for them to think of any place they are intimate enough with to call it home, but through an occasional peep in here they remember the number and brazenly sing it out. Court-room attendants communicate with us and ask our advice. Naturally we respond even though the men are perfect strangers. Some of them seem hopeless wrecks, but now and then we discover a man who has good stuff in him still and is capable of developing into a useful citizen."

'Good-for-Nothing Posts.'

In the North-western Chinese province of Kansu there are great stretches of entirely unoccupied barren land. For the guidance of travellers the Government has set up posts in these districts, with directions as to the road painted on them. Lanterns are hung on the posts at night, with characters telling the way. Lanterns and posts are alike of the poorest material, otherwise they would be stolen; but little worth though they be ('good-for-nothing posts' the posts are called) they serve their purpose; they guide the wayfarer. The Chinese have a happy eye for the picturesque. 'I am a good-for-nothing post,' said a Chinese Christian doctor at a Christian conference in Honan, 'but in my dispensary I have been enabled to point many the way to heaven.'

Managerial Unreasonableness

A curious effect which the constant repetition of one part has upon an actor is that after playing it for a great length of time, he is apt to forget his lines and take up wrong cues. A story is told of an English performer who, after playing the part for a very long time, forgot his lines one night. "It's very strange," said the stage-manager when the actor came off, "that you are not perfect in that part by this time. You have been playing it for two hundred nights." "Well," said the actor, "do you expect me to remember it for ever?"

'SHE BURNS GREEN.'

How the Phrase Came to Be a Classic Yell Among Prospectors.

Although the prospector is generally supposed to be associated with the search for precious metal his attention is by no means confined to that. A writer in the Los Angeles "Times" tells of a group of valuable claims in the Silver Mountain mining district, which includes the whole of Black Mountain.

It was long considered worthless until an up-to-date prospector recognised it as 'cement rock', the principal ingredient from which Portland cement is made.

Another example is furnished by the discovery of borax in Death Valley, one of the most valuable strikes ever made in California. The discoverer, Aaron Winters, was at that time living in a lonely little shack on the Amargosa flats at the south end of the valley.

Thither, attracted by the light, came one night a vagrant prospector from Nevada. He had with him a sample of borax brought from a small deposit across the border. This Winters instantly recognised as being the same curious stuff which he had seen lying in great beds in Death Valley, but of which he had never known the name.

Adroitly questioned the wanderer explained to Winters the simple but little known test for borax. No sooner was their visitor safely gone than Winters and his wife, carrying food and water, a pick, a saucer and a bottle of alcohol, set out on foot northward into the valley. At night fall the next day they arrived at the first of the strange beds.

Without even waiting to moisten his parched throat Winters fell upon it with pick and bare hands till a little of the surface crust was removed. He scraped up a handful of the loose stuff, piled it in the saucer, moistened it with alcohol and struck a match. An instant later he hurled his hat in one direction, his pick in another, and seizing his wife, waltzed that astonished lady round the strange, flickering flame, whooping: 'She burns green, Rosie! She burns green!'

Winters realized a fortune from his discovery. Even to-day the man of the valley, lighting upon something new heralds his find with the classic yell, 'She burns green!'

Long Speeches.

M. Jaures is not at all pleased with the proposal before the French Chamber to limit the duration of speeches to ten minutes. All that really need be said on most matters could, if the speaker clearly grasped his subject, be spoken in ten minutes, but probably the Socialist leader is jealous of the latitude recently allowed the Austrian Deputy Kotlorsch, who spoke for three hours. But his record is beaten by an instance in England, when an opponent of O'Connell obstructed one of his bills by speaking for eight hours. Senator Summer at the time of the American war of secession, delivered an oration lasting eleven hours. At the Assembly at Bordeaux in 1871 the Mayor of Strassburg brought about his death from the exhaustion followed upon his speech.

THE LATE KING OF SIAM

The late King of Siam, whose full title was Somdet-Phra-Paramindmaha Chula - Longkorn-Chula - Chom-Klao, was one of the eighty-four sons of Maha-Morgkut. He had completed the fifty-eighth year of his life and the forty-third of his reign, the longest in the history of the nation. He was considered one of the broadest minded and most cultivated rulers of the far East. Under the tuition of an English governess in the royal household he learned to speak English and French perfectly. He instituted numerous reforms in his Government, abolished slavery, lowered the taxes, opened up canals for irrigation and transportation, instituted a superb system of highways for the development of commerce, built telegraphs and hospitals, guaranteed religious liberty, reorganised the army and built a navy of twenty vessels. Though Siam is an autocracy, the king was democratic in his spirit and gathered about him a Cabinet Council of six royal princes and thirteen ministers of state.

If I Should Die To-night.

(Revised Version.)

If I should die to-night
And should you come to my cold corpse and say,
Weeping and heartsick o'er my lifeless clay—
If I should die to-night
And you should come in deepest grief and woe
And say, "Here's that ten dollars that I owe"—
I might arise in my large white cravat
And say, "What's that?"
If I should die to-night
And you should come to my cold corpse and kneel,
Clasping my bier to show the grief you feel—
I say, if I should die to-night,
And you should come to me and there and then
Just even hint 'bout payin' me that ten
I might arise the while;
But I'd drop dead again.

Free Fare, Little Salary.

In some foreign countries a liberal allowance in the way of travelling expenses makes a meagre salary a respectable one. In Italy, for instance, the journalist, with barely one or two exceptions, works for a salary which we pampered ones in Canada would laugh at. But he has his compensations. He—and not only himself, but his wife and family, too—travels free on all the railways, whether the journey is on business or not. If he wishes to go to the theatre, and to take his friends, he has only to write, and the requisite box or stalls are at his disposal—and that, however humble his professional rank may be. On the whole, the Canadian journalist prefers not to be paid in this kind.

TREATING THE FOREST AS A CROP.

The progress of the Conservation policy of Canada, as applied to forest resources, depends more upon the Forestry Branch of the Department of the Interior than upon any other organization. Upon the technical knowledge and executive ability of the officers of the Forestry Branch depends the future of the forest on 16,000,000 acres of Dominion Forest Reserves, as well as upon the large area of non-agricultural forest land in Western Canada, which for the good of the country may yet be set aside as permanent forest reserves. In addition to looking after Dominion lands the Forestry Branch is now being asked by Eastern land owners to furnish advice as to the best means of securing at the earliest date a profitable crop of timber on waste land or wood lots. The proper administration of forest lands requires a special knowledge of the trees best adapted to each region, of their uses, and of the markets. Further there is needed knowledge of the habits of all trees, especially of the merchantable species, so that it may be known how rapidly they grow, how they produce their seed, when and under what conditions the seed germinates, and in what way the seedlings and young trees are affected by their surroundings. Such knowledge is gained only by long study and experience. In order that the new Rocky Mountain Forest Reserves may be administered according to the latest scientific knowledge and the best experience, the Forestry Branch is now making detailed studies of the habits of the merchantable species of trees on the Eastern slope of the Rockies in Alberta and has sent one of the men in charge of the work to study the systems of forest management practised during the past few years by the highly developed United States Forest Service in the National Forests of Montana. The United States foresters have spent large sums of money, and availed themselves of the experience of many men in developing plans of lumbering which do not inconvenience the lumbermen but which ensure the protection and reproduction of the forest and the Canadian Forestry Branch intends to benefit largely by their experience.

DUAL LANGUAGE IN SOUTH AFRICA.

United South Africa is already up against its troubles with the dual language. The worst of it is, says an Ottawa paper, that there is a strong suspicion that the advice of a certain Canadian gentleman to Lord Milner was originally responsible for the adoption of the dual language in that country. The Canadian gentleman should have known better, because it has put South Africa in a worse position than Canada. French and English are the two most useful modern languages, whereas the Dutch Taal is a useless patois outside of the Transvaal. To have blue books, government documents and even bank notes printed in such a barbarous jargon is rather thick.

BASEBALL IN JAPAN.

It Beats Jiu-Jitsu Says a Japanese Sportsman.

According to Sutikichi Matsuda, captain of one of the Japanese baseball nines which is now playing in America, the great game has taken a wonderful hold in the far east. He says that excitement runs so high in Japan that the deciding game of one series was called off for fear that the students would resort to bloodshed. In an interesting statement Captain Matsuda, of the Waseda University nine, says:

The game of baseball is the gift of West to East. Only a few years ago we knew nothing of this honorable game. Now the little ones in the streets of Tokio play it. The excitement which attends a game of baseball with us is so great that for four years there has been no contest between the team of Waseda and the team of Keio, her rival in Tokio.

Baseball is the first group game we ever have played in Japan. We formerly had jiu-jitsu, fencing and archery but no outdoor sport in which teams could play against each other. That is the great advantage of baseball — that many can play at it at once.

We like the game because it is new, so different from our other sports. It is a most exciting game.

We find that the most difficult thing to learn in baseball is the batting. That is hard — to hit the ball, and so hit it that one can run to first base before the ball thrown by the hand of the fielder reaches that place. We have not had as much practice in batting as we have needed. In Japan most of our games are with too young players, who do not make it difficult enough for us to defeat them. We should have more experience.

One Boy's Inspiration

A musician who is attracting wide attention in England, is a blind boy sixteen years old. Deprived of sight when he was ten years of age, he spent two years in darkness and despondency, from which he was aroused one morning by the singing of a canary bird. It occurred to him how limited was the bird's equipment for life, and yet how cheerfully and beautifully the little creature expressed the joy of its heart.

This was the boy's inspiration. He took up the study of the violin, and, remembering the debt of gratitude he owed to the canary, he tried his best to win the little fellow's companionship. He practised on his violin close to the cage; the bird entered into the spirit of the thing, caroling his sweetest notes to the strains of the boy's music.

Finally the bird grew so tame, under kind treatment, that he would fly out of the open door of the cage, light on the blind boy's bow, and sing in unison, as the lad drew the bow across the strings. The boy has thus found not only a means of cultivating joy in his own soul and expressing it, but he and the bird are giving exhibitions at large profit, and the boy has found his means of livelihood.

IN THE WORLD OF SCIENCE

POWER OF ELECTRICITY

Effect of Electricity on School Children.

A rather remarkable experiment has been carried on for some years in one of the public schools of Stockholm, Sweden, to test the beneficial influence of electricity on the development of the human body. Two groups each of twenty-five children, as nearly alike as possible in general health, and size and weight of the individuals, were given instruction in two rooms, both being equal in size, ventilation, lighting and exposure. But the group in one of the rooms was continually exposed to the influence of elctric currents, while the other group was not.

Now, after three or four years of the tests, it is claimed that the "electrified" children have outstripped the other group, growing faster, putting on weight quicker, developing better appetites and showing more physical resistance. As a whole, the mentality of the electrified group was the greater, as backwardness in the majority of cases is the result of some physical defect.

EDISON'S RULES OF LIFE

Expects to Reach One Hundred and Fifty.

"Why don't you try to invent an airship?" Thomas Alva Edison was asked recntly.

"Why don't I try?" responded Mr. Edison. "Why, I did try thirty years ago. I looked into it from every side. We knew then the principles of gliding just as you have them now, but we didn't have an internal combustion engine."

Speaking on his rules of life the great inventor said:

"With my system of living I expect to live 150 years.

"My system is based on proper living, sleeping and clothing.

"I am in bed six hours, all of it good, solid sleep. It's enough.

"I don't ever intend to retire. Work has made this earth a paradise for me, and I don't believe there is any paradise up above.

"My body and I are still keeping at it for about eighteen hours a day, and I seldom get tired.

"I am better able to keep working now than when I was twenty-five.

"This earth is a cinch if you take it right.

"Agreeable work never hurt any one. I am no exception.

"I am not an individual; I am an aggregate of cells.

"When I have any spare time I study music.

"I eat as much as I want, but that is very little—half a handful of solids at each meal."

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE MAGNIFYING EYES OF THE CAMEL.

A writer in an American magazine says:

One of the camels—the seven were lying just beyond the circle of firelight — rose complaining. Mustafa's Ahmed slipped away upon his duty. Presently I heard his guttural cawing to get the camel again to rest; but the beast would not down, and must be beaten — the boy meanwhile mouthing great curses. I wondered that a being so small should without peril to himself strike a creature like this with his fist, continuing all the time within reach of teeth and hoofs.

'I will tell the khawaja,' replied Mustafa, 'a most curious and interesting thing about this.'

Ahmed had mastered the camel and now came to his place.

'The khawaja has observed,' Mustafa continued, 'that a child may beat and command a camel. It is not because the camel is stupid, nor yet because he is timid: it is because of a wise provision whereby God suited him to the weakness of men. The camel's eyes are like magnifying glasses, and increase the stature of his master seven times; wherefore he is obedient to this gigantic-appearing creature.'

In Damascus, too, I heard this superstition.

Just His Luck.

The lady bather had got into a hole, and she couldn't swim. Nor could the young man on the end of the pier; but when she came up for the first time and he caught sight of her face he shrieked: —

"Help!"

A burly fisherman sauntered to his side.

"Wot's up?" he hoarsely cried.

"My wife! Drowning! I can't swim! Twenty pounds for you if you save her!"

In a moment the fisherman was in the sea. In another moment he was out of it, with the rescued lady bather. Swelling with expectation he approached the young man again.

"Well, what about the twenty quid?" he asked.

But if the young man's face had been ashen grey before, it was now deadly pale as he gazed upon the features of the recovering dame.

"Y-e-s, I know!" he gasped. "But when I made the offer I thought it was my wife who was drowning, and now — now it turns out it was my wife's mother!"

The fisherman pulled a long face.

"Just my luck!" he muttered, thrusting his hand into his trousers-pocket. "How much do I owe you?"

GOSSIP NECESSARY TO BOTH SEXES.

But Should Not Be Overdone.

Somebody has thought it worth while to say that gossip is as necessary to a woman as food and drink. Why the matter of sex should be dragged in is a mystery. Everybody knows that old women belong to both sexes.

The creature who simply lives for gossip is as likely to be found in breeches as petticoats. We all know men whose flow of tittle tattle is not to be surpassed by any feminine ingenuity or industry. Such people, who make an occupation of what ought to be an amusement, are, fortunately, the exceptions to ordinary existence. But in a decent and modest way we all love gossip.

Why not? "The proper study of mankind is man"—to take the first of a dozen much-worn quotations that fly to the pen. A taste for gossip means nothing more than an interest in humanity.

To like to know what other folks are doing and saying and thinking is not malicious or undignified. It is merely a proof that you are healthily alive. Of course, you can overdo it. You can be too greedy in the matter of gossip, as with other good and stimulating things. But a modest portion serves to keep you in good spirits. To live for it is as contemptible as to be a drunkard.

Unconventionalities.

"I'd enjoy your conversation a great deal more, Weerius, if I didn't have to listen to it."

"The reason I dont' ask you whether or not this is all-wood goods, Mr. Sellers, is that I want to save you from lying about it."

"Yes, we like our new cook very much. Mrs. Ipdyke: she has told us ever so many funny things that happened when she was working for you."

"I know, of course, old chap, that you're fishing for an invitation to go with us on our yachting trip, but it wont' do you any good."

"From the way your curtains smell, Mrs. Whackster, I judge that your husband smokes rather cheap cigars."

"I've often wondered, Throgging, how you ever managed to smuggle yourself into good society."

What Makes a Bee Hum?

You have never heard a bee hum when it was crawling. This tells us what we might have guessed, that the bee's humming is made by the movement of its wings when it flies. The noise is not made by its voicebox, as when you sing, for the bee has not a voicebox. But its wings move very quickly — a bird would "hum" when flying if its wings moved quickly enough — and as they move to and fro they set the air moving, and, as you know, we would not be able to hear anything but for the vibration, or waves, in the air.

If the waves are too slow, as when you wave a stick in the air, or when a bird flaps its wings, we hear nothing. But the vibrations in the air made by the bee's wings are of a rate that is within the range of our hearing — if the bee is near enough — and so we hear a humming.

When Is a Man Old.

Very amusing replies have been elicited as the result of a competition promoted by a Madrid newspaper on the subject, "Until what age can a man be called young?"

The readers of the journal were the judges, and 28,266 votes were given to the competitor who sent in this reply, which won the prize: —

"A man is young so long as he can make women jealous."

Another competitor thought that a man was old when he could no longer stoop down and tie a beautiful woman contended that all men were young until they thought of marriage.

"The man is old," wrote another competitor, "when a young woman kisses him with cold lips"; and it was the opinion of a newly-married man that a man began to age a week after marriage.

FORESTRY IN JAPAN.

Authorities Believe in Conservation—Been planting for 1200 years.

Japan has longer than any other country practiced technical forestry. With extraordinary skill and absolute success the authorities have for 1,200 years planted and cared for the forest trees. "The results," writes a correspondent, "have been really wonderful, for through the extremely sedulous management and the knowledge of skill by degrees attained the financial gains have been very large, indeed. Not a twig is ever wasted. The trees are regarded as almost sacred property, and not a particle of any one of them is regarded as rubbish, so close is the utilization. Thinning and all departments of arboreal culture are very carefully conducted. At the end of 13 years from planting a wood lot is thinned by experts, and then every five years the process is repeated for 120 years, the average period of the cultivation of a set of trees.

Pneumonia Serum Found by Savant

The germ of pneumonia is vanquished, according to Dr. Preston Kyes of the University of Chicago, who has published the results of a series of experiment in the Journal of the American Medical association. Chickens were inoculated with germs from a human victim of pneumonia, and serums prepared. The results obtained were surprising. Dr. Kyes tabulated his experiments, showing that mice, poisoned with pneumonia germs and then treated with the serum, showed immediate improvement, and in proportion as the serum was injected with greater frequency, recovered.

Horse Has Mustache.

W. A. Tuck, a Canadian farmer, has a family horse with a mustache. The hirsute adornment is fully developed, three inches long and very thick.

MANY VESSELS WERE WRECKED

Antwerp, Belgium, Oct. 2.—Twenty-four coasting vessels went ashore and forty small craft were sunk in a storm that swept the North Sea today. Many lives were lost.

A CAUCASIAN MARRIAGE.

A Piece of Sugar Put to Lips of Bride to Sweeten Tongue.

In the Caucasus the marriage ceremonies everywhere are of the greatest extravagance in regard to length and the amount of feasting. In Mingrelie large tents are erected for the wedding guests, and the smallest number invited comes to two or three hundred. An interesting and pretty ceremony is the going forth of the bridegroom's mother to meet the bride, to whose lips she puts a piece of sugar, wishing her happiness and joy, and hoping that her tongue may always keep the sweetness of sugar. In the marriage procession all the goods and wealth of the family make an appearance. An elderly lady, generally the bride's nurse, plays an important part throughout the ceremonies. She sits by the bride, who neither laughs nor eats during all the merriment and feasting. A meal is served in the nuptial chamber, to which the matron conducts the bride. The bridegroom is refused admission until he buys his entry from the matron. This old lady remains a week in the house, and when she departs the bride breaks into loud lamentations. For a year the young couple are full of respect and attention for their parents, never sitting down in their presence and submitting to their wishes in everything.

REMOVAL OF BIRTHMARKS.

Carbonic Acid Snow Treatment Proving Generally Successful.

In less than a year the carbonic acid snow treatment for birthmarks, warts, and rodent ulcer, first introduced at Charing Cross Hospital, has gained an accepted place in modern therapeutics.

The early experiments with the new remedy, described in these columns last June, have been so successful in suitable cases that now practically every hospital in the country, as well as thousands of general practitioners and skin specialists, is making use of the new medicament.

The snow is prepared by allowing a thin spray of carbonic acid gas, liquefied under pressure, to escape into a felt covering slipped over the tap of the iron cylinder containing the gas. The gas is deposited on the felt as a very fine powdered snow at a temperature of about 100 degrees below zero. The snow is then solidified into an icy pencil by being tightly packed into a hard rubber cylinder with a plunger.

Treatment consists of pressing this intensely cold pencil of carbonic acid ice for a few seconds against the birthmark, wart or rodent ulcer to be removed. The resulting intense cold freezes the part, setting up severe local inflammation, which leads to a breaking down and absorption of the frozen tissues. There is very little pain and the wound heals naturally in a few days, leaving the skin practically normal.

RUSSIAN GRAIN KING.

Was Queer Character, But His Business Integrity Was High.

Of a peculiar stamp was the man of millions, Nicholas Boukhroff, the Russian grain king, who recently died. In his externals he was a muzhik merchant. He wore the top boots, the trader's kaftan—coat and overcoat in one, fitting close up to the neck and reaching to the knees—and the embroidered cotton shirt without starched collar, which are the historic garb of the Volga traders, men who carry as much as 50,000 rubles in notes stuck in the leg of a boot and who distrust the documentary machinery of credit. Boukhroff's great fortune compelled him to handle investments and bank paper, but he was in sympathy with the old simple ways. He was in fact an Old Believer and a devout churchgoer who lived his religion.

In his housekeeping he lived on much the same scale as an ordinary hand worker in comfortable employment. He gave away millions of rubles in charity, but was close fisted in personal outlays. The porters at Nijnj-Novgorod and elsewhere avoided him when they saw him step from a train. He would never pay them more than 10 cents for carrying his baggage. When he met great personages he "thoued" them, as he did everybody else, keeping to the Old Believer, Quakerlike form of address. His integrity in business was of the highest.

He would lecture men in his employment if they spent five kopeks needlessly. His patriarchial ways had sometimes a welcome side. He exacted unquestioning obedience to his instructions; but every now and then a man who served him well for some years would receive a draft for 25,000 or 50,000 rubles with no further remark than:

"Thou shalt now be a Man, too. I know that thou wilt make good use of the money."

Canada Buys a Holman Hunt.

The national art gallery at Ottawa has been enriched by a painting by Holman Hunt, of the British Academy. The painting is a portrait of Henry Wentworth Monk, who was born in the Ottawa Valley and who was known as "The Apostle of Peace." He was an intimate friend of the artist, who painted the picture while with Monk in Palestine. The painting was secured from Mrs. Holman Hunt at a moderate price.

"Very clever, isn't he?"

"Yes."

"I'm told that his three elder brothers are mentally weak."

"Yes, he's the original none fourth."

"Shoots Wife Before Children," says a newspaper headline. That's a matter of precedence.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

guard, pacing from corner to corner of the stockade, a rifle slung in the crook of his arm.

Two weeks of this slipped by. Then one morning Barreau sat up on his bed and looked over to where I humped on my blankets, rubbing the sleep from my eyes.

"Bob," he announced, "it is high time we bestirred ourselves once more." After which he got quickly into his clothes, and went rummaging in a box by his bed — we had a little cabin to ourselves. His search bore fruit in the shape of mocassins, a bundle of them. "Here." He tossed a pair to me. "You'll find these better than riding boots. This time we go afoot."

Later, when breakfast was eaten, he made up a shoulder pack for himself, and showed me how to prepare its fellow. Only actual necessaries found place therein. Extra mocassins, a few pounds of flour, a little packet of tea, pepper and salt, a tin plate and cup; these were laid upon a pair of heavy blankets, and tightly rolled in a square of thin canvas. A broad band of soft buckskin ran from the upper corners of the pack over one's forehead. A loop slipped over each shoulder, leaving the hands free. I was astonished at the ease with which I could walk under this forty-pound burden. From among the post stores, Barreau had long since armed me with a rifle that was twin to his own. Between us, we carried a hundred cartridges. A butcher knife, and a small hatchet apiece, fitted us for all emergencies. Thus equipped, we set out, bearing away up the Sicannie toward the grim range of peaks that cut the skyline into ragged notches.

Ten miles upstream Barreau located the cluster of lodges he sought as our first objective point — the summer camp of Two Wolves and his band. There for two nights and a day we lingered, sitting in comical gravity for hours at a time in the lodge of the chief. The upshot of this lengthy council was that Two Wolves' son girded a pack on his broad shoulders and joined us, when we left the camp.

Thereafter I lost count of the days. Possibly, if the need arose, I could detail the camps we made, the streams we crossed, the huge circle we swung upon, the crossing and doubling back upon our own trail; but there is no need. Suffice it to say that we did these things. It was no pleasure jaunt that we three went upon. Crow Feathers was a man of iron in the matter of covering ground.

He knew the haunt of every tribe and offshot of a tribe, every petty chief's following, and every family group in the North, it seemed to me. If he did not lead us to them all, he at least tried. The smoky smell of an Indian lodge became as familiar to my nostrils as the odor of food. And in every camp, over the peace pipe, Barreau talked "trade," with Crow Feathers to vouch for him. Barreau spoke the tongue like a native, but there were lodges wherein neither Cree nor French "patois" was spoken or understood, and, when we encountered such, the wisdom of Crow Feathers smoothed the way. He used the sign language in all its bewildering variety. I, myself, picked up words and phrases here and there, comprehended a few of the simpler signs; but Crow Feathers lingers with me as a past master in wordless communications with his race. Barreau, even, used to wonder at the astonishing amount of information Crow Feathers could impart with a few languid motions. He made a right able interpreter.

Insensibly the days shortened. I recollect with what surprise I wakened one morning to find hoar frost thick on my blanket, and a scum of ice fringing the little creek beside which we slept. Hard on that I observed the turning of the leaves, the red and yellow tints of autumn. And about this time Crow Feathers left us; took up his pack one day at noon, shook hands solemnly with each of us, and a moment later was lost in the still, far-spreading woods. Three days after that, Barreau and I, in the midst of a thinly timbered belt of land, came suddenly upon a clear-cut trail. Even my limited experience told me that it was made by man-guided animals.

"The chumps," Barreau drawled. "They are ten miles out of their way. I didn't expect to hit their trail till to-morrow. Well, they're at the post, before now. We may as well follow them in."

"How is it" — a voiced a thing that puzzled me — "that there are no wagon tracks? Are you sure this is Montell's outfit?

"No other," he answered. "For many reasons. By the mule tracks, for one. You, of course, could not see them in the dark; but there was a mule herd with the bull train. Loaded wagons are too hard to handle in this woods country. We have always used pack mules, this side of the Peace."

"Oh," said I, and, my puzzle solved, I forbore further inquiry. We tramped along the trail in silence. Then, all at once, he flung out an abrupt question. Curiously enough, the thing he spoke of had just drifted into my mind.

"Remember those two Hudson's Bay men, Bob?"

I remembered them very well; two taciturn, buckskin-garbed men, who came to an Indian camp while we were there talking trade. They greeted us civilly enough, slept in the next lodge overnight, and left us a clear field in the morning. But before they took to the trail they drew Barreau aside, and the three of them sat upon a fallen tree and conversed thus for an hour.

"Why, yes," I replied. "What of them?"

"I didn't tell you, did I, that they were company agents with a proposal to buy out my interest in the house of Montell," he said. "Now, that amused me, at the time. But the confounded thing has stuck in my mind, and lately I've been thinking — in fact, I've wondered if———"

He broke off as abruptly as he had began. I was walking abreast of him, and I could see that he was engrossed with some problem; the mental groping in his tone was duplicated in the expression on his face.

"What?" I blurted.

"Oh, just an idea that popped into my mind," he parried carelessly. "I'll tell you by and by."

'To be perfectly honest," I challenged, on the impulse of the moment, "I don't think you trust me very much, after all."

"You're mistaken, there,' he said slowly. "You are the one man in all this country whom I would trust. But I am not going to burden you with mere theories of possible trouble. Wait till I am sure."

With this I was forced to content myself. In a mild way I resented his secretiveness, even while I recognized his right to tell me as much or as little as he chose. This a certain diffidence crept into my attitude, perhaps. If it was obvious, it made no difference to Barreau. In the two days it took us to reach the post, I do not think he spoke a dozen sentences. He followed the trail of the pack train, wholly absorbed in thought. Only when the stockade-enclosed group of buildings huddled below us, casting long shadows over the flat, did his self-absorption cease. We had halted for a moment on the bank above the river, not far from where I had first seen the Sicannie. The sun rested on the jagged mountain range to the west, and the river caught its slanting beams till it lay below us like cloth of gold, a glittering yellow gash in the sombre woods. Barreau's hand fell lightly on my shoulder.

"Lord, I've been a cheerful companion of late," he said, as if it had but occurred to him. And some intangible quality of comradeship in the words, or perhaps his way of saying them, put me at ease once more. Thus we stood a while longer, till the sun dipped behind the mountains, robbing the Sicannie of its yellow gleam, casting a sudden grayness over the North. Then we hitched our lean packs anew and went down the hill.

CHAPTER XII.

The First Move.

Montell himself, burdened with a troubled air, met us at the big gate of the stockade.

"Well, you're back, eh?" he greeted Barreau. "I been wishin' you'd show up. At the same time I'd just as soon you'd stay away. Now, don't get huffy, George. You ain't got any idee what I've had to contend with. Jessie's here."

Barreau looked at him with unchanging expression.

"Well," he observed presently, "what of it?"

"What of it?" Montell echoed. "Jehosophat! Ain't you got no imagination, George? That MacLeod deal has turned her against you somethin' terrible. She heard all that stuff about you, an' wouldn't rest till she made sure 'twas really you. She'd raise old Ned if——"

"She found out that her highly respectable parent was associated in business with a notorious character like Slowfoot George," Barreau cut in sneeringly. "You're rather transparent, Montell. You don't need to beat about the bush with me. I know what you are driving at. I've lost caste with her, which suits you exactly. You are her affectionate father, an honorable, clean-handed man. Henceforth you will not touch pitch, lest she deem you defiled. Very good. But you had better take a hint from me, and bestir yourself, and get her south of the Peace before winter breaks. This is no place for a woman."

"Sure, sure!" Montell seemed no whit taken aback. "That's what I been aimin' to do. I don't know what the mischief got into her to come up here, anyhow. She was supposed to turn back the next day after we left MacLeod — I told you that, the night you come to our camp, but you was too blame busy abusin' me to listen, I guess. Then she stood me off another day or two. By that time I couldn't leave the outfit, and she wouldn't go back unless I did. Darn it, Jessie's gettin' to be too many for me. She's stubborn as a mule an' got a temper like— like- well, when she gets on the fight I've got to stand from under, that's all. There'll be war if she finds out you're the big chief here. Say, George, can't you play like you just happened in?"

"No," Barreau refused flatly. "I will not lie to her, if both our necks depended on it. For that matter, the explanation is simple. Why not tell her the truth yourself?"

Montell looked at him curiously. Of a sudden, the set of his heavy, florid face seemed to become a trifle defiant, aggressive.

"There's no use standin' here jawin'," he said shortly. "Come on to the store. Let's get an understandin' of this thing."

He led the way. Within, he well as without, the rebuilt storehouse was

SERVANT PROBLEM.

It Has Been Solved in Berlin—Work For $8 a Month.

The eternal domestic servant problem seems to be nearing a solution in Berlin, and it is a very simple one —namely, the substitution of men for women.

Of recent years a vast increase in the immigration from the country to the city has taken place, with the result that a capable man servant can now be hired for from between $8 and $10 a month with board.

The Berlin hausfrau testifies that the new servant is infinitely superior to the old, besides leanding a social glory to the household, as hitherto men servants have been employed almost solely by the noble and aristocratic or very wealthy families. Experience shows that they can do and do as well or better all that the woman servant does—dusting, cleaning, brushing, attending at table, even cooking; in short, everything except washing and ironing, against which the manly soul revolts.

They are far more easily satisfied, far more obliging and far less capricious, and their sense of duty is illustrated by the fact that they will actually clean and put away the silver and china before they go to bed. They are a source of economy, too, for when in their charge china cups and saucers do not acquire the habit of automatically sliding off the salver to the ground, or valuable vases and ornaments that of suddenly jumping from their places in the dead watches of the night and being smashed.

Nor does this exhaust the list of their superior qualities, for they rarely give notice in a fit of temper and more readily become attached to their employers. Still, no man is perfect, and the master where a man servant is employed must be prepared for a mysterious fading away of color in his whisky and a high rate or mortality among his cigars.

BALANCE THE WRONG WAY

United States Exports of Manufactures.

An examination of the trade statistics of the United States throws an interesting side light upon the country's present overtures for Reciprocity with us. For the nine months ending September, 1910, their exports of domestic merchandise of every kind were $1,193,321,512, of which $210,490,966 were manufactures for further use in manufacturing, and $401,684,694 were manufactures ready for consumption. The sum of these two, $612,625,660, accounts for 51 per cent. of all of their exports put together. But this is not crediting the exports of manufactures with a class known as "foodstuffs, partly manufactured," which are valued at $180,159,193. If we regard this also as legitimately forming a part of the exports of manufactured goods, it means that of every thing the United States exported for the nine months ending September last, manufactured goods amounted to over 66 per cent.

GLADSTONE'S FAVORITE GRANDCHILD

"It is Vain for You to Rise Up Early."

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Dorothy Drew to Lieutenant Parish, one of Lord Gladstone's A.D.C.'s, recalls the fact that Miss Drew was the favorite grandchild and companion of the late Mr. W. E. Gladstone. She has been the subject of many pretty stories, one being to the effect that she once nonplussed the G.O.M. on a Biblical subject. The famous statesman was trying to induce her to get up earlier. "Why don't you get up, my child?" he asked. "Why, grandpa," rejoined Miss Dorothy, "didn't you tell me to do what the Bible says?" "Yes, certainly," said Mr Gladstone. The little girl then proudly opened her Bible at Psalm cxxvii. and read the second verse: "It is vain for you to rise up early."

RICARDO'S REPLY.

Professor Nichols, a famous physicist, during the recitation of a freshmen class in natural philosophy, observed a tall, lanky youth, in the rear seat, his head in a recumbent position, his body in a languid pose, his eyes half closed, and his legs extended far out. He was either asleep or about to lose consciousness.

"Mr. Ricardo," said the great scientist, "you may recite."

The freshman opened his eyes but did not change his somnolent pose.

"Mr. Ricardo, what is work?"

"Everything is work," was the drawling reply.

"What! Everything is work?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then I take it you would like the class to believe that this desk is work?"

"Yes, sir," replied the youth, wearily; "wood-work."

French Language Used in England.

Though we are in the twentieth century the Norman French of Edward the Confessor is still, in a way, the legal voice of Parliament. Whenever a Bill has passed the British Commons, the Clerk, before he forwards it to the House of Lords, writes upon it according to ancient usage: "Soit baillé aux Seigneurs" (Let it be sent to the Lords). If it is sent from the Peers to the Commons, it bears the like endorsement: "Soit baille aux Communes" (Let it be sent to the Commons).

One Way.

"How did you get your husband out to that musicale last night?"

"Told him there was going to be a lunch afterward."

Distinguished Curlers Coming.

Local curlers will be interested in learning that the Royal Caledonian Club, of Scotland, which is coming to Canada on a visit this coming winter, will pay a visit to Peterborough. It is likely that the curling clubs of this district will be invited for the competitions, which will make up the programme. They will probably be here early in February.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

SIR WILFRID LAURIER.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier has been 39 years in Parliaments. He first entered the Quebec Legislature in 1871, being returned from the constituency of Arthabasca. He was there re-elected in 1874. Three years later he entered the Cabinet, with the Portfolio of Inland Revenue, but was defeated by a small majority, upon presenting himself for re-election. Quebec East then returned him. This constituency has been Sir Wilfrid's ever since.

Upon the successive retirements of Mr. McKenzie and Mr. Edward Blake, in 1887, our present Premier, became leader of the Liberal and then Opposition Party. When it came into power in 1896, he naturally became Prime Minister, which position he has so honorably held for such a long period.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier was born on Nov. 20 at St. Lin in the county of Assomption. Here his father practiced his profession of land surveyer. His mother's maiden name was Marcelle Martineau. Sir Wilfrid being the only child. She died soon after his birth. In 1868 the Premier was married to Miss Zoe Lafontaine of Montreal.

As a man is the product of his education, let us consider what has aided in producing Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The motherless boy attended school in his native parish till the age of twelve. He was then sent to the Protestant School at New Glasgow for a year. Here he imbibed the first draughts of his splendid broadmindedness. From this school he went to L'Assomption College, remaining seven years. In 1861 he matriculated into McGill and graduated in law, being the valedictorian of his class.

No man in Canadian public life has received more attention at the hands of political calumniators. In forty years, however, no opponent has been so base as to utter a slander which touched his personal honor, the purity of his private life, or the righteousness of his character.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

CANADIANS AND THE STAGE.

Since the Governor-General instituted dramatic and musical competitions in this country, culture of the two great arts has made great strides and there is no doubt but that in the near future stars will arise to do credit to Canada, but our great actress, Margaret Anglin, was born before the days of inducement. This great exponent of the drama was born in that centre of political strife —the House of Commons—when her father was speaker in 1876. After a good education in Toronto and Montreal she entered the School of Dramatic Acting, of New York, making her professional debut at the early age of eighteen. Since then she has had many triumphs taking leading parts with E. H. Southern, Richard Mansfield and Henry Miller.

PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper National Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Waka, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

High Class Advertising.

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd has been 258,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" ,with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

D. CRANSTON SHOT AT RIMOUSKI, QUE.

Mark Hambourg's Business Manager Met Death in Mysterious Way — An Accident or Murder?—No one Knows Who Fired the Shot or Where Bullet Came From.

Quebec, Que., Sept. 29.—A mysterious tragedy occurred at Rimouski last evening, at 8.15 on the arrival of the I.C.R. Maritime Express, en route for Halifax.

Mr. Dudley Canston, of London, England, impressario of the famous Russian pianist, Mark Hambourg, who had just arrived from Europe on board the Empress of Britain, was killed by a bullet that struck his head. The author of this tragedy is unknown, and no one can say if this is an accident or a murder. There was at that time a political demonstration going on. The new Conservative member for Rimouski, Mr. H. G. Boulay, was being given a send-off by his friends at the station. Suddenly a detonation was heard, and a man fell with a bullet in his head. He was taken into the Lenghan Hotel, Where Drs. Belisle and Drapeau attended to him. Rev. Mr. Pelletier, curate of Rimouski, was also called near the unfortunate victim, although Mr. Canston was a Protestant. The latter died an hour after. He was going to organize concerts for Mark Hambourg in the Maritime Provinces. He was married, and father of two children. The coroner's inquest will take place to-day.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 50 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days.

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

DEATH OF FENIAN RECALLS OUTRAGE.

Joe Casey, Center of a Gun Powder Plot, Passes Away in Paris.

Irishmen all over the world have heard of the Clerkenwell explosion that formed the climax of the Fenian outrages of 1867 in London. The story is recalled by the death in Paris of Joe Casey, who was a star actor in the terrible drama.

He and a fellow-Fenian named Burke were locked up in Clerkenwell prison, but the Fenians determined to liberate them. A barrel of gunpowder was placed against the wall of the jail by Michael Barrett, aided by Casey's two brothers, Pat and Andrew.

They planned to blow a hole in the wall at the time the prisoners were exercising and then help the pair to escape in the confusion. But the authorities smelled trouble and shifted the exercise to an inner yard.

Bang went the powder just before 4 in the afternoon, killing six bystanders outright and fatally injuring 11 others, while no less than 102 lost eyes or limbs. It cost $100,000 to repair the surrounding property.

A few weeks later Michael Barrett was denounced by another prisoner named Mullany, arrested and hanged. The Caseys got clear away to France under the name of Potter. Joe Casey and Burke were acquitted at their trial, and Joe joined his brothers in the French capital. They all fought for France in the seige of Paris in 1870 and Joe became almost as Parisian as a Frenchman.

FALSE IDEALS

"Graball Too Often the Height of Ambition.

False ideals of happiness haunt the ways of men and lead them on to danger and destruction through the siren song of fantasy. One markes his of wealth. He has enough now for all the purposes of refined living; but he wants that extra ,that margin, by which enough may be broadened out into excess, and refinement may be made to include frantic luxury and insolent ostentation. "When I have so much, I shall be content," he says to himself. But he is never content. If he gets a hundred thousand pounds, he wants two; if two, three; and so on till he covets a million which then, when compassed, shall positively be the term and boundary of his desires. But the million spreads out and rolls on, as the hundred thousand had done before it.

THE BOY ON THE FARM.

Kindness Does More Than Harshness for Future Farmer.

There is the making of a good man in the boy on the farm, but he can be irretrievably spoiled in the making, if too much is put upon him; if his shoulders are loaded with blame for everything that goes wrong indoors and out; if everybody feels privileged to give him orders, and if he is regarded as a mere machine without muscles to tire, sensibilities to wound, intellect to stimulate, or a soul to inspire with longings for better things. Those into whose hands are committed these youths ordained to eat their bread in the sweat of their faces, have a responsibility above that of merely providing food, shelter and clothing. An employer may be harboring an angel unawares, and whether this be true or not, there is laid upon him the duty of dealing justly and conscientiously with the lad.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

W. J. KERR, LIMITED,
New Westminster, B. C.

Dear Sir:—

I am interested in your fruit lands offer at Fleshertos Gardens. Please send me particulars of how I can secure a five acre farm.

Electric Fixtures at First Cost.

We call the attention of the public to the advertisement of the Electrical Wiring, Fixture and Supply Company, 261 College street, Toronto, which is to be found in another column. Those who contemplate changing their fixtures, as well as those who have electric wiring to do, should communicate with the company. By doing so they will procure fixtures at first cost—wholesale to all. Peterborough references as to the high quality of their fixtures given if desired.

As usually treated a sprained ankle will disable a man for three or four weeks, but by applying Chamberlain's Liniment freely as soon as the injury is received, and observing the directions with each bottle, a cure can be effected in from two to four days. For sale by all dealers.

DELIVERY OF THE TIMES.

Subscribers to The Times are asked to immediately report to the office every case of irregular or late delivery of their paper.

Hearty co-operation in this regard is appreciated because in no other way may such errors be remedied.

It is the determination of The Times to provide a prompt and regular delivery to its subscribers and the latter by reporting ALL complaints can do much to guarantee a perfect service.

Phone 164, or notify The Times Printing Co. by post card.

Cuts and bruises may be healed in about one-third the time required by the usual treatment by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. It is an antiseptic and causes such injuries to heal without maturation. This liniment also relieves soreness of the muscles and rheumatic pains. For sale by all dealers.

CANADIAN PACIFIC IMPROVEMENTS.

New compartment cars. Commencing Wednesday night from Montreal, 10.45 p.m. train, and from North Toronto Thursday night, this week, 10 p.m., Peterboro' 12.10 a.m., splendid new compartment cars, with observation end, will be run every night in the week. The very latest improvements in sleeping car designs have been observed in the construction of these cars, every comfort, elegantly equipped, electric lighted. Reservations for compartments should be made early. These cars run between Montreal and North Toronto only. W. McIlroy, Agent.

Children's Aid Society

For the care of neglected and ill-treated children. Incorporated by Act of Legislature, 1893. Information required. Informants' names kept strictly private. Office hours, 10 to 12 a.m., 1 to 3 p.m. George Cochrane, Agent and Assistant Secretary.

"I have a world of confidence in Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for I have used it with perfect success," writes Mrs. M. I. Rosland, Poolesville, Md. For sale by all dealers.

"Sick Man's Friend"

That's the Name Given by Thousands to the Old Family Stand-by, "Nerviline."

1,000,000 BOTTLES USED ANNUALLY.

No better known or more popular family remedy has ever been compounded than "Nerviline." During the past half century its success has been phenomenal — due to the fact that it always cures.

"No one could get me to go to bed at night unless I was sure we had Nerviline in the house," writes Mrs. R. R. Weightman, of Bolton P. O. "Six years ago my husband was taken badly with rheumatism, which affected his right arm and shoulder. It was so sore and stiff as to be almost helpless for four years. I read of the cure of James E. Everett, and felt sure that when Nerviline cured a case like his, it would cure my husband. I got a dollar's worth of Nerviline, five bottles, in Buffalo, and am pleased to write you that the fourth bottle cured. We have since used Nerviline for Lumbago, Neuralgia, Colds, Chest Tightness and other minor ailments in the family and found 'Nerviline' to be the 'Sick Man's Friend.'"

CURED 4 YEARS RHEUMATISM

No other remedy is so useful in the home, so universally employed to alleviate pain and curing the sick. Refuse anything offered you instead of Nerviline, which is sold: Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. By all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

MUNICIPALITY OF TOWNSHIP —OF— NORTH MONAGHAN

Notice is hereby given that I have transmitted or delivered to the persons mentioned in section 8 and 9 of the Ontario Voters' List Act, the copies required by said sections to be so transmitted or delivered, of the said list made pursuant to the said Act of all persons appearing by the last revised Assessment Roll of the said municipality to be entitled to vote at said municipality at elections for member of the Legislative Assembly and at Municipal elections, and the said list was first posted in my office on September 27th, 1911, and remains there for inspection.

Electors are called on to examine the said list and if any omissions or other errors are found therein, to take immediate proceedings to have the said errors corrected according to law.

BRUCE JOHNSTON,
Clerk Township of North Monaghan.

Ladies' Aid Society.

The regular meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the George Street Methodist church was held yesterday afternoon, at 3.30 o'clock. A social hour was spent and refreshments served.

West Victoria Vacancy.

The vacancy in the Ontario Legislature for West Victoria, caused by the death of the late member, Mr. S. J. Fox, will be filled at once. The statutory term expired yesterday, so that action will be taken at once.

Bob Hall in Port.

Lindsay Post: The Government tug, "Bob Hall," of Peterboro, arrived in port to-day with a travelling crane. The crane will be placed in position below the Baker Lumber Co.'s mill, where it is proposed to fill in with material taken from the river.

Work is Progressing.

Good progress is being made with the new Murray Street Baptist Church. A large force of men are employed, and the contractors are going ahead with the work as rapidly as possible, taking advantage of the fine weather.

Detectives After Trade Marks.

Ottawa is to have a visit soon from an English detective representing an association of British manufacturers selling goods with trade marks. He is in Montreal now investigating frauds which appear to consist chiefly in refilling bottles and boxes with inferior goods.

$2 or Ten Days.

Jas. Tierney, who resides at 213 Dublin street, was yesterday fined $2 or ten days at the Police Court. He was caught in the police drag net on September 25th, and was locked up so that he might sober up.

Did You Know?

That on Sunday next, Oct. 8th, the Rev. R. J. M. Glassford, B. D., of Toronto, will preach morning and evening in Mark Street Methodist Church.

Walking the Ties.

Instructions have been sent out by the Attorney-General's Department to police magistrates throughout the province calling attention to the Dominion and Provincial laws on the continuance of the public using railway tracks for pedestrian traffic and directing that all cases brought before them be summarily treated.

When you have a bad cold you want the best medicine obtainable so as to cure it with as little delay as possible. Here is a druggist's opinion: "I have sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for fifteen years," says Enos Lollar of Saratoga, Ind. "and consider it the best on the market." For sale by all dealers.

Our Glorious Fall.

What a glorious climate we have when it is on good behavior? Could anything be more bracing, healthful and invigorating than these September days? With the green grass renewed by the recent rains, and our Canadian trees putting on their mantle of brilliant colors, a life in the open is a perfect joy.

Lock Company's Busy Time.

It is pleasing to learn that the Peterborough Lock Company is having a busy time in keeping up with the business that is being offered. The orders for this season are unusually heavy, taxing to the utmost the capacity of the works.

October Raspberries.

Mr. Fred Anderson, proprietor of the "Highland House," farm, South Monaghan, brought to the city yesterday a small quantity of raspberries which grew on his vines during the present autumn. It is no wonder we all love this "glorious climate of Canada."

Car Choice Fruit.

Have just unloaded another car of fruit, comprising heaped baskets of peaches and grapes, California grapes Utah peaches, grape fruit, etc. This will probably be about the last of the peaches for this season. W. J. Oke. 'Phone 18 and 19. 375 George street.

A Runaway.

A horse attached to a delivery rig took fright on Brock street, near St. Andrew's church, and ran down the street at a two minute clip. It was stopped near George street, before much damage was done.

Local Jews Observe Day.

There is now quite a good-sized colony of Jews in Peterborough, and as a result Jewish festivals are being observed. Only a short time ago the Jewish New Year was kept, and on Monday the Day of Atonement was also marked by the local Israelites.

A Wages Case.

The case of Tighe vs. Gray came before Magistrate Dumble at the Police Court yesterday. Edward Tighe charged Joseph Gray with non-payment of wages amounting to $7.00, and Gray alleged that he owed Tighe $6.15, with the result that judgment was given in favor of Gray, the $6.15 to be paid within eight days. The difference between the men was only 85c.

Col. Sam. Hughes' Majority, 1294.

The official returns for the recent election in Victoria and Haliburton, gave Col. Sam Hughes a majority of 1294 over Mr. J. B. Begg. The total vote polled was 6,708. The totals this year, Hughes 4,001; Begg, 2,707. Majority for Hughes, 1294. There were fifty-one ballots and eighteen rejected ballots. The total vote in the electoral riding is 9,833, while as stated above, 6708 votes were polled, leaving 3,125 votes unpolled.

Disappearance of Young Girl.

A young girl, 15 years of age, named Mary Weaver, who has been living with Mr. William Matthews, first line of Smith, went out for a walk without hat or coat, on the morning of September 22nd, and has not been seen since. All efforts to find any trace of her have failed. Mr. Matthews and family are naturally very much concerned over the mysterious affair, and are putting forth every effort to locate her. Any information sent to The Times office concerning the whereabouts of the girl, will be thankfully received and will be forwarded to Mr. Matthews.

Will Hold a Dance.

The Peterborough Baseball Club will hold a dance in the Conservatory of Music Hall on Oct. 10th. Music will be furnished by Strathdee of Toronto, and the event promises to be one of the most successful of the season.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Aylesworth, of the Immigration Department at Ottawa, a brother of Sir A. B. Aylesworth was in the city yesterday on business.

Mr. Chas. Ford, of the Bank of Montreal, St. John's, Nfld., has returned to his home after a pleasant visit in Peterborough, the guest of Mrs. Routley.

Mrs. J. H. Renwick, 571 Aylmer street, will be at home on Wednesday and Thursday afternoon, from 3.30 to 5.30; also Wednesday evening at 8 o'clock and afterwards during the season every third Tuesday in the month.

Mrs. Norman Barrie (nee Miss Edyth Johnston) will receive for the first time since her marriage, at her home, 519 Chamberlain street, Thursday afternoon and evening, October 5th, and afterwards the first and third Thursdays of the month.

Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Rogers left at noon yesterday for Frankfort, Ont., Mr. Roger's headquarters on that section of the Trent Valley Canal, under construction. Mr. Rogers took a number of Austrians with him as future laborers on that great waterway.

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says, "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For croup there is nothing that excels it." For sale by all dealers.

Dealness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Charged With Forgery.

Edward Kane, avoung man 19 years of age, was charged at the Police Court yesterday with forging a man's name to a cheque for $91.50. It appears that a Government cheque for $91.50, drawn on a local bank, was enclosed in an envelope and sent through the Post Office to Mr. John Kane, Fisheries Inspector. It is alleged that the prisoner, by some means learned that the letter was in the Post Office, and called there presenting himself as brother of the man to whom the cheque was addressed, signing his name, and in this means coming in possession of the cheque. At the bank, it is said, he told the same story, and succeeded in getting the cheque cashed. The offense is alleged to have been committed on 15th July last. The case had to be enlarged for the purpose of securing the necessary witnesses. Mr. R. E. Wood Crown Attorney, prosecuted. Bail was granted. Cash $1,000.00 and two sureties.

NEW COINS.

The new Canadian gold coins will be issued from the Royal Mint in a few weeks. The head of King George will be on one side, and the Canadian coat of arms on the other, the five and ten dollar pieces being about identical in design. The department has not entertained suggestions that the coin should show a maple leaf or some other characteristic emblem. The five-dollar piece will likely be known as "St. George," and the ten as "Double George."

CHANGE OF TRAIN SERVICE.

Commencing on October 2nd the Lakefield train service will be changed, as follows: The train which has been leaving here at 8.30 a.m. will now leave at 7.00 a.m., and returning will arrive Peterboro' 8.15 a.m. The noon train for Lakefield will leave at 12.30, and returning will arrive Peterboro' 5.15 p.m. The evening train is discontinued. The public will be glad to learn that the new service inaugurated this summer to Port Hope will be maintained throughout the winter and will thus enable all passengers to leave Toronto at 9.00 a.m. and arrive Peterboro at mid-day. This train also affords good connection for all eastern points to Montreal and Boston.

OBITUARY.

Elizabeth Dineen.

Mrs. Elizabeth Dineen, passed away at St. Joseph's hospital yesterday, at the ripe old age of 98 years. The deceased was highly esteemed by all who knew her.

Mrs. Dineen is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Hayes of Rochester, Mrs. Lane, city, and four sons, viz., William, Havelock, Maurice, British Columbia, James, of Seattle and Richard of Peterborough. Her surviving brothers are, Thos. Cavanagh of Douro, and Timothy of Peterborough. Mr. Lane of Hunter street, is a grandson.

The funeral will take place at 9 a.m. to-morrow from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Lane, Downie street, to St. Peter's Cathedral and from thence to St. Peter's cemetery, forinterment.

Laid at Rest.

The funeral of the late Mr Alexander Edmmson took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence in Smith, to the Little Lake cemetery. Service at the house was conducted by Rev. Mr. Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's church, of which the deceased gentleman was a consistent member, assisted by Rev. Mr. Edmiston, nephew of the deceased, and Rev. Mr. Bonner, of the Gilmour Memorial church, Smith. The bearers were his three sons and grandson.

Making Observations for Mapping Out Canadian Rockies.

In a letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, the well-known mountain climber and topographer, who is at present in the Canadian Rockies making observations for the purpose of mapping out the district, he says:

"We have a great amount of splendid material for publication and a collection of photographs that cannot be surpassed. We have just completed what is very nearly a 100 mile circuit around Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The peaks and valleys, lakes and waterfalls on all sides of it, and the glaciers are very fine. The region is immense, and there is work for years to come, exploring, mapping and depicting. There is a fine bunch of high peaks and large snowfields and glaciers southwest of Tete Jaune Cache. There are also great peaks up the Athabaska and Fraser headwaters, tributary to your line. The most showy part of Mt. Robson is the Robson Pass and Glacier, and Berg Lake."

In addition to the above Mr. Wheeler reports that his party have collected over 600 specimens of animal and bird life, and a good botanical collection as well. This expedition which was organized by the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been a most successful one, and when its results are published will be of great value. The facts now known bear out the general impression that the territory contiguous to the mountain division of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will surpass in scenic beauty that which can be seen on any other of the North American transcontinental lines.

Porter Wanted.

A good, steady young man wanted as porter. One accustomed to a furnace preferred. Apply at Times Office.

Rome, Oct. 4.—An official statement by the Italian Government this afternoon announces that the bombardment of Tripoli began at 5.30 o'clock yesterday afternoon and continued until sunset.

TONS OF STEEL PROJECTILES.

Tons of steel projectiles were hurled into the antique fortifications on the harbor front by the line of Italian warships. The obsolete cannon mounted in the Turkish works returned the fire but their shells either fell short or glanced off the side of the steel vessels of the Italians.

TURKISH FLAG STILL FLYING.

The Turkish flag was still flying when the bombardment ended Orders have been transmitted to Admiral Aubrey to destroy the Turkish batteries. The bombardment will be resumed to-day.

SEIZED A BRITISH STEAMER.

Rome, Oct. 4.—A despatch from Taranto states that Italian warships have seized the British steamship Sheffield on board which were six Turkish officers and munitions of war. The Turks were taken prisoners and the cargo transferred to the Italian warvessels, after which the Sheffield was released.

CAPTURED TWO TRANSPORTS.

London, Oct. 4.—Advices were received here this afternoon stating that Italian warships near Prevesa had captured two Turkish transports and a third steamer flying the Union Jack, on board of which were 170 soldiers, 60 horses and six guns.

London, Oct. 4.—A report was received here this afternoon, that Italian warships had sunk two Turkish destroyers in the Gulf of Gomenitza, off the Albanian coast.

COL. LAMB HAS BROUGHT 60,000 PEOPLE TO CANADA

MANY OF THEM WOMEN WHO HAVE SOON FOUND HUSBANDS.

Col. Lamb, of the S.A., Expects to Bring 12,000 Immigrants This Year.

Col. Mapp, of the Salvation Army, has just arrived from a three weeks' trip to the coast, accompanied by Col. Lamb, of the Immigration Department, whose headquarters are in London, England.

Col. Lamb, who is a Forfarshire Scot, is a fellow of the Royal Colonial Institute, a member of the Essex County Educational Committee and has during his several years in office succeeded in bringing 60,000 citizens for Canada. He may well be called a statesman and when he chooses to talk, he is worth listening to.

"Nearly 10,000 people were brought out this year," said Col. Lamb. "Our trip was to ascertain conditions and plan for next year's work. We hope to raise Canada's population by 12,000 or 15,000 during 1911-12.

The Army is very careful in selecting its immigrants. It has bureaus in London, Bristol, Glasgow and in Liverpool with local centres all over the country. Applicants are examined as to moral and physical fitness and financial qualifications and no assisted cases is sent out without a special report. In the last seven years, despite two bad seasons, there has been but one per cent. of failure. The immigrants are forwarded through centres in St. John, Halifax Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, London, Winnipeg, and Vancouver, and are sent direct to the soil wherever possible.

"And they are making good," declared the Colonel, "there was a man in here just now who landed five years ago without a cent and now he's worth $5,000."

The branch of the work devoted to bringing out domestic servants is of growing importance. Twelve hundred girls came last year, in parties of thirty, in charge of a matron. The organization has asystem of lodges, where the girls are entertained till situations are secured for them and afterwards these homes form meeting places when the afternoon off comes round.

"It is easy to get them to come," said Colonel Lamb. "for the census in the old land shows 1,250,000 adult women in excess of the male population. They are very popular out here. Within 24 hours after landing of a carload at one of our distributing centres, they are all snapped up as maids. The trouble is that so many of them marry that, as a Western statesman said to me, his house had become aregular matrimonial bureau. Fortunately he had the good of the country at heart and didn't mind."

Money is lent to about 60 per cent. of these women, and between 85 and 90 per cent. of them are good pay. Asked how this compared with returns from the men, he said that the Army would not lend money to men under any consideration, at least not unmarried men.

There is to be a new department established for the children, 360,000 of whom are now unwanted in the Old Country, and, as orphans, or deserted, are chargeable to the Poor Law or to charity. One half of these should be available for emigration, and a special officer, Adjutant Vallance is now in this country studying the situation. The best brain of the Army will be given to solving this new and most pressing problem.

King Beaten by 315.

Berlin, Ont., Oct. 4.—Official returns in the Dominion elections for North Waterloo give Weichel 315 majority over Hon. Mackenzie King.

New York, Oct. 4.—Jan Kubelik, the Hungarian violinist, who has come here for ten concerts, for which he is to receive $100,000, had the insurance on his increased to $235,000.

CABINET MINISTERS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I had an argument with a friend over the number of cabinet ministers in the Dominion Government. Kindly state exactly how many there are, and oblige.

A Subscriber.

Reply—There are fifteen Cabinet ministers at present. Occasionally a man may be elevated to a Cabinet position "without portfolio," There are, however, no ministers of this kind at present—Ed. Times.

DAN WHETUNG'S THANKS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Would you allow me a small space in your valuable paper to let my friends know (those that are my friends, indeed—they have shown it by visiting me while I was in the hospital), that I have left the hospital and am back again to my home in Chemong. And I am sure I thank those nurses that attended me while I was at the hospital. They worked hard, day and night to bring me back to health again, which they did. One thing they failed in was that they tried to make a white man of me—too late for that. Thank you, Mr. Editor.

Dan Whetung, Sr.

FAR TOO MANY DRUNKS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Almost daily there are one or more men before the Police Magistrate charged with drunkenness. Where do these men procure their liquor? I understand there is a law against selling liquor to a drunken man? If so, why are the bar men not prosecuted?

Perhaps Inspector Stewart might answer. I am sure if the police who make the arrests were instructed, they would soon put a stop to this species of wrong-doing.

If our hotelmen would consider their own interests they would discharge any bartender who makes a habit of selling liquor to an intoxicated man.

HOT STUFF FROM THE CATHOLIC RECORD

The following appeared in a late issue of the Catholic Record:

"Ten converts have been received from the Anglican Church of the Good Shepherd, Quincy, Ill., of which church Mr. Richey was until last December the rector.

* * * *

"There have been twenty clergymen from the Anglican ministry received into the Catholic Church in England since last September.

"An attempt was made to discredit the minister converts by the Church Times. It speaks of them disparagingly as the "small beer," but a study of the life and character of these converts places them in the front rank. They are all men of distinction, and many of them of high position.

"Anyhow, they are men who have had to make the great sacrifices for their convictions. The man who casts behind him the world preferment that the established Church holds out to its ministers and steps down among the lowly seals with his sacrifices, his change of life. It is conscience and not selfishness that demands the step and conscience can make heroes of us; as when it is violated it make cowards."

RIFLE RANGE

Department Will Consider the Matter With Scalor Officers.

In reply to the representation made to Mr. Burnham that the question of a rifle range for Peterborough had been sidetracked so long that it had become a public scandal, and certainly ridiculous that a regiment should have a drill hall and parade grounds and no rifle range. Mr. Burnham thereupon asked the department to begin the question all over again and to place the matter in the hands of the senior officers of the regiment. Mr. Burnham has now been advised that this course will be adopted in accordance with his request. The final decision of course rests with the department, and the department expresses the hope that some satisfactory arrangement for the construction of the new range will result. This matter is being pursued with all diligence.

C.P.R. DECIDES TO LOCATE WESTERN SHOPS AT CALGARY

OLD BOARD OF DIRECTORS RE-ELECTED—BURY WILL PROBABLY SUCCEED WHYTE.

New Debenture Issue—It Will be For Four Million Dollars for Steamships—More Branch Lines.

Montreal, Oct. 4.—At the annual meeting of the shareholders of the C.P.R. this afternoon it was decided to issue $800,000 in debentures on the steamship account. This issue was authorized by the shareholders without any discussion, the proceedings being purely formal in character and wholly without excitement. The share holders also endorsed a plan to build for the Pacific service a new steamship to replace the wrecked Empress.

CALGARY GETS SHOPS.

It was decided to locate the new Western shops at Calgary.

It was expected that the appointment of a successor to Sir William Whyte would be discussed at the meeting, but neither at the shareholders' meeting nor at the meeting of the directors held subsequently was the matter discussed. It was stated on good authority, however, that the executive of the company have practically decided on the appointment of Mr. Bury, general manager of the Western lines, to that position.

The meeting was very late in commencing and was not over until nearly 1.30 p.m.

SHAUGHNESSY RE-ELECTED.

The old board of directors were re-elected unanimously. At a subsequent meeting of the directors, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy was re-elected president.

In his report, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy said that it was not only necessary, but desirable, to continue to build year by year more branch lines to provide transportation facilities for incoming settlers.

"You will be required," he said, "to provide more lines in the future than you would have been, had the Dominion and Provincial Governments, who have pledged their credit almost beyond prudence to other railway companies insisted that these companies open new country."

It would be necessary, he said, to double track the road from Medicine Hat Westward to relieve congestion, and the work would have to be done as rapidly as possible.

THE STRIKE ENDS IN IRELAND

Dublin, Oct. 4.—The strike declared on the Irish railroads by the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants September 21, was finally settled today.

An earlier agreement was held up when the companies refused to reinstate certain strikers in places which had been filled by other men. The strikers abandoned their original grievance which was their objection to handling lumber shipped by a firm which was having trouble with its employes.

But the final arrangement the companies agree to reinstate 90 per cent. of the strikers at once and the remaining 10 per cent. when vacancies occur. They will not dismiss the new men who were taken on during the strike.

THE LONDON TIMES ON THE DECREE

In discussing this phase of the question the London Times says:

"Neither the higher courts of Canada nor the Privy Council have been disposed to uphold the extreme claims of the Roman Catholic hierarchy. The courts disallowed the assumption of the hierarchy to interfere with freedom of elections by the imposition of spiritual penalties. The Privy Council denied the right of the church to refuse burial in Roman Catholic cemeteries to excommunicated persons. It is clear that, under the law of Quebec, Protestant ministers have the right to solemnize marriage and therefore, while the church may refuse to recognize marriages between Protestants and Roman Catholics performed by Protestant clergymen, it is surely doubtful if it has the power to declare such marriages illegal, and deny to the state all power over the civil and moral consequences of such marriages."

COAL LIKE QUICKSAND DREW MEN TO DEATH

Freeland, Pa., Oct. 4.—Five men, all foreigners with families, lost their lives at a Lehigh Valley Coal Company Mine at Drifton last night in a most unusual accident. Two other men had narrow escapes. The laborers were working on a hugh culm bank repairing a drag line attached to an apparatus that carries refuse from the mines to the top of the culm heap. Near them was a wooden stack connected with an air shaft running into the mine. The stack suddenly collapsed and the fine coal refuse started to run into the mine opening like quicksand, drew the men into a vortex and precipitated them 70 feet into the mine.

Other men on the culm bank noted their absence and rescue gangs from within the mine were immediately set to work digging out the unfortunate workmen who by this time had been covered by tons of dirt, but when they were reached two hours later, five of them were lifeless. The other two are in a serious condition but probably will recover.

Olympic Sails for Belfast..

METHODISTS FROM THE FOUR CORNERS OF WORLD MEET IN CONFERENCE

Toronto, Oct. 4.—With the fine Wesleyan accents of Rev. Dr. Carman's voice raised in supplication of Divine blessing, while fifteen hundred worshippers bowed and kneeled in the galleries and main floors of the Metropolitan Church this morning, the World's Congress of Methodists—the fourth Ecumenical Conference—entered upon its two week's task.

Men and women, stalwarts in the religious armies of many lands, and in many zones, sat in the cathedral pews of the handsome edifice of Toronto Methodism, and engaged their first hours in prayer, the singing of hymns and the thrilling doctrine of progress and hope enunciated by the president, Rev. Dr. Carman, general superintendent of the Methodist Church in Canada, and Rev. Henry Haigh, president of the English Wesleyan Conference. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was observed at the close of the sermon, eight clergymen administered the rite.

With those who arrived with the early morning trains, the great majority of the expected five hundred delegates are now in attendance at the conference sessions. From Africa Australia, France, Germany, Japan, India, the South American Republics the West Indies—from the sources of a score of diverse languages and from the centres of all degrees of civilizations have come representatives to unfold their messages of progress and bear homeward their share of suggestion and inspiration.

A HUSHED CONGREGATION

It was a hushed and sometimes breathless congregation assembled at Metropolitan Church this morning, that heard from the lips of Rev. Henry Haigh, a statement that the wave of ruthless Biblical criticism was neither to be feared nor resented by Methodists; it was the most eloquent sign of the progress of Christian faith.

Rev. Mr. Haight strikes his assertions direct from the shoulder. As one of England's masterful preachers an administrator of outstanding ability, and a church champion of fine scholarship, he held the opening meeting of the Ecumenical Conference in the hollow of his hand. The attention was in keeping with the range of his subject, the charm of a beautiful diction, and the concentrated thought and intense spirituality of his utterances. The sermon will unquestionably have the effect of stimulating the conference to its highest and best activity.

As the preacher upon an occasion of more than ordinary significance, he constructed his remarks upon the text: "The Harvest Truly is Plenteous, but the Laborers are Few."

KING MANUEL ON THE MOVE

HURRIES FROM PENRITH TO RIBHMOND LEAVING AT MIDNIGHT.

London, Oct. 4.—Portuguese Royalists declare that the Monarchy will be re-established in the Northern part of Portugal to morrow, the anniversary of the revolution that overthrew King Manuel. A member of the colony which established itself around Manuel at Richmond, stated that cablegrams received this morning announced that in the greater part of North Portugal were bands of Royalists who occupied towns of Chaves, Guimaraes Barra and Barranca.

On the other hand Republican circles say that Chaves and the other parts of the North are quiet. The Richmond colony has been watching with interest the recent attempts on the northern frontier to establish the Monarchy. Several times success was believed to have been in sight, only to be frustrated at the last moment either through the interference of the Spanish authorities or by the premature disclosure of their plans.

Manuel, who has been the guest of the Earl of Lonsdale, at Lowther Castle, in Penrith, brought his visit to an unexpected early termination, leaving the castle at midnight for Richmond where he arrived to-day.

NICHOLLS' HOSPITAL ALUMNAE.

Annual Meeting and Election of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Alumnae took place yesterday afternoon at the Y.W.C.A. parlours, when the following officers were elected:

Miss Fanny Dixon, president.

Miss Annie Brown, 1st vice-president.

Miss May Dockrill, 2nd vice-president.

Miss Ethel Davidson, treasurer.

Miss Bertha Mowry, secretary.

Miss Margaret Ferguson, Member Editorial Board "Canadian Nurse."

Miss Brown and Miss Dixon gave interesting reports of the meeting of the Ontario Graduate Nurses' Association, held at Niagara Falls, in May last.

At the conclusion of the business refreshments were served.

WEDDING BELLS

Davis—Crapp.

THE home of Mr. James Crapp, of Smith Township, was the scene of a very pretty home wedding on the 27th ultimo, when his eldest daughter, Miss Edith, was united in marriage to Mr. Wm. Davis, also of Smith. The Rev. Mr. Coons of Lakefield, performed the ceremony. The bride who was given away by her father, wore a cream dress, trimmed with tucked net and satin; her sister Miss Phoebe Crapp, who was bridesmaid, was dressed in pale blue mull, trimmed with lace and insertion. Mr. Albert Nicholls of Bridgenorth, supported the groom. The bride was the recipient of many valuable and useful presents.

Glover—LaPlante.

Miss Armene Laplante, youngest daughter of Mr. Thos. Laplante, Rubidge street, was united in marriage to Mr. R. M. Glover, son of Mr. Peter Glover, Mark street, East City, yesterday.

Many valuable and useful gifts were received by the bride and groom, evidencing the high esteem in which they are held by their numerous friends. Among the gifts was a grandfather's clock, from the employes of the Examiner Printing Co., of which the groom is manager director. Heartiest congratulations and best wishes will be extended to the bride and groom.

Children's Chest Troubles

Nurse Carrington Says Her Long Experience Proves the Safest Remedy is to

RUB ON NERVILINE

Every mother knows how difficult it is to get a young child to take a cough mixture. Seldom will one help unless given in large doses, and the result is to completely upset the stomach and make the child sick.

Speaking of the promptest cure for chest troubles and children's colds, Nurse Carrington says: "In all my experience in nursing I haven't met any preparation so dependable as Nerviline. It is the ideal liniment. Every drop you rub on is absorbed quickly, sinks through the pores to the congested muscles, eases, relieves, and cures quickly. Especially for chest colds, pain in the side, stiff neck, earache, toothache, I have found Nerviline invaluable. In treating the minor ills of children Nerviline has no equal. I think Nerviline should be in every home."

A million bottles of Nerviline used every year—this is itself a burden of proof that it is the ideal liniment for the home. Refuse anything your dealer may offer instead of Nerviline. Large size bottle 50c, or sample size 25c. Sold everywhere, and by The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the peoperty, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE:

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of the growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.
The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 5c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a olume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a muzzle velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another artoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well I'll be jiggered."

FRUIT GROWERS' ORGANIZE.

A meeting of interested fruit-growers of the Newcastle, Ont., District was held last week for the purpose of forming a Co-operative Fruit-growers' Association. Mr. P. J. Carey, Dominion Fruit Inspector, gave a helpfull address. The chair was occupied by Mr. R. S. Duncan of the Department of Agriculture.

The organization chose to be known as the Durham Co-operative Fruit-growers' Association. It was decided to admit no members who would not take good care of their orchards.

We Eat Too Much.

To rise from the table able to eat a little more is a proverbially good rule for every one. There is nothing more idiotic than forcing down a few mouthfuls because they happen to remain on one's plate after hunger is satisfied, and because they may be "wasted" if left. It is the most serious waste to overtax the stomach with even half an ounce more than it can take care of.

He raised only $13, and everybody's wondering who the other 12 boobs were who gave a dollar apiece.

The weary poet now endeavors to gather in the elusive dime by rhyming leech and peach together, producing thus a seashore rhyme.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

FARMERS TO MEET BORDEN.

Arrangements are being made by the farmers of the three prairie provinces to meet Mr. R. L. Borden when he comes West next month. It is felt by the farmers that as Mr. Borden is Premier of Canada in prospect, he should be made fully aware of the desires of the Western people.

When Sir Wilfrid Laurier toured the West last summer he was met by the organized farmers at every point where he held meetings, and the demands of the farmers were firmly and courteously placed before him.

Mr. Borden will hold thirty meetings in the West, and it is the intention to have a delegation meet him at every point and lay before him the needs of the West. The same matters will be brought before Mr. Borden as were discussed with Sir Wilfrid last summer, though the demands of the farmers are now crystallized into more definite shape.

A Lesson in Politeness.

A pretty story about the delicate wit of Mrs. Taft has recently amused Washington society.

Mrs. Taft, at a diplomatic dinner, had for neighbour a distinguished French traveller, who boasted a little unduly of his nation's politeness. "We French," the traveller declared, "are the politest people in the world. Everybody acknowledges it. You Americans are a remarkable nation, but the French excel you in politeness. You admit it yourself, don't you?"

Mrs. Taft smiled delicately.

"Yes," she said. "That is our politeness."

Valuable Tim.

Andrew Wilson, an attorney, was named as the administrator of an estate. It was his duty to find the lucky but missing brother. "He was slicing turnips for the sheep on his employer's farm, up among the mist-clad hills of Scotland," said Mr. Wilson, "when I found him. I had traced his life from the old farm on which he was born, step by step through forty years of ill-paid and often most unpleasant labor before I approached him. It was not difficult, for he had held but a few positions in all those years. Every one in the countryside knew him. 'Are you Alexander Stephenson?' I asked. 'I am,' said he, without taking his eyes from the turnips and the knife. 'Your brother James is dead in New York,' said I. 'Aweel, aweel, all men must dee, die,' he said, slicing away. 'He left you a great fortune,' said I. 'I want you to come to the house with me, so that I can establish your identity and arrange for you to enter into possession of the estate.' 'I'll talk to ye at sax o'clock, young man,' said he. 'I'll be busy till then. They fortune will keep, but they turnips will not.'"

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

THE VANISHING FORESTS

Timber Resources of the United States Showing Signs of Exhaustion.

Commissioners and commissions have been appointed in various parts of the United States to make reports on what should and could be done to stem the destruction and prepare for the restoration of timber supplies, but wherever actually a response to the recommendations was secured the means employed were too feeble to prevent the former and too inefficient to secure adequate results in the latter direction. For instance, the latest State to move in the matter of taking care of its important timber interest, Alabama (whose annual lumber output is valued at $5,-000,000), appropriates $500 for carrying out the provisions of the act providing a commission with various duties. The great State of Minnesota whose forest products in one year approach in value $45,000,000, devotes less than $12,000 to its forest interests, and $20,000 on prairie planting. The State of Maine, which still cuts around one billion feet, and is indebted to the forest for a product of $18,000,000 in value, keeps within the modest sum of $25,000 to pay for the protection against fire and the support of a commissioner. Examples of such picayune and inadequate measures are found in many other States.

The only two States which have not hesitated to spend money for forestry purposes are New York and Pennsylvania. The former, in purchasing forest lands for a preserve, which now comprises about one and a half million acres only, has expended millions of dollars, and is annually appropriating money for further purchase, besides liberal provision for its Forest, Fish and Game Commission. But, alas! the policy of forest reservation which had begun on economic grounds, has degenerated into providing a pleasure ground—a park—for the wealthy, and there is little consideration to economic forest questions given by the State or the Commission.

Pennsylvania is the only State which can be said to have started on a true policy of recuperation, buying up waste lands, protecting them, and in a small way beginning to reforest them, an appropriation of about $500,000 being at the disposal of the Forest Commission.

NEED OF THE HOUR.

Major George Washington Stephens Talks on Canadian Transportation.

Not long ago Major Stephens, the President of the Harbor Commissioners of Montreal, delivered a masterly address before the Empire Club of Toronto on the development of the St Lawrence route. "In the possession of this great national asset, the St. Lawrence waterway," said Mr. Stephens, "into which has gone the genius, the courage and the money of the Canadian people, Canada unquestionably has within her midst the cheapest and most efficient national trade route on the Continent.

"The St. Lawrence River to-day carries to and from the port of Montreal one-third of the country's national trade.

"In this enterprise there are just 6,000,000 Canadian shareholders, all equally interested.

"At her present rate of increase Canada will, during the twentieth century, contribute to the Empire a population exceeding that now occupying the British Isles, and will produce from one-quarter of her available areas in the West more wheat than now comprises the total wheat crop of the United States.

"There are two methods of providing for the handling of this new business, not to mention the concurrent industrial production of the country: First, by increasing transportation and terminal facilities on Canadian soil; second, by allowing business to be taken care of by transportation routes and sea terminals not within the limits of this Dominion.

"I like to regard this system extending from Fort William to the sea, a distance of 2,500 miles, as a great national undertaking, into which are going the money, the genius and the patriotism of the Canadian people, and out of which are coming year by year privileges and powers to the transportation interests of Canada, instead of diversity of control and authority."

NAVAL BATTLE WITH HORSES

How 3000 Cowboys Captured the Spanish Fleet.

Paez, who was the first President of the Republic of Venezuela, was perhaps the only man who ever fought a naval battle on horseback. It is a matter of history that he, to whom more than any other man, apart from Simon Bolivar, Venezuela owes her independence, actually attacked and captured with his cavalry a fleet of ships.

Bolivar was endeavouring to cross the Apure River in the struggle for independence, but was prevented from doing so by some eight Spanish gunboats, which moved up and down the stream as he did. Bolivar was in despair for a while. To Paez, who was second in command, he appealed for counsel, saying that he could never cross the river so long as the Spanish gunboats were there. "If only we could capture them," the revolutionary leader observed, "the rest would be easy."

Paez decided that he would have those ships or die, and he accordingly told his regiment of cowboys to follow him. Paez himself had been a cowboy on the plains of the Orinoco and was the idol of his men. So when he spurred his horse into the stream calling on his men to follow, of the 3,000 cowboys and their mounts, which are taught to swim as well as to gallop, there was not a single man to hold out in this unique assault upon the gunboats. It being night, the Spanish fleet were taken quite unawares. The cowboys wriggled from their saddles to the decks of the vessels, letting their mounts swim back to shore. Having thus cut off their own retreat, it was a question of win or die. They fought well, and every gunboat was captured.

THE EDIBLE CRAB

Something of the Curious Life of This Half Fish Half Animal.

The edible crab is obliged to moult or cast off its shell many times during its life. This moulting appears to be an unpleasant ordeal to pass, for the crabs often die during the act. When we see that they are not only obliged to escape from the carapox or shell, but also from the hard covering of their eyes, delicate mouth-parts, and even gullet — turning themselves inside out, as it were — it is not surprising that they perish during the ordeal. The crab crawls up into some secluded nook or cove in shallow water to moult, out of th way of its hard-shelled relatives, for the helpless, newly-moulted, or soft-shell crab, if found, is devoured by them, as well as by several species of fishes. Fortunately for the crab, the soft covering hardens rapidly, and in a few hours it has a new and strong armour, and it then goes fearlessly out into deep water.

WILL CARRY FURTHER THAN MAN CAN SEE.

New Gun With Range of 15 Miles to be Mounted in Battleship Turrets.

A gun that will carry its projectile clear out of sight is the style that is to be placed in the turrets of the new battleship of the New York type. One of these guns has been made at the Washington factory and a dozen others are to follow as rapidly as the great lathes can turn them out. The gun has been tried out at the proving ground and has shown that it is without doubt the most powerful naval weapon in the world. With a muzzle velocity of 2400 feet a second, the shell will have ranges of about 14 or 15 miles; consequently, it will land far beyond the horizon at extreme elevations. It might hit a ship that the gunners could not see; a friend or an enemy, perhaps. Hence, the ordonance officers will be unusually careful when ships mounting these great guns go out for target practice.

An expert states that all one needs do to put out a gasoline or kerosene fire is to put foam on it. He does not say so, but we presume the gentleman means to imply that it is always well to have a mad dog around the house to supply the foam.

Unappreciated Sympathy.

The Soda-fountain clerk was engaged in vigorously shaking up a chocolate and egg, says a writer in the Bellman, when suddenly the glass broke in his hands, and the ensuing deluge made him look like a human eclair. The horrified customer leaned over the counter and tried to be sympathetic. Not knowing exactly what to say, he finally burted out ,consolingly:

"Oh-er-too bad! Did the glass break?"

Dripping from head to foot, the clerk looked at him witheringly.

"Did the glass break?" he repeated. "Did the glass break?" And then with freezing sarcasm, "Oh, no, not at all! You just happened to stop in while I was taking my morning shower."

Rossini's Reception of Wagner.

Wagner and some companions called upon Rossini. Hearing them on the stairs, Rossini hastily placed the score of "Lohengrin" on the piano, and when the German composer entered he said, pointing to it, "You see, illustrious maestro, I am studying your work."

"But the score is upside down!" exclaimed the other, seeing how the book was placed.

"Yes," returned Rossini calmly; "the fact is I have had it the right way up for some time, but could make nothing of it," and then all present began to laugh, including Wagner himself.

THE COST OF LIVING.

The rejection of reciprocity by Canada emphasizes the fact that the United States must soon do something to terminate its era of high prices. The cost of living in the American republic is becoming excessive, and dispatches state that the price of food has in some respects attained a prohibitive basis. With winter coming on this will be serious for the poor man.

During the recent Canadian campaign it was pointed out that the United States would be forced to open its doors to Canadian food products in its own interests, and without any corresponding concession from this side. From present indications it seems likely that this will be the case. The Republican party has failed to meet the necessities of the American situation. With the Democrats in control of the house a lower tariff basis was looked for, but with the Democrats in control of the house and high prices in control of the public, reduction would seem to be inevitable.

In such a case there will no doubt be a lowering of the U. S. duty on Canadian food products. If so, both countries will benefit. And this is the only way in which tariff matters can properly be administered, namely, by each country maintaining independent control of its own schedule, and adapting it from time to time to meet the necessities of its population.

THE FRENCH BIRTH RATE.

In a recent issue of the Journal officiel the population of France for 1910 was given as 39,252,245. There were 309,289 marriages, 13,049 divorces, 774,358 living children born, and a total of 763,777 deaths, not including those of stillborn children, which numbered 35,944. The net excess of births over deaths was therefore 70,581. In 1909 the excess of births over deaths was only 13,424, but the decided improvement shown in the figures for 1910 was largely due to a decrease of 52,768 in the deaths of that year. The portions of France in which the birth rate was most favorable last year were Brittany, the north and frontier Departments of the East, the ancient province of Limousin and Corsica, while in the valleys of the Rhone and Garonne the death rate exceeded that of births. The excess of births over deaths in Paris and the Department of the Seine was 2,670, or 804 less than the excess of the Department of the Seine Inferieure, which contains the cities of Rouen and Havre. For the five-year period from 1901 to 1905 inclusive, the number of births per thousand of population in six leading countries of Europe was as follows: In Holland, 165; in Germany 149; in Great Britain, 121; in Austria, 113; in Italy, 106; and in France, 18.

CAPT. HAINS IS SET AT LIBERTY

Ossington, N.Y., Oct. 3.—Captain Peter C. Hains, slayer of W. E. Annis, was released from Sing Sing today on a pardon by Governor Dix. He left the prison gates at 8.50, accompanied by his father, General Hains, who has been here two days awaiting receipt of the special delivery letter containing Governor Dix's pardon. The pardoned man accepted the $31.59 with which the State of New York furnishes its released prisoners, and claimed 72 cents railroad fare to Brooklyn. He was dressed in a new suit of dark blue serge, and wore a light felt hat. With his father he left immediately for New York.

Both declined to talk of future plans.

Hains was convicted of the murder of Annis, an editor, at Bayside yacht club, three years ago. The "unwritten law" played an important part in the trial. Hains recently divorced his wife.

What caused Governor Dix to sign Hains' pardon was a petition signed by all the jurymen who found him guilty of manslaughter. His sentence was not less than eight or more than sixteen years.

Under the caption, "The gentlemanly Sport of Murder," the New York Sun editorially says: "In reducing to a minimum the inconvenience and hardship to which Capt. Peter C. Hains was subjected by the decision of a judge and jury, Governor Dix will doubtless do much to popularize the particular mode of murder in issue. When the jury convicted this defendant and a sentence of from eight to sixteen years was imposed, the discouragement administered to public murder was considerable. We may now look for renewed activity in this form of gentlemanly sport.

"The advantages of the Hains method are obvious. Lynching necessitates action by an aroused community a thing sometimes difficult to obtain. Besides it is often criticised as barbarous, etc. Dueling, on the other hand, subjects the murderer to a considerable and needless risk. By far the better sport is to harness yourself with an automatic pistol, take your stand on a yacht club float, with an interested crowd of men, women and children about, and bravely empty the contents of your automatic into your victim as he sails up in a boat, seated unsuspecting in the cockpit. Three years in jail is certainly a very innocuous price to pay for a successful afternoon's hunting."

Here is a woman who speaks from personal knowledge and long experience, viz., Mrs. P. H. Brogan, of Wilson, Pa., who says, "I know from experience that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is far superior to any other. For croup there is nothing that excels it." For sale by all dealers.

GERSES GUILTY OF MURDER

Ashland, O., Oct. 3.—The man who shot dead Chas. McMahon, of Midland, Ont., while he was on the steamer Alva Dinkey, of which he was wheelsman, has been found guilty of murder in the second degree. The prisoner is William Gerses, a Hungarian, who was intoxicated when he used the revolver. The crime occurred on June 6th.

The conviction carries with it a sentence from fourteen to twenty-five years. Gerses is only nineteen years of age, and should he go to prison under this sentence, he will be a middle-aged man when he is released.

Gerses admitted on the stand that the shooting was done with his own revolver, which he had hidden in his bunk, but he says he has no recollection of what occurred. On cross examination he admitted that he remembered falling into the lake when he tried to escape to the shore, and also remembered other minor incidents.

Relatives on both sides attended the trial. Gerses is a Hungarian, and his father who attended all the sessions of the court, cannot speak a word of English. The widow of the dead wheelsman, Mrs. Charles McMahon, and his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Harry McMahon, also attended the trial, leaving during the night on the ore carrier Dinkey, for their home in Midland, Ont. Although grief stricken at the tragedy, they were greatly comforted at the thought that the testimony only accentuated the fact, that wheelsman McMahon was highly respected by his fellow associates, and was in no wise to blame for the tragedy that ended his life. He was shot down by a drunken man, who might have shot any innocent man that came across his path. The Pittsburg Steamship Company sent Mrs. McMahon a cheque for $950, and is every way did all it could for her. A peculiarity about the case is the fact that Gerses does not appear to be of the murderous type. His actions are those of a green boy. A few glasses of whiskey brought on all this trouble.

FLY WORSE THAN TIGER.

The house-fly is born in offal—no where else. The manure pile and the cesspool are his home. It is from these haunts that he comes to visit the kitchen, the dining-room, and the nursery. He drags his filthy feet across the bread, dips them in the butter, wipes them on the meat, and bathes in the milk. He seeks out the sickroom and sips the delicious excretions of the consumptive, the typhoid fever patient, and the child with summer complaint.

There is plenty of discouragement in the world, handed out free of charge, without paying people to bring it into the house when you are ill.

"The Distance Lends."

Henry Pasquet lost his wife a few years ago and soon afterward he appeared with a wide mourning band on his sleeve. Time went on and he finally began to woo the sister of his departed wife, with the result that he married her some five months after the first wife's death. Some time after that some one who was not familiar with recent happenings met Henry and asked him who had died in his family.

"Oh," said Henry, thoughtfully, "my seester-in-law, she die."

Indeterminate Sentence.

There is much good in the indeterminate sentence plan, which, it has been suggested at different times, might well be incorporated in the Canadian judicial system. A man serves a month in jail for assault, he gets out, is arrested for another assault, and goes back to prison for nine months. What reason is there to believe that when he is again free he will have learned the lesson of law and order?

Why Long Hair.

As an example of graciousness and tact, Matthew White tells of a London clergyman who was called on to address an audience of actors. Alluding to the better social status of the players the clergyman said that in former days it was sometimes customary to brand them as vagabonds and bore a hole in their ears with an awl, that the citizens might thus be forewarned. "And who knows," the clergyman added, "but that it is a survival of an endeavor to hide this mark of indignity that causes some of the actors even to-day to wear their hair long?"

Outstripping Australia

How completely Canada has outstripped Australia is revealed by the census totals of the commonwealth now announced. The population of the inland continent is 4,449,495, an increase of just 750,000 in the last ten years. The Canadian figures for the same period will, it is expected, show a growth of at least two and a half millions, with a total population in the neighborhood of eight millions."

THREE-MONTHS BABY WEIGHS 150 POUNDS.

His Name Is Flip-Flop and He Is a Walrus in a Zoo.

There is in the New York Zoo an interesting specimen of the Atlantic walrus which was caught in Kane Basin. He is yet a baby only six months old, and for homeliness and comical facial expression he is not to be equalled. For every one but his keeper he has nothing but hatred; but for him he will go anywhere and do anything. His affections began to show itself by his flopping in his awkward way after his keeper every time he moved. For this the keeper called him Flip-flop, and this has been shortened to Flip.

The keeper was anxious to weigh him one day. This would have been something of an undertaking under the circumstances as the weighing machine was some distance away. But the gate was opened, the keeper went out, saying: "Come on, Flip," and out came the young walrus, and followed him not only to the scales, but on the scales, where, by giving him one or two clams, he was kept long enough to be weighed.

Flip weighed at the time of his capture 150 pounds. Since then he has gained enormously, as he has a huge appetite. He eats over 20 pounds of fish daily — three meals a day — in the shape of clams, codfish and butterfish, from which all the bones are first carefully removed. He always seems to be ravenously hungry and eats greedily, with many growls, and flips and sighs.

BURGLAR ALARMS

Every renter has his own idea of what constitutes a desirable neibourhood,' said the renting agent. "A tenant hung back from signing a lease for six hours the other day because I could not tell him whether anybody in the block was taking the fresh-air cure. He was so insistent that I finally made inquiry and learned from the janitor at No. 225 that a man on the third floor of his building sleeps every night with his head stuck out of the window, and then the tenant signed the lease.

"His precaution was due to fear of burglars. He has learned, he says, that the best burglar alarm ever invented is the fresh-air cure. Not even the doctors who advise it know so well as the second-story men how many people sleep with their heads out of the window. They know because the habit interferes with their business. Whole blocks that used to be profitable hunting grounds for burglars are now so much waste space because two or three persons in the block go to bed with the upper half of the body protruding beyond the window sill. Outdoor sleepers may sleep comfortably, but they sleep lightly. The second-story man cannot make a noise half a block away without waking them and giving the alarm."

PROVED HIS POINT

The reason he wouldn't call up the Connecticut town that night to learn how Aunt Lucinda was, the man said, was because Bill's wife was pretty sure to come to the telephone, and he couldn't stand it to talk to Bill's wife. Wait till morning and he would call Bill up at the office and find out.

"What is the matter with Bill's wife?" asked Aunt Lucinda's New York niece.

"She's a fool," said the man, "especially over the long distance telephone. I telephoned up there once. Bill's wife answered. It cost me $4 for the three-minute conversation, and the only thing I could get out of Bill's wife was, "Hello, hello. Who is this, please?"

"At the very last second she understood and said, 'Oh, it is you, is it?' I call that pretty expensive identification. But I will say this for Bill's wife. She is no worse than other women. The most level-headed of them get flighty when suddenly confronted with a long distance telephone message."

The woman's defense of her sex was cut short by a call to the telephone. She stepped into the hall and closed the door.

"Hello," she said. "Hello. Who is this, please. What's that? Yes, that is the right number. Who are you, please? What's that? I can't make it out."

Seconds ticked away and still she reiterated, "Hello, hello. Who are you, please?" Finally, in desperation the man took the receiver from her hand. He talked for five or ten seconds and then said, "Good-bye."

"That was Bill," he said. "He wanted to tell me something about Aunt Lucinda, but time was up and he didn't get a chance."

JIM'S WIFE.

After the report had been current for a week that Jim's wife, whom Jim had met and married and was still secluding in Chicago, was ugly as sin, a friend who had Jim's interests at heart ran down the author of the rumor with the intention of making her retract.

"How do you know she is ugly?" he asked. "Have you ever seen her?"

"No," said the experienced gossip, "I never have, neither have I seen her picture, nor anybody who has seen either her or her picture, but I know she is ugly, because I had it straight from a person who lives in Chicago that when she ordered a dozen pictures taken just a while before the wedding the photographer made her pay in advance, and a photographer never does that unless the subject is so ugly that she is apt to be discouraged when she sees the pictures and refuses to pay for them on the ground that he hasn't done good work. If you don't believe me ask any photographer."

But Jim's champion let the matter drop.

Such Is Fame

It was a Bostonian, according to Rollin Lynde Hart, in an article called "Funny Boston," in the Metropolitan Magazine, who enlivened the Longfellow centenary by blurting, "Say, that guy makes me sick! He'd never 'a' been heard of if he hadn't married Alice Roosevelt."

SYDNEY SMITH'S TABLE-TALK

Benevolence a Natural Instinct of the Mind.

One day the conversation turned upon an obstinate man who was full of prejudices. Sydney Smith who knew his character and opinions, expressed despair. "You might," said he, "as well attempt to poultice the humps off a camel's back". Preferment in the Church, like fortune in the world, has a tendency to make men more conservative, and it was in allusion to this well-known social fact that he observed dryly, "The liberality of church-men generally is like the quantity of matter in a comet—both get less and less as they move higher and higher." "Benevolence is a natural instinct of the human mind. When A sees B in grievous distress, his conscience always urges him to entreat C to help him." "I will do human nature the justice to say," were his words on another occasion, "that we are all prone to make other people do their duty." To one who expressed a very strong opinion, and justified it on the ground that he was "only a plain man," he retorted that he was "not aware what the gentleman's personal appearance had to do with the question."

A Famous Buddhist Priest.

The Ceylon papers give much space to the death of the Buddhist high priest, Sri Sumangala, at the age of eighty-four. He was the leading Oriental scholar in Ceylon, and was in constant communication with Orientalists in the United Kingdom and on the Continent. His death is described by the Ceylon 'Observer' as not only a loss to the Buddhist community, but to the entire Oriental world. Among his friends and correspondents were Sir Monier Williams, Sir Edwin Arnold, Professors Max Muller, Rhys Davids, and Lanman, of Harvard University. He was in friendly touch with pastors and missionaries of the different Christian churches, and took a leading part in the agitation against the opium traffic in the island. His Sinhalese Grammar is used as a text-book at the London University. The remains of the aged priest were cremated in the presence of a great assembly. The Colonial Office was represented.

10,000,000 More French-Speakers

A decision which will eventually increase by ten million the number of people who speak French has just been taken by the Governor of French West Africa. Hitherto, Arabic has been exclusively used as the official language of France in her immense African empire.

As, however, Arabic was as much of a foreign tongue to most of the natives outside Algeria as French itself, interpreters have had to be used by both parties, and the only result has been to give an impetus to Islam, which is intimately bound up with the Arabic language.

Now, however, French will be the official language of the administration and the schools, and it is expected that this will result in a considerable spread of Western culture.

Cold Storage in Europe.

Many of the European cities are following the example of America as regards cold storage plants. Paris is one of the centres where such questions are now being promoted, and the Refrigeration Society is endeavouring to bring such question before engineers and manufacturers. Not long since there has been built a large cold storage plant in the suburbs of Paris and lying on the North Railroad. It is designed to store home products which are to be exported as well as foreign products brought in by rail to be consumed in the city. There are now eleven cold storage chambers in operation. A convenient system is the use of an automobile waggon with freezing compartments which plies between the city and the storage house. It carries the products to the sellers in town, and also takes back the unsold products for storage.

The Laird's Pictures.

Some years ago a Scotch laird found on succeeding to his estates that the house contained two portraits of a distinguished member of the family who had flourished during the reign of George III, one by Reynolds and the other by Raeburn. He know no more of pictures than a Newfoundland dog, and he decided that two portraits of the same individual need not be kept. The Reynolds was retained, while the Raeburn was presented to a public gallery. The worthy man was struck with consternation some time afterward when he found that his gift had been valued at 5,000 guineas, and probably the picture would now fetch double that sum.

Strength An Unknown Quantity.

Strength, whether of body, mind, or will, is an unknown quantity. It can never be measured except by putting it forth. We do not know our powers simply because no definite bounds of them exist until proved by hearty, resolute, patient exertion. To sit still then in the absurd notion that we cannot move, to abstain from any effort because we fancy we cannot make enough, is like insisting on the shallowness of the ocean that has never been fathomed, or the shortness of the distance that has never been travelled.

Handel's Sharp Tongue.

Handel, though undoubtedly possessing a kind and generous heart, had a sharp tongue which he did not hesitate to use on occasions, generally with excellent effect. He heard that an enthusiast had offered to make himself responsible for all the boxes the next time the then-despised oratorio "Messiah" was to be given. "He is a fool," said he; "the Jew will not come to it as he would to Judas Maccabeous, because it is a Christian story; and the ladies will not come, because it is a virtuous one."

"NOTHING IN IT," SAYS SIR WILFRID.

Ottawa, Oct. 3.—Asked in regard to the Montreal despatch stating that he would be offered the position of president of The Hague Peace Tribunal very soon, being the unanimous choice of President Taft and the British authorities, Sir Wilfrid Laurier said there was nothing in it. The story ran that both great nations had expressed their confidence in Sir Wilfrid, and commissioned Lord Strathcona to offer the Premier the position and this commission was the object of Lord Strathcona's visit.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

transformed. A great clutter of goods in bales and sacks and small boxes filled it nearly to overflowing. Shelves lined the walls. On each side a rude counter ran the length of the building. Here and there a semblance of orderly arrangement was beginning to show. A fire crackled on the open hearth at one end. An up-ended box, littered with bills of merchandise and a ledger or two, stood against the wall. By this Montell sat down on a stool. He turned a look of inquiry on me, but Barreau forestalled his question.

"This is Bob Sumner," he made known perfunctorily. "The son of that Texas cattleman who owned the Toreante place on Rose Hill. I believe you knew him slightly. Sumner will winter with us. You need not stutter over talking before him."

"I don't stutter over talkin' before anybody, far as I'm concerned. It's your funeral," Montell retorted. Then he turned to me

"So you're John Sumner's boy, eh?" He sized me up with new interest. I dare say he was wondering how I came to be in Barreau's company on the very ight of his breaking jail. "Yes, sir. I did know your father. Did business with him, a time or two. Mighty fine man. Seems to me I heard he died last spring. Left quite a large estate, didn't he?"

"Yes," I answered briefly to both question. It was not a subject I cared to discuss just then.

"Too bad, too bad," he commiserated. But whether the sympathy he forced into his tone was for the death of my father, or for me, I did not know —nor care very much. It sounded like one of those convenient platitudes that become a habit with some people. He focused his attention on Barreau, however, immediately after this.

"Now George," he said, "suppose we have a word in private, eh?"

"This suits me; I'm getting hardened to publicity," Barreau drawled. "You want an understanding, you said. I'm agreeable. I remarked that it might be well to try telling the truth if explanations are demanded."

An exasperated expression crossed Montell's face.

"Now, see here, be reasonable," he grunted. "That there guardhouse business settled you. If you'd kept shy of that, there'd be a chance But there ain't. You could swear to things on a stack of Bibles and she wouldn't believe a word You know as well as I do that she's got all them old-fashioned ideas about a gentleman's honor that her mother's folks has. You know you did kill them two fellers on High River, an' run off them two fellers on High River, an' run off them Hudson's Bay work bulls. You didn't have to do that. You can't explain them things to her; nor bein' in jail. That there's a black mark she can't overlook. You wasn't smooth enough, George."

"You are astonishingly frank, I must say." Barreau leaned forward, smiling sardonically — a sneering, unpleasant smile. "Why? Would you mind explaining why you would refuse to vouch for the truth of my story. If I tell her absolute facts? What have you up your sleeve?"

"Nothin'," Montell growled. "Only I ain't goin' to have you force my hand. I ain't goin' to get into no fuss with my own daughter. Besides, as I said, some of them things can't be explained to her she couldn't understand. Once she found out what a hell of a time's been goin' on in this fur business, and that this winter's liable to breed more trouble, why, she'd be mighty apt to take a notion to stick here by me. An' I won't expose her to whatever might come up, for nobody's reputation."

"Wise old owl!" Barreau sneered "What need for this sudden access of caution? Do you think I can't——"

He broke off short at the slam of a door on the farther side of the store house. A feminine voice called "Dad, papa!"

Montell sprang to his feet, muttering something to himself, but he did not at once reply. In the stillness, the sound of light footfalls threading the maze of piled goods echoed softly among the heavy beams above. It was dusk outside by then, and within that beautifully windowed place it was quite dark, beyond a red circle cast from the open fire. And, as the girl stepped into the edge of its glow, Montell struck a match and touched it to a three-pronged candlestick on the box by his seat.

She stifled an exclamation at sight of us. Then, with a scornful twist to her dainty mouth, she bowed, in mock courtesy.

"Gentlemen," she murmured, an ironic emphasis on the term, "your presence is unexpected. I cannot say I esteem it an honor."

Then she turned to her father.

"Papa," she observed interrogatively, "I have always known you were a hospitable soul, but I never dreamed a house of yours would ever prove shelter for an outlawed cutthroat. Upon my word, if I were a man, I should be tempted to collect the bounty on this human wolf. There is a bounty. See?"

She fumbled in a pocket of the short, fur-edged jacket she wore, and presently drew forth a folded paper

"Yes, surely there is a bounty," she went on maliciously, holding the paper broadside to the sputtering candles. "Not a great one, to be sure, but more than you are worth. Five hundred dollars for the body, dead or alive, of George Brown, alias Slow-foot George. Height, weigth, color of eyes, certain marks and scars — to a dot. Also, an appalling list of crimes. Have you no shred or atom of a decent impulse left" — she addressed Barreau directly, her tone level, stingingly contemptuous — "that you persist in thrusting yourself upon people, after they have seen the false cloak of manhood stripped from your degenerate shoulders?"

Barreau met her gaze squarely and answered her in her own tone

"I am here," he said, "because I choose to be here. Montell père can tell you why."

"Now, now, Jessie," Montell cut in pacifically. "This ain't St. Louis. If George is in trouble, I don't know as any one has a better right to help him than me. You don't want to be always ridin' that high hoss of yours This country ain't peopled with little tin gods. I've told you many a time You'd better go back to the house I'll be there pretty quick."

"Indeed, I imagine I could hardly be in worse company," she declared "So I will quit it, forthwith. It was not of my seeking. Better keep an eye on your goods, papa."

With that, she was gone leaving the three of us staring at each other. Montell a bit apprehensive, it seemed to me. Barreau was first to find his voice

"I would advise you to get your trail outfit in readiness to-night," he told Montell bluntly, "and start south in the morning Otherwise, I will give no guarantee of peace and good will in this camp I cannot stand much of that sort of thing."

Montell seemed to consider this If he felt any uneasiness over the implied threat, he maintained an undisturbed front. Hunched on the stool like a great toad, one fat hand on each knee, his puffy eyelids blinking with automatic regularity, he regarded Barreau in profound silence

"I guess that's the proper card," he uttered at last "I can make it back here, all right, if it does come bad weather. I got to get her home, that's sure You can kinda keep out of sight till we get started, can't you, George?"

"That's as it happens," Barreau returned indifferently. "Meantime, have you grubstaked any of these hunters? Are the Indians beginning to come in?"

Montell nodded "Quite a few. Two or three camps up the river, the boys say Some of 'em wouldn't make no deal till you showed up Don't you let none of 'em have too big a debt, George."

Barreau shrugged his shoulders at this last caution He sat staring into the fire, his lean, dark face touched with its red glow Then abruptly he got up and opened the door

"It's dark, Bob," he said to me "Let us go to the cabin." And, without another word to Montell, he left the store, I following

It was just dark enough so that we could distinguish the outlines of the post buildings and the black surrounding wall of the stockade The burned stable had been rebuilt during our absence Within it, horses sneezed and coughed over their fodder. On the flat beyond the post I could hear the night herder whistle as he rode around the grazing mules From this window and that lights shone misthly through the scraped and-dried deerskin that served for glass. And, at the far end of the stockade, a group of men chattered noisily about a roaring fire Yet the lights and sounds, the buildings of men, and the men themselves seemed inconsequential, insignificant, proportion to their surroundings like the cheeping of a small frog at the bottom of a deep well. The close-wrapping wilderness, with its atmosphere of inexorable solitude, enfolded us with silence more disturbing than any clamor. It may have been my mood, that night, but it seemed a drear and lonely land, the bigness of the North, its power, its implacable, elemental forces, had never taken definite form before. Now, all at once, I saw them, and I did not like the sight.

We did not go straight to the cabin Barreau had no mind to go hungry He stopped at the mess house, and bade the cook send our supper to us when it was ready. Then we went to the cabin, flung our lean packs in a corner, built a fire, and sat by it, smoking, till a voluble Frenchman brought the warm food Again Barreau had fallen into wordless brooding. For the hour or more that passed after we had eaten, he lay on his bed, staring at the pole-and-dirt roof He was still stretched thus, an unlighted cigarette between his lips, when I took off my clothes and laid me down to sleep. And when, at day-break, I wakened and sat up sleepily, Barreau's bedding was neatly smoothed out on the bunk. His smoking material that had lain on the table was gone; likewise his rifle, cartridge belt, and the pack rigging he had cast aside the evening before. It seemed that Mr. Barreau must have gone a-journeying.

I opened the cabin door and looked about me. Here and there, men busied themselves at sundry occupations The sun had but cleared the treetops, and on flat and hillside deep black shadows nestled. My roving eyes finally settled on one of these, and presently I saw four figures, mounted two of them leading extra horses, ascending the south bank. Looking more closely, I saw that one was a woman. Mr. Montell, I judged, was taking time by the forelock. I stood there with my hands jammed in my

IN THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD.

A NEW ANESTHETIZER

A Surgeon Has Devised a Method for Taking Gas or Ether Safely.

Two little gas bags, attached to a simple contrivance have robbed ether of its sickening terrors — and its dangers.

The discovery of the anesthetic value of ether was hailed as a wonderful boon to humanity 60 years ago, but it remained a boon of bitter memory to all who took it.

The old way of giving ether is to pour it on a sponge, over the patient's nose. He is half asphyxiated and when he comes to himself he is so sick that he's sorry he ever came to at all. Then follow terrible hours of nausea and thirst. The victim mustn't have water, because water induced vomiting and that sometimes bursts out stitches.

SIR JAMES GRANT, K.C.M.G., M.D., F.R.S.C. This distinguished scientist has done much for the uplifting of Canada.

Sometimes the patient never does come to.

The new way eliminates ether-sickness and the danger of asphyxia. It makes ether as safe as laughing gas and as pleasant, without entailing the enormous expense involved in using that anesthetic for long operations.

Dr. Pyle's anesthetizer is a "mixer" through which the patient can breathe air, vaporised ether (or chloroform), nitrous oxide (laughing gas), or oxygen, either singly or in any desired combination or proportion.

The apparatus consists of a glass globe, or mixing chamber, to which are connected three atomizers and two gas bags, and from the top of which proceeds a rubber hose ending in a face mask equipped with valves. There is a cock for the admission of air to the mixing chamber. In two of the atomizers is ether; in the other chloroform (for emergencies demanding that anesthetic). In one of the gas bags is laughing gas; in the other pure oxygen. Layers of gauze in the mixing chamber insure the perfect mixing of the gases.

Perfume is sprayed on a piece of gauze in the mask before it is strapped on the patient's face. He smells white roses. Presently the odorless laughing gas is turned into the globe. When that subtle anesthetic has done its work ether is substituted. The patient, already happily asleep, breathes the fumes of ether till the operation is over, and never knows the difference. Then he is given pure oxygen till the ether has been driven from his lungs.

This application of concentrated oxygen following ether or chloroform brings the patient out of his sleep free from the dreadful nausea so long the bugbear of surgery.

CURIOUS NATURAL DECEPTIONS

Our senses deceive us curiously at times. A flash of lightning lights up the ground for one-millionth of a second, yet it seems to us to last ever so much longer.

What happens is that the impression remains in the eye or the retina for about one-eighth of a second or one hundred and twenty-four thousand times as long as the flash lasts. If on a dark night a train speeding at sixty miles an hour is lit up by a lightning-flash, it appears stationary, yet in the eighth of a second during which we seem to see it the train travels eleven feet. But we really only see it during one-millionth of a second, and in that time it travels only one-hundredth of an inch.

We do not actually perceive different distances with the eye, but judge them from various indications. When our judgment is at fault we are deceived. If you see a person in a fog, for instance, he seems to be much bigger than usual. The same thing happens when you see men or cattle on the top of a hill against the horizon in twilight. In both cases you judge them to be farther away than they really are, and consequently they appear uncommonly large.

The Fir Trees of the Pacific

"Next to the big tree of California, or sequoia, as it is termed by the scientists, the fir as found in Washington, Oregon and British Columbia, has the largest diameter of any tree in America, and probably in the world. Some have been cut down which actually measured 15 feet in diameter at the point where the incision was made As they decay very rapidly after the timber has been removed, usually the interior can be hollowed out with little difficulty. Sometimes they are used for dancing platforms... some being large enough to accommodate four couples."

Distinguished Curlers Coming.

Local curlers will be interested in learning that the Royal Caledonian Club, of Scotland, which is coming to Canada on a visit this coming winter, will pay a visit to Peterborough. It is likely that the curling clubs of this district will be invited for the competitions, which will make up the programme. They will probably be here early in February.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

ARCHBISHOP BRUCHESI

Archbishop Bruchesi's name will always be associated with the Eucharistic Congress of 1910 as it was through his exertions this great display of Roman Catholic zeal and power was held for the first time on the American continent. When the carrying of the Host through the streets of London in connection with the Eucharistic Congress of 1908 was prohibited by the British Authorities, Mgr. Bruchesi asked that the Congress of 1910 be held in Montreal so that the world might see the public exhibition of the central element of Catholicism on British soil. His request was granted and the Archbishop worked with might and main for two years collecting funds and making other necessary preparations for a big demonstration of the loyalty of French-Canadian Catholics to their Church. In this he was successful and the Eucharistic Congress held at Montreal in September 1910 was a gorgeously spectacular affair on which a huge sum was spent.

The Province of Quebec is the most Catholic part of North America and the official church authorities with the many religious orders in the provinces control a vast amount of valuable property. Church building and the establishment of Catholic schools and religious houses has been very active during recent years, but the province has not made anything like the industrial and commercial progress the other parts of Canada have been making. In fact, though the oldest part of Canada, the longest settled, and the nearest to Europe, besides possessing great natural resources, it is regarded as the most backward of all the provinces.

Right Rev. Mgr. Paul Bruchesi, Archbishop of Montreal, is of Italian descent on his father's side and French-Canadian on the maternal side. He was born at Montreal in 1855 and appointed Archbishop in 1897.

PIONEER, NEWSPAPER PROPRIETOR AND NOVELIST

Robert Lorne Richardson is one of those lucky people who reached Winnipeg in the early eighties. The first faint flushes of the great dawn which was so soon to rise on the vast unpeopled prairies of the Great West, were then making themselves visible to the far-sighted few who laughed to scorn the ominous predictions of nervous stay-at-homes and struck out towards the new lands the Canadian Pacific Railway was bringing within reach of the older world. There were many optimists amongst those plucky pioneers who turned their face from the old homesteads and cities of the East, westward to the Red River and the plains of Manitoba; but not one who looked with more hope and courage to the future than the young journalist from Toronto, who landed at what is now the third city of Canada, in 1882.

As Mr. Richardson's birth took place in 1849 he was not long out of his teens when he started for the West. He was born at Balderson, Lanark county, Ont., on a bright June day of that year and began his career as a newspaperman on the Montreal 'Star' at the age of eighteen. Two years later he went to the Toronto 'Globe' whence after a further period of two years he removed to Winnipeg. He established the Winnipeg 'Tribune' in 1890 and is still editor and proprietor of that progressive and influential newspaper. He spent eight years in the House of Commons until defeated through the inevitable swing of the political pendulum in 1904. He is the author of two popular novels: 'Colin of the 9th Concession', published in 1903, and 'The Camerons of Bruce', published in 1905.

PROGRESS OF THE GRAND TRUNK PACIFIC.

Substantial progress is being made in all directions in the construction and opening for traffic of the lines of the Grand Trunk Pacific. Recent reports given out announced the completion of the line to Fitzhugh, a point in the Jasper Forest Park, 1027 miles west of Winnipeg and service will be immediately extended thereto, and it is expected that 50 or 60 miles addition beyond Fitzhugh will be graded for steel this fall. This would bring steel to Tete Jaune Cache.

Work on the Prince Albert branch is being rapidly pushed forward and steel has been laid as far as Wake, 68 miles from the main line, and grading on this line has been completed within 24 miles of Prince Albert.

On the Branch from Regina to the International Boundary, 25 miles of steel will be completed this fall and 60 per cent. of the grading on the Regina-Moose Jaw Branch has been finished.

Construction work on the Brandon Branch which runs south from the main line at Harte, a distance of 24 miles is being commenced this week, and when complete will give the Grand Trunk Pacific the shortest line between Winnipeg and Brandon.

Grading has practically been completed on the first 50 miles of the Biggar-Calgary Branch, and work was started last week on 50 miles of the line from Battleford West through the Cut Knife District towards Wainwright, Alberta.

On the Tofield-Calgary Branch steel has been laid to the Red Deer River.

The above gives a good idea of how the work on the branches is being advanced, in addition to which the main lines are being pushed forward actively.

High Class Advertising.

The latest report received from the Grand Trunk System from their representatives at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, gives particulars regarding the interest that is being shown in the beautiful exhibit that the Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific installed in their handsome building erected expressly for this event.

The number of people who have visited the pavilion up to September 2nd has been 266,756, and the number of pieces of literature descriptive of the company's lines, that have been distributed, amount to over 150,000 copies.

A special feature of the exhibit is the series of cinematograph shows given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

A Splendid Display.

In connection with the Grand Trunk Exhibit at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, further advices dated September 12th have been received from London regarding the awards that were given to the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is gratifying to know that these companies have received four "Grand Prix" for their splendid display, instead of two that were announced in the cable received on Sept. 1st.

These awards have been made under the following:—"Arts and Crafts"; "Engineering, Lighting, and Transportation"; and "Building Trades"; also "Advertising." This is considered by the Companies named as a great honor, as other railways exhibiting at the Exhibition have only received one award.

The official report from the Grand Trunk representative at this Exhibition, for week ending September 9th, shows that the number of persons visiting the Grand Trunk Pavilion was 21,186, bringing the attendance up to September 9th to 279,942 people.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 50 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

WATERWORKS FOR FARM.

An increasing number of enquiries are received asking for methods of supplying water to country homes. It has been one of the drawbacks of life on the farm compared with the city that while water might be in abundant supply it has not been convenient for all purposes of the household. In response to the demand for better appliances many improvements have of late years been made in pumping and piping outfits Water in the house for free use is coming to be recognized as one of the first requirements in sanitary living. Further than this it is a labor saving arrangment that is in keeping with the modern machinery and appliances used elsewhere on the farm.

THE SUFFERING EDITOR.

A farmer wrote to the editor of an agricultural paper as follows:—

"I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon."

In the next issue this answer appeared:—

"When the nag is looking all right sell him to someone."

The increased production of milk, in Ontario is looked upon as an indication that the farmers of the province generally are beginning to see greater possibilities in dairying. The cities are taking a great deal of milk, which to a considerable extent changes the cheese factory situation

Australia has Tallest Tree.

Australia claims to have the tallest tree in the world. It has long been thought that to California belongs this distinction, but, while California trees are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to Australia's eucalyptus trees. The Californians are noted not so much for their height as for their girth and diameter. The tallest tree in California yet discovered was found by actual measurement to be 340ft high Australia's record gum tree can beat this by 140ft.

Offhand Definitions.

Alimony.—The price of peace.

Laughing stock.—An amateur actor making an attempt at high tragedy.

Political rainbows—The kind usually seen just before the November deluge.

Human nature—Something to blame your excentricities on if you are not like other people

Becoming pride—Setting a proper valuation on your own abilities and accomplishments — and never cutting prices.

Women aren't the only human beings who marry for a home.

An Alternative.

Old Richfellow (desperately): "If you refuse me, what is there left for me to do?"

Sweet Girl "Well, I read the other day about a rich man who made his will in favor of the woman who refused him, and then went and hanged himself."

Humility Safest Virtue.

Among all the virtues, humility, the lowest, is pre-eminent. It is the safest, because it is always an anchor; and that man may be truly said to live the most content in his calling who strives to live within the compass of it

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

SIR JAMES WATSON

This eminent English physician is one of the greatest authorities on diseases of the respiratory organs.

In a recent address, Sir James Watson stated that the commonest of all disorders is Catarrh, and that not one person in ten thousand passes the winter without an attack of some sort.

Sir James advocates local treatment very strongly, and says that it is all nonsense trying to treat Catarrhal diseases by stomach medicines, atomizers, douches and snuffs.

Local treatment is applied most scientifically by Catarrhozone, which is inhaled into the nose, throat and lungs, and drives the disease completely out of the system.

Catarrhozone is a rational, common sense treatment; it clears the air passages, makes breathing easy, and relieves at once. Physicians prescribe Catarrhozone with gratifying results, and pronounce it a specific for Catarrh in any part of the system.

Mr. Thos. Cox, one of the most prominent citizens of Minden, Ont., says: "I want to recommend Catarrhozone. It is a nice, clean cure for Catarrh. Cured me perfectly, and is well deserving of a trial from everyone at all affected by Catarrh or throat trouble."

Mr. G. F. Fadden, of Royan, Que., writes: "In my opinion Catarrhozone is the only cure for Catarrh. I had the disease in its worst form but only got relief from Catarrhozone. It cured me quickly and permanently, and I have no fear of the Catarrh ever returning.

The foregoing brief extracts, like thousands of others that the proprietors of Catarrhozone have received, prove that the proper remedy to use is Catarrhozone. It is quite different from the ordinary Catarrh preparation, and is warranted to prove entirely satisfactory. If it fails your money will be refunded, so if not benefited you won't be out of pocket.

All druggists sell Catarrhozone. Complete outfit, hard rubber inhaler, liquid for recharging, etc., costs $1; trial size, 25 cents. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.

The Fence Down.

About 30 feet of the fence belonging to George street church, on the south side, is down, having been capsized by the high wind on Tuesday night. The trustees will now either have to build a new fence entirely, or remove the old one altogether.

Collegiate Institute Field Day.

The remainder of the competitions in connection with the Collegiate Institute Athletic sports will be run off this afternoon at two o'clock at Riverside, if the weather is unfavorable, a postponement will be made.

Death of an Infant.

The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. McCague, of Emily, will sympathize with them in the death of their darling baby girl, Ellen Isabel, which took place at Nicholls' Hospital yesterday morning. Funeral at Emily this afternoon at 2 o'clock.

Spree Cost Him $18.75.

Hugh Gibbs, a blacklister, was up before Magistrate Dumble yesterday, charged with drunkenness. He had a large wad of bank bills, which he said he had drawn from a bank. He was fined $10 and $3.75 costs, making $13.75 in all. Another drunk was let off with a warning.

Seymour Company Buy Plant.

It will be interesting news to many in this city to learn that the Seymour Power Company, who own our street railway and electric power and light systems, that they have purchased the plant of the Port Hope Electric Light and Power Company, and took possession yesterday. Mr. Thos. Tuer has been appointed local manager of the new company and the staff formerly employed by Dr. Corbett will be retained by the company.

Tenth Wedding Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Trussler, Wescott street, were given a tin and enamel ware shower on Monday evening, by a number of their young friends, on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of their marriage. A delightful evening was spent in various games interspersed with selections on the gramophone. Dainty refreshments were served before the party separated.

Given Past Grand's Jewel.

At a meeting of Golden Link Lodge Daughters of Rebekah, held on Tuesday evening, Mrs. L. Jackson was remembered by the members of the lodge in a very handsome way. On behalf of the noble Grand, Miss Alice Jones, presented Mrs. Jackson with a past grand's jewel, and Mrs. Sills read the accompanying address, which was of an appreciative nature. Mrs. Jackson who was quite taken by surprise, responded feelingly. She is leaving for Auburn N.Y., with her husband.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Chinese Missionary Here.

Rev. Mr. Beauchamp, a Chinese missionary, gave an address at St. Luke's church last night. Rev. Mr. Beauchamp is one of the Cambridge Seven—young men who left the famous seat of learning to go into missionary work and has recently been in the part of China where the troubles occurred. His address was exceedingly interesting and instructive.

Rollie Glover Honored.

Mr. Rollie Glover was entertained to a banquet on Tuesday evening by the members of the Echo Camp Club, in Hooper's Palm Parlours, on the eve of his marriage, during which he was the recipient of hearty good wishes for his future welfare by the members of the club. "Rollie" made a suitable reply, thanking those present for their expressions of good will.

To Be Extended Eastward.

Steps are likely to be taken soon for the extension of the rural mail delivery eastward through Stonabee, Douro and Dummer. Mr. Burnham, M.P., is also endeavoring to have more mail routes established in the West riding. Of course in the East, Mr. Sexsmith will look after the wants of his constituents in this particular. Rural mail routes are a great boon to the farmer.

Half the Road.

Complaints are heard occasionally, regarding the giving of half the road in case of an automobile coming up behind a team, some people seeming loth to give any of the road even thought there is plenty of room to turn out. The law says that when a man is overtaken by a faster vehicle, the man driving the slower vehicle shall turn out and give half of the beaten path.

A Great Improvement.

Residents of East City will be greatly benefitted by the improvement now being made at the old Rogers' dam. In place of the dangerous thoroughfare by which pedestrians took a short cut by way of the rear of the old McAllister mill, a safe and serviceable footbridge is being constructed. Work is also being proceeded with on the new weir dam to do away with the wash of water in bringing down the logs and which has heretofore received no attention. These improvements are being made by the Government through the efforts of Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P.

Queen's Professor Coming.

For several years the teachers of the city and county have united in securing some well known scholar to deliver an address in connection with their annual convention. This year they have been fortunate in securing Prof. J. L. Morison, M.A., of Queen's University, Kingston, who will give an illustrated lecture on "The Romance of Geography, a Study of Great Discoveries." The musical part of the programme will be furnished by Miss Chalmers and Mr. W. Wilson. The people of Peterborough will no doubt show their appreciation of the efforts of the teachers by filling the Collegiate Assembly Hall this evening. There will be no admission fee.

Car Choice Fruit.

Have just unloaded another car of fruit, comprising heaped baskets of peaches and grapes, California grapes Utah peaches, grape fruit, etc. This will probably be about the last of the peaches for this season. W. J. Oke. 'Phone 18 and 19. 375 George street.

A Worthy Example.

A nasty spirit was shown in a letter which appeared in The Examiner last night, signed "Student," in regard to Mr. Burnham's generous act in donating a gold watch as a prize for the successful Collegiate Institute student. The writer may be a student, but we very much doubt it. While The Times has no retainer for defending Mr. Burnham, (who is quite capable of defending himself), we feel that in making the gift, he has set an example worthy of imitation. The reference which the alleged "student" makes to The Times is not deserving of notice.

Dr. Bell Leaving Apsley.

Dr. Alex. Bell, who has been a resident of Apsley for many years, and who has many warm personal friends in Peterborough, Lakefield, and throughout the northern portion of the county, is preparing to leave the county for western Ontario. He has resigned his position as municipal clerk, which he has held for a long period of years, much to the regret of the ratepayers of Burleigh and Anstruther. He has ever had the interests of the people at heart, and to Dr. Bell is due, in a great measure, the splendid financial position of the municipality. But to the sick and the needy will his removal be more deeply deplored. Always ready and willing to wait on those who are ill, even although it meant long journeys in stormy weather, without reward, he will be greatly missed. The Times joins in the general chorus of good wishes for his future welfare.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. E. G. Dodd, representing Miller & Richard, the well known Scottish typefounders, was in the city yesterday and gave The Times a call.

Mrs. R. J. Kidd, 462 Hunter street, will receive this afternoon, and the first Thursday of the month throughout the season.

Lindsay Post: Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Montgomery of Peterborough, were in town for a few hours last evening. Mr. A. J. McClellan, Peterborough, was in town to-day.

Mr. Walter Perks, who has been home on a three months' sick leave, has returned to Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Hamilton, of Galt, are in the city for a few days the guests of Mrs. Goodfellow, London street, Mrs. Hamilton's sister.

Mr. G. C. Wainwright, the popular and efficient manager of the Bank of Ottawa, who has been on a three weeks' holiday in the eastern provinces, returned home yesterday.

Quite a number went from town to Keene yesterday, notwithstanding the rain. The fair was largely attended, and was successful, not only in a financial way, but also in regard to the variety and number of exhibits.

SAVED HERSELF YEARS OF PAIN

IF SHE HAD USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS FIRST.

Mrs. McRae Suffered for Over Two Years, Then Two Boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills Made a New Woman of Her.

Previl, Gaspe Co., Que., Oct. 4.—(Special)—That she might have escaped two years and seven months of suffering had she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills in the first place is the firm conviction of Mrs. John McRae, an old and respected resident of this place. And this is the reason she gives for believing so:

"For two years and seven months I was a sufferer from Kidney Disease brought on by a strain and a cold. My eyes were puffed and swollen, my muscles cramped and I suffered from neuralgia and Rheumatism. My back ached and I had pains in my joints.

"For two years I was under the doctor's care, but he never seemed to do me any lasting good. Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new woman of me."

To save yourself suffering cure your Kidneys at the first sign of trouble. Dodd's Kidney Pills are the one sure cure.

APSLEY.

A general meeting of the Wisdom Club was called for Monday night, 25th, but there was no quorum, as some of the members had to attend a committee meeting of the Conservative Association in the Town Hall. Fatty William, Bass Tom, Anvil Jim Ha John and others met to discuss the situation and distribute the expected offices that might soon become vacant under the new regime. Harmony did not prevail, as everyone wanted the best positions. Others kicked because they did not get their share of the road money. It will take some time and policy to restore peace in the ranks.

Things are resuming their natural state in Chandos now the elections decided that the Yankees are not coming across the great lakes with their dreadnoughts and soldiers to gobble up Canada as many out east actually believed would have been the result if reciprocity had passed.

A pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Martin's Church, Ennismore, Tuesday morning, when Miss Minnie Sullivan was united in marriage to Mr. Patrick Anglesly of Young's Point. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Father Fitzpatrick. The young couple who will reside at Young's Point, were the recipients of a number of handsome presents.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

OUR NEW METHOD TREATMENT will cure you and make a man of you. Under its influence the brain becomes active, the blood purified so that all pimples, blotches and ulcers heal up; the nerves become strong as steel, so that nervousness, bashfulness and despondency disappear; the eyes become bright, the face full and clear, energy returns to the body, and the moral, physical and mental systems are invigorated; all drains cease—no more vital waste from the system. You feel yourself a man and know marriage cannot be a failure. Don't let quacks and fakirs rob you of your hard earned dollars.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Nervousness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, but received little benefit. I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and continue to do so.

S. S. NO. 8., OTONABEE, SCORED A DECIDED VICTORY

The "Regulations" Regulated---No More Religious Teaching by Teachers in the Public Schools of the Province---A Cause of Friction Removed

The following article from The Sentinel, is worthy of careful perusal. It is the net result of the agitation by the Protestant ratepayers of School Section No. 8 Otonabee, for fair play and reform. It will be remembered that these ratepayers employed Mr. J. H. Burnham to conduct their appeal, which necessitated the visit of a deputation to interview the Minister of Education and Sir James Whitney. The latter gentleman is said to have treated the deputation very discourteously. But the "Regulations" (and the statute) were wrong and unfair, and it is these that have been changed. A protest was made by the deputation against Departmental Regulations that modified statutes. They enabled the department to override the people's will.

One of the complaints made by S. S. No. 8, was that a teacher could misuse her position (and in No. 8 did misuse it) as the Regulations stood. Now, however, a teacher is not allowed to teach religion al all. This prevents inside influences being used on the children, and makes it plain to everybody, both Protestant and Catholic, just what is going on. It is a great step in advance, and is a big feather in the cap of S. S. No. 8, Otonabee, which stood firmly and in the face of much criticism for fair play to both Protestant and Catholic. It is a strange thing that this "Regulation" business had never been discovered before, but it had not and now a cause of unlimited friction has been removed. The following is the article referred to:

"Ontario's Minister of Education has recently revised the Public school regulations, and in doing so has eliminated that clause which was so exceedingly objectionable to Protestants, and which has been used in some parts of the province to the detriment of Protestant interests.

"Prior to the issue of the new regulations the clergy of any denomination had the right to appoint an agent to give religious instruction to the pupils of their own church at least once a week. This was a regulation adopted by the Ross Government, no doubt at the instigation of the Roman Catholic Church.

"The way it worked out in practice was that the only clergymen to avail themselves of this privilege were the priests. Protestant clergymen, desiring to promote harmony among all the denominations, declined to use their rights under the regulation to appoint the teacher an agent of one particular church. The Roman Catholic priests had no such scruples. Consequently, wherever a Roman Catholic teacher was appointed to a Public school she speedily became a representative of the priest, and held regular periods of religious instruction for Roman Catholic children. The Protestant pupils were not required to remain through this period. They were at liberty to go when the school closed its regular session. In rural districts, however, where the children live considerable distances from the school, it was found that numbers of Protestants pupils, remained for the religious instruction in order that they might have company on the way home. In other cases they were persuaded to remain by the teacher, and in at least one instance which came under investigation it was shown that the teacher encouraged the Protestant children to withhold from their parents all information as to what was going on in the school. The net result was that large numbers of Protestant children were being instructed in Roman Catholic dogma by the Roman Church taking advantage of that regulation.

"This will be possible no longer. If a priest wishes to have his children in the school instructed in the dogmas of his church he must go himself and act as their instructor. It is inconceivable that the children of Protestant parents will remain to take such instruction from a Roman Catholic priest. This preserves them, therefore, from any attempt to destroy their faith by taking advantage of their tender years to inculcate dogmas which in after years might be difficult to eradicate.

"This action of Dr. Pyne is one that must commend him as a man of a fair mind. He is anxious to preserve the Public school from denominationalism. He shows a clear apprehension of the part which the Public school should play in a mixed community, and we are satisfied that every fair-minded man in the Province of Ontario will appreciate the justice and wisdom, as well as the courage, which he exhibits in this amendment to the regulations of his department."

THE ANNUAL P.C.I. FIELD DAY SPORTS HELD YESTERDAY

The Peterborough Collegiate Institute held their annual field day yesterday afternoon. A large number of spectators, most [illegible]s were present, and all were pleased by the contests, which, especially in the junior department, were close and interesting. In the senior sports Clarence Fusee won the championship with 31 points. In the junior events, Arthur Lipsitt succeeded in winning the cup, totalling thirty-two points.

In the races there were four records smashed. Harold Hill lowered the record for the 100 yard senior race, to 11 seconds; Fusee smashed the 440 yards senior record, lowering the time to 57 1-5 seconds, and brought the record for the 880 yards senior race down to 2 min. 13 4-5 seconds. Claire Stewart established a new record for the 880 yards junior race, by making the course in 2 min. 39 seconds.

The girls' races were especially bright, every one being closely contested, and showing that the Collegiate girls have remarkable athletic talent. A new feature of this year's sports was a prize for the girl champion, which will undoubtedly be won by Miss M. McDonald, who secured a big lead in points at yesterday's events.

Among the events were some calculated to make sport for the spectators, and these were extremely successful. In this connection the boys' sack race, and the obstacle race afforded a good deal of amusement.

The prize offered for the Form winning the most number of points, was carried off by Form IC., which was represented by Lipsitt, A. Huycke, and Hopkins.

The following is a list of the events and the winners:

100 Yards senior—Won by H. Hill. Time 11 seconds.

100 Yards junior—A. Lipsitt. Time 12 4-5 seconds.

Jockey race—A. Horsefield and Brown.

120 Yards hurdle race—1st Fusee. Time 21 3-5 seconds; 2nd, R. Smith.

Potato race—Girls—1st, Miss McDonald, 2nd, Miss Mowatt.

220 Yards senior—1st, Fusee, Time 27 seconds; 2nd, R. Smith.

220 Yards junior—1st, Lipsitt. Time 30 1-5 seconds; 2nd, C. Stewart.

50 Yards Girls—1st, Miss A. Kelly; 2nd, Miss K. O'Brien.

440 Yards senior—1st, Fusee Time 57 1-5 seconds; 2nd R. Smith.

440 Yards junior—1st, A. Huycke, Time 67 4-5 seconds; 2nd, A. Lipsitt.

Throwing the basket-ball—Girls—1st, Miss McDonald; 2nd, Miss O'Brien.

Pole Vault senior—1st, R. Dixon. 2nd, Brown.

Pole Vault junior—1st, Austin O'Brien, 6 feet; 2nd C. Stewart; 3rd, A. Lipsitt.

Throwing the baseball—Girls—Miss M. Grady, 134 feet 5 inches; 2nd Miss McDonald.

1 Mile senior—1st, C. Fusee. Time 5 min. 18 seconds; 2nd, Brown.

1 Mile junior—1st, C. Stewart. Time 6 min. 25 3-5 seconds.

Girls running backwards—1st, Miss K. O'Brien; 2nd, Miss McDonald.

Sack race—1st, Feeney; 2nd, Milton Payne.

880 Yards senior—1st, C. Fusee. Time 2 min. 13 4-5 seconds.

880 Yards junior—1st, C. Stewart. Time 2 min. 39 seconds 2nd A. Huycke.

The relay race was won for Form IA by their fast team consisting of Brown, Crow, Dixon, Eakins. Crow, who ran first sprung a surprise on the judges by increasing his handicap and thus giving his team a safe lead.

Sciatica

EXPECTED DEATH ANY DAY.

Another Case Where Life Was Saved and Health Restored by "Nerviline"

We have all read and heard of the agonies of Sciatica, but only those who have been tortured by this dread malady can fully appreciate what it must mean to be cured after years of suffering.

It is because he feels it his solemn duty to tell to the world his faith in Nerviline that Victor P. Hires makes the following declaration: "For three years I was in the Royal Mail service and in all kinds of weather had to meet the night trains. Dampness, cold and exposure brought on sciatica that affected my left side. Sometimes an attack would come on that made me powerless to work. I was so nearly a complete cripple that I had to give up my job. I was in despair, completely cast down because the money I spent on trying to get well was wasted. I was speaking to my chemist one day, and he recommended "Nerviline." I had this good liniment rubbed on several times a day, and got relief. In order to build up my general health and improve my blood I used Ferrozone, one tablet with each meal. I continued this treatment four months and was cured. I have used all kinds of liniments and can truthfully say that Nerviline is far stronger, more penetrating, and infinitely better than anything else for relieving pain. I urge everyone with lumbago, neuralgia, rheumatism or sciatica to use Nerviline. I know it will cure them."

CURED SIX YEARS.

There isn't a more highly-esteemed citizen in Westchester than Mr. Hires. What he says can be relied upon. For six years since being cured he hasn't had a single relapse. Don't accept anything from your dealer but "Nerviline." Large size bottle 50c. or sample size 25c; sold everywhere, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont.

INCREASED HIS MAJORITY

Cobourg, Oct. 5.—The recount in West Northumberland which has been proceeding for the past three days here before Judge Benson ended today by increasing the majority of the Conservative candidate, Mr. C. A. Munson, from four to six.

The judge issued the formal certificate and the Returning Officer then declared Mr. Munson duly elected.

The recount had been demanded by Mr. J. B. McColl, the defeated candidate, after the first announcement of the Returning Officer that Mr. Munson had been elected by four of a majority.

The result has been received by Mr. Munson's friends with the greatest satisfaction.

TRIPOLI FORTS IN RUINS, TURKISH FLAG LOWERED

Italian Cruiser Entered the Harbor and Found Some of the Forts Deserted

Glasgow, Oct. 5.—Elliott & Company, a firm having agents at Tripoli, this afternoon received a cablegram from Derba, Tunis, saying:

"The Italian flag now floats over Tripoli."

A PARTLY CONFIRMATORY DESPATCH.

London, Oct. 5.—A despatch from Rome says that the Syracuse correspondent of a Rome paper telegraphs:

"The Italians effected a landing close to Tripoli under the protection of their warships."

TURKISH FLEET REACHES BOSPHORUS.

Constantinople, Oct. 5.—The Turkish fleet to-day entered the Bosphorus from the Dardanelles. Whether it had been engaged in battle with an Italian squadron yesterday, as reported, does not yet appear, but the sound of cannonading makes the story quite probable.

Constantinople, Oct. 5.—This city has been thrown into a tremendous state of excitement by a rumor that the Turkish fleet has been destroyed in a great naval engagement off Mitylene. After having sunk or captured the Turkish ships the Italians are said to have landed and seized the island.

An even greater sensation was caused by a report that heavy firing had been heard this morning north of the Dardanelles. The ministry remains absolutely silent, but the persistent rumors of Turkish reverses is having a bad effect upon the people who are becoming very restless.

BATTLESHIP BLOWN UP.

London, Oct. 5.—A despatch to the Chronicle from Constantinople to-day says that a cablegram received there from a Turkish source at Tripoli, via Malta, stated that the Italian battleship Conti de Cavour, was blown up by a Turkish mine off Tripoli and that the crew and troops aboard the Turkish vessel perished.

The despatch continues:

"A heavy cannonading was heard last night near Samothra, an island belonging to Turkey, in the Aegean Sea, about 20 miles from the coast of Thrace, where flashes from the Italian searchlights were seen.

"Violent cannonading was also heard off the coast from Prevesa.

"The newly-formed National Defence Committee to-day cabled King George of England, asking him to intervene."

The Conte di Cavour is one of the finest battleships in the world, being a Dreadnought of 22,000 tons, carrying thirteen monster 12-inch guns. Her speed is 22 knots. She would carry a crew of about a thousand men. She was completed only last year.

It would take a very powerful mine to cause a battleship of this type to sink so rapidly that all on board would be lost and it is doubtful that a single torpedo, unless unusually well directed, would cause her to founder.

Reliable despatches from Tripoli which covered events up to noon yesterday, made no mention of any disaster to the Italian navy.

The Conte di Cavour appears in the Naval Register as still in the course of construction at Spezia, but of course she may have been put in commission during the last few months.

REGULAR MEETING OF PUBLIC LIBRARY BOARD

A regular meeting of the Public Library Board was held last evening at 8 p.m. The following members were present, viz., Mr. F. H. D. Hall chairman, Mayor Morrow, Dr. McNulty and Messrs. H. Ritchie, D. Spence, J. Corkery and H. R. H. Kenner.

The minutes of the meetings held on July 6th and September 7th were read and confirmed.

Several communications offering to supply books for the Library, were read and referred to the Library Committee.

A letter from Mrs. M. A. Price was read with reference to the purchase from the Board of The Graphic.

Moved by Mr. Kenner, seconded by Mayor Morrow.—That the communication from Mrs. Price be received and the Librarian be instructed to reply that it is contrary to the rules and regulations of the Board to sell any of the periodicals—Carried.

The report of the Finance Committee was read, and on motion by Mayor Morrow, seconded by Mr. Ritchie, the report was adopted recommending the payment of the following accounts:

Moved by Mr. Ritchie, seconded by Mr. Kenner.—That Miss Aylmer be retained as an assistant librarian at a salary of $300 per year.—Carried.

Moved by Mayor Morrow, seconded by Mr. Spence.—That Inspector Mowat, Dr. McNulty and Mr. Ritchie be a committee to inaugurate a children's Library.—Carried.

Moved by Mr. Ritchie, seconded by Mr. Spence.—That the Library Committee be requested to look over the list of periodicals now being received, prepare a revised list for next year and report at next meeting.—Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

A BIG FIRE AT ASHLAND

Ashland, Maine, Oct. 5.—One-third of the business section of Ashland was destroyed by fire to-day. Nine buildings, all of which were of wooden construction, were burned, and the loss was estimated at $100,000. The Ashland House, a three storey hotel, which had been closed, and Loan's Opera House were the principal buildings burned.

PROF. MORRISON'S LECTURE LAST NIGHT

A most interesting and instructive lecture was given last evening in the Assembly Hall of the Collegiate Institute by Prof. Morrison, of Queen's University, Kingston. The subject of the lecture was "The Romance of Geography," and Prof. Morrison held the attention of his large audience while he outlined the growth of the world's knowledge of geograuhy from the earliest times. Prof. Morrison also showed slides of the various maps from the time of Ptomely, to the present day.

The lecture on the whole was something unique, and at the same time very instructive.

Mr Powell moved a vote of thanks, which was seconded by Inspector Mowat.

Mr. Lees, as chairman for the evening, congratulated the Teachers' convention on securing so distinguished a lecturer, and voiced the sentiments of the audience by saying he honed that Prof. Morrison would visit this city again at an early date.

PROTESTANTISM IS GAINING GROUND IN SUNNY FRANCE

PASTEUR HOCART OF PARIS TELLS OF THE SLOW BUT SURE PROGRESS OF PROTESTANTISM.

Atheists a Noisy Lot, Always Making a Stir—Memories of Huguenot Massacres Two Centuries ago Still in Protestant Minds.

Toronto, Oct. 5. There is no country in which the religious sistuation is more interesting than in France. Particularly in the last few years, with the separation of Church and State, religious affairs have been in a peculiarly critical state. It is fortunate, therefore, to have the opportunity of getting first-hand information and opinions from a prominent French religious leader, Pasteur Hocart comes to the Ecumenical Conference directly from Paris, where he is in charge of one of the Methodist churches.

Monsieur Hocart, together with his friend Monsieur le Pasteur Theophile Roux, is the guest of D. A. Dunlap, of Highland avenue. He has all the typical French courtesy and pleasantness.

Pasteur Hocart was born in the Island of Guernsey, 55 years ago. He was educated at Lausanne, Switzerland, noted for its connection with Rousseau, Gibbons, the historian and other famous men. For 13 years Monsieur Hocart was a missionary in Algeria. He has been chairman of the Paris District, and a resident of the French Conference.

ATHEISM EXAGGERATED.

Monsieur Hocart does not think that Atheism is quite as widespread in France as perhaps a superficial view of the situation might lead an observer to believe.

"Dogmatic atheism," he said, "of course, has a certain hold on the country, but its importance may easily be exaggerated. In the first place the atheists are a persistent, almost noisy section of the community, and they gain considerable notoriety. Faure, for example, one of the leading exponents of the no-God doctrine creates a big stir wherever he goes. It cannot be denied that he and other members of his party are having an effect, but even when they seem to convert a man it is not always the case. The present tendency towards atheism is simply the extreme form of the Revolt against Rome, one of the features of which was the suppression of congregations, the strict laws of the associations, and the whole process of a separation of Church and State. To gain their end against the Papacy, any revolted Catholic seem to give up religion altogether.

INDIFFERENCE THE DANGER.

"What is really a worse danger, however, than any form of dogmatic atheism, is the general feeling of religious indifference which is permeating all classes. The majority of the people are following a purely materialistic point of view."

"What do you think about the opinion of Father Vaughan, that France must be either atheist or Catholic? What about Protestantism in France?" he was asked.

Monsieur Hocart was not willing to agree with Father Vaughan entirely.

"I admit," he said, "that Protestantism is weak comparatively, but the present restless time is our very best opportunity. If only the Protestants of France would work hard now with missionary zeal, there would be a chance of invading what have been up to now almost impregnable fortresses. The religious complexion of the country is changing. The Roman Catholic population is estimated now at only anywhere between four and seven millions, and this out of a total population of 40,000,000. The number of Catholics, of course, has decreased greatly in the last few years. Most of those who have changed have no religion at all. There is always the possibility however, of a Catholic reaction, and also there is the hope of substantial Protestant gains during the general chance in alignment.

REMEMBER ST. BARTHOLEMEW.

"At present the Protestants are not strong numerically in France. They number only half a million at the outside."

"Protestantism," explained Pasteur Hocart, "has really never recovered entirely from the terrible blow struck at the Huguenots. The awful bloodshed and persecution of those days naturally made many Protestants timid and fearful. Even to-day, after more than two hundred years, signs of the terror may be seen. Numbers of Protestant churches do not open from the street at all. The approach is by an intricate side or back entrance as a protection.

"One day I noticed a widow going to church by a round about route across a field instead of by a shorter way along the road. She was just a little bit afraid of being seen openly going to a Protestant church. Her fear, of course, was groundless, but it illustrates one of the difficulties with which protestantism has to contend in France."

FIND THE HEIRS OF AN 85,000,000 ESTATE

New York, Oct. 5.—The missing heirs of the so-called Churchill estate in Newfoundland, said to be worth $85,000,000, are believed to have been found, according to an announcement by a New York attorney. For almost a hundred years these heirs, known as Halfyards, have been sought for. Mrs. Elizabeth Halfyard was the daughter of John Churchill, whose descendents, it is contended, own all the city of St. John's and other properties in the colony of Newfoundland.

A woman of sixty years of age and of evident refinement accompanied by her niece, has just arrived in New York with the announcement that she is Mrs. R. B. Stevens (nee Halfyard), and that her niece is Edith Halfyard the daughter of Samuel Halfyard. They come from Montreal and are believed to be direct heirs of Churchill.

A GREAT SPIRIT OF UNREST IN AMERICAN LABOR WORLD

Washington, Oct. 5. "I found the spirit of unrest among the working men of the West far more pronounced than I expected, and no one can tell what will happen," said President Samuel Gompers, of the Federation of Labor to-day, following his return from the Pacific Coast.

"The recent strikes in England and Ireland are apt to be duplicated here if employers continually refuse to meet the working men's representatives," he continued.

"While in Los Angeles, I held a conference with the McNamara Brothers and I am more than ever convinced that they are the victims of a diabolical plot. If there ever was a doubt in my mind as to their innocence, it was dispelled after my talk with them. True, the sentiment in Los Angeles is strong against them on account of Detective Burns trying their case in the newspapers and in magazines, but the people are beginning to give the case second thought and as a consequence the feeling is shifting.

"The American Federation of Labor will stand by them until the end and we have obtained the services of able lawyers who cannot be bought. I am confident that when the true state of affairs is shown organized labor will be praised for the stand it has taken."

"There could be no better medicine than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. My children were all sick with whooping cough. One of them was in bed, had a high fever and was coughing up blood. Our doctor gave them Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the first dose eased them, and three bottles cured them," says Mrs. R. A. Donaldson, of Lexington, Miss. For sale by all dealers.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$3,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

It shall be the policy of the Company to use the UTMOST DISCRETION in the selection of desirable risks, and, at the same time, to so widely distribute its business that any danger arising from a possible conflagration at any point may be reduced to a minimum.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the property, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE :

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

The Following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments :

No. of Shares.	Amount of First Call.	Half-yearly Payments.

NO BONUS STOCK shall be issued for any purpose whatsoever, and even the Directors, who are very heavy stockholders in the Company, have paid the SAME PRICE for their shares as the general public. NOT ONE SHARE has been or will be issued to any person at a price less than $115.00 per share.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidance that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST :

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations ; in fact, of the $3,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

APPLICATION FOR CAPITAL TOCK

I ..... hereby apply for ..... shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each of the Capital Stock of the Canada National Fire Insurance Company at the price of One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars ($115) per share, being at a premium of fifteen (15) per cent. ; and I covenant and agree with the said Company to pay for the said shares as follows : Twenty-five dollars per share on application, which shall include the premium of fifteen dollars per share, and the balance in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of nine dollars per share ; the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of said shares.

I further agree to accept said shares when they are allotted to me, and I do hereby request that my name be duly registered on the books of the Company as the holder of such shares.

Applications for stock will be filed in the order received, and on approval of same by the Board of Directors a Stock Certificate will be issued and mailed forthwith.

The holder of these shares will be paid the dividends that may be declared on the same from time to time by the Board of Directors. Dividends shall be declared and apportioned in proportion to the amount paid into the Company on the par value of the shares.

Calls on shares may be paid prior to due dates, and when all of such calls have been paid a fully-paid certificate will be issued to the holder of these shares.

These shares are transferable only on the books of the Company by the owner in person or by attorney on surrender of the Certificate of Stock properly endorsed. Transfers shall not be valid unless approved by the Board of Directors.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

Fortifying Simplon Tunnel

Italy and Switzerland fortify Simplon Tunnel.

Both Italy and Switzerland are taking measures to fortify the entrances of the Simplon Tunnel, while in the tunnel itself engineers are engaged in constructing mines and strengthening those already in place, in order to be able to blow it up at a moment's notice in the event of war. Near the middle of the tunnel, a few yards from the Swiss frontier, Italian engineers have put in place a double iron door that can resist the rush of an express train travelling at the rate of sixty miles an hour. This iron door is worked by electricity from Iselle, the station at the Italian end of the tunnel, and under ordinary conditions it is hidden in the rocky side of the tunnel. The doors are carefully tested once a week. The mines are connected with Brigue and Iselle by electric devices, so that, by the mere pressure of a button, the Simplon Tunnel could be destroyed in a second.

In The Name of Charity.

Nearly all the giddy youth of the neighborhood attended the charity bazaar, and one by one they drifted to a stall where a tiny, shapely, scented, gray kid glove reposed on a satin cushion. Attached to the cushion was a notice written in a delicate feminine hand, which ran:

"The owner of this glove will, at 7:30 this evening, be pleased to kiss any person who purchases a twenty-five cent ticket beforehand."

Tickets were purchased by the score, and at 7:30 a long row of sheepish, not to say doggish, young bloods, assembled outside the stall.

Then, punctual to the moment, old Tom Porson, the local pork-butcher, who weighs two hundred and twenty pounds, and is almost as beautiful as a side of bacon, stepped to the front of the stall.

"Now, young gents," he said, in his best "Buy, buy, buy," tones, "this 'ere glove belongs to me. I bought it this morning. Now, I'm ready for you. Come on! Don't be bashful! One at a time!"

But nobody came on.

Pullman Etiquette.

That our system of railroad travel is not perfect is alleged by "An Englishman" in a recent article. "When you travel in England you are master of your time and your baggage," writes this author. Here, the baggage travels several hours behind its owner. But "a Pullman car at night is the most uncivilized thing on the American continent, and one of the most indecent. It quite fascinates my blushes I sit enthralled as the darky porter stows my seat with other people's belongings, holds a pillow-case in his teeth and squeezes the pillow into it, and hurl sheets and mattresses about, and pulls at chains and sliding-doors and levers and curtains. Personally I have never mastered either the art of the etiquette of a Pullman car. I never know where to put my shoes, and I feel I shall never learn how to take off my trousers while sitting in them.

E. R. Knowles Knew His Congregation

A few weeks ago William Jennings Bryan was lecturing in Galt the home of Robt. E. Knowles, the well known preacher and author. Mr. Bryan was entertained at Knox Manse while in Galt. The attendance at the lecture proved disappointingly small, and the discerning lecturer laid this at the door of the rather large admission fee. As is well known, Galt is the Scotchest town in Canada.

After regaining the manse, a few friends being present, Mr. Bryan turned to his host and asked him why, in his opinion, the audience was so small.

"The thing that spoiled it," replied Mr. Knowles, "was the same thing that disorganized the Democratic party."

"What was that?" enquired the statesman.

"It was the silver question," replied the novelist.

The worst of country society or for the matter of that any society of any community, is that every woman is eligible, but only a man here and there.

STEPHEN LEACOCK

Prof. Stephen Leacock, B.A. Ph. D. is a man of complex accomplishments. His gifts are very varied and in each he excels. His realm of thought embraces topics ranging from the serious to the humorous. Prof. Leacock can write with equal facility and success an article on the most obscure point in Political Science or a humorous essay on some trivial subject of the day. Nor does he only interest himself in academic and literary pursuits. He uses his talents towards the development of his country, by means of direct personal appeals to the people. Dr. Leacock is a real orator. His personality is magnetic and this coupled with his fine, clear, voice, his flow of English, and his logic, combine to make his speeches convincing even to the skeptic and to rouse his own adherents to enthusiasm.

It is as a Professor that he is best known. His students are all enthusiastic. He is able by means of his humour to infuse life into and to make interesting even the dry elements of Economics as they were explained by John Stuart Mill. It is in Political Science, however that the professor really excels. Here he is on his own ground and it indeed needs an erudite opponent to question or argue a point with him on this, his hobby subject. He is the author of an invaluable little book on the subject entitled, "Elements of Political Science." So lucidly is it written, that even the layman, through its perusal may get a comprehensive grasp of the more salient points of the subject.

In 1907 Dr. Leacock was chosen by the Cecil Rhodes Trust to tour the British Empire, delivering lectures on Imperial Problems. He was everywhere received with much enthusiasm and accomplished his mission with signal success.

Dr. Stephen Butler Leacock was born at Swanmoor, Hant, Eng., in 1869. He came to Canada in 1876. He received his primary education at Upper Canada College and from there entered Toronto University. After receiving his degree Dr. Leacock taught at his old school, Upper Canada College. He then took his Ph. D. at the graduate school of Chicago University, receiving it in 1903.

CANADIAN PHILANTHROPHY

Prominent as a philanthropist is Sir William Christopher Macdonald, Kt., who recently presented a valuable piece of ground to McGill. He is a Governor of McGill University, and of the Montreal General Hospital, to the former of which he has given large endowments. He has established and endowed the Macdonald Agricultural College at Ste. Anne de Bellevue, at a cost of $5,000,000.

JUDGE LAFONTAINE, of Montreal.

The liquor question is a live issue all over Canada to-day, but in no place more so than in Montreal, where the License Commissioners have adopted a policy of license reduction in the city limits, and have announced that those who have been lax in obeying the law in the past must be those to suffer the consequences in the future.

On this stand the Commissioners have been supported by the public generally, by the Government, by the Dominion Alliance, the Anti-Alcoholic League, and the better class of saloonkeepers themselves. In the fight against the dives and rum shops, which have been straining every nerve and pulling every wire to keep the white parchment which admits of their selling liquor, none has been more active than Judge Ulric Lafontaine, the President of the Anti-Alcoholic League, an organization which is earnestly working against immoderate use of liquor. The Anti-Alcoholic League embraces all creeds, nationalities, and all tongues. Here French-speaking and English-speaking citizens alike line up in a common cause.

Judge Lafontaine was born in the village of St. Edouard Napierville, as was his father before him. From his name one might suppose that he is of French origin; but if you go back far enough you will find that there is more German and Scotch blood flowing through his veins than there is French.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

WILL CARRY FURTHER THAN MAN CAN SEE.

New Gun With Range of 15 Miles to be Mounted in Battleship Turrets.

A gun that will carry its projectile clear out of sight is the style that is to be placed in the turrets of the new battleship of the New York type. One of these guns has been made at the Washington factory and a dozen others are to follow as rapidly as the great lathes can turn them out. The gun has been tried out at the proving ground and has shown that it is without doubt the most powerful naval weapon in the world. With a muzzle velocity of 2400 feet a second, the shell will have ranges of about 14 or 15 miles; consequently, it will land far beyond the horizon at extreme elevations. It might hit a ship that the gunners could not see; a friend or an enemy, perhaps. Hence, the ordnance officers will be unusually careful when ships mounting these great guns go out for target practice.

FRUIT GROWERS' ORGANIZED.

A meeting of interested fruit-growers of the Newcastle, Ont., District was held last week for the purpose of forming a Co-operative Fruit-growers' Association. Mr. P. J. Carey, Dominion Fruit Inspector, gave a helpfull address. The chair was occupied by Mr. R. S. Duncan of the Department of Agriculture.

The organization chose to be known as the Durham Co-operative Fruit-growers' Association. It was decided to admit no members who would not take good care of their orchards.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

UNCLE SAM AND CANADA.

Some of the American papers have humorous cartoons on the manner in which Miss Canada has used Uncle Sam. A Cleveland paper has one of Uncle Sam in the guise of a book agent who has been trying to sell a volume entitled, "Reciprocity, by W. H. Taft." The old gentleman is emerging from the gate of a Canadian farmyard with a muzzle velocity of about 2,000 feet-seconds, pursued by Mrs. Canada, with a broom, while 'paw" and the children dance hilariously in the background cheering her on. It is noticeable that the Canadian barns behind the house are bulging out with crops and the fields full of hay stacks, and a traction engine is approaching in the distance with a large threshing machine. Another artoon in the Plain Dealer represents our Uncle Sam sitting on the reciprocity bench, gorgeously gotten up, with his hat in one hand and a large bouquet of American Beauty roses in the other. Miss Canada, looking like a Watteau shepherdess, has just tripped by with her nose in the air, leaving her aged suitor amazedly exclaiming: "Well, I'll be jiggered."

The Morning Times.

METHODISM'S WORLD-COUNCIL.

One of the great world-conventions of the year in the Methodist ecumenical council which is now sitting in Toronto. There are present some five hundred delegates representing Methodism in all parts of the world, but mainly, of course, in Great Britain, Canada and the United States. These world-councils of Methodism are held once in ten years, and the one which begins to-day is the fourth of the series.

One of the largest and most influential of Protestant denominations, Methodism was not originally designed to take the form of an independent religious denomination. It had its origin in the evangelical activities of a priest of the church of England, who remained in communion with his church until his death, and who hoped that the "connexion" of "the people called Methodists" which he had organized might continue in affiliation with the established church. John Wesley's original intention was merely to bring spiritual light to the people nearest him — to the "common people" of England whose spiritual welfare had been neglected by the materialistic clergy of that day. His ecclesiastical superiors tried to stop him from doing good in his own way, but he ignored their authority and went on doing good. The fact that this great and good man was so completely out of touch with the authorities of the established church—that they were incapable of sympathizing with his views and were indifferent to the work which he carried on—is the best possible evidence of the unspiritual condition of the English people in the eighteenth century.

John Wesley "builded better than he knew," says the Hamilton Herald. When he died there were in Great Britain and Ireland about 70,000 Methodists. The ecumenical council now meeting in Toronto represents over thirty millions of people scattered throughout the civilized world. But even when he was toiling in comparative obscurity, Wesley was infusing into his followers and friends that spirit which was to make Methodism one of the great world-evangelizing agencies. "The world," he said, "is my parish." It was a prophetic epigram. The spreading circles of spiritual influence started by John Wesley have already reached all quarters of the world.

CHANGES IN THE SEED CONTROL ACT.

During the recent session of Parliament, important changes were made in the Seed Control Act respecting the sale of clover and timothy seed. Under the old Act the inspector sometimes found it difficult to prove violations though misrepresentations were being made. A dealer might offer red clover seed, containing as many as 92 noxious weed seeds per ounce and an unlimited number of other weed seeds such as Foxtail, represent it as his best grade and charge nearly as much as his competitor asked for No. 1. He would not mark it No. 1, but he might state verbally that it was No. 1 or just as good. This has often been done, with the result that farmers as well as retail merchants who really wanted to buy pure seed have got badly contaminated seed and paid high prices for it. Under the new Act such misrepresentations will be impossible and both farmers and retail merchants will be able to buy their seed more intelligently. Four grades are fixed by the Act for red clover, alsike alfalfa and timothy seed, and all seed sold for seeding purposes by seedsmen must be plainly labelled with the grade. Any seed not grading No. 3, which is a higher standard than the old prohibitive line of five noxious weed seeds per thousand of good seed, is prohibited from sale. The following are the standards for freedom from weed seeds:

RED CLOVER, ALFALFA, TIMOTHY

Noxious weed seeds per oz.—Extra No. 1, 0; No. 1, 5; No. 2, 20; No. 3, 80.

All weed seeds per oz.—Extra No. 1, 30; No. 1, 100; No. 21 200; No. 3, 400.

ALSIKE.

Noxious weed seeds per oz.—Extra No. 1, 0; No. 1, 10; No. 2, 40; No. 3, 160.

All weed seeds per oz.—Extra No. 1, 30; No. 1, 100; No. 2, 200; No. 3, 400.

In addition to the standards for freedom from weed seeds, standards for purity in other respects and general appearance are fixed for Extra No. 1, No. 1 and No. 2. Double the number of noxious weed seeds are allowed in alsike on account of the greater difficulty in cleaning this seed. Farmers and seed dealers should have their seed tested and graded before offering it for sale. Samples will be carried free through the mails and tested without charge if addressed to the Seed Commissioner, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

TAFT AT FAULT.

American editorial opinion is almost unanimous that when President Taft declared that reciprocity would break the commercial band binding Canada to imperial interests he placed a very formidable weapon in the hands of the Canadian opponents of the pact. None of the flamboyant utterances of Speaker Clark and others of his brand of statesmanship was very seriously taken in Canada. But when Mr. Taft spoke he was heard with respect, and his warning was sufficient for Canadians. Mr. Taft may be said to have done as much or more towards the defeat of reciprocity as can be credited to any individual man.

Making Observations for Mapping Out Canadian Rockies.

In a letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, the well-known mountain climber and topographer, who is at present in the Canadian Rockies making observations for the purpose of mapping out the district, he says:

"We have a great amount of splendid material for publication and a collection of photographs that cannot be surpassed. We have just completed what is very nearly a 100 mile circuit around Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The peaks and valleys, lakes and waterfalls on all sides of it, and the glaciers are very fine. The region is immense, and there is work for years to come, exploring, mapping and depicting. There is a fine bunch of high peaks and large snowfields and glaciers southwest of Tete Jaune Cache. There are also great peaks on the Athabaska and Fraser headwaters, tributary to your line. The most showy part of Mt. Robson is the Robson Pass and Glacier, and Berg Lake."

In addition to the above Mr. Wheeler reports that his party have collected over 600 specimens of animal and bird life, and a good botanical collection as well. This expedition which was organized by the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been a most successful one, and when its results are published will be of great value. The facts now known bear out the general impression that the territory contiguous to the mountain division of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will surpass in scenic beauty that which can be seen on any other of the North American transcontinental lines.

HIGH COST OF LIVING.

Paris, Sept. 30.—Some light is thrown on the causes of the increased price of living in France by the official trade statistics for the first five months of 1911, which are published to-day in the "Journal Official." Imports, as compared with those of 1910, have increased by nearly $195,000,000, while exports show a shrinkage of over $20,000,000. Bad harvests are largely responsible for these figures, since foodstuff imports show an increase of $130,000,000, while foodstuff exports have decreased by $25,000,000. So far as concerns cereals, it appears that the situation has improved, the harvest of 1911 being officially estimated to be sufficient for the needs of home consumption.

NO HATPINS NEEDED.

Hatpins are not required for several of the new types of toques. Instead, the drapery trimming of the toques is wound rather tightly around the head and lower part of the toque body in a manner which reminds one of the cloths women wind around their heads as a dust protector when cleaning house. The free end of the drapery is fastened by means of hooks and eyes after being wound.

TIT BIT KNOWLEDGE.

For the cotton gowns the predilection is for colored embroideries. The colors of the embroideries are pink, rose, old blue, light blue, lavender and yellow.

Sleeves are short in all save the strictly tailored garments, and by short is meant a termination of the sleeve just at or an inch or more above the elbow.

Sashes are worn a great deal with afternoon toilets.

Paris decrees black velvet slippers for evening toilets.

Blind embroidery and English eyelet are both favorites for the separate white waist.

It is going to be a great cotton season, and cottons are going to be tolerated where formerly they have been prohibited.

May Develop Into An Important Industry.

The ever increasing demand and the diminishing supply of sturgeon caviar led fishermen of eastern Siberia to experiment with salmon roe, which has not only been considered useless for human consumption but had even been looked upon as injurious to health.

Up to 1907 the fishermen in the neighborhood of Nicolaevsk considered salmon roe as valueless, but from that time it was demonstrated that caviar could be made so as to prove commercially profitable and of such a quality that although it cannot compare with the taste of the sturgeon caviar it is nevertheless a great delicacy.

Vast quantities of salmon roe are annually destroyed in Alaska, as they have discovered no means of preserving it, and should a taste be created for caviar of this kind it would develop into a very important industry. The limited supply of sturgeon caviar and the consequent high price places it beyond the reach of many who enjoy such delicacies, whereas salmon caviar could take its place and be practically within the reach of all.

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

REV. C. W. GORDON

Rev. Charles William Gordon, B.A., D.D., L.L.D., F.R.S.C., or as he is more widely known, Ralph Connor, was born in the country and it was his early training in the Indian Lands, Glengarry Co., Ont., which we see reproduced in the broad manly atmosphere of Ralph Connor's books. No city bred man would possibly warm the imagination, and make the reader yearn for the broad open country, the home of better things as does he.

The future Ralph Connor received his first smatterings of education at the Public School of Athol, Ont. One imagines however, that it was the careful tuition of his father, the Rev. Daniel Gordon which made him yearn to taste more of the fruit of education, rather than the village school. Still the impressions of his early days have always remained with him and we find them brought vividly before us in some of his masterpieces. After public school he was sent to the High School of St. Mary's, Ontario. From there he matriculated into the University of Toronto, graduating with the class of 1883. After taking his Arts course, the future author applied himself to the study of theology at Knox College. In order to obtain a broader and wider outlook on life Ralph Connor crossed the water, and studied at New College, Edinburgh for a year.

Before returning to take up his life work in Canada, he made, in company with five friends, a bicycle tour of the continent.

Upon his return to the Dominion he took up his task with grim determination to succeed. The now Rev. Mr. Gordon was sent as a missionary to the Rocky Mountains. He did his work thoroughly and labored for the spiritual good of the region with all his indomitable energy. The Rockies were inhabited by a rough and ready lot, yet the youthful divinity graduate shouldered his task and came out with flying colours.

The impressions he received were indelibly stamped on his mind and they make some of the most thrilling passages in his books. Since 1894 the Rev. Dr. Gordon has been in charge of St. Stephen's Church Winnipeg.

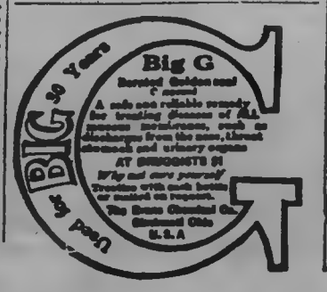
He has labored not alone for the moral betterment of his own congregation, but for the whole West. Dr. Gordon takes a vital interest in the improvement and purification of municipal politics and in the lot of the working man. On this account he was chosen as a member of the Coal Striker's Arbitration Board. Above all Ralph Connor's influence has been felt from Coast to Coast through the medium of such books as the "Man from Glengarry" the Prospector, etc. Canada needs more men of his stamp and more books of the same calibre as his. They have a farther reaching effect towards moral upliftment than any amount of sermons against the prevalent vices.

SIR JAMES GRANT

Sir James Alexander Grant, K.C.M.G., M.D., F.R.S.C., who while in politics introduced the Pacific Railway Bill, is principally distinguished for his medical and scientific work. He has published works on Organic Heart Disease, and numerous essays on various medical and scientific subjects. He was President of the Royal Society of Canada in 1903.

Sir James was born in Inverness, Scotland, in 1831 and received his education at Queen's College, Kingston, Ont., London and Edinburgh. He first entered parliament as member for Co. of Russell in 1863.

Inconsistency goes as far towards making life attractive as its pleasures do towards spoiling it.



Don't Fail to Hear Him.

The 39th anniversary of the Mark Street Methodist Church will be held next Sunday, October 8th. The Rev. R. J. M. Glassford, B. D., of Toronto, field secretary of the Provincial S. S. Association, will preach at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. and address a mass meeting of Sunday school workers at 3 p.m. Mr. Glassford was for years pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Guelph, and is generally recognized as one of the first platform speakers in the province.

FARM AND FIELD

EGG CANDLING.

A Good Way of Testing Eggs for Market.

The time of year is at hand when it is a little difficult to always know the condition of the eggs that are gathered, even upon well managed farms. Candling at home puts the producer in position to demand and to secure what his eggs are worth, and in this connection the following description of the contents of eggs, ranging from fresh to absolutely rotten, as they appear under the candle is of interest. It is from a newspaper bulletin put out by the Indiana station:

Fresh.—Opaque, appearing almost entirely free of any contents, sometimes dim outline of yolk visible, air cell very small.

Stale.—Outline of yolk plainly visible, sometimes muddy in appearance, air cell very large.

Developed Germ.—Dark spot visible, from which radiate light colored blood vessels.

Dead Germ.—Dark spot attached to shell, or red ring of blood, visible.

Rotten.—Muddy or very dark in appearance, yolk and white mixed, air bell large and sometimes moveable.

Cracked.—White lines showing irregularly in shell.

RAISING CHICKENS.

Chickens Can Be Raised Successful in Your Yard.

It pays to raise chickens. There's no doubt about it.

For long it was the generally accepted theory that a hen needed about 160 acres in which to roam and scratch, and that a big barnlike house was needed for just a medium sized flock to roost.

Wrong. One well tested system gets excellent results both in eggs and meat by confining chickens in very close quarters. In little backyards of city lots a flock of hens will grow and lay and fatten for the market or your table just as if they were on the farm.

If the largest plot you can give to chickens is only eight feet by four, that will do for a half dozen hens and a rooster, and with right care you ought to get 50 dozen of eggs a year.

Multiply that by more space and more hens and see how it will cut down your cost of living. Also it will make you free of the cold storage product, and what is almost as good to the city man, the larger the production of eggs and poultry the less the demand for pork, beef and mutton, and corresponding lower prices for all meats.

THE KING'S THRONE.

Hard to Say Which is the Real Throne.

The King may be said to have a suite of thrones—or shall we say a set of "occasional thrones?"—on each of which he probably sits at least once. Certainly he only sits on a single occasion upon one of them—that is the Coronation Chair in Westminster Abbey—the worm-eaten, battered, lion-footed old oak settee which contains the Stone of Destiny, and upon which all the King's predecessors since Edward II. have been crowned. That chair might, perhaps, claim to be the throne of the Empire, as it is infinitely the most ancient, and inasmuch as the King must sit upon it to be crowned.

It is not at all likely that the King would sit upon it often, even if it were in his "ain ingle-nook," because it is an extremely uncomfortable chair. It stands, year in and year out, in the chapel of Edward the Confessor, where it was first placed by Edward I., and it is only removed for the Coronation, when, covered with gold brocade, it is set under the lantern, between the choir and the altar.

Probably the throne most familiar to the public is the great creation which stands upon a dias in the House of Lords. It is often mentioned in the newspapers quite apart from the opening of Parliament—the only occasion upon which it is actually used as a seat. Often a phrase like this occurs: "Mr. John Burns, who is greatly interested in this bill, listened to the debate from the steps of the throne." A beautiful rail separates this "Royal seat of Kings" from the faithful peers.

Where the Scents Come From

Attar of roses reaches this country mainly from Smyrna and Constantinople, the oil of lemons from Sicily and Portugal, bergamot from Sicily, anise from Germany and the East Indies, and oil of cloves to a small extent from the Malay Islands, though it is believed that a large amount is distilled by the London wholesale druggists.

"Do you know, landlord, that none of the doors in this house will shut?" "New house, sir; new house, you know; takes time to settle." "Ah, then there is a pair of us! I'm a new tenant; it takes time for me to settle too. Good morning. Call again!"

CHAPTER XIII.

A Foretaste of Strong Measures.

Thus thrown upon my own resources, I betook myself to the roomy cabin where the cook reigned supreme. Thence, with breakfast disposed of, to the store I found there a small be-whiskered man bowed over a ledger, and a dozen husky packers stowing goods on the shelves. The clerical person gazed at me over a pair of steel-rimmed spectacles, in a colorless, uninterested sort of way I took him to be the bookkeeping machine of the concern, and such proved to be the case And when I asked for "George," prudently refraining from mention of surnames, he told me primly that "Mr Barreau" had gone up the river, leaving word that I was to make myself at home in the meantime Having delivered himself of this message, he resumed his task So I continued my round of the post until I located old Ben Wise. What between chatting with Ben and sundry games of seven-up with one or two of the others whom I knew, and long spells of sitting alone in the cabin, smoking over the fire, I managed to murder time for three days At the end of which period Barreau returned.

He did not come alone, but at the head of a veritable flotilla of birch-bark canoes, laden with a picturesque mixture of Indians, squaws, round-faced papooses, sharp-nosed dogs, and the household goods pertaining to these. By the appearance of things, I inferred that he had been out to jog up the natives who had signified willingness to trade with the house of Montell. They beached the canoes and pitched their lodges along the river bank, a little way from the stockade. In the two hours of daylight following the arrival of the vanguard, other little parties came slipping quietly around the curve of the Sicamais, pitched their camps, and set about cooking food. The flat was speckled with twinkling dots of fire when dark vanquished the long twilight.

Barreau was tired, and had little to tell, and we played a silent game or two of euchre that night before turning in. By dawn we had breakfasted and were at the store, and the copper-skinned men of the lodges began to come in and cast their eyes upon such things as they desired.

All forenoon I watched this silent outfitting of the hunters; saw this one and that stand wrapped to the ears in his gaudy blanket, seeming not to see or to be conscious of aught that transpired Then of a sudden he would point abruptly to some article — a trap or two, maybe, a caddy of tea, a flask of powder — and emit a guttural sound that Barreau interpreted to Cullen, who would solemnly make an entry in his notebook. When the red brother had reached his trading limit ,his squaw took the burden of his purchases on her back, and he strode forth, wrapped in a dignity, even more striking than his blanket, she following meekly at his heels

"How do you manage to keep track of them all?" I asked Barreau, as we sat at dinner. "Suppose these Indians that you outfit now don't show up again? Can you trust them so absolutely?"

"You'd soon find out that they have individual characteristics," Barreau replied, "if you were with them long. I know most of these fellows well enough to pick them out of a crowd. In fact, a good many of them won't trade except with me — which is one strong hold I have over my slippery partner. And, so far as trusting them, an Indian's word is better than the bond of many a white man. For every dollar's worth of stuff we let them have this fall, they'll bring ten dollars' worth of pelts next spring — unless it is an extraordinary winter. Where we will make money will be in the spring trade They'll have plenty of furs left after their debt is paid, and they'll want new guns and more powder, flour and tea for the summer, tobacco and clothes and geegaws for the women and papooses. If the winter is normal, we're going to have a big trade I wouldn't mind," he concluded, with a short laugh, "if Montell had to go clear to Benton, and got snowed in there That would eliminate one dangerous factor. But that's too much to hope for."

"It's a long trip," I reflected. "He can't get to the Missouri in time to send his daughter down on the last boat, even. The river will freeze any day, now. Benton would be a dreary place for her to stay alone, I should think. He may stay there with her."

"Not likely," Barreau contended. "As it happens, she knows one or two rather nice families who are wintering at Benton, and she'll be apt to stay with them. No, the old fox has something up his sleeve. He'll be back if he has to come on his hands and knees."

Barreau was right. Montell did come back, and the date of his return was only something more than forty-eight hours from the time of that conversation. We were stretched upon our respective bunks, I listening to Barreau's talk of long-dead traders who had undertaken to buck the Hudson's Bay Company, when some one tapped on the door; and, at Barreau's laconic "Come in," who but Montell himself should enter He shut the door carefully behind him, and waddled to a seat. Barreau raised up on elbow

"You!" he said sharply. "Back here already? What has happened now?"

Montell took off his hat and threw it petulantly on the floor.

"We couldn't make it, that's all," he growled. "I guess the H. B C.'s getting busy, all at once. Anyhow, we got headed off."

"How?" Barreau demanded

"Easiest way in the world," he sputtered wrathfully "Some feller with a good eye just trailed us up, and killed off our stock—shot 'em one by one. Finally, we was afoot. So we turned back. Couldn't walk clear to MacLeod. Damn 'em, anyway!"

"No one hurt?" Barreau asked quietly.

"Barrin' blistered feet—no," Montell snapepd.

"What are you going to do, now" Barreau inquired next.

"I'm goin' to take eight men, by God, and a string of mules, and hit it in the mornin',!" Montell exploded "I ain't goin' to have that girl winter here, if I know it And I ain't goin' to be headed off from hothin' by the Hudson Bay or any other damned outfit. I just come over here to let you know I was back, George, so's you wouldn't be gettin' into the foreground to-mororw mornin' when we're fixin' to start. You might just as well be accommodatin'."

"Oh, to be sure. As a favor from one gentleman to another," Barreau observed sarcastically "Anything to oblige. But if I were you I should not try it again—not till you can take the outfit, lock, stock, and barrel You may find it only a waste of mules if not worse. Evidently the company is minded to pen the lot of us here, and teach us a lesson."

"Just to the girl's out of it," Montell muttered defiantly. "they've got my permission to go ahead with their teachin'. But I've got to get her clear. So I'm goin' to tackle it again."

"Very well," Barreau said indifferently. "But you had better take a few pair of snowshoes. You may need them."

"Maybe so," Montell returned "But I bet I get a scalp or two if they go to settin' us afoot this trip." And he gathered up his hat and left the cabin

"I shouldn't be surprised if that was the way of it," remarked Barreau.

I looked over at him, and, catching my interrogative gaze, he went on.

"I've simply been doing a bit of inductive reasoning Taking things as they are in this country, what more natural than that the Hudson's Bay Company should have become alarmed lest we grow to a formidable competitor, and have simply made up their minds that we must be ousted, by hook or by crook? They have a way of keeping posted, you know. And then, along in the winter, they might even go so far as to have the mounted police pull one chestnut out of the fire for them, by revealing my whereabouts."

"How does it come," I asked, in some surprise, "that they haven't done that before, if they know that George Barreau, the fur trader, is Slowfoot George of the MacLeod country?"

"For the very good reason that they want no mounted policemen in this neck of the woods," he said decidedly "They don't want to establish a precedent. They have lorded it in the North for generations, and so long as they continue to do so the Canadian government will permit it. Once the police begin to come here,

Real Estate, Mining and Industrial Investments

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 80 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

$30 cash, or $6 down and $6 a month for four months, buys 100 shares.

$60 cash, or $12 down and $12 a month for four months, buys 200 shares.

$120 cash, or $24 down and $24 a month for four months, buys 400 shares.

$480 cash, or $96 down and $96 a month for four months, buys 1600 shares.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

WATERWORKS FOR FARM.

An increasing number of enquiries are received asking for methods of supplying water to country homes. It has been one of the drawbacks of life on the farm compared with the city that while water might be in abundant supply it has not been convenient for all purposes of the household. In response to the demand for better appliances many improvements have of late years been made in pumping and piping outfits. Water in the house for free use is coming to be recognized as one of the first requirements in sanitary living. Further than this it is a labor saving arrangement that is in keeping with the modern machinery and appliances used elsewhere on the farm.

THE SUFFERING EDITOR.

A farmer wrote to the editor of an agricultural paper as follows:—"I have a horse that has been afflicted for the past year with periodical fits of dizziness. Please let me know what I should do with him, as he seems to get worse instead of better. I am afraid he will be unfit for work if something is not done soon."

In the next issue this answer appeared:—"When the nag is looking all right sell him to someone."

The increased production of milk, in Ontario is looked upon as an indication that the farmers of the province generally are beginning to see greater possibilities in dairying. The cities are taking a great deal of milk, which to a considerable extent changes the cheese factory situation.

Australia has Tallest Tree.

Australia claims to have the tallest tree in the world. It has long been thought that to California belongs this distinction, but, while California trees are of gigantic dimensions, they do not come up to Australia's eucalyptus trees. The Californians are noted not so much for their height as for their girth and diameter. The tallest tree in California yet discovered was found by actual measurement to be 340ft high. Australia's record gum tree can beat this by 140ft.

Alimony.—The price of peace.

Laughing stock.—An amateur actor making an attempt at high tragedy.

Political rainbows.—The kind usually seen just before the November deluge.

Human nature—Something to blame your excentricities on if you are not like other people.

Sweet Girl "Well, I read the other day about a rich man who made his will in favor of the woman who refused him, and then went and hanged himself."

Humility Safest Virtue.

Among all the virtues, humility, the lowest, is pre-eminent. It is the safest, because it is always an anchor, and that man may be truly said to live the most content in his calling who strives to live within the compass of it.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

Creeps like a Serpent

Catarrh is an insidious disease, scarcely noticeable at first, but horribly relentless if not checked.

No disease makes such inroads into weak constitutions as Catarrh. It spreads from the place of beginning to the lungs, bronchial tubes, stomach, intestines, and before long all the organs of the body are affected.

A splendid remedy, attended with remarkable success in curing Catarrh has lately come prominently to the front. Its name is Catarrhozone, and no case is recorded where it failed to quickly relieve and cure.

The strong points about Catarrhozone are that it is both a local and constitutional treatment. It not only affords quick relief to the local symptoms, but also purifies the blood of all Catarrhal poisons, builds up and strengthens the system.

Catarrhozone Inhaler supplies an abundance of medicated air which is breathed in at the mouth, and after passing through every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

This penetrating, volatile antiseptic at once kills the germs that cause Catarrh, and prevents the disease spreading when once established. It is so healing and soothing that the inflamed membranes, and sore spots are restored to normal and healthy condition in a few days.

Catarrhozone cleanses the nose and throat and keeps them entirely free of mucous discharge. It prevents dropping in the throat, cures headache and makes breathing easy and the breath pure and sweet.

To build up and invigorate the system, a blood purifier and tonic called Ferrozone should be taken after each meal. In conjunction with Catarrhozone it is a valuable aid in establishing such a healthy condition of the body that Catarrh cannot exist.

Other remedies have been known to give relief, but to permanently eradicate every trace of Catarrh you must use Catarrhozone. It is a commonsense, convenient, clean method of cure that is endorsed by the profession and all intelligent pharmacists.

You are sure to be benefited quickly and positively cured by Catarrhozone. The complete outfit costs only $1.00. Trial size, 25c. Sold by Druggists, and The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

A Hard Winter Coming.

Old time farmers living in the vicinity of Peterborough, say that a hard winter is in sight, because the red squirrels and chipmunks have become very busy laying in their winter food store, even going to the extent of collecting green chestnut burrs, breaking them open and hiding away for future use, the unripe chestnuts. One old farmer said that he never before knew the squirrel to open green chestnut burrs or to begin storing food so early in the fall.

Mad Best Season on Record.

Mr. F. J. Young, manager of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company, was in the city yesterday on business and favored The Times with a friendly call. He said that the season just about closed beat the record, the boats of the Company having been kept on the jump all through the season, without a hitch. The Company's excursion business out of Peterborough was more than double what it was in any previous season. This perhaps may be partly accounted for by the fact that the Company used the advertising columns of The Times.

Of Interest to Sunday School Workers.

On Sunday next, the Rev. R. J. M. Glassford, B. D., Field Secretary of the Provincial S. S. Association, will preach at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. in Mark Street Methodist Church, and will conduct a mass meeting in the afternoon at 3 p. m.

Boy Scouts.

All members of the first Peterborough troop of Boy Scouts will meet at the Armouries this morning at 8.30, in order to go out scouting.

The schedule for the day will be as follows:

8.45—Leave Armouries.
9.45—Arrive at Camp.
10.00 to 12.00—Practice hut building.
12.00 to 1.00—Dinner.
1.00 to 2.00—Hut building.
2.00 to 3.00—Signalling.
3.00 to 3.30—Parade fire lighting.
3.30 to 4.30—Dispatch running.
4.45—Leave for home.

The Milk By-law.

Mr. Thomas Hunter, of North Monaghan, dropped into The Times office a few days ago, and explained his position in regard to the proposed milk by-law. Mr. Hunter, who is interested in the milk business, says that the system proposed would undoubtedly be the means of increasing the price of milk to 8c or 9c per quart—a very serious matter, especially for the poor. Then he says that the milk will not be so clean, for the simple reason that bottles cannot be cleaned as readily as the enclosed milk cans. Boiling hot water, which is always used in cleaning milk cans, would break the bottles, as everybody knows, hence the bottles cannot be as clean and sweet as the cans. Mr. Hunter says that it would cost about $1,000 to purchase a bottling plant, and many milk vendors are not able to afford this. The result would undoubtedly be that the whole milk business would fall into the hands of a few, and a milk combine or trust would thus be formed. The Times would suggest, in view of the above, that the Council should go slow in dealing with so important a matter.

THE MILK BY-LAW.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Under this milk by-law soon to be enforced in our city, those who keep cows and sell their milk to their neighbors, will be prevented from doing so—nay more. It will leave them liable to be fined for selling milk unless they sell it in sterilized bottles with air tight corks, &c., and if they cannot pay the fine, they will be liable to be imprisoned. It is plain to be seen that the manufacturers of milk bottles and milk vendors supplies are back of this whole business. There must be a demand created for their wares, even if it costs the people double the price for their milk. The people are getting suspicious Mr. Editor, that it is not the health of the people the promoters of these new-fangled schemes are after. It is their hard earned dollars they want.

John Carlisle.

WHY ANOTHER ELECTION?

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—A good deal is being said in the press about the Ontario elections. There is no doubt whatever that if Premier Whitney wants to bring on a general provincial election this year he will do it. To do what he wants to do is a way Sir James has. But it is to be hoped that he will not want to do it.

Another general election within the next few weeks would be unwelcome and unpopular. It would be bad for business, and many business men might resent it in a way that Sir James would not like.

If it were necessary, or even expedient from the standpoint of public interests, of course business conditions would have to be put aside. But it is neither necessary nor expedient. The fact that there are a number of vacancies in the legislature to be filled does not make it necessary that the other ninety-eight seats should be made vacant. There is no policy upon which it is necessary for the government to obtain the will of the people. The Whitney government can safely assume that the people are pretty well satisfied with the present administration of the affairs of the province, and it need have no fear of a general election next year. An appeal to the people now would be interpreted by many as a sign of conscious weakness — an attempt on the part of the government to obtain a snap verdict by taking advantage of the party conditions resulting from the Dominion elections—the elation and confidence of the Conservatives and the discouragement and disorganization of the Liberals.

On the whole, I think that a premature appeal to the people this year by the Whitney government would be an tactical blunder.

RUSSIAN STUDENTS TERRORIZED COUNTRY DRIFTING TO ANARCHY

London, Oct. 4.—After an interval during which there has been a notable absence of assassinations, or attempt at assassination, of high officials in Russia, the shooting of Premier Stolypin, at a grand opera performance at which the Czar was present, is a startling reminder to the world at large of the political and social unrest in that country. One of the most extraordinary demonstrations of that condition in Russia has been the strike of the students in the Russian universities and technical high schools, on account of the harshness and injustice of the Government in repressing public manifestations of sorrow when Tolstoy died, and the subjecting of educated political offenders to the ignominy of the lash.

Thousands of students have been imprisoned and many hundreds banished to remote places in European Russia, or to Siberia. The Outlook gives, from official Russian sources, the following statistical information, which shows how that strike of the students in the higher educational institutions of Russia was crushed out. Between November 21, 1910, and August 13, 1911, the total number of Russian students arrested and thrown into prison was 5,413. Of these, 1,298 were banished from university towns, and more than six hundred exiled to Siberia, or to the northern provinces of European Russia, for terms ranging from two to five years. The total number of students expelled was 4,060, distributed by cities as follows: St. Petersburg (including 1,200 from the Women's Medical Institute), 3,084; Moscow, 577; Tomsk, 443; Kharkof, 275; Odessa, 207; Kiev, 151; Warsaw, 120; Novaya Alexandria, 48; Yurief (Dorpat), 34; Ekaterinoslav, 6; Novo Cherkassk, 5; and Yaroslav, 4. All the students above enumerated were imprisoned, expelled or banished by what is known as "administrative process." The number who had a judicial trial was only three.

First and last, the Government punished administratively, in one way or another, students to the number of 6,851, and brought about the resignation of more than two hundred professors and instructors, including many of the ablest and best-known scholars in the Empire. It broke the strike, but it wrecked or crippled some of its best universities and technical schools, and deprived the Empire of several thousand young men and women who could have carried enlightenment to regions where it is greatly needed.

In European Russia the ratio of physicians to inhabitants is 1 to 7,300, and in Asiatic Russia it is 1 to 15,200. And yet the Russian Government does not hesitate to expel 1,200 medical students en bloc in St. Petersburg, and many hundreds more in the provinces, in order to break a strike which might have been dealt with by the adoption of a reasonably liberal policy. Incidentally the Czar and his Ministers have thus created five or six thousand more embittered revolutionists.

Creeps like a Serpent

Catarrh is an insidious disease, scarcely noticeable at first, but horribly relentless if not checked.

No disease makes such inroads into weak constitutions as Catarrh. It spreads from the place of beginning to the lungs, bronchial tubes, stomach, intestines, and before long all the organs of the body are affected.

A splendid remedy, attended with remarkable success in curing Catarrh has lately come prominently to the front. Its name is Catarrhozone, and no case is recorded where it failed to quickly relieve and cure.

The strong points about Catarrhozone are that it is both a local and constitutional treatment. It not only affords quick relief to the local symptoms, but also purifies the blood of all Catarrhal poisons, builds up and strengthens the system.

Catarrhozone Inhaler supplies an abundance of medicated air which is breathed in at the mouth, and after passing through every air cell and air passage of the breathing organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

This penetrating, volatile antiseptic at once kills the germs that cause Catarrh, and prevents the disease spreading when once established. It is so healing and soothing that the inflamed membranes, and sore spots are restored to normal and healthy condition in a few days.

Catarrhozone cleanses the nose and throat and keeps them entirely free of mucous discharge. It prevents dropping in the throat, cures headache and makes breathing easy and the breath pure and sweet.

To build up and invigorate the system, a blood purifier and tonic called Ferrozone should be taken after each meal. In conjunction with Catarrhozone it is a valuable aid in establishing such a healthy condition of the body that Catarrh cannot exist.

Other remedies have been known to give relief, but to permanently eradicate every trace of Catarrh you must use Catarrhozone. It is a common-sense, convenient, clean method of cure that is endorsed by the profession and all intelligent pharmacists.

You are sure to be benefited quickly and positively cured by Catarrhozone. The complete outfit costs only $1.00. Trial size, 25c. Sold by Druggists, and The Catarrhozone Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

The fact that there are a number of vacancies in the legislature to be filled does not make it necessary that the other ninety-eight seats should be made vacant. There is no policy upon which it is necessary for the government to obtain the will of the people. The Whitney government can safely assume that the people are pretty well satisfied with the present administration of the affairs of the province, and it need have no fear of a general election next year. An appeal to the people now would be interpreted by many as a sign of conscious weakness — an attempt on the part of the government to obtain a snap verdict by taking advantage of the party conditions resulting from the Dominion elections—the elation and confidence of the Conservatives and the discouragement and disorganization of the Liberals.

On the whole, I think that a premature appeal to the people this year by the Whitney government would be an tactical blunder.

RUSSIAN STUDENTS TERRORIZED COUNTRY DRIFTING TO ANARCHY

London, Oct. 4.—After an interval during which there has been a notable absence of assassinations, or attempt at assassination, of high officials in Russia, the shooting of Premier Stolypin, at a grand opera performance at which the Czar was present, is a startling reminder to the world at large of the political and social unrest in that country. One of the most extraordinary demonstrations of that condition in Russia has been the strike of the students in the Russian universities and technical high schools, on account of the harshness and injustice of the Government in repressing public manifestations of sorrow when Tolstoy died, and the subjecting of educated political offenders to the ignominy of the lash.

Thousands of students have been imprisoned and many hundreds banished to remote places in European Russia, or to Siberia. The Outlook gives, from official Russian sources, the following statistical information, which shows how that strike of the students in the higher educational institutions of Russia was crushed out. Between November 21, 1910, and August 13, 1911, the total number of Russian students arrested and thrown into prison was 5,413. Of these, 1,298 were banished from university towns, and more than six hundred exiled to Siberia, or to the northern provinces of European Russia, for terms ranging from two to five years. The total number of students expelled was 4,060, distributed by cities as follows: St. Petersburg (including 1,200 from the Women's Medical Institute), 3,084; Moscow, 577; Tomsk, 443; Kharkof, 275; Odessa, 207; Kiev, 151; Warsaw, 120; Novaya Alexandria, 48; Yurief (Dorpat), 34; Ekaterinoslav, 6; Novo Cherkassk, 5; and Yaroslav, 4. All the students above enumerated were imprisoned, expelled or banished by what is known as "administrative process." The number who had a judicial trial was only three.

First and last, the Government punished administratively, in one way or another, students to the number of 6,851, and brought about the resignation of more than two hundred professors and instructors, including many of the ablest and best-known scholars in the Empire. It broke the strike, but it wrecked or crippled some of its best universities and technical schools, and deprived the Empire of several thousand young men and women who could have carried enlightenment to regions where it is greatly needed.

In European Russia the ratio of physicians to inhabitants is 1 to 7,300, and in Asiatic Russia it is 1 to 15,200. And yet the Russian Government does not hesitate to expel 1,200 medical students en bloc in St. Petersburg, and many hundreds more in the provinces, in order to break a strike which might have been dealt with by the adoption of a reasonably liberal policy. Incidentally the Czar and his Ministers have thus created five or six thousand more embittered revolutionists.

TEN THOUSAND KILLED IN SZE CHUEN REBELLION

Canadian Methodist Missionaries Wire That Desperate Fighting Has Occurred

Pekin, Oct. 6.—Canadian Methodist missionaries at Chentu, the recently besieged capital of Sh-Chuen Province, telegraphed to-day that they estimate that 10,000 persons were killed during the fighting between the insurgents and the Government troops. Of the dead, 2,000 were soldiers and the others rebels.

Ten thousand rebels are in possession of other cities southwest of Chentu. Soldiers are marching against them to-day.

The Methodists state that as a result of the uprising thousands of natives are homeless, and many becoming desperate, committed suicide.

The Methodists appeal for funds from Canada and the United States, to be distributed under their supervision in the work of relief.

A BRITISH SHIP CAPTURED

Saloniki, European Turkey, Oct. 6.—The Turkish battleship Peth-I-Bulend held up and searched the British steamer Orchis, and finding 40 barrels of powder on board, brought the vessel here as a prise of war.

OWNERS WERE SPECULATING AS TO DELAY.

London, Oct. 6.—The steamer Orchis, seized by the Turks, was bound from Smyrna to Constantinople, and her owners could not understand why she was taking so long as she was not going to an Italian port.

ASK A FEW MORE DAYS TO COMPLETE FORMATION OF HIS CABINET — MINISTERS LEAVE OFFICES IN THE BUILDING.

THE FORMAL RESIGNATION

Scenes Attending the Last Day of a Government in Office Over Fifteen Years.

Ottawa, Ont. Oct. 6.—The Laurier Government this afternoon yielded to the mandate of the Canadian electorate and submitted to his Excellency the Governor-General the resignations of its Ministers. Mr. Borden was immediately called upon to form a Government.

The final sitting of the Cabinet began this morning at eleven o'clock in the Privy Council chamber and lasted till one o'clock. There was practically a full attendance of the Ministers and following the putting through of a little routine some time was spent in talking over the situation. Then the Ministers took leave of each other and left the Council chamber, thus marking the end of the Liberal Government after fifteen years in office.

After the final meeting of the Cabinet Sir Wilfrid Laurier drove to the Government House where he met His Excellency and submitted to him the formal resignation of himself and his Ministers. The interview lasted about half an hour. Then a messenger was despatched by Earl Grey to Mr. Borden who went to the Vice-Regal residence, and was called upon to form a Government. Mr. Borden accepted the responsibility but asked for a few days' delay to prepare the list of his ministers. It is not likely that the personnel of the Cabinet will be announced before Monday, when the members will be sworn in and afterwards go back to their constituencies for re-election.

As none of them is likely to be opposed they should all be installed duly within fifteen days

RAN UP THE FRENCH FLAG AT FORT AGADIR

EAGER FRENCHMEN VERY NEARLY CAUSED SERIOUS TROUBLE FOR REPUBLIC.

Moroccans Appealed to a German Cruiser But the Matter Was Referred to Berlin for Settlement.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—A group of Frenchmen hoisted a French flag over the fort at Agadir, Morocco, threatening grave international complications.

It was announced that France had proclaimed a protectorate, and that a French cruiser was en route for Agadir.

The French Government immediately disavowed the action.

The French Government, as it is not represented at Agadir, instructed the French Consul at Mogador to ask the Moroccan authorities to take measures to remove the flag and end the incident

According to the latest advices the Frenchmen were defying the local Calif of Agadir, who, on his own responsibility had ordered the French colors lowered, but it is expected the French men will yield when they learn that their Government has disavowed their act.

APPEALED TO GERMANS.

The Calif appealed to the commander of a German warship in the harbor but he refused to interfere.

The French flag was planted on an ancient bastion dominating the town and which the over-zealous French patriots had occupied in the absence of the garrison. They fired a salute and sent word to the Germans to leave Agadir which they declared had become a French possession.

The modern accounts to despatches received here created excitement in Southern Morocco, but the German Foreign Office is satisfied with the counter-measures adopted by the French Government.

Agadir is the seaport on the Atlantic coast of Morocco where the German gunboat Panther landed men to the surprise of France which was engaged in putting down a revolt of the natives. Germany represented that German interests were threatened and for that reason the Government sent warships to the Moroccan coast.

France considered the action of Germany as unwarranted and inconsistent with the French status in Morocco.

Since the arrival of the Panther at Agadir, Germany and France have been negotiating with a view to definitely determining the respective rights of the two countries in Morocco. The negotiations have not been concluded.

NOW BRITAIN AND FRANCE

That Stand for the Peace of the World—These Two Countries with Japan, Said to be United in Common Cause.

London, Oct. 6. THAT Britain and France are united is taken for granted by Germany, and it is an open secret that Japan is also a member of the alliance. One of the results of the trouble over Morocco, regardless of how it may be settled, will be the rehabilitation of the French navy. Not so many years ago France was second only to Great Britain in naval power, now she is in fifth place in effective strength, and is barely leading Italy for that position. She has been passed by Germany, the United States and Japan. Austria, too, has developed the naval spirit, and to-day France finds herself impotent to maintain her claims for supremacy in the Mediterranean. The return to practical power of M. Del Carse, the most energetic aggressive and far-seeing statesman in France to-day, has effected a change in the disposition towards the navy.

MAY BE WORTH MILLIONS

Dominion Government Has Demonstrated the Priceless Value—Artificial Drying Has Proven Failure. One Thousand Tons are now Ready for Disposal at $8.50 Per Ton—Canada Fast Reaching the Standard of Development in European Industry.

FOR most of the readers of The Times it will be satisfactory to learn that peat fuel is likely soon to become a substantial asset to the people of Ontario in general and those residing adjacent to the Trent Canal in particular. Many will remember the efforts of the late Mr. A. L. Davis, of this city, to establish a peat fuel factory near Kirkfield some few years ago. The drying of the peat was, however, not a success and the effort ended in failure. Subsequently Mr. Ernest D. Moore, M.E., of this city, continued the work, and succeeded in producing fuel, but hardly at a price that would pay, although he is rapidly overcoming the difficulties of drying the wet bog. But what perhaps is of greater interest is the fact that the Mines Department of the Dominion Government will ship peat to Ottawa at $3.50 per ton, which has been manu-

ITALIANS HOLDING TRIPOLI, THE ARAB CHIEFS YIELDING

NEW GOVERNMENT SET UP UNDER ADMIRAL BOREDOLINO—MILITARY OCCUPANCY.

Natives Beg for No More Bombardment—Six Soldiers and Six Jews Killed During the Bombardment—A Few Wounded.

Tripoli, Oct. 6.—The Italians have established a new government for Tripoli. Rear Admiral Boredolino has been appointed governor. Captain Calgni was made commandant of the forces disembarked by the Italian fleet.

After Italian seamen had been landed and occupied Fort Sultania, the chiefs of the Arab tribes adjacent to Tripoli went aboard the Italian flag ship and gave their submission. They begged the Italians not to resume the bombardment.

The German Consul as the senior member of the Consular Corps also visited the flagship and asked Vice-Admiral Faravilla to assume responsibility for the preservation of public order and the protection of foreign residents in Tripoli, which had been abandoned by the Turkish troops.

The admiral landed other detachments of sailors with guns, including quick-firing pieces and occupied Tripoli in a military sense. This was accomplished without incident and the appointment of a governor followed.

The German Consul informed Vice-Admiral Faravilla that during the shelling of the town no harm had been done to any European or damage to the property of Europeans.

Berlin, Oct. 6.—A correspondent of the Wolff Bureau telegraphing from Derbibat on the Tunisian frontier under yesterday's date, says:

Six soldiers and six Jews were killed and five soldiers and one Jew wounded during the bombardment of Tripoli.

The Europeans, of whom there are still 4,000 in Tripoli, were unharmed. The house of the interpreter of the German Consulate was badly damaged, but the shells from the Italian fleet did comparatively slight damage in the city.

The Moslems remained passive during the bombardment.

ARABIAN FORT IN FIGHT.

Massowa, Eritrea, Africa, Oct. 6.—The fort of Hodeidah, a seaport of Arabia, fired many shots at the Italian mining cruiser Aretusa, which was cruising in the Red Sea to protect Italian commerce. The shots were without effect. The Aretusa replied with her guns.

TURKISH GUNBOAT SUNK.

Rome, Oct. 6. Provoked because she had been fired upon by the Turkish fort at Hodeidah the Italian mining cruiser Aretusa attacked a Turkish gunboat and sank her.

Turkey having taken the offensive in the Red Sea, where Italy had intended to remain on the defensive, the Aretusa and the despatch boat Staffetta and [illegible] Vol[illegible] all of which are armed, and the smaller war craft available have been ordered to chase the few old gunboats that Turkey has in the Red Sea and to attack the ports of Yemen if necessary.

Civil Service Employees Who Are Active Politicians

MANY SUCH IN THE CITY

Considerable Uneasiness is Felt by Those Who are in the Employ of the Government Who Have Taken Part in Late Elections.

YOUNG and old, rich and poor, will have to bow to the inevitable when the time comes. Men who have enjoyed the fruits of office, drawing good fat salaries, some of them, will have to "walk the plank" in due course. But in this connection The Times would venture the opinion that none but offensive political partizans will be thus dealt with. It would be monstrous to take any other course. Considerable talk is being indulged in just now, not only in Peterborough, but throughout the country over the patronage question. We are sure that neither Col. Hughes, M.P., J. H. Burnham, M.P., or Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., will be a party to the removal of any public servants appointed by the late government, unless it can be established that they have shewn a disregard of the law, both written and unwritten in regard to being active political partizans. This is right, and The Times has no

DEFEAT OF THE LIBERAL PARTY DUE TO THE CHURCH

In 1904 the Laurier Government, through the dictation of the Roman Catholic Hierarchy, imposed Confessional schools on the new Western Provinces. It was in that year, says the Orange Sentinel, that the Laurier candidates received the support of the Church, and the Church secured separate schools in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Ever since there has been accumulating evidence of the subservience to the ecclesiastics. It is found in the presence of a notorious Toronto contractor who stood guard at the door of the public offices in Ottawa to see that none but Romanists were appointed in the Federal service. Proof is given from the mouth of the Secretary of State, who appealed for re-election by declaring the number of French-Canadians he had provided for in the printing bureau. Why the priests in their Cassocks were almost as numerous in the corridors of the Parliament and in the gallery as were the members themselves. Protestant ministers were put out of their seats in the gallery which priests were shown into. All this, and a good deal more, became fixed in the minds of the people of Ontario, and they cherished it in their hearts till the day of voting.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier had succeeded so well in his efforts to make Liberal Protestants believe that he was not controlled by his Church that he did not realize there was a limit beyond which they would not follow him. That limit was passed when he permitted his ministers to parade in the Eucharistic procession in their official robes, and refused to rebuke Chief Justice Girouard for offering the homage of Canada to the Papal delegate. Those incidents convinced them that Rome had too much influence at Ottawa. Therefore Protestants who are Liberals in politics were largely responsible for the turn over. They have in this election demonstrated that when they unite for the defence of Protestant interests the boasted political power of the Papacy is a broken reed upon which to lean.

WILL DECLARE A CIVIC HOLIDAY

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 5.—The official programme of the reception to H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught as arranged by the State Department will be announced to-day.

The Duke is expected in Quebec in the early morning of the 13th. He will land at the King's wharf at 11 o'clock and there will be a procession to the Legislative Buildings where at noon the oath will be administered to him by Sir Louis Davies, senior Pesuine Judge of Canada. After this there will be a luncheon by the Dominion Government at the Chateau Frontenac.

A CIVIC HOLIDAY AT OTTAWA.

A civic holiday being arranged for the occasion. The reception by the Dominion Government will be tendered at the Board Street Depot, while the civic address will be presented on Parliament Hill. The Duke will then proceed to his residence at Government House.

SOUND SLEEP.

Can Easily be Secured.

"Up to 2 years ago," a woman writes, "I was in the habit of using both tea and coffee regularly.

"I found that my health was beginning to fail, strange nervous attacks would come suddenly upon me, making me tremble so excessively that I could not do my work while they lasted, my sleep left me and I passed long nights in restless discomfort. I was filled with a nervous dread as to the future.

"A friend suggested that possibly tea and coffee were to blame, and I decided to give them up, and in casting about for a hot table beverage, which I felt was an absolute necessity, I was led by good fortune to try Postum.

"For more than a year I have used it three times a day and expect, so much good has it done me, to continue its use during the rest of my life.

"Soon after beginning the use of Postum, I found, to my surprise, that, instead of tossing on a sleepless bed through the long, dreary night, I dropped into a sound, dreamless sleep the moment my head touched the pillow.

"Then I suddenly realized that all my nervousness had left me, and my appetite, which had fallen off before, had all at once been restored so that I ate my food with a keen relish.

"All the nervous dread has gone. I walk a mile and a half each way to my work every day and enjoy it. I find an interest in everything that goes on about me that makes life a pleasure. All this I owe to leaving off tea and coffee and the use of Postum, for I have taken no medicine." Name given by Canadian Postum Co. Windsor, Ontario.

"There's a reason," and it is explained in the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension.

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

NO BONUS STOCK shall be issued for any purpose whatsoever, and even the Directors, who are very heavy stockholders in the Company, have paid the SAME PRICE for their shares as the general public. NOT ONE SHARE has been or will be issued to any person at a price less than $115.00 per share.

The following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments:

Table Showing Total Purchase Price of Shares at the Price of $115.00 per Share.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE:

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the peoperty, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

APPLICATION FOR CAPITAL TOCK

I ..... hereby apply for ..... shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars ($100) each of the Capital Stock of the Canada National Fire Insurance Company at the price of One Hundred and Fifteen Dollars ($115) per share, being at a premium of fifteen (15) per cent.; and I covenant and agree with the said Company to pay for the said shares as follows: Twenty-five dollars per share on application, which shall include the premium of fifteen dollars per share, and the balance in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of nine dollars per share; the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of said shares.

I further agree to accept said shares when they are allotted to me, and I do hereby request that my name be duly registered on the books of the Company as the holder of such shares.

Applications for stock will be filed in the order received, and on approval of same by the Board of Directors a Stock Certificate will be issued and mailed forthwith.

The holder of these shares will be paid the dividends that may be declared on the same from time to time by the Board of Directors. Dividends shall be declared and apportioned in proportion to the amount paid into the Company on the par value of the shares.

Calls on shares may be paid prior to due dates, and when all of such calls have been paid a fully-paid certificate will be issued to the holder of these shares.

These shares are transferable only on the books of the Company by the owner in person or by attorney on surrender of the Certificate of Stock properly endorsed. Transfers shall not be valid unless approved by the Board of Directors.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

A Little Economy.

A Northern lady with philanthropic symptoms was trying to instil a little economy into her husband's colored tenants. One of them, Mary Kinney, an anti-race-suicidist, kept a colored girl as nurse to her group of ten growing American citizens. "Mary," remarked the lady, "do you think a woman in your circumstances can afford a nurse?" "I dunno 'm, as I kin, but I don't pay her but twenty-five cents a month, an' I pays dat in ole close, and" — with a wide smile — "she don't git dem!"

Nothing Like Politeness.

It is much easier to be polite and neighbourly than to fly into a passion when things do not suit you. Take this note as an instance, addressed by a lady to a neighbour next door—"Dear Madam—Your children, who are numerous, and appear to be disorderly, no doubt deserve the frequent floggings you give them; but, as my nerves are weak, I write this to ask if you can't do something to deaden the sound!"

Some people... have such admirable command over their feelings that one is tempted to believe they have no feelings to command.

Nothing is more garrulous than an old woman, except a Company Promoter's wife after her first drawing-room.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

A Prayer Containing 256 Letters Inscribed and Four Figures.

Prayers have been written and engraved on many very small objects, but only one person ever has been patient and painstaking enough to inscribe a complete prayer on a grain of wheat. One day Sir Moses Montefiore, the great Jewish financier of England, received a small tin box in the mail. On the cover of the box was written, "A prayer for Moses Montefiore, by Bauch Mordecai, son of Zebi Hirsch Scheinemann, of Jerusalem." The box contained a single grain of wheat, on which was inscribed, in characters so small that they could only be read with the aid of a powerful microscope, the 256 Hebrew letters of the prayer, and the date of the year (Hebrew reckoning), 5645. Sir Moses kept the prayer in his desk until he died, and it is now preserved with religious care by one of his friends.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

Home for Christmas

The Steamship Lines are expecting a large home-going exodus for the holiday season this year, and are making extensive preparations to take care of all of those who are planning to visit the Old Country.

The White Star-Dominion Line has arranged for three special Christmas sailings, viz. the "Canada" December 2nd, "Megantic" December 9th, and "Teutonic" December 14th, from Portland, Me., and Halifax, N. S., to take care of these passengers. These steamers will arrive in ample time to enable passengers to reach their homes before Christmas whether in England or on the Continent.

The railways have recognized the growing popularity of these annual Christmas excursions and now run special trains from Montreal and the west to connect with the steamers, and the most complete arrangements are made by both the steamship companies and the rail lines to further the comfort of the homeward bound ones during the holiday season.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

New Ideas Means Success.

Have you, as a business man, ever put yourself for a moment in the place of your possible customer and looked at business from his point of view? He can purchase his goods from any one of a hundred or more houses and he has to decide which will have his money.

Think how you yourself would be guided in such a case. In a hundred firms of any one class, you will probably find ninety-nine doing business in precisely the same way; seeking it in the same way by advertising in the same way, selling in the same way, and distributing in the same way. The hundredth seems to follow on the old traditional lines and strikes out in an original way. People can't remember the ninety-nine and can't forget the one. So the one gets the lion's share of the business.

POOR MEN'S LIVES.

(By H. W. Darden.)

"He was very kind to me once the old judge," said the guard. "He jumped into my van one afternoon just as the train was moving out. He says to me, 'Dull weather, guard.' Dull times all round, sir,' I says. My little girl was lying dead in the house at the time, and I was rather fed up with one thing and another.

"I don't know how it come about, but it finished up with my telling him all about it. Believe it or not"—in the sweep of his eye the guard included me—"that man spoke to me as kind as if he had known me all my life. I had never seen him but once before, and then he was in his wig and gown in court.

"One thing I remember. 'Ah!' he says, when I told him about my little girl—she was only four—'You've got others,' he says. 'I had only one, and she's gone.' When I see the news in the paper this morning I says to my wife, 'Mother,' I says, 'a friend of ours is dead.'" The guard raised his chin and showed a black tie. "That's why I'm wearing a bit of black," he explained.

"It was his losing his own girl, Bill, that made him understanding how you was feeling," said the driver "I had a lad of my own once——" The driver stopped short.

"There isn't any doubt about it," went on the guard, after a thoughtful glance at the last speaker; "children do kind o' soften a man; do him good all round, in a manner of speaking."

"They're like a good many other things," said the driver, "they're all right when they are all right. Take George, my fireman; he's 'ad five. The eldest boy is doing well—talks of coming home for a holiday in the Army—reckons he'll be Sergeant before the year's out. The eldest girl's at the dressmaking. None of 'em have ever given him any particular trouble that I know of. But it ain't always like that. Look at poor old Mark Bone, the night watchman."

"Ay, that's a case—you're right," interjected the guard. "Has he heard anything about his daughter?"

"I don't suppose he have," the driver replied, "though I haven't mentioned it lately. The last time I asked him he says to me, 'George, don't speak about it. We don't even speak about it at home. We can't he says."

"What's his boy doing now?" spoke the tapper for the first time.

"The one as lost his leg on the line?" (The tapper nodded gravely.) "Last time I see him he was helping old Ogilvy on his coal round. He was a bright lad, that. Mark's a changed man."

"Ay, he's been through it, Mark has," said the tapper. He turned his glance once more to the floor. "It's mostly always the same," he went on. "The man as has children has trouble with 'em, and the man without 'em makes trouble because he ain't got 'em."

"I caught his eye. "Any yourself, Tapper?" I asked.

"Not me," he replied; and turned away. Childhood evidently had no particular appeal for the tapper.

The train was already in the long tunnel beyond Meltham. The full thurn of milk rattled and banged, and the damp underground air rushed in unpleasantly through the perforated sides of the van. Then, with a long shriek, the engine emerged and slowed down as it neared the village. The guard pulled a handful of waybills from his pocket and began to check the labels on the great cans. The driver, who lives in the village, was preparing to get down. The tapper turned to me, and dropped his voice.

"I don't know as I might not have been married," he said gruffly.

"There was a young woman. . . . We'd sort of made up our minds, really."

"But you changed them again, Tapper?" I said.

"Well, not exactly that," he replied.

He pulled himself upright from the wall of the van, and drew his shoulders together uneasily. Then, with his face hard set and looking stolidly before him, he added, in a voice that was made to seem casual: "The young woman, I was speaking about she's." He sighed at the end, and, as he slowed down into the junction, took up his greasy leather bag. "Perhaps, after all, I am better as I am," he said.

IN THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD.

SOME WONDERS IN NATURE

Being Driven Out of Paradise Has Been Man's Salvation.

I look out of my window and see the tide in its endless quest, racing up and racing down the river; every day, every night, the year through, for a thousand, for a million years it goes on, and no one is the wiser, yet the tides have played their part in the history of the globe.

But Nature's cradle keeps rocking after her child has left it. Only the land benefits from the rain, and yet it rains upon the sea as upon the land. The trees ripen their fruits and their nuts whether there is any creature to feed upon them, or any room to plant them or not. Nature's purpose (more anthropomorphism) embraces them all, she covers the full circle, she does not need to discriminate and husband her resources as we do.

The animals are so wise in their own way, such a success, without thought, yet so provocative of thought in us! They are rational without reason, and wise without understanding. They communicate without language and subsist without forethought. They weave and spin and drill and bore without tools, they traverse zones without guide or compass, they are cunning without instruction, and prudent without precept. Animal behavior is much more like the behavior of natural forces than is that of man: the animal goes along with Nature, borne along by her currents, while the mind of man crosses and confronts Nature, thwarts her, uses her, or turns her back upon herself. During the vast eons while the earth was peopled by the low orders alone, Nature went her way. But when this new animal, man, appeared, in due time Nature began to go his way, to own him as master. Her steam and her currents did his work, her lightning carried his messages, her forces became his servants.

Man's Mastery Over Nature.

Man's mastery over Nature has made him the victim of scores of diseases not known to the animals below him. The artificial conditions with which he has surrounded himself, his material comforts, his extra-natural aids and shields, have opened the way to the invasion of his kingdom by hosts of bacterial enemies from whose mischievous activities the lower orders are exempt. He has closed his door against wind and cold, and thereby opened it to a ruthless and invisible horde. Nature endows him with reason, and then challenges it at every turn. She puts a weapon into his hand that she has given to no other animal, and then confronts him with foes such as no other animal knows. He pays for his privileges. He has entered the lists as a free lance, and he must and does take his chances. For the privilege of fire, he pays in the hazard of fire; for the privilege of steam, he pays in the risk of steam; for knowing how to overcome and use gravity, he pays in many a deadly surrender to gravity. He shakes out his sail to the wind at the risk of the wind's power and fury. So always does the new gift bring new danger and new responsibilities.

Man is endowed and blessed above all other creatures, and above all other creatures is he exposed to defeat and death. But the problem is not as broad as it is long. The price paid does not always, or commonly, eat up all the profit. There has been a steady gain. Nature exacts her fee, but the service is more than worth it. Otherwise man would not be here. Unless man had been driven out of Paradise what would he have come to? The lower orders are still in the Garden of Eden: they know not good from evil: but, man's evolution has brought him out of the state of innocence and dependence, and he is supreme in the world.

The Uses of old Rope.

Old rope, like old tin cans and other things generally considered as waste, has its special market and uses, and in every seaport the collecting and classifying of old rope is an important business. Rope covered with heavy applications of tar or graphite is even more valuable to-day for making oakum than lightly tarred material, while hemp rope with the original heavy coating of tar worn off by weathering is often used for bag paper. A small percentage of untarred hemp rope, used in its prime for hoisting and other such purposes, is being converted into cigarette paper in Europe. Scraps and waste from old tarred rope, and also old oakum removed from the seams of ships, are now used for making boards.

The Correct Time.

Professor Turner had been spending a vacation in Egypt to supervise the erection of a telescope at Helouan. Captain Lyons, who was in charge of the instrument, said that he had found that at noon every day a gun fired, and was anxious to know how the system worked. Accordingly, he interviewed the gunner and asked how he knew when to give the signal.

"Oh, I look at my watch," said the official.

"And how do you correct your watch?" asked the captain.

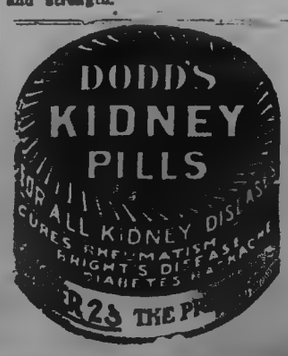
"I take it to the maker in Cairo and he tells me the error."

Forthwith Captain Lyons interviewed the watchmaker and asked him how he checked the error of the watch.

"I get the correct time from the gun," said that simple craftsman. And thus time was told in Egypt.

Importance of Bird Preservation

Dr. David Starr Jordan, President of the Audubon Society of California, has said: "I believe that the preservation of the bird is one of the most important matters of public interest claiming our attention, far outweighing in real import most of the questions upon which we spend our time and strength."



The Morning Times.

MAY RUN IN VICTORIA.

It is rumored in political circles that Hon. Frank Cochrane, who is supposed to be the coming Minister of Public Works in the new Borden government, will be offered Col. Sam Hughes' riding, the latter being given a high government position. Victoria and Haliburton would be sorry to lose Col. Hughes, as their representative, but this would be offset in a great measure by having a cabinet minister in his stead.

THE GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

Among the persons who have recently made provision for old age when it comes, are two sisters aged respectively 33 and 34 years. They have purchased from the Canadian Government a Last Survivor Annuity that is an Annuity which will give them together an income of $600 a year so long as they both live, and to be continued to the survivor so long as she lives. The cost of this Annuity, $3,643.65, had been invested at 5 per cent. and had brought in less than $185.00 annually, with the difficulty and annoyance of reinvestment. The Annuity becomes payable when the younger sister attains the age of 55, and should both die before that time the purchase money will be refunded to their heirs with 3 per cent. compound interest. Each is now earning her own living, and the sum paid is the fruit of their labors for a number of years. They were thus able the better to appreciate their splendid opportunity. A card of enquiry, addressed to the Superintendent of Canadian Government Annuities, Ottawa, will secure for you any information you desire on the subject.

Making Observations for Mapping Out Canadian Rockies.

In a letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, the well-known mountain climber and topographer, who is at present in the Canadian Rockies making observations for the purpose of mapping out the district, he says:

"We have a great amount of splendid material for publication and a collection of photographs that cannot be surpassed. We have just completed what is very nearly a 100 mile circuit around Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The peaks and valleys, lakes and waterfalls on all sides of it, and the glaciers are very fine. The region is immense, and there is work for years to come, exploring, mapping and depicting. There is a fine bunch of high peaks and large snowfields and glaciers southwest of Tete Jaune Cache. There are also great peaks on the Athabaska and Fraser headwaters, tributary to your line. The most showy part of Mt. Robson is the Robson Pass and Glacier, and Berg Lake."

In addition to the above Mr. Wheeler reports that his party have collected over 600 specimens of animal and bird life, and a good botanical collection as well. This expedition which was organized by the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been a most successful one, and when its results are published will be of great value. The facts now known bear out the general impression that the territory contiguous to the mountain division of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will surpass in scenic beauty that which can be seen on any other of the North American transcontinental lines

Indeterminate Sentence.

There is much good in the indeterminate sentence plan, which, it has been suggested at different times, might well be incorporated in the Canadian judicial system. A man serves a month in jail for assault, he gets out, is arrested for another assault, and goes back to prison for nine months. What reason is there to believe that when he is again free he will have learned the lesson of law and order?

Why Long Hair.

As an example of graciousness and tact, Matthew White tells of a London clergyman who was called on to address an audience of actors. Alluding to the better social status of the players the clergyman said that in former days it was sometimes customary to brand them as vagabonds and bore a hole in their ears with an awl, that the citizens might thus be forewarned. "And who knows," the clergyman added, "but that it is a survival of an endeavor to hide this mark of indignity that causes some of the actors even to-day to wear their hair long?"

Outstripping Australia

How completely Canada has outstripped Australia is revealed by the census totals of the commonwealth now announced. The population of the island continent is $4,449,495, an increase of just 750,000 in the last ten years. The Canadian figures for the same period will, it is expected, show a growth of at least two and a half millions, with a total population in the neighborhood of eight millions."

May Develop Into An Important Industry.

The ever increasing demand and the diminishing supply of sturgeon caviar led fishermen of eastern Siberia to experiment with salmon roe, which has not only been considered useless for human consumption but had even been looked upon as injurious to health.

Up to 1907 the fishermen in the neighborhood of Nicolaevsk considered salmon roe as valueless, but from that time it was demonstrated that caviar could be made so as to prove commercially profitable and of such a quality that although it cannot compare with the taste of the sturgeon caviar it is nevertheless a great delicacy.

Vast quantities of salmon roe are annually destroyed in Alaska, as they have discovered no means of preserving it, and should a taste be created for caviar of this kind it would develop into a very important industry. The limited supply of sturgeon caviar and the consequent high price places it beyond the reach of many who enjoy such delicacies, whereas salmon caviar could take its place and be practically within the reach of all.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists, but soon found out what they wanted was my money. I commenced to look upon all doctors as little better than rogues. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, and I took treatment from them at home and in a few days were so much relieved that I knew they were all right. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $18 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $21 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

Men Who will Walk Plank

doubt that the Borden government will stand pat on that principle. However, to do so will not be easy. The Conservative victory in the recent general election will be followed by great pressure in all parts of the country, and particularly in Peterborough upon Conservative members to provide government employment for party stalwarts. To the extent that such pressure can be met by the use of legitimate openings of new positions or of ordinary occurrences of vacancies the Conservative party owes preference to its own members. But we are confident that the era is past in Canada for any disturbance of civil service conditions anywhere in consequence of change in the ruling party save in cases in which persons in public employ are shown to have taken an active part in politics. Even fifteen years ago the incoming Laurier government acted with tolerable fairness in this matter, and the victory of Whitney in Ontario in 1904 was followed by absolute impartiality towards the Ontario Civil Service. The incoming government of the Dominion is not at all likely to show any retrograde idea in the matter. Mr Borden's promise to this country of clean and honorable government will assuredly be kept, and the promise necessarily includes protection of the Civil Service against partisan attack.

An efficient Civil Service is necessary to good government. An efficient Civil Service is impossible if tenure of office is a matter of party spoil. A civil servant who has shown himself an active partisan should be dismissed. He richly deserves it. When a man enters the public service he becomes a servant and trustee of all the people, and should drop party work. But no other civil servant should be affected. Not merely should his position be safe, but, even though appointed by an opposing party, he ought to have just as good a chance of promotion on merit as any civil servant known to be of the same color of politics as the party in power. The Civil Service is a national business institution, which should be conducted on business principles.

While this is true, there is the fact that it is against public policy to retain men in positions of trust and responsibility who have taken an active part in politics. The sooner such men go the better, and it is only in such cases that Conservative office-hunters can look for reward.

Huge Peat Supply

factured at its demonstrating plant at Alfred, Ont. About 1,000 tons of this fuel are to be disposed of by the department at this figure.

For many years much interest has been displayed and a large amount of capital invested in the development of the peat bogs of Canada, since the provinces of Ontario, Quebec and Manitoba possess no coal deposits and no known lignite deposits of economic value.

While peat has been manufactured in those European countries similarly situated regarding coal deposits as Canada, little was known in this country of those processes which proved after long and costly experimentation successful and economical and which proved the basis of the successful peat industry of Sweden, Russia and Germany. On this account many of those who interested themselves in peat in some of the Canadian provinces depended upon processes of their own or of those who claimed to be in a position as regards the adequate technical knowledge for the manufacture of peat fuel.

Artificial Drying a Failure.

All the processes tried in the past depended upon some method of artificially drying and bequitting peat which processes long ago proved unsuccessful and uncommercial in the European countries above mentioned.

Dominion Government Investigated.

To stimulate activity and renew the confidence of those who lost money in the peat industry of this country the Dominion government undertook to investigate the state of the peat industry on the continent and the processes employed. After the completion of the report setting forth the results of this investigation Dr. Haanel Director of Mines recommended that a peat bog be purchased by the government and an experimental peat plant be erected after the pattern of the one which proved the most successful in these European countries dependent to a large extent on peat as a fuel and where the climatic conditions were very similar to those of Canada.

Object of Plant to Demonstrate.

The object of this plant, which was recommended and finally installed, was just to demonstrate the best method to employ for the manufacture of peat.

Second, to demonstrate to all those interested that the air drying process is at present the only possible one.

Third that peat could be manufactured during a period of about 100 days per year.

Fourth that a fuel of good heating value and sufficiently strong to stand transportation without breakage could be manufactured.

Fifth that a market for such a fuel could readily be created.

In addition to the above, the department undertook to demonstrate that peat could be successfully and efficiently used for the generation of power in the peat gas producer and gas engine. For this purpose a Kortings peat gas producer and gas engine were installed at the fuel testing plant situated on Division and Dolly Varden streets, Ottawa, and experiments carried on there which were open to all those interested in this question.

Since much misapprehension exists as to the purpose for which the peat plant was inaugurated it may be stated that the department had no intention whatever of demonstrating how peat could be made on a commercial scale, but simply the process which suould be employed.

The present method of making peat depending, as it does, on hand digging will only be feasible, as was many times stated in the government reports on the subject, when worked by a group of farmers who cannot obtain a cheaper fuel owing to long haul, etc.

Replace Hand Excavation by Mechanical.

In order to manufacture peat on a commercial scale hand excavation or digging will have to be replaced by mechanical excavators and the labor costs in general reduced as much as possible.

Under the conditions at present prevailing at the government peat bog peat cannot be manufactured including all expenses for less than two dollars per ton stacked on the field, but when mechanical excavators are employed and the output is reasonably large say 710,000 tons per season, the above figure will be very materially reduced, allowing the peat to be sold at a moderate figure, and still allowing good profit for those manufacturing and handling the peat.

France Wants Second Place

to suggest a scheme for the increasing of the French navy, has just concluded its report, which will be submitted to the chamber of deputies at its reassembling. The reporter of this commission, M. Nail, deputy for L'Orient, declares that France must regain the naval position which she has lost. It is necessary, he says, not only for the protection of her commerce, but also for the maintenance of the peace of the world. In the actual state of affairs in Europe France is compelled to pay two insurance premiums against war—she must keep up a well-organized army, and also a powerful fleet. The commission urges the construction of sixteen new battleships, twenty torpedo craft and fifty submarines of various tonnages. The cost of this new fleet will work out at between $300,000,000 and $400,000,000. No suggestion of recent times has created so much enthusiasm, and that the scheme will be adopted, if not enlarged upon, seems assured.

Even Newsboys Want It.

Even the newsboys along the boulevards are clamoring for sixteen superdreadnoubhts and second place for France in the naval strength of the world. This would give France a fleet in 1920 that will be more than a match for the biggest practicable combination of sea fighters of Germany, Austria-Hungary and Italy; between Gibraltar and Alexandria.

Britain and France.

The aggressive policy of Germany has forced an Alliance between Britain and France, with Japan as a third powerful factor. It is evident that whatever happens to disturb the peace of the world, these three nations will exercise their great influence and power for peace.

HUDSON'S BAY AND WESTERN PROSPECTS.

Ancient Corporation's Big Increase in Profits.

Some very interesting information regarding western Canadian conditions was given by Lord Strathcona when presiding over the annual meeting of the Hudson's Bay company, held in London recently. After reviewing the excellent reports which had been in the hands of the shareholders for some time, his lordship referred to the conditions which obtain at the present time. He quoted from a cablegram received from the stores commissioner, Mr. Burbidge, at Winnipeg, which stated that the volume of sales for the first five months of the current year had increased $500,000. This is at the rate of $100,000 per month. The cable messages read by his lordship were as follows: —

From Land Commissioner

"From personal observation, which corresponds with reports from the company's surveyor and other authoritative sources, the larger acreage in crop, seeded under ideal conditions, was followed by exceptionally favorable growing weather, and with present season the crop promises to be very considerably larger than any previous harvest yield in western Canada. This will no doubt stimulate the demand for agricultural lands from prospective occupants, and have an invigorating effect on growing cities and towns in the several districts."

From Fur Trade Commissioner.

"Compared with last year the fur catch has declined in British Columbia, Manitoba and Keewatin. An increase has occurred in Saswatchewan, Lake Superior, Lake Huron, St. Lawrence. There is no change worthy of mention in Athabasca. No advice to hand from James Bay, Labrador, Mackensie river ,but it is very probable volume has declined owing to unfavorable winter and scarcity of periodical furs. Adequate supplies have been forwarded districts. Transport service is well organised for efficiency and economy. The prospects are encouraging."

From the Stores Commissioner.

"The volume of sale shop trade for first five months of current year shows increase of over five hundred thousand dollars. Prospects during remainder of sale shop year are excellent, the outlook for a record crop being very favorable."

CALAGARY STREET RAILWAY HAS GOOD HALF-YEAR.

The net profits from the operation of the Calgary street railway system for the first six months of the present year were almost three times as great as for the corresponding half year in 1910.

The comparative statements of the receipts, expenses and profits of the system prepared and submitted to the city commissioners by Superintendent McCauley shows a wonderful growth of the city and increasing patronage of the system.

After deducting five per cent of the gross receipts and paying a percentage of the interest and sinking fund, the net profits for the six months of the year amounted to $49,705.81. For the half year in 1910 the profits amounted to $17,061.

The total revenue for the first half of 1911 amounted to $149,437.57. After deducting the total operated expenses of $75,966.80, five per cent of the gross receipts amounting to $7,471.98 and $16,295.28 for interest and sinking fund, a net profit of $49,705.51 was left.

Spanish 5 and 10 Cent Stores

Spanish newspapers are commenting on the new system of merchandising just introduced into Spain through the opening in Madrid of two bazaars along lines corresponding to the American 5 and 10 cent store. The Madrid bazaars have been started with a stock of toys, cheap jewellery, notions, perfumery, underwear, collars and cuffs, neckties, caps, chinaware, fans, handkerchiefs, belts, brushes, purses, small hardware and other articles priced to sell at 65 centimes, an equivalent of about 12 cents American money.

The American 5 and 10 cent store idea has not been developed in Spain to any extent ,although the two bazaars recently established approach the system, at least in the range of articles carried, more closely than anything heretofore attempted.

Bazaars carrying articles offered within a certain price range have been operated in the larger Spanish cities for some time — Malaga has had such a store for over twenty years, prices varying from two to nine cents — but the limited variety of goods obtained and sold at these prices did not strongly attract the public.

Had a Prejudice.

Captain Hardress Lloyd, the English polo player, was talking about international marriages. "Really, you know," he said, "it isn't true that all the titled husbands of American girls are scoundrels. I sometimes think that you Americans, especially those of you who hail from Chicago, are too hard on our poor marquises and earls. A Chicagoian, I understand, was being shown through a New York picture gallery by his nephew. He paused before a striking portrait. 'That, Uncle Cochon,' the nephew explained, 'is a portrait of Napoleon Bonaparte—the man the Duke of Wellington got the best of.' The uncle frowned and said angrily, 'Durn them foreign noblemen — how much did he lend him?'"

"The Distance Lends."

Henry Pasquet lost his wife a few years ago and soon afterward he appeared with a wide mourning band on his sleeve. Time went on and he finally began to woo the sister of his departed wife, with the result that he married her some five months after the first wife's death. Some time after that some one who was not familiar with recent happenings met Henry and asked him who had died in his family.

"Oh," said Henry, thoughtfully, "my sweeter-in-law, she die."

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

"I think he is beginning to have a profound respect for the company," Barreau told me that night, as we sat over our fire. "They have set him thinking. It seems that none of his men could get so much as a glimpse of a moccasin track. Still, their saddle horses and pack mules were systematically shot down, until they were afoot again. After that they were not molested. He knows that his whole party could as easily have been put out of the way. That seems to have put the fear of God into the lot of them. They can't understand the object. I don't, myself, altogether. But I could hazard a close guess, I think."

Steadily the cold grew, and the sun rode lower on its diurnal passage. Save the pine, and spruce, and scattered cedars, the great woods shivered in their nakedness, lacking the winter robe that the North dons at such season. And presently that came, also, with the deep-throated whoop of a northeast gale to herald its coming. In one night the Sicannie froze from bank to bank. At daybreak the wind drove curling streamers of loose snow across its glassy surface, to pile in frosty windrows at the foot of the south slope.

During this period we of the post settled into a routine of minor tasks. There were fires to keep, against the cold. Barreau and I gravitated between our cabin and the store.

Montell sulked for a week after that last failure to reach southward. Then he emerged from his shell of silence, and became ponderously genial, talkative—a metamorphosis which Barreau regarded with frank contempt. He spoke to Montell no oftener than was necessary, and when he did speak his tongue was barbed. For the most part Montell took his sneering unmoved or grinned pacifically, but there were times when his red face went purple and his puffy eyelids would droop till the pupils glinted through mere slits, like a cat about to pounce. Then it would be Barreau's turn to smile, in his slow, ironic way.

Of the girl, who kept close to the cabin she and her father shared, no word ever passed between the two. Nor did she meet Barreau or myself face to face for a matter of three weeks. In what way Montell accounted for our presence I did not know, nor how he explained Barreau's assured position about the post. It may be that she did not notice this incongruity on the part of a supposed fugitive; it may be that Montell was a plausible liar. At any rate, upon the few occasions when we three came near enough to recognise each other, she appeared calmly indifferent. Barreau and I ate in the big cook house with the rest of the men. Montell and his daughter had their meals served in the cabin. So we — at least I will speak for myself, for Barreau maintained a stony front and absolute silence on the subject — were saved the embarrassment of meeting three times daily.

Montell himself became very friendly toward me. Bit by bit, he drew from me the story of my wanderings, and shook his head over it, assuring me that Missouri River steru-wheel men were a hard lot. Once he became reminiscent and spoke of his dead wife and her people with a poorly concealed pride in the alliance. It seemed odd that a man of his rugged type, a hard-headed business buccaneer, should have that fatuous overestimation of wealth and so-called "blood." But he had it to the 'nth' degree. I dare say it was his one weak spot. She was a Charbonne, of the old New Orleans Charbonnes, originally a Huguenot family, but for the last generation or two of St. Louis he told me; and, in the telling, he shed his natural carelessness of speech, and spoke in the stilted, exactly phrased English in which he might have addressed the aristocratic parent of his bride. I knew more or less of the St. Louis Charbonnes myself, and I wondered that I had never heard of Montell or his daughter. Barreau smiled when I spoke of this later.

"That's Montell all over," he drawled. "Marrying a Charbonne stands out as one of the big things he has accomplished. He was a big, perfectly formed, good-looking brute when he met her; and from all I know it was a case of two strong natures brushing aside all obstacles. I've heard that the Charbonnes were furious over what they considered the rankest sort of mésalliance — but they were married, and so far as I know she never discovered his very obvious clay feet. She died in childbirth — the second child. The family has kept up a desultory intercourse with him, for the girl's sake. They recognize her as their own blood, and tolerate him on that account."

A day or two after this, Barreau rigged up a dog team and left the post, bound for a point down the river, where they had established two Frenchmen with some trading goods, on the chance of getting into touch with a few lodges that hunted in that territory. He took one man, and I tramped a few miles with them, for the sake of the snowshoe practice, of which I was sadly in need. It looked easy to go stalking over the drifts on those webbed ovals, but it was trying work for a novice, as I discovered at first attempt. There was a certain swinging stride which I had yet to master. So it happened that I did not return to the post until that chill hour between sundown and dark.

The day's work was at an end. Besides myself, not a soul moved within the frosty area of the stockade. The doors of every building were shut tight against the sharp-toothed cold. This I noted almost mechanically. I was beginning to develop the woodsman's faculty of observing detail without conscious purpose. With my mind busy about the prospect of getting a fire started in the shortest possible space of time, my gaze for a moment rested on the Montell cabin, as I stopped at my own door. At that moment Jessie Montell stepped outside, a shawl thrown over her head, carrying in one hand some object covered with a white cloth.

The dogs must have been lying at the end of the cabin. The slam of the door had barely sounded when she was confronted by one wolflike brute. He faced her boldly, his nose pointed inquisitively toward the thing she carried. She made a threatening gesture and spoke sharp to him, whereat the husky retreated a foot or two — and was instantly reenforced by half a dozen of his fellows. The girl lifted her hand a little higher and berated them, her clear voice reproaching them for their lack of manners. And then, of a sudden, one cock-eared brute sprang at the thing she carried. He missed, and one of the others had a try. She gave ground, holding above her head what I now saw was a plate; and immediately the snarling pack was snapping at her skirts, and she was cut off from the door. I could hear the click of their white fangs as I ran. She backed against the wall, scolding them in a voice that betrayed some alarm.

I reached her on the double-quick, when I saw that the dogs meant mischief. The short-tempered devils turned on me in a body with the first blow I struck. One after the other I knocked galley-west and crooked with the barrel of my rifle, and emerged victorious from the mêlée, with my leggings ripped in divers places and the left sleeve of my "parka" slit as if with a knife. From this last the blood streamed forth merrily, flowing down over my mitten and dripping redly on the trampled snow.

"Why, they've bitten you!" the girl exclaimed, with a sharp intake of her breath. "Let me see!"

"Come in and let me tie that up," she commanded peremptorily, and flung open the door, giving me little chance to debate whether I would or no. And I followed her in, as much through a sudden desire to see a little more of this very capable and impulsive young lady as to have the sharp sting of the wound allayed.

She brought water in a basin, a sponge, and a piece of clean linen, which she speedily reduced to strips; and, after helping me remove the "parka", proceeded to dress the gash in my forearm with deft tenderness. During this ministering to my need, we were both silent. When it was done, she tilted her head on one side and surveyed her handiwork, for all the world like a small bird perched on a limb and looking down.

"I'm really and truly sorry I got you into such a scrape," she apologized sweetly. "I suppose I should have thrown the meat to those ferocious things. But dear me, I'd toiled so over it, getting it thawed and fixed for papa's supper, that I hated to see it literally go to the dogs. You mustn't let the cold get into that cut. You'll have a nasty sore if you do."

"Oh, I'll see that the cold doesn't have a chance at it," I assured her. "And you don't need to feel guilty on my account. I'd rather it was my arm than yours. I'm only too glad to pay a little interest on my debt."

She looked puzzled for a second.

"Oh," she said, then, "you mean that time on the Moon. There's no debt. Those ruffians would have paid little heed to me, Mr. Barreau——"

She colored and broke off abruptly, with an impatient gesture.

"Papa has been telling me about you," she changed the subject. "Another St. Louis unfortunate"—smilingly—"aren't you? As the Scotch say, ...feel 'verra weel acquentit.' Your ... and my Aunt Lois were more ...less intimate. So that I know you ... proxy, in a way."

I don't recollect just what reply I made. If she were trying to put me at my ease, she made a woeful mess of it the very next minute, for she demanded to know, with embarrassing directness:

"Why in the world didn't you stand your ground at Benton? Whatever possessed you to cross the line?"

"Well, you see—I—it was——" and there I halted lamely. I couldn't discuss the ethics of my flight with this self-sufficient young woman. I couldn't explain the psychology of the thing to her when I couldn't quite grasp it myself. I couldn't honestly admit that I had refused to stay and face the consequences of Tupper's sudden end at my hands because I was overwhelmed with fear. I didn't believe that myself. Even if I had believed it, I should have been ashamed to admit frankly to that gray-eyed girl that I had run away because I was afraid. With Barreau it had been different. He seemed to understand, to divine how and why I did such and such a thing at such a time and place, with but a meagre explanation from me. Certain effects invariably led him intuitively to first causes.

Moreover, with her I seemed to be put upon the defensive. I found my...

LOOK OUT FOR YOUR THROAT.

Necessity of Rigid Precaution Emphasized.

Necessity of rigid precaution and the skilled care of a specialist in all cases of serious illness and especially in the case of communicable diseases is emphasized in the following clipping from the publication of the Board of Health, the "Sanitary Bulletin," for May:

"Every member of a certain family had a sore throat four weeks ago, which was diagnosed as follicular tonsilitis or quinzy. Two of the girls served as maids in other families, in each of which one of the children took diphtheria and died. Cultures were then taken of members of the first family with sore throats and each showed diphtheria. As they were able to be around, and apparently getting better of their local trouble, constitutional treatment was neglected. They persisted in refusing to believe that they had diphtheria, until baby could no longer stand the strain—and died! Three deaths from 'quinsy sore throats,' and all this happened in Buffalo."

HOMELY WISDOM.

Pull together, said Abraham Lincoln, or Upset the Boat.

A recent biographer of Abraham Lincoln has some interesting things to say of "Honest Old Abe's" views on the dependence of the different classes on society on one another. "The farmer and the manufacturer" the president once said, with his characteristic shrewdness, "are both in the same boat and I reckon they've got to learn to navigate the craft together or they'll upset." "He compared the case of a Pennsylvania farmer", continues the historian in question, "and a Pennsylvania iron implement maker whose properties adjoined. Under a protective policy the farmer supplied the ironmaker with bread, meat, vegetables, fruit, fodder for horses, etc., and the ironmaker supplied the farmer with all the iron, iron implements, etc., which he needed. Assuming that a change is made and the Protective policy abandoned, the farmer then discovers that he can buy his iron implements cheaper from Europe than from his neighbor, assuming that he sells a sufficient quantity of flour in Europe to enable him to effect the purchase of the iron. He ultimately discovers that the cost of carriage to the coast, transportation by sea to England, insurance and cartage on arrival, does not enable him to receive such a good reward for his labor as he formerly did when selling his flour to his neighbor, the ironmaker. He, therefore, determines to sell his flour as before to, his neighbor. But meantime the farmer discovers that while he has been purchasing his iron implements from Europe his neighbor, the ironmaker, has been compelled to stop his works and dismiss his employees, not having sufficient work for them. The farmer, therefore, now finds that he has more wheat than he knows what to do with; also, that he is no longer able to sell his fruit, vegetables fodder meat, horses, etc., to his neighbor, the ironmaker, as he has gone out of business."

DANGEROUS TO USE "ESQUIRE."

How One Writer Was Cured in Germany.

The recovery of a letter which had been sent to a little town in Germany and never delivered to the person addressed, cured the writer of the custom of adding "Esquire" to a name on the superscription of mail matter. The letter in question would probably have been promptly delivered had the address read simply, "Mr. John Brown." But the sender had addressed it, "John Brown, Esquire," and the communication rested comfortably in the "E" compartment of the post restante department, waiting to be called for by "Mr. Esquire." One of the popular guide books warns against the use of "Esq.," saying that it might be mistaken for a

IN THE SCIENTIFIC WORLD.

MIGRATION OF BIRDS

One of the Great Marvels of Nature

One of the greatest marvels in connection with the changing seasons is found in the migration of birds which spend the winter season in South America and the nesting season in the Arctic circle. Different species of birds follow different routes of travel. The golden plover, which nests along the Arctic coast of North America, begins its trip southward by a short run to the Labrador coast. There it fattens for several weeks on abundant native fruits and then flies across the Gulf of St. Lawrence to Nova Scotia. From this point the plover usually takes a straight course of 2,400 miles, without pause or rest, along the east side of the Atlantic ocean to South America. If tempests arise the birds may take temporary shelter on the New England coast, or may rest for a few days in the Bermudas, or at the lesser Antilles, 600 miles from the mainland of South America. These are, however, merely emergency stopovers to be resorted to only in the case of storms. The plover, after wintering in Argentine finds its way back to the Arctic by an entirely different route. On its return journey it travels across the northwest of South America and the Gulf of Mexico to the coast of Louisiana. Thence it moves up the Mississippi Valley and by early June is again in the nesting place on the Arctic coast. Most of the other feathered migrants in their journeys north and south take a land route all the way save across the comparatively narrow Gulf of Mexico. Thousands of birds perish from the storms during the journey, while others kill themselves by dashing against lighthouses. A red light or a rapidly flashing one will repel the birds, but a steady white light, piercing storm and fog, proves irresistible. From whatever direction birds approach such a light they turn to windward, and then, flying against the wind, seek the object of their infatuation. The larger part do not strike with sufficient force to injure themselves, but, like great moths, they flutter in and out of the light's rays, and finally settle on the platform or framework to await the abatement of the storm or the coming of sufficient daylight to enable them once more to take their direction.

PROMISING REPORT ON CROPS.

Prospects Good in Canada.

The seeding and growing season for the whole of Canada has opened late this year, and the month of April has been marked by hard frosts. But May has been favorable to cultivation of the land, and the rainfall has been sufficient for healthy vegetation.

Fall wheat, which is grown chiefly in Ontario and Alberta, showed an average condition of 82 per cent. at the end of April, being 89 per cent. in Alberta and 81 per cent. in Ontario. In Ontario, however, the April frosts were destructive in some regions; and from 12 to 34 per cent. of the area sown has been reported as winter-killed. The central countries north of Lake Ontario, suffered worst, the average loss as reported being 34 per cent. In the Western counties 2? per cent. of the area in crop has been destroyed. In the Southern counties north of lake Erie, the loss is 10 per cent.; in the Northern counties and districts, 13.6 per cent.; and in the Eastern counties, between the St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, 15 per cent. For the whole of Canada, the area winter-killed is reported to be 15 per cent., and the per cent. condition of the growing crop is 82.

About 12 1-2 per cent. of the clover was heaved out by the spring frosts, and the average condition of hay and clover at the end of April was 89 per cent. Alberta shows better than any other part of Canada, its average being 94 1-2 per cent. Nova Scotia comes next, with 93.75; and in Quebec, British Columbia and Saskatchewan it is 86, and in Manitoba 85 per cent.

MARKET FOR MEAT.

Argentina Finds a New Market for its Meat.

A new market for Argentine meat has been secured in northern Italy. The mayors of Rome and 58 other cities in the northern part of Italy have combined to promote the importation of frozen meat from Argentina. Negotiations in southern Italy have similar arrangements in view for that section. Efforts are being made by the Argentine authorities to have the Swiss regulations modified so as to permit the entry of meat into that country. At present every carcass imported into Switzerland must be accompanied by the tongue, heart, liver, spleen and kidneys. It is thought that a Swiss inspector may be stationed at Buenos Ayres to pass upon carcasses intended for his country and so relieve the trade of this prohibitive order.

ONTARIO FRUIT OUTLOOK.

Ontario's orchards were not in bloom on the 8th May, when correspondents made their return to the Department of Agriculture. The season is said to be later than usual. Fruit buds, however, promise to be plentiful, and after the lean orchard yield of 1910 a liberal yield is expected. War upon scale, codling moth, and other pests is being conducted with more vigor than ever, and several correspondents point to the improved appearance of fruit trees as the result of work done in the last year or two in the way of spraying, pruning, and the better general culture of orchards. A few reports of damage to trees from mice come from some of the St. Lawrence and Ottawa countries.

NEW WAY OF CATCHING RATS

Catching rats with oyster shells is the unique method employed by some pearlers round about Broome, West Australia. They leave a large oyster on the floor of the cabin at night. It opens for a breath of fresh air, and the smell of fresh meat attracts the rats. When the rodent thinks he'll try a little supper, the oyster suddenly decides that he doesn't like fresh air. Next morning the shell is prised open, and the dead rat thrown overboard.

Disillusioned

"Do you know anything about flirting."

"No," he replied. "I thought I did, but when I tried it the girl married me."

That absence makes the heart grow fonder but presents have been known to have the same effect.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. WRITE US for full information.

Jordan & Davis Company
NORFOLK, Va.

given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

A Splendid Display.

In connection with the Grand Trunk Exhibit at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, further advices dated September 12th have been received from London regarding the awards that were given to the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is gratifying to know that these companies have received four "Grand Prix" for their splendid display, instead of two that were announced in the cable received on Sept. 1st.

These awards have been made under the following:—"Arts and Crafts"; "Engineering, Lighting, and Transportation"; and "Building Trades"; also "Advertising." This is considered by the Companies named as a great honor, as other railways exhibiting at the Exhibition have only received one award.

The official report from the Grand Trunk representative at this Exhibition, for week ending September 9th, shows that the number of persons visiting the Grand Trunk Pavilion was 21,186, bringing the attendances up to September 9th to 279,942 people.

Buy it now. Now is the time to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over. This remedy has no superior. For sale by all dealers.

Real Estate, Mining and Industrial Investments

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 20 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

$30 cash, or $6 down and $6 a month for four months, buys 100 shares.

$60 cash, or $12 down and $12 a month for four months, buys 200 shares.

$120 cash, or $24 down and $24 a month for four months, buys 400 shares.

$480 cash, or $96 down and $96 a month for four months, buys 1600 shares.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking a opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the Junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

IMPORTANT DISCOVERY

It is reported that Mr. T. L. Wilson of Carbide Falls has discovered a means of obtaining nitrogen from the air and thereby producing a fertilizer of great value. Heretofore the production of nitrogen of this character has only been possible through the use of legumes, such as alfalfa, clover, vetch, field peas and locust trees. It is said that Mr. Wilson has spent 15 years in experimenting and has expended thousands of dollars in the effort to secure nitrogen from the air. The report states that he is now arranging to dispose of his valuable carbide interests in order that he may devote his entire time to the development of the new idea.

Gun Removes Stumps

The latest use to which a gun has been put is clearing land of stumps and trees. It is the invention of F. de Briere von Krukow, a Danish gun manufacturer now in Canada. His gun contains a dynamite chambere, with a striking pin and the inside has a deep screw cut in it. A hole is bored in the stump and the barrel of the gun screwed in. A string is pulled and the gun is discharged, tearing the tree up by the roots The Colonisation Department has a number in use and reports favorably on them.

A Perfect Invention

Dr. Arthur William White, of Yale, delights in telling his experience with an inventor of the unlettered-genius type who came to the professor with a model of a perpetual-motion machine.

"H'm; looks plausible," observed Dr. White, "but it wont' work. What are you going to do about gravity?"

"Gravity!" said the visitor scornfully. "Tell wit' gravity; we'll us plenty o' grease."

HUMIDITY IN THE CANAL ZONE

Owing to the excessive humidity on the Canal Zone, good housekeepers burn an incandescent lamp inside their pianos at all times to prevent the wires from rusting.

TO STOP HAT LIFTING.

To put a stop to hat-lifting as a form of salutation a league has been formed at Zurich which seeks to introduce the military form of salute. The league states that the uncovering of heads is the cause of many colds affecting mainly the older men. In Germany, Austria, and German Switzerland it is the custom for a man to hold his hat in his hand until the lady asks him to "cover" himself. A nod is generally sufficient, but some wait for a formal request.

At the Court of St. James'.

But it is not everybody who realizes that the Palace of Westminster—the correct name for the Parliamentary Houses—contains a second throne. This is placed in the King's robing room and is used by the King when he is putting on his legal garb before entering the House of Peers to read the "Speech from the Throne."

As a matter of fact, the official throne of these realms is the one at James' Palace, that very ordinary looking building at the foot of St. James' street. All ambassadors are accredited to this court, and, in the eyes of foreign governments, it stands for the majesty of Britain. Its throne is a very handsome one, and stands under a magnificent and most ornate canopy.

Though the throne at Windsor is but little used, it is unique in one respect. It is really an Eastern throne, after the style of the one we read of in the records of King Solomon, for it is composed entirely of ivory, and was the gift of one of the Princes of India.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 80,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

Failed to Cure Rheumatism.

Miss Flora Chapman Vividly Describes Her Sufferings and Ultimate Cure with "Nerviline."

"After being an enthusiastic user of Nerviline for years, I feel it my duty to tell you personally what your wonderful preparation has done for me.

"I suffered torture from rheumatism and heart trouble, tried scores of so-called remedies, consulted for weeks and months with Toronto's most eminent physicians, but derived only slight benefit.

"A friend insisted on my using Nerviline, and to my surprise a vigorous rubbing of this powerful liniment eased the pains and reduced the stiffness in my joints. I continued to use Nerviline and was permanently cured. I am now perfectly well, and for three years have had no rheumatism at all. I know CURED many families where no 3 other medicine but NerYEARS. viline is kept—it is so useful in minor ailments like earache, toothache, neuralgia, coughs, colds, lumbago and sciatica. I call Nerviline my "Life Guard," and urge all to try its merit."

Work on the addition to the Post Office has been at a standstill for some time. It is said that there is a hitch in regard to the wiring of the building. It is too bad that this delay should be necessary, as the present mailing room is badly congested.

Willing to Take Hall.

Mr. James Rogue, the local contractor, claims a balance due him of $26,000 from the town of Campbellford. This claim was disputed, and after much dickering Mr. Rogue agreed to accept $13,500 in full settlement. It is very doubtful if the town will pay even this amount, for the matter is being put to a vote of the freehold ratepayers to decide whether they will settle in this way, or defend an action at law which may be instituted.

Distribution of Bulbs.

The bulbs have arrived for distribution for all paid-up members of the Horticultural Society, and will be distributed early next week. A tag will be attached to each premium, with culture instructions.

Real Estate Case.

A real estate case of considerable interest came before the Division Court yesterday, by which Messrs. J. T. O'Connell & Co., real estate men, obtained judgment for $100, being commission on a sale of a farm belonging to Mr. Wm. Shearer, of Otonabee. It appears that Mr. Shearer had placed his farm for sale in the hands of Mr. O'Connell and the latter secured a purchaser in the person of Mr. Percy Donaldson, of Smith, whom they drove out to inspect the farm and introduced to Mr. Shearer. Afterwards Mr. Blewett, another real estate man, intervened to close the sale. The court held that J. T. O'Connell & Co. had brought the two together and judgment was delivered in favor of the plaintiff.

Mrs. Jackson Honored.

At a meeting of the Ladies' Aid of St. James' church, held on Thursday afternoon, Mrs. L. Jackson, vice-president, was remembered by the members in a very pleasant way. In behalf of the aid, Mrs. A Wilson presented her with an amethyst brooch, and Mrs. W. Robinson read an address. The address was signed on behalf of the society by Mrs. A. Wilson president, Mrs. J. Palmer, secretary, and Mrs. T. Brown, treasurer. Mrs. Jackson was quite taken by surprise and responded suitably, after which refreshments were served and a social half-hour spent. Mrs. Jackson is leaving to join her husband in Auburn, N.Y.

Nose Broken on Train.

A theatrical company which played in Millbrook last night, passed through Peterborough yesterday morning on its way from Belleville. One of the lady members of the troupe met with a painful accident, just as the train was getting ready to pull out of Belleville. On the yard engine backing coaches on to the train, the jar caused the unfortunate young lady to lose her balance, and in falling she sustained a broken nose. Although the young lady went through with the company, she was unable to appear on the stage, her face being badly disfigured and much swollen.

Poultry Association.

The Peterborough Poultry Association met in regular session on Thursday evening, there being a good attendance. After some routine business was disposed of the president stated that he had received from the Department at Guelph a number of bulletins giving valuable information in regard to poultry the erection of proper houses, etc., and these were distributed to the members. The association is in a flourishing condition new members continually coming in. Preparations are already being made for the annual exhibition in January and at last night's meeting plans were made for an energetic ticket-selling campaign. Inquiries and entries are already coming in from outside points and a record breaking poultry show may be looked forward to. The next regular meeting will be wyandottes and Brahams night, the birds being scored on points, and as there is a keen competitions among the members the owners of the prize-winning birds will have every reason to feel proud.

Fired the Fellow Out.

Kingston Whig: "A young man and woman have been about the city selling Shakespearean pictures, which they represent as worth 72 dollars a dozen. One merchant and a lady resident are known to have been taken in by making purchases at $15. The pictures are said to be very cheap ones. The two strangers played the same game in other towns. It is said that they have gone to Peterborough. The Times had a call from the fellow, who offered a dozen pictures for $15. He said that a local business man had purchased 25 for $125. The Times took the precaution to try and verify the fellow's statement by calling up the party whose name he gave. He was told that there was no truth in the story This great family journal then got mad and fired the flim-flamer out. If you felt the town shake a trifle about noon on Thursday last, this was the cause.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Miriam Campbell.

Yesterday morning the death occurred at 228 Park street, of Mrs. Miriam Campbell, an old and respected resident of Peterborough, aged 74 years. The deceased was born in New York, and after living in Colbourne for a number of years, removed to Peterborough about six years ago, where she resided ever since. She was of a kind and affectionate disposition, and was greatly esteemed and beloved by all who knew her. She was a widow and left no family, and is survived by one brother, Mr. William Carr, of Los Angeles, and one sister, Mrs. Bailey, of 228 Park street. Senator Cox is a cousin of the deceased.

The remains will leave by the 8.30 train (G.T.R.) this morning for Colborne, where interment will take place.

Capt. Edward Blewett.

Lindsay Post: The death occurred last night at the Ross Memorial Hospital of Capt. Edward Blewett, after an illness of three days. The deceased was born in Smith township, Peterborough County, and was 57 years of age. He has been a resident of the town for 13 years. 34 years ago he married Miss Mary Mann, also of Smith township, and before taking up residence in Lindsay resided in Bobcaygeon, where he filled the position of lockmaster and village constable.

He leaves to mourn his loss his beloved wife and seven children, who are as follows: Mrs. William Miller, Chicago; Mrs. Percy Menzies, Detroit; Misses Minnie and Flora, Toronto; Coleman, Ernie and Allen, of town.

LIKELY TO BE BACK IN HOUSE

Toronto, Oct. 6.—"I think I shall re-enter public life and go back to the house," said the Hon. Geo. P. Graham, to-day. "But remember, I am not saying positively that I shall, for as a matter of fact, I have not fully made up my mind.

"The friends have been very kind, and apparently want me to go back. I have been offered three seats in the West, two in Ontario and several in Quebec. On the other hand, I have received some flattering offers to go into business and leave politics alone. So far I have accepted none of these, and I hardly expect to take any of them. As I say, the situation is simply that I have not yet fully made up my mind, but I rather expect I shall decide to re-enter the fight.

IN THE PRESS GALLERY.

"Of course, if I had been elected in my own constituency, I should never have thought of retiring, because we happen to be in opposition now, but having been beaten it makes a difference.

"Perhaps I will compromise by spending the first short session in the Press Gallery. Don't be very much surprised if you find me there among the boys."

Mr. Graham is here attending the Ecumenical Conference.

"It is a pleasure to tell you that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is the best cough medicine I have ever used," writes Mrs. Hugh Campbell, of Lavonia, Ga. "I have used it with all my children and the results have been highly satisfactory." For sale by all dealers.

A Dangerous Disease

Owing to its tendency to spread to all parts of the system, Catarrh should be checked in its incipient stages.

Catarrh commences generally with a slight cold, and because slight, it is often neglected. But the seed that has been sown brings forth a dangerous harvest—perhaps it is the harvest of consumption, which is the harvest of death.

Better spend a few moments each day inhaling Catarrhozone, an aromatic, antiseptic remedy that is breathed in through the mouth, and, after permeating all the respiratory organs, is slowly exhaled through the nostrils.

The immediate effect of Catarrhozone is magical—so prompt and efficient. Relief is instantaneous, throat and nose cleared in a few moments by the penetrating vapor from the Inhaler. Ferrozone, taken in conjunction with Catarrhozone, purifies the blood, cleanses it of all poisons, and builds up the system so that Catarrh cannot exist.

You are sure to receive lasting benefit from Catarrhozone if bothered by Catarrh in any part of the system. It is highly recommended for Bronchitis, Asthma, and Lung Trouble, and used for Coughs and Colds in the head it has no equal.

Remember that Catarrhozone is both a local and constitutional treatment, and is warranted under all circumstances to give satisfaction. Money refunded if it fails.

Two months' treatment, consisting of a beautiful polished hard rubber Inhaler and large bottle of liquid for recharging, costs but $1; trial size, 25c. Sold by all druggists and The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

CHANGE OF TRAIN SERVICE.

Commencing on October 2nd the Lakefield train service will be changed, as follows: The train which has been leaving here at 8.30 a.m. will now leave at 7.00 a.m., and returning will arrive Peterboro' 8.15 a.m. The noon train for Lakefield will leave at 12.30, and returning will arrive Peterboro' 5.15 p.m. The evening train is discontinued. The public will be glad to learn that the new service inaugurated this summer to Port Hope will be maintained throughout the winter and will thus enable all passengers to leave Toronto at 9.00 a.m. and arrive Peterboro at mid-day. This train also affords good connection for all eastern points to Montreal and Boston.

IMPOSSIBLE TO ENFORCE LAW

Many Ways Taken by Blacklisters and Others to Procure Liquor

PURCHASED IN BOTTLES

License Inspector Stewart Says That Men Do Not as a Rule Become Bodily Intoxicated at Hotels—Blacklisters Frequently Get Others to Purchase Liquor in Lots of From One Bottle to a Case at a Time.

EVERY man whose name is on the prohibited list at the various hotel bars is not kept sober as a result. If he is a confirmed toper he usually finds a way to secure liquor. But the effort required serves a good purpose, and often keeps a man sober. We have known men, once their names are posted on the prohibited list, to become sober and industrious, and ambitious to get along in the world.

Barmen Not to Blame.

Inspector Stewart dropped into The Times office the other day and requested us to say, in reply to a letter that appeared a few days ago in this journal, that frequently bartenders were wrongfully blamed for selling liquor to drunken men. While it is true that many cases of intoxication are picked up on the streets by the police, these men do not get their liquor in the barrooms. Or do they purchase it from the wholesaler. It is usually procured through another party, unknown to the wholesaler, who is provided with money for the purpose by the consumer. Mr. Stewart told of three men who recently had in their possession several bottles of whiskey, and who hired a boat and went down the river to have their spree in peace and quietness, without the danger of arrest. A drunken man on the street does not prove that hotel men violate the law. They do not covet the patronage of men who get "full," for a drunken man around is a poor advertisement for the hotel.

Against the Law.

It is against the law to sell liquor to a drunken man, as well as to a man whose name is on the prohibited list. Not only does the bartender make himself liable to a heavy fine for so doing, but his license may be cancelled. Mr. Stewart has seen cases where barmen have been roundly abused by men who have been refused liquor. People, therefore, should not be too severe on the men who have no easy task to perform in deciding when his customer has had enough.

CARD OF THANKS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I wish through the columns of your paper to thank the electors of East Peterboro' for the splendid support they gave me in our fight against Reciprocal trade with the United States.

Our campaign having been conducted wholly upon this issue, the people by their efforts and votes have again returned me as their representative at Ottawa and have fully justified my course in the last Parliament in opposing the pact and helping to force the Government to appeal to the people.

I shall in the future as in the past do my utmost to promote the best interests of East Peterboro as well as in my capacity as member of the Dominion House, the interests of all Canada.

I remain your obedient servant.

MOVING PICTURE CENSORSHIP.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—A writer in a Toronto paper on Saturday last, undertook to defend the moving pictures which appeal to American patriotic sentiment by representing the American flag as the emblem of unselfish devotion.

Now, Sir, this is a British country, and the British flag is the one that should be impressed on the minds of the people, especially the young Children cannot help receiving strong impressions of historical events from pictures. The more life-like the pictures the more vivid will be the impressions. Not only is the American soldier portrayed as the hero in battle, but he is found fighting the British, to the latter's disadvantage. The revolutionary war is being portrayed by these pictures in a way that is not only offensive to Canadians, but positively harmful to the best interests of the people.

I hope that something will be done to have these moving picture films stopped at the border.

ANNUAL REPORT COUNTY JAIL

The statistics of the Peterborough County gaol have been filed by Sheriff Hall and are considered very satisfactory by the official in charge. With the growth and advancement of this city along industrial and commercial lines, and the attendant influx of people from other lands, the good moral aspect of Peterborough has not deteriorated, and the showing on the whole is very good.

The total number of prisoners received at the gaol during the year was 232, of which ten were females. This is nine less than there were last year. The year closes on September 30th. During the year 29 were sent to the Central Prison, and one to the Mercer Reformatory. Ten were sent to the Penitentiary. The 'thirty days' and 'sixty days' and 'six months' terms were popular. Of the former there were 30, of the next 14, and of the latter, 26.

One hundred and ninety-one were maintained by the county, the balance by the Government.

The work of the prisoners consisted of cleaning the buildings, improving the grounds, etc.

PRISONERS' NATIONALITY.

The records show the following representation of nationalities:

Canadian	183
English	22
Irish	10
Scotch	4
United States	5
Other countries	8

PRISONERS' RELIGION.

The prisoners professed the following religions:

Roman Catholic	66
Church of England	49
Presbyterian	36
Methodist	49
Other denominations	42

THE EXPENDITURE.

Food	$491.41
Salaries	1400.00

The daily cost per prisoner was 8 cents.

WEDDING BELLS

Clarke—Sherwood.

THE Manse of St Andrew's church was the scene of a quiet but pretty wedding on Thursday night, when Miss Mabel Sherwood was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Frank R. Clarke, the well known jeweller, corner of George and Brock streets. Rev. James Rollins, pastor of St. Andrew's church, performed the marriage ceremony. The bride and the groom were unattended.

Their many friends will wish Mr. and Mrs. Clarke a long, useful and happy life. The Times joins in extending its hearty congratulations.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke have taken a suite of rooms in the Meldrum apartment building on Water street, where they will reside.

Jones—Hudson.

The residence of Mrs. James Trauller, Chamberlain street, sister of the bride, was the scene of a pretty home wedding yesterday afternoon, when Miss Henrietta May Hudson, fifth daughter of Mrs. Amelia Hudson was united in marriage to Mr. Nehemiah Jones, son of Mr. Daniel Jones, of Manvers. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Riddiford, of Park street church, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones left on the 4.28 train for Toronto and other points, and on their return will reside on Alfred street, Peterborough.

Liphardt—Waller.

A quiet but pretty house wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mr. Thos. Waller, 635 Water street, on the 3rd inst., when Mr. Oscar Liphardt and Miss Violet Waller were united in marriage by Rev. J. R. Webb, pastor of Murray street Baptist Church. The bridal couple left on the 4.28 train for Toronto and points west, after which Mr. and Mrs. Liphardt will reside in Waterloo Ont.

Their many Peterborough friends join in wishing them a long and happy life.

Y.M.C.A. NOTES.

Under the supervision of Mr. J. J Thompson, physical director of the Y.M.C.A., the gymnasium classes are in full swing, with a large attendance. Last evening the junior leaders, met for the floor exercise, supper, Bible Study and a lesson in anatomy. The men's gym class opens on Wednesday next, at 8 o'clock p.m. and it is expected that there will be a large attendance as this was a very popular class last year.

CITY ATHLETIC CHAMPIONSHIPS

Unless the weather takes a turn for the better the contest for the city athletic championship will be postponed indefinitely, owing to the fact that the Central Y.M.C.A. team is expected on October 14, should the weather be favorable, four trophies will be fought for, namely, the "Howden" trophy for seniors, the "Eastwood" cup for boys under 18, the "Huyoke" cup for boys under 16 and the "Peck" trophy, for boys under 14 years of age. These contests have awakened great interest in the city, and a large number of entries have been received for every event. The events will include:

100 Yard dash, running high jumps and broad jumps, hurdle race, shot put, and for the seniors, a half mile walk. These contests conducted under the auspices of the physical department of the Y.M.C.A., are open to all.

If the battle for the Eastwood cup is postponed, the wheel of fortune will have turned in favor of Harold Hill, the hard-luck athlete, who strained a couple of tendons in his thigh at the P.C.I. sports on Thursday. Hill is a prominent athlete and was picked by many to win this cup. If the events are run off to-day, he will not be able to compete owing to his hip, but if they are postponed, he will have recovered before they take place.

RUGBY.

In preparation for their journey to Port Hope to-day, where they will play the T.C.S. fourteen, the local rugby players had a work out last night in the armouries. After some instruction and practice the new signals were carried out without a hitch, and it was made evident that the team is in fine working order for to-day's encounter. Fred Denison has been chosen Captain of the team and will play quarter-back. The following players will journey to Port Hope to-day: Backs—Hayes, Craig, Johnston, Hogan. Quarter—Denison. Scrimmage—Beaiss, Leahy, Stewart or Caniff. Inside wings—Turner, Ecclestone. Middle wings—Kirn, Davidson. Outside wings—Langley, Gibson.

Although some changes will likely be made before the game on Saturday, Oct. 14, with the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, yet this is a strong team and should return victorious. The men are lucky to be pitted against the T.C.S. team as any weakness in the team play will certainly be disclosed in the game.

Public Mass Meetings to Discuss the Ne Temere Decree Will be Held Throughout Canada

WIFE SPURNED ON WEDDING DAY

In Cross-Bill to Her Divorce Suit Insurance Man Blames Family

SAYS BROTHERS BEAT HIM

Says Brothers Beat Him—An American Lady Declares Husband Abused Her—Both Ask for Child—Interesting Case In St. Louis, of Parties Well-Known in Peterborough and Toronto.

THAT there is "many a slip 'twixt cup and the lip" is an old saying, but is nevertheless a true one, so far as marriage is concerned. Mr. Nathan W. Fisher is an insurance man, and some years ago lived in Peterborough, where he is well-known. He removed to Toronto on leaving this city, and it appears finally drifted to St. Louis, Mo. A few days ago he was sued for divorce, his wife, we understand, being a Toronto lady. Fisher filed a cross bill Tuesday in Judge Homer's court to the divorce petition entered by Mrs. Fisher. He alleges that on the night of their marriage, Sept. 14, 1907, she refused to talk to him or let him caress her while they were on their way home in a carriage, and that she told him in tears that she did not love him, and never would.

She admitted, he says, that she had married him to please her mother and sisters and to get a home. She named two other men, he alleges, and said she could love either of them.

The next day, Fisher avers, she refused to prepare meals for him and he was compelled to do the housework himself. That night, he says, she returned to her mother's home, but relatives prevailed upon her to go back to her husband.

Talked to Former Admirer.

Two months after the marriage, Fisher says, he and his wife met one of her former admirers on the street car. Mrs. Fisher and the other man talked "incessantly and endearingly," the petition sets forth, and the husband was ignored except when Mrs. Fisher referred to him as "my old man."

Fisher says his wife told the other man she was sorry he was not to call on her that night, instead of some other girl, and invited him to come to see her in the future.

After they returned home, Fisher remonstrated with his wife for her conduct and as a result, he says, she again returned to her mother's home the next day.

"Without the slightest provocation," says the petition, "the plaintiff would fly to her mother's home."

Accuses Wife's Brothers.

It required repeated letters and telephone messages, Fisher says, to induce his wife to come back to him. When he went to her mother's home in June, 1908, to arbitrate their differences, two of his wife's brothers attacked him with a bottle and a club, he alleges, and inflicted a scalp wound which required six stitches. While the fight was in progress Mrs. Fisher, he asserts, stood by and advised her brothers to "give it to him."

At the time of the marriage, Fisher says, there was an agreement that he might give his mother $15 a month. His mother-in-law later objected to this, he alleges, and when he insisted on his rights she helped break up his home, although, he says, she was very eager to have him marry her daughter.

Mrs. Fisher, in her petition, alleges that her husband publicly rebuked her for speaking to a friend, that he frequently struck her and sometimes exhibited his bad temper by throwing the pictures out of the house and otherwise disturbing the domestic peace.

The Fishers have a daughter, Pearl, years old. Both parents ask custody. The child was temporarily put in charge of her mother when a preliminary motion in the case was argued several months ago.

WANT LAWS THAT WILL ESTABLISH CIVIL MARRIAGE RIGHTS IN CANADA

Ten Thousand Petitions will be Sent Out to Ministers and Editors Throughout the Dominion---Public Mass Meetings to Discuss Question

HOW ALLIANCE WILL PROCEED.

Send immediately to ten thousand clergymen and editors in Canada a document setting out the conflict of the Ne Temere decree with Canadian civil rights.

Hold public educational meetings in every centre of Canada.

Organise a series of monster petitions from all Protestants and as many Catholics as possible demanding Government action.

Send these petitions to Premier Borden, and to the Legislature of British Columbia and Prince Edward Island which control their own marriage laws.

Toronto, Oct. 7.—With the church court of every denominational body of Protestantism pledged to resist the Ne Temere decree, a powerful movement to influence the Federal Government was inaugurated yesterday afternoon by the Evangelical Alliance of Canada at a meeting held in this city. There were present representatives of every denominational section. Anglican, Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, Congregational. Some of the delegates were: Dr. N. W. Hoyles, dean of the Osgoode Hall Law School; Rev. Dr. Carman, Cannon Plumptre, Rev. W. H. Hincks, D.D., Rev. Dr. Taylor, Rev. E. D. Silcox and others inclusive of all the leading Protestant organizations. The meeting was unanimous upon every important point of procedure. A campaign was mapped out which will be unparalleled in the religious history of Canada. To place every Protestant preacher and editor in possession of all vital facts concerning the fight against the Ne Temere. A document was presented to the conference after having first passed the examination of a number of leading counsel. Reviewing the statements there set forth item for item, all the denominational delegates agreed upon the final form in which it will be sent to the printer for distribution throughout Canada.

DO NOT ATTACK THE CHURCH.

A significant feature of the summary of reasons against the Ne Temere decree was the excision of all references that would be understood as an attack upon the Roman Catholic Church or its faith. It is intended that the document shall be of such a nature that many members of the Roman Church will subscribe to its contents and ultimately sign the petitions to Parliament. The contention is that the decree is an assault upon the civil rights of all branches of Canadian citizenship is most strongly set forth and is made the chief note of the message. There is printed side by side a formal statement of the Canadian marriage law and the amendment made by the promulgation of the Roman church. How the decree has worked out and will work out is clearly and forcefully described. Other matters of necessity to platform speakers are also contained.

With such a document in circulation, the Central Committee working from the City of Toronto, will organize a series of large public mass meetings in all portions of the Dominion embracing every province, and every city and town if possible. The pulpit of the Protestant churches will be freely utilized for the spread of the cause, which may extend over many weeks. When the educational campaign has been advanced to a point desired, petitions will be circulated from coast to coast, upon which the Protestants from every village, town, city or rural parish will have an opportunity to express their convictions. It is expected that the petition will be of such moderate tone and so accurate in its form that many Catholics will also be glad to endorse the requests. The petitions, including millions of names, will be taken to Ottawa probably by a big deputation, and formally presented to Parliament with a request for action. What will be asked of Premier Borden and his Cabinet is in effect the setting aside of the Ne Temere as an invasion of the rights of the Canadian Parliament and those of certain provinces. Petitions will also be laid before every Provincial Government in the Dominion. As British Columbia and Prince Edward Island control their own marriage laws and retain the privilege of granting divorces, separate requests will be made of them. The Government of Ontario will be asked to take steps at the earliest possible moment to have the Court of Appeal determine the extent and jurisdiction of the Province and of the Parliament of Canada on the subject of marriage laws.

ITALIAN WARSHIPS WILL LEAVE THE ADRIATIC

London, Oct. 7. War news is extremely meagre this morning. A naval engagement, of which but the details have been received, is reported having taken place in the Adriatic It is stated that in this action the Turks lost 300 men killed and two torpedo boats sunk. All Italian warships are now to be withdrawn from the Adriatic and Ionian Seas in deference to Austrian representations.

Among naval and military men it has been taken as certain that the bombardment of Tripoli forts would not have been carried out unless the preparations for landing the military force were practically complete, and a well known militazy correspondent of The London Times says:

"The morning may see the Italian Armada off the coast of North Africa. The first transports to leave Italian shores were naturally those from the most northern ports of embarkation, namely, Genoa, Leghorn and Ancona.

ITALIANS SHELLED DOWN.

Fiaume, Hungary, Oct. 7.—An Italian sailing vessel having been sunk by the Turkish guns at St. Jean de Medua, two Italian cruisers shelled the town and then proceeded to sea.

LOOKING FOR TURKISH MINES.

Rome, Oct. 7.—According to further advices from Tripoli the smaller Italian warships are engaged in searching for and removing mines that were laid by the Turks in the Tripolitan harbors, in order that the transports bearing the troops from Italy may enter in safety.

Nearly the entire body of the Tripolitan police has offered to enter the Italian service, and similar offers have been received from other local officials

NEW CABINET OFFICIALLY NAMED

STREET RAILWAY MAY BE BLOCKED

North Monaghan Council Cannot Grant Franchise

WITHOUT VOTE OF PEOPLE

Council Met on Saturday and Were Advised by Their Solicitor That They Had No Power to Grant the Franchise Without Vote of Ratepayers.

On Saturday last the Council of North Monaghan met to consider the application of the Peterborough Radial Railway Company for the franchise of the boundary road, between the city and North Monaghan, and for permission to put in a "Y" at the terminus, so as to be able to turn the cars. It will be remembered that the Township Council granted a franchise of the highway leading from the exhibition grounds to the river, and it was thought that this would serve as a precedent.

When the matter, however, came before the Council the proposal struck a good sized snag in the shape of a statement from the Council's solicitor, to the effect that the granting of a franchise was beyond the power of the Council, and that the matter would have to be submitted to a vote of the ratepayers. If this is correct, it is quite a serious matter, as the work of track laying, which is now ready to begin, may be delayed until it freezes up. At all events, the Council took no action and the matter will stand in abeyance until the Council's solicitor has further opportunity to look into it.

The Railway Extension.

The railway extension will be made from the present terminus at the C. G.E. works along Albert street to Lafayette and thence to Chamberlain street to the Monaghan Boundary Road as far as the C.P.R. tracks or Romaine street, where a "Y" will be put in for turning.

Company Ready to Build.

The Street Railway Company is ready to go on with the extension, the rails, ties and wires having been purchased.

It is likely that some way will be found of overcoming the difficulty without waiting to take a vote of the people.

CITY ATHLETIC CHAMPIONSHIP CONTESTS RUN OFF SATURDAY AFTERNOON

In the presence of quite a crowd, the city athletic championship contests were run off Saturday afternoon. The Howden trophy was carried off by S. Caniff, with 2,993 points. McMartin followed close with 2,980 points. As the score indicates the fight was a fierce one and the results was doubtful to the end.

The Eastwood Cup was won by Mann, from Bridgenorth, who had 2,006 points, Meredith Huycke was second with 1,680 points.

Ormonde Cavanah won the Huycke Cup with 1,848 points, Ken. Routley was second with 1,355 points.

The Peck Trophy, for boys under fourteen years of age, was won by German Phillips, with 534 points. P. Gray came second with 527 points.

As is indicated by the score in points, the races were close and interesting and most of them were made in remarkably good time. These contests provided for every athlete and a number of competitors appeared in each event.

Much of the success of the sports is due to the donators of the trophies, Mr. J. Howden, Mr. V. Eastwood Judge Huycke and Mr. A. E. Peck, but the splendid way in which Mr. J. J. Thompson of the local Y.M.C.A. carried out the programme of sports, no doubt had a great deal to do with the interest taken in the events. It is a notable fact that three out of the four cups were won by Y.M.C.A. athletes.

The following is a list of the events and the winners:

PERSONNEL OF MR. BORDEN'S CABINET OFFICIALLY ANNOUNCED ON SATURDAY.

NEW PORTFOLIOS CREATED

The Different Portfolios Have Not Been Given Out But Will Be Announced To-day, When the New Ministers Are Sworn In.

R. L. BORDEN.
HON. J. D. HAZEN.
F. D. MONK.
L. P. PELLETIER.
W. B. NANTEL.
GEORGE H. PERLEY.
C. J. DOHERTY.
HON. FRANK COCHRANE.
W. T. WHITE.
HON. GEORGE E. FOSTER.
W. D. MIDDLEBRO.
ANDREW BRODER.
J. E. ARMSTRONG.
DR. ROCHE.
HON. ROBERT ROGERS.
MARTIN BURRELL.

Ottawa, Oct. 7.—The personnel of Mr. Borden's Cabinet was officially announced this afternoon. The different portfolios have not yet been given out. This will be arranged on Monday, when the new ministers will be sworn in.

The new administration will be composed as follows:

Maritime Provinces—Mr. R. L. Borden and Hon. J. D. Hazen.

Quebec—F. D. Monk, Hon. L. P. Pelletier, W. B. Nantel, George H. Perley and Hon. S. J. Doherty.

Ontario—Hon. Frank Cochrane, W. T. White, Hon. George E. Foster, W. S. Middlebro, Andrew Broder and J. E. Armstrong.

The West—Hon. Robert Rogers, W. J. Roche and Martin Burrell.

It is learned from authorative sources that Mr. Borden intends enlarging the Cabinet, which hitherto has consisted of 15 portfolios. To do this he must secure an act of parliament. In the meantime he will announce on Monday the appointment of at least three ministers without portfolios, and assign them portfolios as soon as he secures the necessary statuary authority. These three will be H. A. Ames of Montreal, G. H. Perley, of Ottawa and C. A. Magrath who was defeated in Medicine Hat in the recent election.

Mr. Magrath is one of the strongest men in the west, and his promotion was inevitable. It has been suggested to Mr. Borden to appoint Mr. Magrath to a portfolio hitherto unknown, that of minister of conservation. It is believed here that if Mr. Magrath is given a portfolio there will be no difficulty in finding him a safe seat.

It is thought likely that Mr. R. B. Bennett, the member-elect for Calgary, will resign in his favor, in which case Mr. Magrath will be elected by acclamation.

CHURCH RULE ABOLISHED.

Zion City Will Be Governed by a Mayor and Council.

Chicago, Oct. 7.—According to an article which will appear in this week's issue of the Zion City Independent, Zion City has now formally repudiated the ecclesiastical rule enforced by the late John Alexander Dowie and will no longer submit to church or religious dictation. Instead it will be governed, as are other cities, by a mayor and council.

NO LINIMENT LIKE "NERVILINE"

FIFTY YEARS' USE PROVES IT THE STRONGEST, SAFEST, BEST.

1,000,000 Bottles Sold Annually.

The unexampled success of "Nerviline" is due to the fact that it is five times stronger, three times more penetrating, more pain relieving than any other liniment.

One million bottles used every year—think what this means! Surely stronger proof is not possible that Nerviline is a trusty liniment, a household remedy upon which mothers can depend in case of accident or sudden sickness. Scarcely an ache or a pain that Nerviline won't cure—among the hundreds of ailments for which it is guaranteed are the following:—

Headache	Neuralgia
Sciatica	Rheumatism
Lumbago	Chest Colds
Sore Back	Toothache
Diarrhoea	Bowel Disorders
Earache	Cramps

Doctors will tell you that nothing but the purest and most healing antiseptic drugs are used in Nerviline—that's why it is so safe for general family use, for the baby as well as the parent. If you haven't tried Nerviline, do so now—your neighbors are almost sure to know of its manifold merits and uses.

Refuse any substitute for Nerviline, sold the world over. Large size bottle 50c. or sample size 25c, all dealers, or The Catarrhozone Co., Kingston, Ont

GEORGIAN BAY CANAL SCHEME

Proposition is Discussed by Sir Robt. Perks, the British Contractor

TRADE EAST AND WEST

Result of Election Favorable to the Construction of This Great Waterway—It Will Without Doubt Take the Business Which Might Otherwise Pass Through Treat Canal.

TAKE and river navigation, by the early construction of the Georgian Bay Canal, is likely to receive an impetus in the near future. For years it was thought that the Trent Canal would afford the coveted all water route between the immense upper lakes and the seaboard, but a greater and much more serviceable route is now looming up on the horizon by the building of the proposed Georgian Bay Canal, which will follow the Ottawa River from its mouth, near Montreal, to the Georgian Bay.

The Ottawa Journal says that greater hope than ever before for the early building of the Canal was expressed in an interview by Sir Robert Perks, who is on a brief visit to Ottawa. Sir Robert is in Canada attending the Ecumenical Methodist conference at Toronto.

"The proposition of the Montreal, Ottawa and Georgian Bay Canal Company will be laid before the new government as soon as it is ready to receive it," said Sir Robert. "I believe the building of the canal in the near future is now assured. The people of Canada by their repudiation of reciprocity in the recent election have decided in favor of improving the trade east and west in this country.

"In that connection the Georgian Bay canal would be one of the important factors, a factor which cannot be overlooked. The Americans will complete the Panama Canal in 1913, and will make desperate efforts to divert Canadian trade to Canada's western ports, to the detriment of this country's eastern ports.

"When the Georgian Bay canal is built Ottawa will become a port during the months of the year when the canal is open," said Sir Robert. "In much the same way as Manchester became a port through the building of the Manchester Ship Canal. It would take but five years to build the canal from the St. Lawrence to Ottawa."

Since Sir Robert Perks was in Ottawa last, one year ago, he has not been idle. He and his partner have completed the new port works in Buenos Ayres at a cost of six million sterling, and finished the Trans-Andean Tunnel through the Andes for twelve miles, 12,000 feet above the sea level, at a cost of two million sterling. They have just taken the contract for the docks in the new harbor at Havana, Cuba.

We wish to call your attention to the fact that most infectious diseases such as whooping cough, diphtheria and scarlet fever are contracted when the child has a cold. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy will quickly cure a cold and greatly lessen the danger of contracting these diseases. This remedy is famous for its cures of colds. It contains no opium or other narcotic and may be given to a child with implicit confidence. For sale by all dealers.

A Pleasant Gathering.

A few of the most intimate friends of Mr. W. J. Hopwood, met at his home on Friday evening and extended to him their hearty congratulations on the occasion of his having passed another milestone on life's journey. It was a pleasant gathering and felicitous speeches were made by Mr. John Gowanlock, of Toronto, and others, in which the best wishes of those present were extended to Mr. and Mrs. Hopwood for many happy and prosperous years to come. The Times joins in expressing its good wishes.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorised by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date $1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be assured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

The investment of the Company's funds will be given the GREATEST OF CARE AND ATTENTION by the Board of Directors.

Only GILT-EDGE securities will be considered, such as first mortgages on improved, productive real estate, stocks, bonds and debentures of companies of high repute, as well as Dominion securities and municipal, county and school debentures of well-established districts.

As a LARGE PERCENTAGE of these securities is READILY NEGOTIABLE, the Company will have abundant LIQUID ASSETS to meet any possible contingency that might arise.

Our first mortgage investments will be confined to Western Canada, and as the rate of interest obtainable on first-class productive real estate is FULLY TWO PER CENT. greater in the West than in Eastern Canada, the Company will have a DECIDED ADVANTAGE over Companies operating exclusively in the older portions of the Dominion. A fixed policy of the Company is to loan NOT MORE THAN FIFTY PER CENT. of a conservative value of the peoperty, and to stipulate for a definite return of principal, together with interest, each year during the term of the loan. With these periodical repayments of principal, and with land values in Western Canada steadily increasing, the Company's first mortgage securities will continue to improve year by year.

With the active development in Western Canada, a great deal of capital will be required for many years to come, and the Company will, therefore, experience a very ready demand for its funds on high-grade securities and at a profitable rate of interest.

The Directors decided to issue the stock at the price of ONE HUNDRED AND FIFTEEN DOLLARS PER SHARE, being at a premium of fifteen per cent.

THE TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION ARE:

On application, $25.00 per share, which shall include the premium of $15.00 per share, and the balance, payable in ten consecutive half-yearly instalments of $9.00 per share, the first of such half-yearly instalments to become due and payable six months from date of allotment of shares.

Shares may be PAID IN FULL at time of subscription, but if purchased on the INSTALMENT PLAN the subscriber shall have the privilege of paying any or all of the instalments prior to due dates.

The Following Table Shows the Amount of First Call as Well as the Subsequent Payments:

No. of Shares.	Amount of First Call.	Half-yearly Payments.

200	23,000.00
300	34,500.00

NO BONUS STOCK shall be issued for any purpose whatsoever, and even the Directors, who are very heavy stockholders in the Company, have paid the SAME PRICE for their shares as the general public. NOT ONE SHARE has been or will be issued to any person at a price less than $115.00 per share.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of this growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

KING EDWARD VACUM CLEANER

You cannot clean carpets, rugs and furniture by beating. If you think you have, just try a KING EDWARD VACUUM CLEANER and you will find the article full of dust, which breeds disease.

The KING EDWARD HAND MACHINE has no equal as compared with other hand machines. It is lighter to operate and its suction is much stronger. Its suction is stronger than many of the power machines, and the dusting is done away with. On account of the short stroke one person can operate it on carpets and rugs equally as well as two, and it is about half the weight of other hand machines to carry up and down stairs or from one room to another. It is sold for less money than any of the hand machines. All machines are guaranteed.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Fitzhugh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

Miss Daisy Dobbin, who has been with a patient at the Jackson Sanatorium, Dansville, N. Y., for the past six months, is home for a month's vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Dobbin.

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

ANGUS CLAUDE MACDONNELL

With a father boasting the name of Angus Duncan and a mother from the De-La-Haye French family, Angus Claude Macdonnell was surely predestined by nature to be a man of mark. Born at Toronto in the merry month of June in 1861, he was educated at Toronto Model School and University, and is a barrister-at-law of Osgoode Hall and a D.C.L., K.C. He has been member of the Commons for South Toronto since 1904, and is known to the generation of young men as an athlete of some fame. His "forebears" fought for the Stuarts in Jacobite terms and doubtless wielded a good claymore.

MAJOR S. S. SHARPE

The major is a native of Scott Township, Ontario Co., where he opened his eyes on 13 March 1873, and after going through the usual preliminary lesson routine graduated from Toronto University with first class honors in 1895 and now practices law at Uxbridge.

Major Sharpe is a young man who has made a name for himself since he went into the House in 1908, to represent the constituency which was represented by his wife's grandfather, Mr. Joseph Gould. Not only has he done a great deal of work in the public accounts committee, but he has been a successful provider of ammunition for the opposition to fire at the Hon. Wm Pugsley.

He has been in the Canadian Militia

WHY MALACHI NOLAN STEPPED DOWN.

As Alderman Malachi Nolan sat and smoked and sipped, he thought again of Limerick — the breath of spring blows the fragrance of the hawthorn, white upon the bough; he hears the song of the mavis; he is walking homeward along the black path through the bog, and up the green boreen, and there before him is the little cottage, its thatch held down by sticks and stones, a long ash pole propping up its crumbling gable; there is the mud shed with the thills of the old cart sticking out of it; the donkey is standing by, sad as ever; and up the muddy lane little Annie in her bare feet is driving the cows to the byre; and then he sees his mother sitting in the low doorway, all at once he catches his first whiff of the peat smoke, and, with the strange spell that odors work upon the memory, it makes him a boy again; again he is sheltered on a rainy day in the mud shed, playing shoot-marbles with Andy Corrigan and Jerry O'Brien; again he is in the little chapel with the leaky roof; he sees all the boys and girls — Mary Cassidy among them — standing on the bare clay floor; he brings his bit of stone to kneel on during mass, he even runs out for a piece of slate to give to Mary, who lays it in the puddle at her feet and spreads her handkerchief over it before she kneels. And when the mass is over, he will take little Nora — little Nora?

He placed his hand to his forehead in confusion, and then in a gasp it all comes over him — Mary is old, Andy and Jerry are old, little Annie is old, and he is old — they are all gone away. He bowed his head.

And yet Nora yearned to go. Should he turn the ward over to Brennan and take her this spring? He could run for the legislature when he came back in the fall; a senator would be elected by the next General Assembly, and the graft would be very good then.

The compromise attracted Malachi, for at once it acquitted him of indecision, a quality of statesmanship he hated, and kept for him the life of power that had become as the very breath of his nostrils.

The long day was done, and Malachi, in shirt-sleeves and stockinged feet, sat in his big plush rocking-chair, his legs stretched out before him, taking his ease at his own hearth. When he had come home at midnight, Nora, who always sat up for him, had insisted upon brewing him a cup of tea, under the impression, common to a certain class of women, that it has great medicinal qualities. Malachi had sipped it obediently, though he had not cared for it after all the mineral waters he had drunk that day, and had enjoyed far more than the tea the freckled Irish face of his daughter, as he gravely goggled at her over the rim of the saucer into which he had poured the beverage to cool it.

"Nora, child, do ye sing now — p'hat was that? — it wint hummin' t'rough me head th' daay. Well, well, well, let me see, now — hum-m-m-m — it goes something like——"

And he hummed a quavering old tune:

"I saw the Shannon's purple flood Flow by the Irish town."

"But it's forbidden in the lease after ten o'clock," the girl protested, leafing over her music. "What if the landlord——"

"It's time enough to saay good marnin' to th' divil, Nora, whin ye meet 'im."

Nora fixed herself on the stool fingered the keys, finding a soft minor chord. The old man closed his eyes, slid farther down in his plush chair, and, just as he was prepared to listen, she suddenly stopped in the provoking way amateur musicians cultivate, to say:

"But, father, that's such an old song; wouldn't you rather I'd sing the Intermezzo from 'Cavalleria'?"

Malachi opened his eyes with a start and sat bolt upright.

"Naw," he said, "none o' thim fut'n op'res — p'hat's the use of yer goin' to th' convint all those years?" But his voice quickly softened. "Do ye go on now, Nora, darlin', there's a good gur-rl."

And so she sang, and the alderman sank in his chair, with his big arms in their shirt-sleeves thrown over his head, closed his eyes again, stretched out his stockinged feet. The smoke from his cigar ascended to the chandelier, and now and then, when he remembered the words of a line, he hummed them behind closed lips, in unison with his daughter. When the song was done Nora whirled around, clasped her hands in a schoolgirl's ecstasy, and said:

"Oh, father, that song makes me homesick — homesick for a place I never saw. You won't run again, will you, father, will you? And we'll go to Ireland in the spring, won't we? Tell me, in the spring?"

A pain struck through Malachi Nolan's heart, a pain that was made only more poignant when, with her American fear of the sentimental, Nora joked:

"I must see our ancestral cabin."

Malachi could not open his eyes. For once he was afraid. He did not move for a long time. But at last he sighed and set his jaw, and said:

"Well Nora — if ye saay so — in the spring."

And that was why Malachi Nolan stepped down.

Why "The Thunderer"

It was the mud-flinging of an earlier mode of travel than the motor-bus that gave The Times its nickname of "The Thunderer." Two ladies in Kew had been splashed by an unmannerly horseman passing them too closely, and The Times came out with a strong leader, alleging the offender to have been the Duke of Cumberland. In due course it was found that the horseman was not the duke, and in a further article by way of apology, The Times used the words "We thundered out," an expression that so tickled the public that the name of "Thunderer" was bestowed on the paper forthwith.

A Lincoln Sentiment

Lincoln was no stickler for formalities, either in dress or in manners. But he knew the etiquette of correspondence, and, as in this story from the Washington Star, knew how to teach it to others.

At a lodge in Philadelphia a group of very old men, some with empty sleeves and some with empty trouser legs, were telling stories about Lincoln.

"My wife collected autographs," said one. "She once wrote to Lincoln for a sentiment and his autograph, and she got in reply a note that ran:

"'Dear Madam. When you ask from a stranger that which is of interest only to yourself, always enclose a stamp. There's your sentiment, and here's your autograph.—A. Lincoln.'"

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

Puns in the Bible.

It has been pointed out that the pun is one of the commonest forms of humour in the East. The Old Testament writers, especially the prophets, are true Orientals in this respect, for they use this ornament of speech most effectively.

Amos, the desert prophet, the first of the writing prophets, uses puns more successfully than any of the prophets. Unfortunately in our translations the play of words is lost to us, and we fail to see the delicate shade or meaning or the mocking or scornful irony of many a phrase. A most notable pun of this prophet is that of the vision of summer fruit—"And he said Amos, what seest thou? And I said a basket of summer fruit. Then said the Lord unto me—The end is come upon my people Israel." (Amos viii. 2.)

"In this verse the translation fails to bring out the play upon the words 'summer fruit' and 'end,' consequently the point is lost to us. The Hebrew word for 'summer fruit' is kaits, and the word for 'end' kets. The parable is made far more expressive by the pun and much more liable to stick in people's memories. Just read the verse, substituting the original words. 'And he said What seest thou? And I said a basket of kaits. Then said the Lord unto me, The kets is come upon my people Israel' — and we at once see how slight and sound must have combined to arrest the attention and impress the mind of the unthinking Israelite. The beauty of this punning parable lies in the fact that 'the symbol and the word expressing it coincide.'"

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Present Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 6c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

Home for Christmas

The Steamship Lines are expecting a large home-going exodus for the holiday season this year, and are making extensive preparations to take care of all of those who are planning to visit the Old Country.

The White Star-Dominion Line has arranged for three special Christmas sailings, viz. the "Canada" December 2nd, "Megantic" December 9th, and "Teutonic" December 14th, from Portland, Me., and Halifax, N. S., to take care of these passengers. These steamers will arrive in ample time to enable passengers to reach their homes before Christmas whether in England or on the Continent.

The railways have recognized the growing popularity of these annual Christmas excursions and now run special trains from Montreal and the west to connect with the steamers, and the most complete arrangements are made by both the steamship companies and the rail lines to further the comfort of the homeward bound ones during the holiday season.

Birdcages and Disease.

Bedsteads and birdcages are among the sources of plumbism — the deadly lead poison disease — according to a report by Dr. Robert Edginton in the current "British Medical Journal". "In putting together chandeliers and gas-fittings white lead is used in the joints," he says, "and it is the custom of the workmen to test the joints by sucking the air out of the tubes, so that in this case the lead is probably conveyed directly into the stomach." The process which figures highest (with seventeen cases in a list of eighty-four instances of plumbism) is the painting of motor-car and coach bodies, safes, and stoves, whose glossy enamel-like surface exacts a heavy toll from the workers owing to the lead dust inhaled during the repeated sand-paperings involved in securing a perfectly smooth surface. House painters come next, and on the same level as regards frequency of poisoning are the girls who smooth down the paint of bedsteads and birdcages with their hands to get an enamel-like surface. Cases of lead poisoning among tinners and kettle makers are ascribed to the mixture of lead and tin used for the inside surface of kettles and saucepans.

A LESSON FOR AMERICA.

The New York Evening Post is saying some interesting things about the Dominion election and drawing some conclusions which are instructive, however, the American people may act upon the advice offered. First of all, the Post sees in the rebuff of the Canadian people a severe censure of the administrations which have been in power in the United States for the past fifty years for having neglected obvious opportunities to promote wider trade relations with Canada. "Her representatives," says the Post, "time and again approached the Washington authorities, but were steadily sent away empty-handed. No wonder that they fell back on their own resources and set about working out a national policy that would make reciprocity with the United States a matter of indifference to Canada! Too late our statesmen woke from their sleep. Secretary Root, on his visit to Ottawa during President Roosevelt's second term, found that we had no trade offers to make to Canada that she cared anything about. Finally President Taft seized what he thought a lucky chance, but, as it plainly appears, the whole effort was tardy. While our protectionists had slumbered, Canada had grown into the consciousness of a self-sufficing nation."

The Post concludes that if to know the times and seasons be a mark of statesmanship, the United States governments have shown themselves woefully barren of that quality. When they could have had reciprocity they sniffed at it; when at last they grasped at it they were too late to get it. Canada has been taught a lesson in self-reliance by the short-sighted commercial policy of the great republic. It remains to be seen whether the American statesmen will profit by the object lesson conveyed in the defeat of the reciprocity pact.

CANADA AND THE BAHAMAS.

An interesting letter from the Bahama islands, written by William F. Cancino, appeared recently in the Montreal Witness. The letter is a plea for the annexation of the islands by Canada. "My fellow planters and myself," writes Mr. Cancino, "are in mighty low water. We used to do fairly well until the Americans raised their tariff on us, and that put us practically on our backs. Union with Canada means a great thing to us planters. Many of our people have gone to the state of Florida; but if we should ever have union with Canada I am of the opinion that all of our people will return. Union with Canada as a part of our daily prayers."

If the feeling thus expressed is general in the islands, it might be well for our representatives at Ottawa to give the matter consideration, says the Hamilton Herald. These 670 islands, extending some 800 miles between Florida and Santo Domingo, embrace an area of 5450 square miles and contain a population of more than 54,000—more than double the area of Prince Edward Island and about half the population of that province. It would probably be impracticable to admit the islands into the Dominion as a province, but it might be feasible to organize them as a territory to be governed as the Yukon is governed, with representation in parliament. Probably the imperial government would be rather pleased than otherwise to have this crown colony taken off its hands. The material advantages to Canada would not be great, but it would be a matter for national pride and satisfaction to have Canadian jurisdiction extended far south into the sub-tropics. To the Bahamans the change would bring material gain, for it would give them a free market for their products.

WARNING NOT HEEDED.

The people of Johnstown lived for years in fear of the breaking of the Conemaugh dam. It did break and hundreds of lives were lost. The people of Austin lived in insecurity for years, to be overtaken by a disaster which parallels that of Johnstown save in extent of life and property loss. In both cases there was criminal neglect on the part of mill owners and the public officials. There are half a dozen other Pennsylvania communities in the mountainous lumbering regions which face precisely the fate which overtook the town of Austin. High above them are great artificial lakes—dams the property of big lumbering corporations. Every one of these dams is a menace. Perhaps the tragedy of Austin will stir public authorities into effective action.

WORLD'S SERIES START OCT. 14

New York, Oct. 8.—The National Commission yesterday decided to play the first of the world's baseball championship games at the Polo grounds here, Saturday, Oct. 14. The choice was determined by the toss of a coin.

Ben Shibe, president of the Athletics, called heads, and the coin settled with tails up. The games will alternate between the two cities.

THE SCHEDULE.

The following schedule for the games was adopted:

October 14, 17 and 19 at New York and October 16, 18 and 20 at Philadelphia.

Should any of the games be postponed on account of rain or from any other cause the commission decided that the visiting nine shall remain in the city where the game was scheduled until it can be played. A postponement of any game would therefore necessitate a change in the remainder of the schedule.

SEVENTH GAME IN NEW YORK.

The Commission also decided that the seventh game, should it be necessary to decide the championship, will be played in New York. In the event of a tie, the game must be played off on the grounds on which the tie occurred before the next game is played.

Umpires Klem and Brennan were detailed by the National League for the contests and Umpires Connelly and Dineen by the American League.

Making Observations for Mapping Out Canadian Rockies.

In a letter received by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway from Mr. Arthur O. Wheeler, the well-known mountain climber and topographer, who is at present in the Canadian Rockies making observations for the purpose of mapping out the district, he says:

"We have a great amount of splendid material for publication and a collection of photographs that cannot be surpassed. We have just completed what is very nearly a 100 mile circuit around Mt. Robson, the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies. The peaks and valleys, lakes and waterfalls on all sides of it, and the glaciers are very fine. The region is immense, and there is work for years to come, exploring, mapping and depicting. There is a fine bunch of high peaks and large snowfields and glaciers southwest of Tete Jaune Cache. There are also great peaks on the Athabaska and Fraser headwaters, tributary to your line. The most showy part of Mt. Robson is the Robson Pass and Glacier, and Berg Lake."

In addition to the above Mr. Wheeler reports that his party have collected over 600 specimens of animal and bird life, and a good botanical collection as well. This expedition which was organized by the Grand Trunk Pacific, has been a most successful one, and when its results are published will be of great value. The facts now known bear out the general impression that the territory contiguous to the mountain division of the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway will surpass in scenic beauty that which can be seen on any other of the North American transcontinental lines.

TO SAFEGUARD THE SAILOR
Dangerous and Tedious Duties of the Lightshipmen Who Point Jack the Way Past the Rocks to Port in Safety.

Sailors say that there is a little cherub sitting up aloft in their rigging to keep and guard over Jack Tar. The real guardians of those who go down to the sea in ships are the brave fellows who man the lighthouses.

Ships passing outward to sea, or inward to port, are guided on their way at night by the beams flashed from these lighthouses, or warned to steer clear of the dangerous rock upon which the lighthouse stands. In fair weather and in foul the lighthouse casts over the sea its unspoken message of guidance, encouragement, and warning. It seems like some unfailing machine, and few people can realize that in that lonely watch-tower are men imprisoned, week after week, perhaps month after month. It is a man who lights the lamps and keeps them burning, but he is so removed from the everyday affairs of life that he is hardly ever included in the company of heroes to which he belongs.

Only men of exceptional character are chosen for these distant posts. They undergo a long training on land, in the management of the machinery which controls the lamps, and in all the routine of lighthouse duty; they are taught to cook, to sew, to keep house, for there are no women to cook and mend for them in the lighthouses. When they have had all this training, they are sent from place to place to the less lonely lighthouses, until they are finally qualified for the more isolated ones.

There may be more than three men in the big lighthouses, where there is machinery to manage for the production of gas or electricity, for the winding of clocks, the manipulation of the lamps, and so forth. There are never too many. Six or seven years ago the three men of the Flannan Lighthouse, in the Hebrides, Scotland, disappeared, and to this day we can only guess their end. For several nights the lamps were seen to be unlighted, but nobody could approach, owing to a storm.

When the storm passed away the light still failed to shine. Men went off in a boat, but not one of the lighthouse crew could be found nor have they ever been found. Two hundred feet distant from the lighthouse there is a recess, cut for the reception of lighthouse ropes and implements. It is supposed that the three men, seeing these latter in danger of being washed away by the storm, went down to make them secure, and were themselves swept to death.

CHINESE WAYS STILL CURIOUS

In Addition to Ways that Dark and Trieps that are Vain, the Heathen Chinee is Still Otherwise Peculiar.

China is the land the cities of which have no lights, no plan, no sewers, and no sidewalks. Her people have no public spirit, no patriotism, no 'diers, no national feeling, and no secrets.

Notwithstanding all these anomalies, every Province, every city, every hamlet is districted, and in the hamlets some respected citizen is recognized as head man. He is held responsible for its good conduct. If any crime is committed he is held till the culprit is found.

In a land where there are few secrets, and where these head men are very close to the people, the guilty seldom escape. Numberless cases of social troubles and dispute are, through this arrangement, never brought to the courts, but are settled among themselves.

The scholars rule China to-day Dress is of more moment there than in any other country, yet the scholar although poor and meanly dressed, is received with honor by the highest in the land.

"The superior man" of the classics is the equivalent of the "good man" with us.

In contradiction to the popular idea of dignity, however, the superior man will play battledore and shuttlecock with his feet and fly kites, while the boys, like old men, stand sedately by and look on. This he does as a method of instruction, and to show the children how the superior man can relax when his high purpose is to entertain and educate the young.

To the Chinese the foreigner is a boor and a barbarian. It seems a hopeless task to teach him politeness.

CAN'T DANCE THE HORNPIPE

Traditional Dance Gone Out of Active Service with the Fiddler and Piper who Used to Provide Sea-Going Music.

The following story recently appeared in Truth, contributed by "a service correspondent":

"A ship was at a certain port, where an entertainment in aid of a deserving cause was being organized, and a lady who was helping in this suggested that a real sailor's hornpipe danced by a bluejacket would be a novel attraction. The officer promptly volunteered to find her twenty performers. But his confidence received a mild shock when, after exhaustive enquiry, he discovered that only one man of the whole ship's company could dance the hornpipe at all, and he a steward, who had to be rigged out in bluejacket's kit in order to save the reputation of the ship."

This anecdote is held to illustrate the decay of traditional naval customs, but the decay is not of this century and it is a doubtful question whether sailors have been adepts at this dance for many years past. It appears to have gone out of use with fiddlers and bagpipes, which once formed the music on board ship after trumpeters disappeared. Far from having a nautical origin, the so-called "sailor's hornpipe" seems to have come from the shore, and even its name has a ring of flocks and herds rather than of tar and oakum. The general knowledge of this institution of the forecastle is almost wholly summed up by the definition given in the Shipping Encyclopaedia, which says that the hornpipe was formerly the name of a musical instrument which became obsolete, when its name was "appropriated for a jig-like dance, common among sailors." But while the hornpipe is no longer a general feature of life on board ship, the bluejacket cannot be said to have lost his lightness of foot, and there are some ships which still carry a fiddler, or even a piper, for their musician.

Old Bitterness Not Obliterated.

That all the bitterness of feeling arising out of the Civil War has not yet disappeared is shown by the action of the Governor of South Carolina in characterizing General Sherman, who led "the march to the sea," and who incidentally destroyed a great deal of Southern property, as a "scoundrel." The Governor has gone further and issued orders that all school histories in use in the State shall say that the city of Columbia, which was destroyed during the march to the sea, was destroyed by the express orders of General Sherman.

A Modern Babel.

Confusion of tongues reigns in St. Gilles, the industrial suburb of Brussels, Belgium. Here the Flemish, Walloon and German elements meet. Statistics prepared for the Government on the language question show that of the 63,239 adults who form the population of St. Gilles 10,163 men and 14,213 women speak French only; 2,483 men and 3,445 women Flemish only, 90 men and 172 women German only, 12,595 men and 14,902 women both French and Flemish, 711 men and 795 women both French and German, 30 men and 38 women both Flemish and German, and 959 men and 643 women French, Flemish and German.

A Puzzler for Sure

The other day in the British Museum a guide was recounting to a little knot of tourists the glories of a battered centaur when a Chicago meat salesman broke the reverent hush with the question: "Excuse me, sir, but what would they feed a bloke like that on — ham and eggs or hay?"

EARLY SAMPLES OF FOOTWEAR

Moses Wisely Were Shoes at the Burning Bush but in the Further Back Feet Were Covered for Other Reasons.

It cannot be stated with certainty how, when or where, the wearing of shoes began. It can only be surmised that some contemporary of the stone age, finding his way beset with stones or strewn with thorns, thought to fasten about his feet the raw hide of the animal he had slain, and that then was born the germ of utility that through the centuries has evolved into the modern shoe.

The earliest shoes worn in the northern part of Europe were undoubtedly shaped like the moccasin of the American Indian, and were made of raw hide with the hair outside. They covered the whole foot and partly enclosed the ankle, about which they were fastened with thongs that laced through slits in the hide. Such were the shoes worn by the ancient Germans and the Celts of Brittany.

In sunnier regions the first foot apparel was probably a sandal of straw, palm, wood or hide fastened to the foot by a thong passing between the big and the next toes and laced about the ankle. Sandals of this kind are not unlike those of the old Hebrews, the ancient Egyptians, and the Assyrians and Persians.

The earliest mention of shoes in the Scriptures is in the 14th Chapter of Genesis, (about 1913 B. C.), where Abram tells the King of Sodom he "will not take from a thread even to a shoe latchet," lest the King claim he made Abram rich. Again (about 1491 B. C.), where Moses is commanded to remove his shoes before the burning bush, for the ground upon which he stood was holy. The shoes that the traveler sees at the doors of Mosques and Eastern temples point back to this act of early reverence, as well as does the custom of removing the shoes in the presence of Eastern potentates.

No Chinese Typewriters

Typewriters are now made for use in nearly a hundred different languages, and they are sold all over the world; but there is still one great nation which, for a very simple reason, has no typewriter that write its tongue. That nation is China.

The English alphabet has twenty-six letters, the Russian thirty-six. The typewriter produced for the Russina market is the largest made; but no typewriter could be made that would begin to be big enough for the Chinese language, which has no alphabet, but is represented by sign characters, of which there are about fifty thousand. Of the great number of words found in the English language only a small proportion are used for the ordinary purposes of speech, and the same is true of the characters used in the Chinese language; but the number of Chinese characters commonly employed is still far greater than could be put on any typewriter. So this nation of 400,000,000 people has no typewriter in its own tongue.

A Political Prayer.

During a campaign which he conducted in the Maritime Provinces, the late Hon. A. G. Blair saw how strongly the party idea in politics takes hold.

Mr. Blair stopped overnight at the house of a Baptist minister.

"We'll have a word of prayer before retiring," said the minister, who thereupon offered a prayer that was both long and prosy.

When Mr. Blair had almost gone to sleep on his knees, the minister started praying concerning the elections. He called down anthemas on the Conservatives for their corrupt practices. Then he made a naive appeal to heaven for condemnation of the Opposition, and asked pardon for the Liberals if they should find it necessary to "fight the devil with fire."

Employs Only One-Legged Men.

Loss of a leg is essential to a job with a Chicago firm. All but two of its 102 employes in the factory and in the branch offices wear one or two artificial lower limbs, and the employes leave their work to show the newly fitted patients how well they can walk, run, and jump with the artificial article. Makers doubt if there ever was such a thing as a "cork leg" — in which cork entered in any considerable extent into the making of the limb. Some of them claim that the name was derived from one Cork who made artificial legs early in the last century in New York. In the present day they are manufactured from English willow, covered with a thin parchment of enamel, or of wood and leather.

There's Music!

Senator Depew, at a recent dinner in New York, said of Richard Strauss's music:

"To hear Strauss's 'Elektra' or his 'Domestic Symphony' always makes me think of the old Scotch piper who said: "'Ah, there's ane nicht I sall ne'er forget. There were nineteen pipers besides mysel' all in a wee bit parlor, all playin' different tunes. I just thoucht I was in heaven!"

A Sea Monopoly

The fishing waters of the Caspian Sea are divided into plots and let out by the government at auction. Two firms combined and bid in the right to fish in two-thirds of all the fish water. This crowded out the smaller fishermen and made a monopoly. Thus both land and water are being monopolized.

Waste in Armaments.

Despite all the peace movements of the day the expenditures of the nations upon armaments is to-day, with no great war in progress, greater in the aggregate, according to a statement made by the editor of the London Statist, than they have ever been in times of war.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

self reflecting on what she would do in such a case, and instantly deciding that Miss Jessie Montell would defy the devil and all his works, if she thought herself in the right. In addition thereto, I felt that she was unconsciously appraising me and classing me as a weakling; and that, added to my own half-formed conviction that in time of trial I was likely to prove so, made me a most uncomfortable individual for a few moments. Montell's entrance saved me from a rather unwelcome situation. There is no knowing how deep a tangle I should have got myself into — she was so uncompromisingly direct. Montell, however, opened the door at the crucial period, and she turned to him with a recital of the huskies' outbreak, lighting a cluster of candles as she talked.

"If you don't shut up those ferocious brutes, or feed them a little oftener," she concluded, "they'll devour somebody one of these days, and there won't be so much as a moccasin left to tell the tale." At which extravagant forecast we all three laughed, and I felt myself equal to the occasion once more.

The upshot of this dog episode was that I stayed to supper with them, and went to my own cabin rather late in the evening.

CHAPTER XV.

Strangers Twain.

My arm was somewhat swollen and throbbed like an ulcerated tooth when I got up the following morning, but I made shift to build a fire. When the icy chill was banished from the room, I dressed, and was getting what comfort I could out of a smoke when Montell knocked at my door, bringing a cold gust of air when he entered.

"Oho," said he, "stirrin' around, eh? This ain't much like home, is it? How's the arm?"

I told him briefly, having little inclination to enlarge on that theme — the pain was sufficient without the aggravation of discussing it.

"Uh-huh," he grunted. "Now, you just come along to the shack and have Jess fix it up again. She's pretty near as good as a doctor. And, seein' she's partly responsible, it's no more'n fair. There ain't no use you makin' a hermit of yourself."

I attempted to dodge this invitation that savored of command. Montell's semi-jocoseness rather jarred on me. For one thing, his heartiness didn't quite ring true. I got the impression that his solicitude was of the lip rather than of the heart. While I had passed a very pleasant evening with them, I did not contemplate making myself at home in the Montell cabin. I had a vague feeling that it involved disloyalty to Barreau. Montell, however, was quite insistent; and, as I had no apparent reason for being churlish, I ended by going with him.

Miss Montell came out of the other room. She nodded to me and smiled a greeting. She moved about the room, getting a basin and warm water and other first — or perhaps I should say second — aids to the injured. And she washed and bandaged afresh the laceration, with an impersonal absorption in the task that I half resented.

When she had finished, breakfast, hot from the cook house, was brought by one of the "breed" women, and Miss Montell seated herself at the table and airily waved her father and myself to places on her right and left.

That was how I came to break bread with them a second time, and it was not the last. In the ensuing five or six days I wore a distinct path between my cabin and theirs. Montell made it a point to descend upon me at some hour of the day, and, after all, I was not so loath. I am constrained to admit that Jessie Montell was the one bright spot in those dreary, monotonous days. With Barreau gone, I was a lonely mortal indeed. Those evenings at Montell's passed away many a leaden-footed hour. After that first time, Jessie never challenged me in that imperious judicial manner anent my Fenton escapade. We spoke of it, to be sure, but in terms dispassionate, uncritical. When Montell was about, he and I played cribbage. When she and I were alone, we talked. Of Barreau's part in the war for pelts, she seemed profoundly ignorant. His name never passed her lips.

Once the swelling left my arm the torn place healed rapidly. Then I bethought me of my neglected snowshoeing, and sallied forth on the track of that free, effortless stride which had so far eluded me. At the gate of the stockade I turned back, on the impulse of the moment, and went to the Montell cabin to ask Jessie if she were a snowshoe expert, or wished to become one.

"Thank Heaven for a chance to see the outside of this stockade wall once more," she cried, in mock fervor. "Will I go snowshoeing? Yes, and verily. I detest being mewed up in here, and I don't like to wander off alone. This big, desolate country is so forbidding. Yes, I 've snowshoed a little — one winter in the Wisconsin woods."

She had more of a mastery over the webbed boots of the North than I, it shortly transpired. We went up the river a mile or two, crossed it, and climbed to the top of a bald point that immediately appealed to us as an ideal coasting place. To the west towered the mountain range, robed in ermine now instead of summer purple.

"What insignificant creatures we are, after all!" The girl stopped suddenly, and looked back at the white peaks; "they say that men up here alone often go mad. I hardly wonder. I don't think I like the North."

"So you feel that way," I rejoined. "I do, myself, at times."

She nodded soberly.

"Perhaps we are blessed or cursed, whichever it may be, with too much imagination, and give it overfree rein."

"No," I returned, blundering in an attempt to voice that which I had often felt, but could never express. "There is an atmosphere, a something about these immense spaces that sits hard on the nerves. We don't have to imagine these things; they're here. It seems to me that any wilderness untamed must have that same effect; it overawes one. And man hasn't tamed this yet. The North is master — and we feel it."

We plodded a few yards farther.

Just at the gate of the stockade we met two men—two tall men, burdened with shoulder packs. I knew the face of every frontiersman in the pay of Montell, but these were not of his following. Yet somewhere, some time, I had seen them. My memory insisted upon this. But where or when I could not instantly recall.

They passed within a few feet of me, their parka hoods drawn close about their cheeks. I had only their profiles to spur my recollection. But that sufficed. I stood watching them bear away to the north, and as, mechanically, I shuffled the cards of memory, a picture flashed out clear as the ace of spades in a diamond suit. The two men were those who had come to the camp of Three Wolves early in the fall, the same who had sat upon the log with Barreau that morning and made overtures for peaceful capitulation. Once I had placed them, my interest flagged. I turned and entered the stockade. Jessie had kept on to the store. Montell was standing on the stoop, as I reached the building, his hands thrust deep in the pockets of his fur coat. By the fixity of his gaze, as I turned the corner, I guessed that he was watching the two men. A backward glance showed them just vanishing into the belt of spruce that ran to the brow of the hill.

"Well,' I greeted, "you've had callers to break the monotony, I see."

"That's what," he replied. "Queer fish, too. Wouldn't stay no time at all. Claimed to be free traders like ourselves, and wanted to know if we minded 'em tryin' to pick up a few pelts around here in the spring. Got a stock of goods, they said, somewhere between here and the Peace."

I pricked up my ears at that. So one had fibbed, properly. And when it was on the tip of my tongue to say that they were Hudson's Bay men, I refrained. That information would keep, I reflected. The more I thought of it, the less I cared to make any assertions. The men had done no harm, apparently. If they had lied to Montell, he was promptly shrewd enough to know why. If Montell were lying to me, he likely had good reasons. I dropped the matter forthwith. It was Barreau's affair more than mine.

I went to my cabin and built a fire.

The cheerful warmth of the cabin was very restful after the exertion of snowshoeing, and sitting there in a state of mental passivity soon begot drowsiness. I piled wood on the fire, and stretched myself on the bunk. And stretched myself on the bunk. And the next minute, it seemed, I was being shaken out of my sleep — but I opened my eyes to candlelight, and Barreau standing over me, smiling.

"Come out of the trance, old snoozer," he laughed cheerfully. "I've just got in. Suppose we go and eat, before the cook shuts up shop."

"Amen to that," I replied.

I put fresh wood on the fire, which had sunk to a few dull embers, and Barreau busied himself with the wash basin and comb. Stripped of the parka that had cast confusing shadows on his features, I saw that he had suffered attack from the frost. A patch of blackening skin stood over each cheek bone.

"I see you got bitten, too," I remarked, and went on to tell him of my clash with the huskies.

"I had worse than husky dogs to contend with," he returned, in a matter-of-fact manner. "Our two Frenchmen, the cabin and everything in it, had been spirited away. I went on a scouting trip, thinking I might get track of something. I've laid out every night since I left here. Hull fared even worse than I; he may lose some of his toes."

"And you found——" I started to ask.

"Nothing," he replied carelessly. "I don't think the men came to any harm. But it's one more item on the debit side."

Over in the mess house we had the long room to ourselves, except for the cook pottering over his fire. And in the midst of the meal I bethought me to tell Barreau of the two strangers, and Montell's account of their mission. He laid down his knife and fork and listened intently.

"Free traders,' eh?" he drawled. "Not bad for Montell, that — or has the company taken a fresh tack, I wonder? They knew I was away, I had a feeling that we were being watched and so had Hull. Quite an engrossing little three-cornered game, isn't it, Bob?"

WHAT CANADIANS ARE DOING

MARJORY MACMURCHY, Toronto.

There may be much discussion as to whether journalists are born or made in these days of mechanical productions — editorially mechanical — but there can only be one opinion of Marjory MacMurchy — for she is born and made. With an individuality all her own she infuses into her work that indefineability called life and her experience has given her an insight into humanity that has already made her a power in the Press. A series of articles from her pen on the Coronation, when she represented the Publishers Press, brought out these qualities well, particularly her descriptive work.

MISS MARJORY MACMURCHIE

Marjory MacMurchy is fortunate in having a clever father and a clever older sister and there is no doubt her early training, artistic and scholarly environments, had much in the making of the writer we know. Born in Toronto, Miss MacMurchy was educated at Jarvis St. College and Toronto University. Entered journalism early in life. Now literary editor of a Toronto daily, and contributes to many of the Magazines.

TO STOP HAT LIFTING.

To put a stop to hat-lifting as a form of salutation a league has been formed at Zurich which seeks to introduce the military form of salute. The league states that the uncovering of heads is the cause of many colds affecting mainly the older men. In Germany, Austria, and German Switzerland it is the custom for a man to hold his hat in his hand until the lady asks him to "cover" himself. A nod is generally sufficient, but some wait for a formal request.

At the Court of St. James'.

But it is not everybody who realises that the Palace of Westminster—the correct name for the Parliamentary Houses—contains a second throne. This is placed in the King's robing room and is used by the King when he is putting on his legal garb before entering the House of Peers to read the "Speech from the Throne."

As a matter of fact, the official throne of these realms is the one at James' Palace, that very ordinary looking building at the foot of St. James' street. All ambassadors are accredited to this court, and, in the eyes of foreign governments, it stands for the majesty of Britain. Its throne is a very handsome one, and stands under a magnificent and most ornate canopy.

Though the throne at Windsor is but little used, it is unique in one respect. It is really an Eastern throne, after the style of the one we read of in the records of King Solomon, for it is composed entirely of ivory, and was the gift of one of the Princes of

CURIOSITIES OF THE FISHERIES

Mackerel All But Gone and Nobody Knows Where.

What is the mater with the mackerel? They have all but disappeared and nobody has any idea of what has become of them.

In 1885 mackerel fishery furnished half a million barrels of salted fish. Last year the catch was only about twenty-seven hundred barrels. What has become of this valuable food animal? Certainly it has not been wiped out by overfishing.

At the present time nearly two millions of dollars are invested in the business of hunting for mackerel — an industry prosecuted more in the way of a lottery than anything else, vessels being fitted out every spring in the hope that they will come back in their former abundance. Salted mackerel are now worth forty dollars a barrel.

If the great schools of earlier years have sought feeding grounds elsewhere how precious would be information of their whereabouts!

Dr. Johan Hjort, the Norwegian director of fisheries, says that the production of marine fishes is subject to such mighty influences as to be independent of the interference of man. For illustration, in 1902 and

CHESTERFIELD AND ORATORY

Lord Chesterfield's letters are, I will venture to say, masterpieces of good taste, good writing and good sense."

Oratory and Hard Work:—Demosthenes, the celebrated Greek orator, thought it so absolutely necessary to speak well, that though he naturally stuttered, and had weak lungs, he resolved, by application and care, to get the better of those disadvantages. Accordingly, he cured his stammering by putting small pebbles into his mouth; and strengthened his lungs gradually, by using himself every day to speak aloud and distinctingly for a considerable time. He likewise went often to the seashore, in stormy weather, when the sea made most noise, and there spoke as loud as he could, in order to use himself to the noise and murmurs of the popular assemblies of the Athenians, before whom he was to speak. By such care, joined to the constant study of the best authors, he became at last the greatest orator of his own or any other age or country, though he was born without any one natural talent for it. Adieu! Copy Demosthenes.

CARNEGIE AND DRINK

Mr. Andrew Carnegie, whose own experience fits him to speak with authority as to the elements that make for a successful business career, says in his book "The Empire of Business":

The first and most seductive peril, and the destroyer of most young men, is the drinking of liquor. I am no temperance lecturer in disguise, but a man who knows and tells you what observation has proved to him and I say to you that you are more likely to fail in your career from acquiring the habit of drinking liquor, than from any or all the other temptations likely to assail you. You may yield to almost any other temptation and reform — may brace up, and if not recover lost ground, at least remain in the race, and secure and maintain a respectable position. But from the insane thirst for liquor, escape is almost impossible. I have known but few exceptions to this rule.

As a Pearl of Great Price

There is no power of love so hard to get and keep as a kind voice. A kind hand is deaf and dumb. It may be rough in flesh and blood, yet do the work of a soft heart, and do it with a soft touch. But there is no one thing that love so much needs as a sweet voice to tell what it means and feels; and it is hard to get and keep it in the right tone.

One must start in youth, and be on the watch night and day, at work and play, to get and keep a voice that shall speak at all times the thoughts of a kind heart. It is often in youth that one gets a voice or tone that is sharp, and which sticks to him through life, and stirs up ill-will and griefs, and falls like a drop of gall on the sweet joys of home. Watch it day by day, as a pearl of great price, for it will be worth more to you in days to come than the best pearl hid in the sea. A kind voice is to the heart what light is to the eye. It is a light that sings as well as shines.

Not Your Owe Face

"My boy," said a wise father who knew how to play and be a "chum" with his twelve-year-old lad, "my boy, you do not own your own face." The boy looked puzzled. He had come to the breakfast table with a frowning, clouded countenance, and had started moodily to eat his food. Everybody felt the shadow of his ill spirits, evident in his looks. His father's unexpected words brought him back to life, and he looked up with a half-guilty expression, but did not understand what was meant. "You do not own your face," his father repeated. "Do not forget that it belongs to other people. They, not you, have to look at it. You have no right to compel them to look at a sour, gloomy and crabbed face."

Shoe Shops of Japan.

Writing about the shops of Japan a visitor to that country says that the typical shoe store makes a strange impression on the foreign visitor. "All the footwear of the little brown men are here in view. The funny wooden clogs and straw sandals are indeed a fanciful exhibition. They line the benches, the floors, the shelves. They hang from above, and seemingly are everywhere, allowing the seller just about enough room to squat on his mat. The newcomer is at once startled at the immense quantity of this simple footwear and the many places where it is sold, but he soon finds a solution to his query when he hears that a Japanese man annually makes away with from eight to ten pairs."

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. WRITE US for full information.

Jordan & Davis Company
NORFOLK, Va.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

A Splendid Display.

In connection with the Grand Trunk Exhibit at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, further advices dated September 12th have been received from London regarding the awards that were given to the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is gratifying to know that these companies have received four "Grand Prix" for their splendid display, instead of two that were announced in the cable received on Sept. 1st.

These awards have been made under the following:—"Arts and Crafts"; "Engineering, Lighting, and Transportation"; and "Building Trades"; also "Advertising." This is considered by the Companies named as a great honor, as other railways exhibiting at the Exhibition have only received one award.

The official report from the Grand Trunk representative at this Exhibition, for week ending September 9th, shows that the number of persons visiting the Grand Trunk Pavilion was 21,186, bringing the attendance up to September 9th to 279,942 people.

Buy it now. Now is the time to buy a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It is almost certain to be needed before the summer is over. This remedy has no superior. For sale by all dealers.

Real Estate, Mining and Industrial Investments

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Pearless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realize that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 80 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

$60 cash, or $12 down and $12 a month for four months, buys 200 shares.

$120 cash, or $24 down and $24 a month for four months, buys 400 shares.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking a opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days.

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

Mr. JUSTICE BRODEUR

The Hon. Louis Philippe Brodeur, K.C., LL.D., late Minister of Marine and Fisheries, comes of one of the best known French-Canadian families. A comparatively young man as politicians go — his nativity only dates from 1862 — he has made rapid strides in offices of state since his first election to Parliament in 1891. When the Laurier Government went into power five years later, Mr. Brodeur was made Deputy Speaker of the House of Commons and Chairman of Committees. After the election of

HON. L. P. BRODEUR.
Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada.

1900 he became Speaker of the House and in 1904 entered the Cabinet with the portfolio of Minister of Inland Revenue. Two years later he became Minister of Marine and Fisheries and held that office till August 1911, when he resigned to become a Supreme Court Judge. Hon. Mr. Brodeur accompanied Sir Wilfrid Laurier to England as a delegate to the Imperial Conference of 1907 and was a delegate to the Imperial Defence Conference of 1909. By profession he is a lawyer, having been called to the Bar in 1884 after graduating from Laval University. Beloeil, P.Q., is his birth place and his early education was received at St. Hyacinthe College.

Schoolboy "Howlers."

Some amusing schoolboy "howlers" were recounted by Mr. W. Kilwyn Fiske, headmaster of the Elm House School, Surbiton, at the Christmas prize distribution. In the general papers worked by the students one boy described "coup d'etat" as a French dish played in musichalls as a voluntary.

Credit, said another boy, signifies "a person who gets nice things said behind his back." A third boy illustrated the meaning of gender by explaining that a camel is masculine and a dromedary feminine.

Asked to quote some exceptions to the rule "Ladies first," a boy wrote, "When you are going to be hung." "Ladies first except for votes" and "Ladies always first except when the door is too small" were other replies. The boys were also asked what they would wish for if they were granted five wishes. Among the replies were "To be able to eat anything" and "To be a porcupine, because I could prick people."

How strange it is that life must be to live.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 80,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.

A Startling Revelation

The friends of Miss Mary McKenzie, of London, were astonished to hear that she had gone into consumption.

This sad intelligence came as a shock to Miss McKenzie's many friends. In the early fall she contracted a heavy cold which developed rapidly into Catarrh, and finally made such rapid advances that the bronchial tubes and lungs became affected.

Although the doctors said nothing short of a change of residence to the south would benefit, on the advice of a Dundas Street druggist Miss McKenzie decided to thoroughly test Catarrhozone, which is warranted to cure all diseases of the throat, lungs and bronchial tubes.

Miss McKenzie says: "After my druggist had recommended Catarrhozone I spoke to my friends about it and they all said it was such a good remedy that I commenced forthwith to inhale it five or six times each day. I breathed it deeply into my lungs, and felt its beneficial action very quickly. It seemed to go where other remedies did not reach, and was so pleasant and convenient that I did not mind using it very frequently, which, probably, was the cause of it curing my obstinate case so quickly. Certainly no case of Catarrh or Bronchitis should go uncured if the sufferer can get Catarrhozone, which is a sovereign remedy, worthy of the highest recommendations.

Miss McKenzie's case needs no enlargement. She was in a critical condition, apparently beyond the aid of doctors' medicines.

Catarrhozone has cured her, and others in her condition should no longer experiment with uncertain, untried treatments, but should turn at once to catarrhozone, and in it they will find relief and cure unobtainable by other means. Remember the name, Catarrhozone. Complete outfit guaranteed to cure. Price $1.00. Small size 25 cents. Druggists or The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

New Vessel Driven by Oil.

Kingston Standard: A new departure in the type of vessel navigating Canada's inland waters has been created by the arrival in Canada of the ship "Toiler," as she is the first vessel driven by oil engines that has ever been seen in this country, and is, consequently the pioneer oil vessel to be employed in Canadian trade. She will operate between Montreal and Lake Erie.

The New Four Dollar Bill.

The four dollar bill has come into circulation again lately, and the Finance Minister when he takes office, might well call in the present bills and have a new plate engraved. The four on the face of the bill is good, but the back requires the best of sight and close inspection to distinguish it from a one. If the back ends were made similar to the face it would be better, but something should certainly be done without delay.

Was Very Drunk.

A poor unfortunate had great difficulty in making his way up Brock street on Saturday afternoon. The jag, which he had on board was rather too much to carry. He fell several times on the hard pavement, but pluckily staggered to his feet, each time and gradually worked his way west. Drunks are becoming altogether too frequent on the public thoroughfares of the city.

The company above referred to is controlled by the Bertrams, sons of the late Mr. John Bertram, formerly of Peterborough. They do a very large business on the north shore. Mr. Christy Fagan, one of the best known local lumbermen, has been engaged as foreman, by Mr. Kearns.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by Catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Praise for The Times.

From many quarters comes praise for The Times for the stand it is taking on all public questions. A newspaper with backbone enough to criticize freely and fearlessly all matters of public concern, must necessarily offend some who are not in sympathy with anything that stands for "special privileges to no church or creed." But this is more than counterbalanced by the hearty support The Times is receiving from its splendid constituency of readers. We now ask our friends to demonstrate their faith in us by according the business firms who use our advertising columns, a liberal share of their patronage. By doing this they will be helping us in a practical way.

Coast Sealed Oysters.

We have arranged for a fresh supply of the celebrated Coast Sealed Oysters, put up in sanitary enamelled cabinet. Also big supplies of fine, fresh, foreign and domestic fruits, always in stock.—H. Longo & Co., 416 George street.

CHANGE OF TRAIN SERVICE.

Commencing on October 2nd the Lakefield train service will be changed, as follows: The train which has been leaving here at 8.30 a.m. will now leave at 7.00 a.m., and returning will arrive Peterboro' 8.15 a.m. The noon train for Lakefield will leave at 12.20, and returning will arrive Peterboro' 5.15 p.m. The evening train is discontinued. The public will be glad to learn that the new service inaugurated this summer to Port Hope will be maintained throughout the winter and will thus enable all passengers to leave Toronto at 9.00 a.m. and arrive Peterboro at mid-day. This train also affords good connection for all eastern points to Montreal and Boston.

One on Him.

While passing a leading Liberal on the street yesterday, a Conservative said:

"Do you know what they are going to turn the Parliament buildings at Ottawa into?"

"No."

"The Tories are going to turn them into a Borden house, of course."

The Grit politician retired to the Oriental to try and discover what hit him.

C.P.R. Freight Line.

Orillia Packet:—The first through train from Orillia to Lindsay, over the C.P.R.'s new grain line, is expected to run to-day (Thursday). It will carry the remainder of the Toronto Construction Company's equipment. The C.P.R. is pressing to have the line finished to Lindsay by the 1st of December, so that they can haul grain from Port McNicholl to that point, connecting with their Toronto Lindsay line, and reaching the main line from it. This will be much shorter than hauling the grain round by the Coldwater-Toronto route. It is hoped to have the line open to Bethany by the end of the year.

Apple War.

A very queer situation has developed in the apple market at the present time. There is a very good crop of apples, but yet the price is enormous. The packer in many cases, absolutely refuses to pay the price asked by the farmer which is in the neighborhood of $3 a barrel. Consequently, apples are remaining on the trees that should be picked. In some localities there is a war between the packers and the farmers. The packer claims that if he pays $3 a barrel for his apples he will get no market for them, as people will go without apples rather than pay the price that he must ask to make a profit. "The packer has no relief in the British market," said a prominent fruit grower to The Times, on Saturday, "because the Nova Scotian apples are much more in demand than Ontario apples and can be shipped with much less expense."

PUBLIC OPINION

The Times does not hold itself responsible for opinions of its correspondents.

WHY PROTESTANTS VOTED AS THEY DID.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—A despatch from Ottawa, which appeared in a local paper, says that the election was won by Mr. Borden by appeals to Protestant prejudice.

Now, Sir, I deny this. Protestants did not forget a lot of things Sir Wilfrid did that were offensive to their religion, amongst others I might mention:

1. The eucharist gathering in Montreal, in which the "homage" of Canadians was wired to the Romish Church dignitaries.

2. The fastening of Confessional schools on the Western provinces, at the dictation of Rome, who sent a representative to Ottawa for the purpose.

3. His refusal to interfere in the celebrated ne temere decree.

4. His unpatriotic attitude as Canada's representative at the Imperial Conference in London last summer.

There are many other reasons that could be given. Is it fair, in the face of the above, to accuse Protestants of "raising" (?) a religious feeling? Could they do anything else than vote such a man out of office?

The Romish Church has always put the Pope before our sovereign, and I for one do not think it is right to do so. I believe in extending the fullest liberty to our Roman Catholic fellow citizens, but we cannot give them more.

Julius.

PETERBOROUGH'S SPLENDID GROWTH.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—The assessment returns for 1912 must be exceedingly gratifying to the citizens generally, as they contain a striking evidence of the growth of the city during the past year. The increase in population—nearly 2000—is by far the greatest in the history of the city. If our city is to continue to grow, we must exercise good judgment in continuing the present Council, which has done so well.

The proposal to secure dams Nos. 4 and 5, together with the Otonabee Company's power plant, is a move along the right lines. Then Ald. Edgar's proposal of government by commission, is also deserving of the very closest consideration.

Progress.

LONDON'S LICENSES.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—Can you give me any idea of the number of premises in London, Eng., which are licensed to sell liquor and oblige.

Subscriber.

Reply—According to a statistical return issued by the London county council there are in all 6,788 premises licensed for the sale of intoxicating liquors within the county of London. These figures include only premises licensed for the "on" consumption of liquor, there being an additional 2,450 "off" licensed premises. Of this total of over 9,000, 665 are within the city proper.

JOBS FOR STALWARTS.

Editor Morning Times.

Sir,—I see there are scores of stalwarts of the Conservative party out for jobs on the canal and streets. I fear there will not be enough jobs to go around, and I therefore, take the liberty of suggesting a few new offices that might be created:

A man to count cement bags.

A man to keep track of the strings to tie the bags.

A few men to keep the grasshoppers out of the canal.

A man to oil the hinges of the rural delivery boxes.

A man to pick the currents off the electric wires.

These are only a few of the jobs that might be created for the army of office seekers.

"A little nonsense now and then,
Is relished by the wisest men."

BIG DAM BURST, MANY IN DANGER.

Lacrosse, Wis., Oct. 6.—Telephone advices just received at the offices of the Lacrosse Waterpower Company, say that the west end of the main dam at Hatfield went out at 10.30.

The situation is desperate, and relief parties are being hurriedly organized.

The Dells Dam, 18 miles of the Black River, broke to-day and threw a large volume of water against the Hatfield concrete dam. The water at this point is the highest in years and if the Hatfield dam is swept away, the loss will be tremendous. The people are panic-stricken and they were warned to move from the lower levels.

VOL XXXIV NO 235 PETERBOROUGH, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, OCTOBER 10 1911 PRICE TWO CENTS

TURKEY IS PREPARED TO GIVE UP TRIPOLI

NOTIFIES POWERS SHE IS READY TO DO SO UNDER CERTAIN CONDITIONS.

Renews the Peace Pleas—Decision to Expel Italians Was Meant to Hasten the Negotiations.

Berlin, Oct. 9.—A circular note from the Turkish Government asking the powers whether they consider that the time has arrived to seek a basis for negotiations looking to peace between Turkey and Italy, and under what conditions, was presented to the German Foreign Office to-day. The note contemplates the cession of Tripoli to Italy under certain conditions.

It is probable that the communication from Constantinople will be discussed between the other powers before the Italian Government is approached. It is thought at the Foreign Office that Italy may not be ready yet to negotiate.

The decision to expel Italians from Turkey against which the representations of the German Ambassador at Constantinople, Baron Marschall Von Bieberstein have not been effective yet was designed chiefly, it is thought here, for effect upon the coming negotiations, Turkey hoping that the threat might induce the Italians to make moderate terms.

Grain a Contraband.

London, Oct. 9.—Telegrams posted at the Baltic Mercantile and Shipping Exchange to-day state that Turkey has declared grain a contraband of war and that the banks refusing to to finance shipments for the loading of vessels has been stopped.

A Startling Story.

London, Oct. 9.—A startling item of war news to-day comes from Constantinople, to the effect that the Turkish Government of Saint Jean De Medua, on the Albanian coast, has informed the port that a vessel flying the Austrian flag and carrying an Italian officer and Italian soldiers has been sunk by the forts, all on board perishing.

An Italian warship then came up and bombarded the town, doing much damage to property.

From all parts of the Turkish Empire messages are arriving in Constantinople urging the Sultan to declare a holy war.

Turkey has sent another note to the powers, asking for intervention and offering to grant every reasonable concession to Italy.

The Turkish forces in Tripoli have been withdrawn to the interior, where they will either await the Italians or if possible, return to the attack.

London, Oct. 9. — All dispatches from Constantinople are along the same lines: Turkey is crying anew for peace.

The most interesting of these dispatches is from The Daily Chronicle's correspondent. He declares the American Ambassador, W. W. Rockhill, to-day received a dispatch from President Taft, instructing him to use his influence to bring about peace immediately between Turkey and Italy.

Ambassador Rockhill immediately called on the Grand Vizier to carry out his pacific instructions, and will to-morrow have a further interview with Said Pasha.

It is further understood that Russia has joined the United States in offering her good offices.

A Constantinople dispatch to The Daily Telegraph announces that Turkey has made another appeal to all the powers for mediation, declaring that Italy's occupation of Tripoli has introduced a "new fact" on which the appeal of the Porte might be considered.

Circular instructions have been issued to the Ottoman Ambassadors at the courts of the great powers, directing them to solicit the opening of peace negotiations on the basis of maintenance of Ottoman rights and the guarantee of Italy's interests. The procedure of such negotiations may be left to arbitration through an European conference, or by other means.

As an incentive to speedy work along these peace lines, The Chronicle's correspondent says there is great activity on the part of the Italian warships through the Archipelago, and in the Ionian and Red Seas. It is believed that their intention is to blockade the Dardanelles.

Reports are current that Said Pasha will resign and that Kiamil Pasha will become Grand Vizier. There are indications throughout the Turkish Dominion of an energetic spirit in favor of a holy war, but in Constantinople the people pray constantly for peace. According to reports from Rome, Italy, which for a long time was ready to pay Turkey a large compensation, will now pay nothing to Turkey, although she would not impose a war indemnity if peace were concluded forthwith. If hostilities are prolonged, however, the reports say, Italy will insist upon a heavy indemnity.

Italian reports tell of the sinking of two Turkish torpedo boats, with a loss of 300 Turks, at San Giovanni di Madua, but the Turkish versions minimize the affair.

CAVE-IN KILLS TEN PEOPLE

Victoria, B. C., Oct. 9.—Ten men were killed and others injured by a cave-in at a Canadian Northwestern construction camp near Colwood, southeast of Vancouver, to-day.

WAR MINISTER HAS RESIGNED

Lisbon, Oct. 9.—War Minister Castro has resigned as a consequence of the bitter criticism directed against him for the manner in which he has dealt with the Royalist uprising in the north.

Premier Chagas to-day asserted that the uprising had been completely suppressed, but from Royalist sources it is insisted that the Monarchists have complete control of the north.

There is considerable speculation as to the whereabouts of Manuel.

That the Government is far from possessing the confidence it affects is shown by the determination of Premier Chagas to summon an extraordinary session of Parliament to consider special measures for dealing with the situation.

A PEER'S SON IS BANISHED

Hon. Galbraith Cole Deported from East Africa

London, October 8.—Controversy is animated here over the expulsion of the Hon. Galbraith Cole, son of the Earl of Enniskillen, from East Africa. He shot a native who was committing depredations on his lands. He pleaded strong provocation in the form of a series of raids on his property, and further declared that he had not meant to hit the man.

FOUR MEN WERE BLOWN TO PIECES

New York, Oct. 9.—Trapped in a rock shaft sixty feet under ground, four men were blown to pieces and six injured, in an explosion at West Drive and Sixty-sixth street, Central Park, here early to-day.

The shaft is one of a score or more being sunk at various places in the city in preparation for the aqueduct. The dead were laborers who went down early to-day to drill holes for dynamite charges. It is believed that a stick of the explosive, carelessly left in the shaft after work on Saturday night, caused the disaster.

Inaccessability of the shaft and the darkness delayed the rescue work, but finally workmen, lowered in buckets, brought up the dead and wounded.

Foreman Michael Kearney, 38, was the most severely wounded of the six.

Superintendent Martin and Foreman Kearney will be held on the charge of criminal carelessness. The blasting was under the direction of the Drayo Construction Company of Pittsburg.

BRITAIN'S GREATEST BATTLESHIP

The King George V. Launched Yesterday Morning at Portsmouth, England

Portsmouth, Eng., Oct. 9.—Great Britain's largest and best armored battleship, King George V., was launched successfully to-day. The warship was christened by His Majesty's aunt, Princess Christian of Schleswig-Holstein.

The King George V. had been on the stocks two weeks less than the average Dreadnought, having been laid down on January 16th last.

The vessel has a displacement of 23,000 tons and her principal dimensions are: Length, 555 feet; beam, 89; draught, 27½. The armament consists of ten 13.5-inch guns and twenty-four 4-inch guns. Engines of 31,000 horse power are expected to furnish a speed of 21 knots an hour.

THE ELECTIONS A LESSON FOR MR. BORDEN AND HIS PARTY

In discussing the result of the elections, the Orange Sentinel says that there is a lesson here for Sir Wilfrid's successor. There is no desire among Protestants to restrict the liberties of Roman Catholics. They, like classes of the population, must have equal rights with all others. In the new government the French province must be adequately represented. They are Canadian citizens. As such they are entitled to fair consideration.

But we believe we speak the mind of a uniting Protestantism when we say that a policy must be adopted that will develop Canadianism, and not one for the advancement of Romanism, if there is to be harmony in the political life of the Dominion.

Mr. Borden has been chosen Premier of this country by the electors of British birth and origin. His imperialism meets with their approval. They think his policy is well conceived for the building up of a great free self governing nation upon the foundations of civil and religious liberty which were laid for the Empire with so much labor and suffering on the part of past generations of the British people. He has behind him a solid sentiment of British loyalty that will defend him from any attack that may come from a quarter where other less noble ideals are cherished. We believe his inclinations all tend in the direction of developing imperial sentiment, and of preserving the liberties of the people from ecclesiastical aggressions. If ever a man was called to undertake the high duties of governing a great country under happy auspices, it is Mr. R. L. Borden. It is required of him, by those who returned him to power, that he shall do justly; and that his native will follow the precedents of British practice. He may rest assured that if, in an evil day, he should pander to the Roman Church as Sir Wilfrid Laurier did, the end of his career will be in sight.

JURORS SUMMONED TO HEAR EVIDENCE IN THE M'NAMARA BROTHERS' TRIAL

FIRST STEP TAKEN IN THE FINAL DISPOSITION OF THE CHARGE AGAINST THE MEN.

Charged With Blowing Up the Los Angeles Times Building — Many Prominent People Interested.

Los Angeles, Calif., Oct. 9.—The first scene in the McNamara trial, which is attracting world-wide attention, was enacted here to-day when 125 prospective jurors were summoned before Judge Walter Bordwell for preliminary examination as to their qualifications to sit in judgment on the men charged with dynamiting the Los Angeles Times building, October 1, 1910.

The real work of selecting the jurors will begin Wednesday, but to-day marked the opening of preliminary work for the trial.

BARK SANK; ALL ON BOARD LOST

Unknown British Vessel Went Down Off Entrance to Bay of Fundy.

Boston, Oct. 9.—The sinking of an unknown British barquentine, said to have hailed from Bridgeton, N.S. off the entrance to the Bay of Fundy, on September 30th, with all on board, was reported to-day by Captain Goodwin, of the fishing schooner Good Luck.

Rebels Well Organized.

Pekin, Oct. 9.—Foreigners have not been attacked in the disturbed province of Sze Chuen. The leaders of the agitation against the Chinese government's policy of building railroads with foreign capital evidently have instructed their followers not to molest foreigners.

The obedience of the natives in carrying out these instructions indicates it is believed, that the movement has behind it a thorough organization, from which further troubles may be expected in the future.

CONNAUGHT THE RIGHT MAN

Dublin, Oct. 9.—The Irish Times says: "The combined dignity and simplicity of the Duke of Connaught's character make him the right man for Canada at this critical moment in her career. When in Dublin the Duke captured without effort, and still keeps our affection and esteem. We are confident the Irish verdict will be endorsed on the larger stage of the Empire's greatest dominion."

CANADIANS WARNED TO OBSERVE LAWS OF NEUTRALITY IN WAR

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The official gazette publishes the following, telling Canadians to observe the neutrality laws in the war between Italy and Turkey.

"His Excellency the Governor-General has received a telegram from the Right Honorable the Secretary of State for the Colonies, drawing attention to his Majesty's proclamation of neutrality on the occasion of the war between Italy and Turkey. The text of the proclamation has not yet come to hand. In the meantime his Excellency the Governor-General hereby charges and commands all subjects of his Majesty within the Dominion of Canada to observe strict neutrality in and during the aforesaid war, and to abstain from violating or contravening either the laws and statutes of the realm in that behalf, or the law of nations in relation thereto. Attention is also directed to the requirements of the Foreign Enlistment Act and the rules based thereon. All British subjects are warned against any transgression of the same.

"The following rules are hereby declared to be in force forthwith:

"Rule A—No ships of war of either belligerent may use British waters as places of resort for warlike purposes or equipment, or may leave British waters until twenty-four hours after a ship of either belligerent, whether a ship of war or a merchant ship.

"Rule B—Every such ship of war shall be required to put to sea within twenty-four hours after entrance, unless in the event of stress of weather or necessity for repairs or provisions, in which case it must leave as soon as possible, and certainly within twenty-four hours of completion of repairs.

"Rule B is subject to rule A, and time may be extended accordingly. No supplies to be allowed beyond provisions and subsistance for crew necessary for immediate use, nor coal, beyond what can take the ship to the nearest port of its own country. No ship can coal in any British port twice within three months. No prizes can be brought into British waters.

"By command,

"(Signed) CHARLES MURPHY,
"Secretary of State."

PROCLAMATION ISSUED FREEING ALL SLAVES IN TRIPOLI

Rome, Oct. 9.—A naval battle between Italian warships and a Turkish flotilla cruising within a few miles of the Italian coast is reported to have been fought in the Adriatic Sea off Comacchio, on the eastern Italian coast. The report is not confirmed, but telegraphic advices from Comacchio stated that the townspeople heard heavy cannonading at sea.

Rome, Oct. 9.—The regeneration of Tripoli by the provisional military Government established there has already begun, despite the fact that the war is still in progress, and Italy has not yet transported the main body of her expeditionary force from Italian to African soil. Advices received from Tripoli to-day stated that Admiral D'Olmo has issued his first proclamation, freeing all slaves in Tripoli and abolishing slavery throughout the entire Province as soon as possible.

WHY ITALY HAS GONE TO WAR

Official Reasons as Given by Minister of Foreign Affairs

NO CONFIDENCE IN TURKEY

Italy Has Long Had Friction With the Government at Constantinople—Slight Distance a Reason.

London, Oct. 9.

THAT few persons understand the causes which brought forth a declaration of war against Turkey by Italy, is apparent. The full text of the official note stating the reasons signed by the Italian foreign minister will furnish the answer. The term "royal government" is Italy and "imperial government" is Turkey. The note is as follows:

"During a long series of years the government of Italy never ceased to make representations to the Porte upon the absolute necessity of correcting the state of disorder to which the government of Turkey had abandoned Tripoli and Cyrene. These regions should be admitted to the benefits of the progress realized by other parts of the Mediterranean and Africa."

"This transformation, which is imposed by the general exigencies of civilization, constitutes for Italy a vital interest of the first order by reason of the slight distance separating these countries from the coast of Italy. Notwithstanding the attitude taken by the government of Italy, which has always accorded its loyal support to the imperial government in the different political questions of recent times; notwithstanding the moderation and patience shown by the government of Italy, its views concerning Tripoli have been badly received by the imperial government, but more than that, all enterprise on the part of Italians in the regions mentioned has been systematically opposed and unjustifiably crushed.

"The imperial government, which to the present time has shown constant hostility toward all legitimate activity in Tripoli and in Cyrene, has by an act in the last hour proposed to the royal government to come to an agreement and has declared itself disposed to accord all the economic concessions compatible with the treaties in force and in accord with the dignity and superior interests of Turkey; but the royal government does not believe in measures taken at this hour which resembles the negotiations of which it has had experience in the past, which have demonstrated their futility, and which, remote from constituting the guarantee for the future would be themselves permanent causes of disagreement and conflict.

"The arrival at Tripoli of the Ottoman military transports which the royal government has not failed to observe, appears preliminary to serious events, aggravates the situation and imposes on the royal government the obligation absolutely to prepare for the dangers which will result."

LIMIT THE WAR TO TRIPOLI

Rome (via frontier), Oct. 9.—It is understood here that the powers will make representations at Constantinople notifying Turkey that Italy, with a view to avoiding very grave complications, the consequences of which would be detrimental chiefly to Turkey, has agreed to limit the war to Tripoli. Moreover, that this principle will be abandoned if the Ottoman Government is unable to restrain excesses of its troops on Turkish territory, and thus forces Italy to carry the war into other Provinces of the Turkish Empire for the direction protection of her subjects and their interests which Germany could not safeguard without using force.

Dowager Queen Margarita, though still in deep mourning for her sister-in-law, the late Dowager Queen Maria Pia of Portugal and Princess Clotilde, is actively engaged in the preparations of the Red Cross Society for service in Tripoli. The Dowager Queen joins in the daily litanies for the triumphs of the Italian army, and that it may be spared the further shedding of blood.

Friends of Rechid Pasha explain that his refusal to accept the portfolio of Foreign Affairs in the new Turkish Cabinet was due to a disagreement with his colleagues over a programme which he submitted as a basis for a settlement with Italy. He was formerly Ambassador to Italy and his 12 years' residence in Rome gave him a knowledge of Italy's armaments, resources and diplomatic relations with the other powers that convinced him that the only possible way in which Turkey could save anything was to cede Tripoli to this country now.

When Nerves Need

"There's a Reason"

LOOK BACK TO THE CAUSE, for one can never get well until the cause of sickness is removed.

Perhaps it's the drug, caffeine, grown in tea and coffee.

That thing which makes the heart of the tea and coffee drinker flutter and fail; also slowly breaks down the nerves in many people (not all).

If you are one of the many affected by tea and coffee and really want to get well, suppose you leave off the drink which has caused the trouble, and take on well-made for the morning beverage.

POSTUM

In a few days you may discover why--

WORRY
A Sure Starter for Ill Health.

Useless worrying (a form of nervousness) is indirectly the result (through the nerves) of improper feeding. A furniture man of Memphis says:

"About a year ago I was afflicted with nervous spells, would worry so over trivial things.

"I went to consult one of the best physicians in Memphis and he asked, among many questions, if I drank coffee.

"His advice was: 'Go to some provision store and get a box of Postum, drink it in place of coffee and as you are confined to your desk to a great extent try and get out in the open air as much as possible.' I followed his instructions regarding the Postum.

"At that time my weight was 142 and I was taking all kinds of drugs and medicines to brace me up but all failed. To-day I weigh 165 and all of my old troubles are gone, and all the credit is due to having followed this wise physician's advice and cut off the coffee and using Postum in its place.

"I now consider my health perfect and that it is all due to my having used Postum in place of coffee." Name given by Canadian Postum Co., Windsor, Ontario.

There's a reason for quitting the drug-drinks tea and coffee, and there's a reason for drinking Postum. Trial ten days proves them all.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

was incorporated by Special Act of the Parliament of Canada for the purpose of carrying on the business of Fire Insurance, as outlined in the Insurance Act and the Special Act of Incorporation.

Capital Stock Authorized by the Board.....$2,000,000
Capital Stock Subscribed to date.....$1,650,000

The Head Office of the Company is in the city of Winnipeg, and, in addition to this, Branch Offices and Agencies will be established throughout the Dominion.

It must be generally conceded that, owing to the satisfactory conditions at present prevailing throughout not only Western Canada, but the entire Dominion, this Company is being organized at a most favorable and opportune time.

Canada, and particularly the Western portion of the Dominion, is advancing in population and wealth more rapidly than at any other time in its history, and every indication points towards a period of great prosperity and development.

The great influx of settlers into Western Canada is resulting in tremendous activity in every line of business. Railroad construction is proceeding on a scale hitherto unknown in this country, and as adequate transportation is of vital importance in moving our immense crops with a proper degree of facility, it is highly encouraging to see so much well-directed energy along the lines of railway extension

Coincident with railway expansion, we find many new districts rapidly filling up with desirable settlers, bringing with them a good supply of cash and effects. With the settlement of the rural districts, new towns and villages are springing up, which will, during the next few years, become, in many instances, important business centres.

With such unprecedented growth in Western as well as Eastern Canada, involving an expenditure of millions of dollars in building operations, it is at once evident that there is a very extensive and profitable field for a new Fire Insurance Company which will have a thorough organization throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, and more particularly in the four Western Provinces.

As a great volume of our business will be transacted in the West, it is a matter of the greatest importance that the Head Office of the Company, as well as the Directors, should be located in the West, so that the affairs of the Company may be conducted to the best possible advantage.

DIRECTORS.

The Board of Directors consists entirely of Western men with a very intimate knowledge of Western conditions, and they are, accordingly, well conversant with the financial and general business requirements of the West. They are thoroughly representative of the various important branches of financial, commercial, industtial and professional life in Western Canada, and with their wide reputation for business ability and integrity, as well as financial standing, combined with a long and varied experience, and practical knowledge of business affairs, they are exceptionally well qualified to render excellent service to a large financial institution.

As the Directors have valuable connections with extensive business interests and are also Directors of other financial corporations, as well as being otherwise identified with large and influential companies which control a great deal of high-grade fire insurance, they will be instrumental in placing a large portion of this desirable insurance with the new Company, so that we may safely conclude that from the very beginning of operations a large and profitable business will be secured.

Under these favorable conditions, and with a strong, energetic, as well as experienced and conservative management, combined with the fact that each Director has subscribed for eleven thousand five hundred dollars ($11,500) of the Capital Stock, on which all calls have been paid, and takes an active interest in the welfare of the Company, there is only one conclusion to draw, and that is that the affairs of the Company will be conducted in such a careful, conscientious and intelligent manner that the interests of both policyholders and stockholders will be fully protected.

IT IS WORTHY OF NOTE THAT $1,650,000 OF CAPITAL STOCK HAS ALREADY BEEN SUBSCRIBED BY PROMINENT BUSINESS AND PROFESSIONAL MEN THROUGHOUT THE DOMINION AND ELSEWHERE.

No commission has been paid to anyone for securing stock subscriptions, and no expense has been incurred in the promotion and organization of the Company, except the expense in connection with securing the Charter and other necessary expenses.

THE CANADA NATIONAL FIRE.

The Canada National Fire, being organized in the West, MAY BE TRULY CALLED A WESTERN COMPANY, and, as such, should receive the liberal patronage and hearty co-operation of the citizens of Western Canada, as well as the support of people from Eastern Canada who desire to become associated with a strong and progressive Canadian Company.

When promoting this Company the Directors were fully convinced that there was a splendid opening in Western Canada for a Company prepared to carry on the business of Fire Insurance on a large and comprehensive scale, and which, at the same time, could offer ADEQUATE PROTECTION TO BOTH POLICYHOLDERS AND SHAREHOLDERS. Accordingly, when making application for a Dominion charter, the Company was incorporated with a capital of $3,000,000.00, of which amount the Directors decided to offer for public subscription the sum of $2,000,000.00.

THE ALL-IMPORTANT FEATURE IN FIRE INSURANCE IS PROTECTION, and with the LARGE CAPITAL, combined with the high standard of Reserve, which will be maintained through careful selection of risks and profits from judicious investments, the Directors and Management feel confident that this Company will be accorded a very hearty reception by Canadian citizens, and will soon rank as one of the leading Fire Companies.

WITHOUT A LARGE AND SUBSTANTIAL CAPITAL FOR THE PROTECTION OF THE POLICYHOLDERS, A FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY IS SERIOUSLY HANDICAPPED, AND DOES NOT AFFORD THE POLICYHOLDER THAT PROTECTION TO WHICH HE IS JUSTLY ENTITLED, and the Directors of this Company, being fully aware of this most important fact, are adopting a very wise policy in OFFERING FOR SUBSCRIPTION SUCH A LARGE AMOUNT OF CAPITAL STOCK, and when our entire stock is subscribed and paid in full it will represent the largest amount of subscribed and paid-up capital of any Canadian Fire Insurance Company, and will be a tower of strength and of very material benefit to the company in carrying on its extensive operations.

GENERAL AGENT FOR CANADA

W. E. FUDGER, ESQ.

THIS IS A RARE OPPORTUNITY to secure some of the Capital Stock of a Western Fire Insurance Company. With a large amount of desirable and profitable business so readily obtainable by the Company through its valuable and extensive business connections, rapid progress should be made, and with investments carefully selected and unexcelled in earning power, the Company will be enabled to not only pay substantial dividends, but build up a large reserve, and thereby materially increase the value of the stock.

The Directors firmly believe in the policy that EVERY SHAREHOLDER SHOULD CO-OPERATE WITH THE MANAGEMENT of a Company and take an active interest in its welfare. For that reason, it is their intention to WIDELY DISTRIBUTE the CAPITAL STOCK, and by that means obtain the support of the leading business and professional men throughout the country.

With the rapid development of the West during recent years, involving an outlay of many millions of capital, it has become generally recognized that WESTERN CANADA IS VERY MUCH IN NEED OF MORE LARGE FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS, AND ESPECIALLY OF WESTERN ORIGIN, to properly meet the growing requirements of the West, and to not only improve the present financial situation, but to materially assist in retaining, as much as possible, desirable business, with its resultant profits, within our own Western borders.

The business of fire insurance has now grown to such large proportions that it has become a very important factor in the financial and commercial world, and as its scope and influence is so general and widespread it is only natural to find that the question of AMPLE PROTECTION TO POLICYHOLDERS, which is the PRIMARY FUNCTION OF FIRE INSURANCE COMPANIES, should be so GENERALLY DISCUSSED AT THE PRESENT TIME.

This important subject has given rise to a very STRONG FEELING in Western Canada that the TIME HAS NOW ARRIVED when the Western people should organize a Fire Insurance Company of such strength and proportions that it will soon rank as one of the leading fire companies of America, and command general respect and confidence, which is so ESSENTIAL to a company that solicits the support and patronage of all classes of the community.

The Directors have every confidence that they will receive the hearty co-operation of not only Western citizens, but of people from every part of the Dominion, to build up a GREAT fire insurance company with AMPLE PROTECTION for the people, and which will be a source of pride and credit to our country.

The following Canadian Government Insurance statistics should prove of ESPECIAL INTEREST:

In the year 1869 the total amount of fire premiums collected in Canada was $1,785,539.00, whereas in the year 1909 the total premiums charged amounted to the large sum of $22,293,633.25, and of this amount $6,551,644.41 was charged by Canadian Companies, $11,518,267.45 by British Companies, and $4,223,721.39 by American Companies.

During the last forty-one years the aggregate amount of fire insurance premiums collected in Canada reached the immense total of $280,740,466.00, of which the large sum of $218,310,047.00 represents the amount of fire premiums collected by FOREIGN COUNTRIES, and which, therefore, was taken out of the country to build up foreign companies and enrich foreign shareholders.

Notwithstanding that a considerable portion of the fire premiums collected in Canada by Foreign Companies has been repaid to Canadian policyholders, through fire losses, it must be evident that the larger the proportion of Canadian fire insurance that is placed with Canadian Companies, the larger is the amount of capital retained in the Dominion and always available for investment purposes, to build up our Canadian financial institutions, and thereby add to the general wealth and prosperity of our country.

The above figures are most significant and clearly demonstrate that while the CANADIAN FIRE COMPANIES have been doing a satisfactory business they HAVE SECURED only a SMALL portion of the Fire Insurance transacted in Canada, or, to be more exact, ONLY TWENTY-TWO PER CENT. of THE TOTAL FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN CANADA, covering a period of the last forty-one years. With the extraordinary progress which Canada has been making during recent years, the field for financial institutions has become so widely extended that there is a CONSTANTLY INCREASING DEMAND for new large financial corporations.

By further reference to our Government statistics it will be observed that at December 31st, 1909, the total number of Canadian Fire Companies operating under Dominion charter was ONLY TWENTY-ONE, and of this number ONLY TWO HAD A PAID-UP CAPITAL IN EXCESS OF $500,000.

In promoting this large Canadian Company the Directors are fully confident that the new organization will, with characteristic Western energy and enterprise, soon come to be recognized as an important factor in the insurance world, and as The Canada National Fire will be instrumental in RETAINING WITHIN THE BOUNDARIES OF CANADA a large amount of money which would otherwise be taken out of the country to build up foreign corporations the people of the growing Dominion will readily see the advisability of giving this Company their MORAL AND FINANCIAL SUPPORT, in order that we may build up a STRONG and VIGOROUS Company which will prove a valuable acquisition to our Canadian monetary institutions.

This is the last opportunity to secure, direct from the Company, some of this desirable stock.

It is worthy of special note that the demand for the stock has exceeded the Directors' most sanguine expectations; in fact, of the $2,000,000 of stock to be issued, $1,650,000 has already been subscribed, and, from present indications, with the large number of applications for stock being received daily, the Directors are confident that the balance of the issue, which is now only $350,000, will be subscribed by August 26th, 1911, the date appointed for the closing of stock subscriptions.

For this reason, the Directors strongly recommend the investing public to mail their applications for stock at their earliest possible opportunity.

Subscribers are requested to kindly fill in attached application form, stating name in full, number of shares desired, occupation and address, and mail the application, along with the first call of Twenty-five Dollars ($25.00) per share on the stock, direct to the Head Office of the Company, Winnipeg, Man., or, if so desired, application may be made for the stock at any of the Company's Branch Offices or at any Branch of the Royal or Imperial Banks, where application blanks and any additional information will be readily furnished. Applications for stock will be considered in the order received, and on approval of the same by the Board of Directors a certificate for the number of shares subscribed will be issued and mailed the shareholders forthwith. Cheques, Drafts, Money Orders or other remittances on account of stock subscriptions should be made payable to The Canada National Fire Insurance Company.

A Great Postage Waste

Thirty-four thousand dollars in postage stamps is wasted every month by the people of the United States

This is shown by the report of Superintendent Young, of the dead letter office in the Postoffice Department. Mr. Young says that 1,000,000 post cards and 1,200,000 letters are received at the dead letter office every month. Exclusive of the cost of the souvenir postals, the 1-cent stamps used to carry them represent an investment of $10,000. No effort is made to return the postal cards. They are destroyed as soon as received. Of the letters, about 40 per cent are returned to the writer. Those remaining are destroyed.

At the present time dead letters weighing more than half a ton are on their way from Denver, Col. Many of the letters undoubtedly contain money and valuables. When the owners of articles of worth cannot be found, the goods are sold at public auction.

Chicago's Latest

Chicago is planning to reduce its fire waste by annually designating one day to be known as Fire Prevention Day. It was first proposed to select October 9, the date of the great Chicago fire, but a movable date seems advisable. This would enable the schools to take part, and would prevent the undesirable event of the date falling on Sunday or Monday. The date would be devoted to exhibits and instruction in fire prevention.

THE BIRTHDAY OF THE EARTH

A Trifle of Seven Hundred Million Years is Latest Calculation of World's Age and Canada Holds the Proof.

Many are the estimates that have been made as to the age of this earth of ours, and each new estimate pushes back its birthday still further into the mists of eternity. The latest calculation is made by Mr. R. J. Strutt, an English physicist, by a method that he considers precise.

Studying the properties of helium has enabled him to calculate the amount of this element that certain rocks and minerals have contained since the day they were formed. Analysing samples of zircon from the volcanic regions of Europe, Africa, and America, Mr. Strutt finds that the basaltic rocks of Auvergne, which are of the tertiary period, are only 6,270,000 years old; that the syenites of Norway are more than 54,000,000 years old, and that the diamondiferous blue clay of Kimberley, in South Africa, has the respectable age of 320,000,000 years.

But the record for old age is held by the archaic Laurentian rocks of the backbone of Canada, which were formed at least 622,000,000 years ago. From this Mr. Strutt figures that the earth cannot be less than about 700,000,000 years old.

Essential Disadvantages of Canadian Farmers.

At present the United States farmers have a great advantage over us. It costs 25c a bushel to send wheat into the United States. They can send their wheat into Canada for 12c a bushel, with rebate of 99 per cent. of duty when ground in bond. It costs us 30c to send a bushel of barley to the United States. They can ship barley into Canada for 15c. If we want to ship beans into the United States we have to pay 45c a bushel duty. The beans can come into Canada for 22c. They charge us 25c a bushel on the apples we send them. We charge them only 40c a barrel on what they send us. They charge us $4 a ton on the hay we send them. We charge them $2. They charge us 5c a pound on cheese, we charge them 3c. Thus it is with almost every farm product.

Under reciprocity these disadvantages will be wiped out, and we will be able to deal with them on an equal basis. Is not this worth while?

Home for Christmas

The Steamship Lines are expecting a large home-going exodus for the holiday season this year, and are making extensive preparations to take care of all of those who are planning to visit the Old Country.

The White Star-Dominion Line has arranged for three special Christmas sailings, viz. the "Canada" December 2nd, "Megantic" December 9th, and "Teutonic" December 14th, from Portland, Me., and Halifax, N. S., to take care of these passengers. These steamers will arrive in ample time to enable passengers to reach their homes before Christmas whether in England or on the Continent.

The railways have recognized the growing popularity of these annual Christmas excursions and now run special trains from Montreal and the west to connect with the steamers, and the most complete arrangements are made by both the steamship companies and the rail lines to further the comfort of the homeward bound ones during the holiday season.

An Interesting Booklet.

The Times is in receipt of a very interesting booklet dealing with the Maritime Provinces as a promising field for those who desire to establish new industries, or to profitably invest capital in the exploitation and development of natural resources. The obvious advantages of many parts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia are ably presented in detail, together with many cheerful facts that ought to impress those who have capital ready to invest in a new field that is certainly rich in opportunity. It is commendable that while the eyes of the world are upon Canada, and thousands of new settlers are pouring into the West from many countries, an honest effort is being made to point out the advantages that exist in the east. The booklet will be mailed free to those who write the Industrial Department Intercolonial Railway, Moncton, N. B.

Grand Trunk Opening New Territory

The new territory in the Canadian Rocky Mountains that is being opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway has already become the Mecca for a number of Alpine Climbers and those who love to get away from the turmoil of the busy city and explore mountain fastnesses that are practically unknown. Some of the travellers who have gone into this Yellow Head Pass territory are now returning, and one gentleman writes to the Grand Trunk Pacific Headquarters as follows:—"Lake Maligne is a beautiful lake between 16 and 18 miles long. I have visited all the other transcontinental lines both in Canada and the United States, and there is no lake or district along any of these lines that can compare with the Lake Maligne country. Some of the mountains around the lake are in the neighborhood of 12,000 feet. Lake Maligne is reached from Henry House a few miles west of Pittsburgh, the Second Divisional point, and covered with ice fields which make them very beautiful."

CANNIBALS OF NEW GUINEA

Another Scientific Expedition Will Shortly Visit British New Guinea to Study Habits and Customs of Natives.

Mr. D. Jenness, of Balliol College, England, is about to leave on a scientific expedition in British New Guinea. The undertaking, which has been organised by the University, and the cost of which is being borne by private subscribers, will involve at least twelve months' work. The objects are chiefly anthropological. From New Zealand Mr. Jenness will proceed to the extreme south-easterly corner of British New Guinea, to which region work will be confined. The headquarters will be on Goodenough Island, the most northerly part of the D'Entrecasteaux Archipelago. There it is intended to study the habits and customs, the arts and religion of the inhabitants, who are thought to be an intermixture of the Melanesian and Papuan peoples. The district selected has been specially chosen, as although it is the most accessible portion of Papua for such an expedition it remains absolutely unexplored. There is a mission station on the coast, and occasionally the Government officials land, but the interior has never been explored. It is known that [illegible] exist

THE GOLD FIELDS OF BRITAIN

Thousands of Britishers Explore the Wilds Abroad for Gold Neglectful of Various Mining Spots at Home.

According to a paper read by Mr. J. M. MacLaren before the Institute of Mining and Mechanical Engineers, native gold has been found in most of the Cornish tin-streams flowing to the south. In Devon the existence of gold has been known for many centuries, the principal auriferous locality being at North Molton. Gold has also been found at Goldscope, Cumberland, and Whalton, Somerset. In Merionethshire, gold-mining has been actively carried on for many years, and the actual value of the gold produced from 1887 to 1901 amounted to nearly $1,450,000.

There are many Scottish gold localities, but the chief is the district of Leadhills, Southern Lanarkshire. The gold of this area is found in the streams as fine dust; but small nuggets also occur, the largest on record having a weight of twenty-seven ounces.

In Ireland, Wicklow appears to be the most notable gold locality. The largest nugget found there was picked up by a party of peasants in 1795, and weighed twenty-two ounces.

The total yield of gold in Great Britain and Ireland, with the exception of the Leadhills area, is estimated at $2,500,000, nearly half of which has been obtained during the past twenty years.

AUGUSTA STOWE GULLEN.

Miss Stowe was the first Canadian woman to study and graduate in medicine in the Dominion, the first to take a degree in that branch of study from a Canadian University, and the first to receive an appointment on the teaching staff of a Medical College in this country. In 1883 she graduated from Victoria University, Cobourg, and in the same year when the Ontario Medical College for Women was founded at Toronto, Dr. Stowe Gullen was chosen Demonstrator of Anatomy, a work she continued during the history of the College.

Clothes to Float You.

A remarkable demonstration was given the other day in the Spree, near Berlin, of a new fabric designed to make clothing so buoyant that it will keep its wearer afloat in the water The composition of the invention which brings about this result is a well-guarded secret. To don a garment lined with it is to become unsinkable. On the occasion in mention infantrymen, in full marching kit, clad in uniforms lined with the material, which rendered the clothing neither heavier nor thicker than usual, threw themselves into the water, and not only did not sink, but were able to "march" in the water and to fire. At the same time coffee was served to a party in the water, waiter and guests being clad in the special fabric.

THESE COME OF OLD FAMILIES

Residents of Britain Today Who Can Reliably Trace Their Genealogy Back to the Twelfth Century.

There is, of course, a good deal of truth suggested by the familiar and oft-quoted couplet—

When Adam delved and Eve span,
Who was then the gentleman?

But, like a great many other truisms, the suggested answer to the question is only a half-truth; for, though it goes without saying that we could no doubt trace ourselves back to a common stock, the fact remains that most people cannot get very far back into their family history. It speaks, therefore, very strongly for the stability of a family, and for the capacity of its members to hold their own in the ups and downs of the centuries, when a genealogy can be traced far back into the early days of our history.

Perhaps the most interesting lineage, as it is certainly one of the most ancient in England today, is that of family of Wake, of Courteen Hall, Northampton. This is one of the oldest now existing in the male line in England, being directly traceable to the celebrated Hereward the Wake, son of Leofric, Earl of Mercia, and Lady Godiva of Coventry fame. It is not remarkable that in the family which boasts "the last of the English" as its founder, the name of Hereward, Herewald, or Herwild should be of frequent occurrence, and a Herewald Wake nobly sustained the honour of the name during the Indian Mutiny when, although a civilian, he held the Puckah House at Arrah against the Sepoys. A daughter of this house was mother of Joan (the Fair Maid of Kent), the wife of Edward the Black Prince; and Sir John Wake, with characteristic loyalty to a falling cause, mortgaged his estate to raise a troop of horse for Charles I.

Another very long pedigree is that of the Cornish family of Salusbury, Trelawny. The name is taken from Trelawne, in Cornwall, which one Eduni, an ancestor of the present family, possessed in the reign of Edward the Confessor. To this family belonged the Right Reverend Sir Jonathan Trelawny, Bishop of Bristol, who was one of the seven bishops committed to the Tower by James II.

The family of Scott of Ancrum, in Roxburghshire, boast an antique and singularly romantic history. "Uchredus, filius Scote" was witness to the foundation of Holyrood Abbey in 1128, and it was to this house that there belonged the famous wizard, Michael Scott, mentioned in the "Lay of the Last Minstrel," and also, as is probably less generally known, in Dante's "Inferno."

Few people can claim a more distinguished origin than the house of Perrott of Plumstead in Kent, said to be of ancient British descent. The founder of this family, the British Edwal, Lord of Penfro, married a grand-daughter of Alfred the Great, and the son of the marriage first took the name "de Perot" from his castle in Armorica. A later Perrott was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland in the reign of Elizabeth, and the family took a vigorous part on the Royalist side during the Civil War.

Cleopatra's Needle.

The London County Council have erected a scaffold round Cleopatra's Needle, and cleansing operations are in progress. The monolith had its last rub down some fifteen years ago. It is to be feared that the London atmosphere is beginning to tell upon the sharpness of the hieroglyphic inscriptions, and nobody has yet completely solved the problem of preserving stone or even granite surfaces against sulphuric acid deposits. The County Council's chemist has been giving attention to the matter, and he has advised the use of paraffin wax as a protective coating. The monument will therefore be scrubbed all over with water and the paraffin wax will be afterwards applied. The column, which was placed on the Embankment thirty-three years ago, is about 67 feet high.

BRIEF BUT INSTRUCTIVE

Never trust a friend in business.

Whatever is good for humanity comes from ambition and the struggle for life.

It has been said that there are three sexes: Men, women, and educated women.

You can achieve no laurels in any career if you will not scorn delights and live laborious days.

The real joys of life are found in the simple things which rich and poor alike have within their reach.

Idleness and ignorance amongst women, with the frivolity and waste they cause, are dangers to the community.

True patriotism begins not with Empire, but with home and school and suburbs and city, working outward.

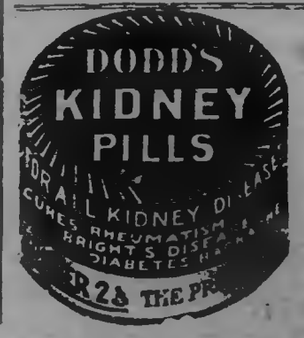
The cleverest man imaginable, with the utmost possible knowledge, is a perfect nuisance if he is not "straight."

There can be no more demoralising idea than to suppose that the honours of life are all dispensed by the goddess of luck.

We are sent into the world to be supremely happy, and, if we do not achieve this, we make a hopeless muddle of things.

Train Versus Elephant

Among the remarkable photographs published in the last official report of the Federated Malay States Railways were two, showing the wreck of a passenger train and the wild elephant which caused it. The animal, apparently frightened by the noise of the approaching train, started to cross the track, and was struck by the engine. The force of the impact was sufficient to throw the engine and tender from the track. The elephant was almost instantly killed by the force of the blow and thrown into a ditch.



The Morning Times

LOWERING THE WAGE RATE.

It is at least interesting to note that there is a widespread opinion among United States bankers that the notable liquidation of stocks on the New York market points to an approaching readjustment of the wage-scale of the country, and consequent labor troubles on a large scale. At the present stage of the world's history it is useless to expect workmen to understand that their remuneration must ebb and flow in consonance with the current of actual business. This fact it is which militates against the spread of the co-operative movement. Men are willing enough to share in profit taking, but are simply unable to participate in the losses incidental to bad times. Homes have to be maintained, food, rent, and clothing must be paid for all the time. The workmen simply cannot co-operate with owners in this respect. Nor can he easily accommodate himself to serious changes in the wage rate, since his living rate is on the whole a fixed one, not to be easily, or readily reduced.

No doubt the workingmen are learning these matters through the experience of strikes and lockouts. Though we are told by those who understand the situation as the United States Steel Corporation sees it that the workmen are anticipating trouble along those lines and are preparing to resist the proposed liquidation

"The millmen of the Pittsburg district are not organized to a noticeable extent, but nevertheless, when a reduction in wages is ordered the unorganized are as resentful as those affiliated with labor unions. A conflict between employer and employee seems on the calendar of future events, but it will not have such a depressing effect as some of the bears predict. Workmen are better educated than at any time to the country's history, and they can readily see that they cannot uphold wages when the country is going through a process of readjustment along all lines. The workmen realize that to liquidate wages will bring about a lowering of the prices of commodities, and this feature they are anxious to have materialize."

It will probably be some time, however, before the law laid down by Karl Marx, that the rate of living increases or decreases with the rate of wages, will be understood by the ordinary workmen.

There can be no doubting the fact that at present the high wages paid in the States is telling against the industrial prosperity of the nation. Great Britain's trade policy provides the cheaper scale of living for her laborers and her commerce thrives accordingly.

Germany by her low rate of cost of production is becoming one of the world's greatest exporters. If the foreign trade of the United States is to increase proportionately its production rate must decrease, according to the best authorities. Now that the earth has got back into a state of equilibrium after the Russo-Japanese war, and other cataclysms, we are in the realm of strict competition once more. It appears to be inevitable that wages will fall, and equally clear that labor troubles will follow. Canada can hardly hope to escape all connection with the immediate results, for here also the wage rate is rather dangerously high. In all probability, bankers are right in preparing for such eventualities now. If they could only be made to understand it, workmen will really not suffer any real or great loss. The living rate will submissively follow the wage rate in declining. Workers will not handle quite as much money, but its purchasing power will increase, probably, proportionately. The farmers may have to submit to lower prices, and probably after their long run of prosperity they can well afford to do so.

STANDARD OIL HIT.

Estimates of the probable showing in the matter of earnings of the Standard Oil properties after dissolution vary considerably. Wall Street heard last week that some of the officials believe that there will be little or no falling off from the earnings that have been made in past years by the companies as part of the one great organization. However, one director is of the opinion that the new conditions are going to cost about $10,000,000 in profits. In other words, early estimates of a much heavier loss have been revised. In this connection a director was quoted as saying that the profits of the company in one year recently were over $100,000,000. In 1906 they were reported at over $80,000,000 and they have been supposed to have been running along at about that rate since. This statement that in one year they were over $100,000,000 throws a new light on the earning capacity of the company. The Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, the holding company, which is left with control of about 30 companies aside from the business which it conducts itself, which showed nearly $10,000,000 profit in 1906, will still be the largest unit in the new order. It is expected to show more than half the profits of all the companies.

A NAVY REFERENDUM.

Far apart as were Mr. Borden on the one hand and Messrs. Monk and Bourassa on the other hand with regard to the question of imperial naval defence, there was one point on which they agreed, says the Hamilton Herald. This point was the desirability of a referendum on the naval question. If Mr. Borden were obliged to depend upon the Nationalist vote in parliament to keep him in office, no doubt he and the Nationalist leader would come to an agreement on the naval question by taking this common ground of the referendum.

But, although Mr. Borden will not be dependent on the Nationalist vote, he cannot afford to ignore his pre-election utterances as to the desirability of consulting the people about the naval policy. And if Mr. Monk is to be a member of the new ministry, a referendum will have to be taken, for that is the course which Mr. Monk insisted upon and made his fight on. We are therefore likely before long to be called on to say by our votes what we think that Canada should do in regard to this matter of imperial naval defence.

The Herald has already said something about the difficulty of obtaining an accurate expression of public opinion on this question. We cannot yet understand how the thing is to be done, and are rather curious to see how Mr. Borden is going to do it. Possibly he will be able, with the able assistance of his colleagues, to draft a question for the voters which will be so comprehensive and so skilfully framed as to enable each voter to express by his vote just what he thinks the government ought to do in the matter of naval defence. But if the prospective premier can succeed in doing that, he need have no fear of tackling any other task that will call into play all his powers of constructive statesmanship.

INCREASED COST OF LIVING.

An interesting suggestion is made in London in regard to the increased cost of living, which, like an earth wave, has sent a tremor throughout Europe, causing food riots in France an outcry against the butchers in Belgium, and protests against dearer meat and milk in Germany, while it is largely responsible for the labor unrest in England. This suggestion is that the enormous output of gold in recent years has upset the balance of prices and that the world has not yet shaken itself down to a true adjustment. Statistics show conclusively that in England, on the Continent, and in North America nearly all the commoner and most necessary articles of food have been steadily rising in price since the century opened. Meat, especially bacon, in England, the poor man's favorite food; milk, bread, and sugar all cost more. It is calculated that there is a 10 per cent. increase in the weekly budget of household expenses in England Prof. Chapman at the meeting of the British Association predicted that the next three years would be an era of strikes, dues to the fact that, whereas up to 1896 the cost of living had been falling it had since then been rising.

TO SAFEGUARD THE SAILOR
Dangerous and Tedious Duties of the Lightshipmen Who Point Jack the Way Past the Rocks to Port in Safety.

Sailors say that there is a little cherub sitting up aloft in their rigging to keep and guard over Jack Tar. The real guardians of those who go down to the sea in ships are the brave fellows who man the lighthouses.

Ships passing outward to sea, or inward to port, are guided on their way at night by the beams flashed from these lighthouses, or warned to steer clear of the dangerous rock upon which the lighthouse stands. In fair weather and in foul the lighthouse casts over the sea its unspoken message of guidance, encouragement, and warning. It seems like some unfailing machine, and few people can realize that in that lonely watch-tower are men, imprisoned, week after week, perhaps month after month. It is a man who lights the lamps and keeps them burning, but he is so removed from the everyday affairs of life that he is hardly ever included in the company of heroes to which he belongs.

Only men of exceptional character are chosen for these distant posts. They undergo a long training on land, in the management of the machinery which controls the lamps, and in all the routine of lighthouse duty; they are taught to cook, to sew, to keep house, for there are no women to cook and mend for them in the lighthouses. When they have had all this training, they are sent from place to place to the less lonely lighthouses, until they are finally qualified for the more isolated ones.

There may be more than three men in the big lighthouses, where there is machinery to manage for the production of gas or electricity, for the winding of clocks, the manipulation of the lamps, and so forth. There are never too many. Six or seven years ago the three men of the Flannan Lighthouse, in the Hebrides, Scotland, disappeared, and to this day we can only guess their end. For several nights the lamps were seen to be unlighted, but nobody could approach, owing to a storm.

When the storm passed away the light still failed to shine. Men went off in a boat, but not one of the lighthouse crew could be found nor have they ever been found. Two hundred feet distant from the lighthouse there is a recess, cut for the reception of lighthouse ropes and implements. It is supposed that the three men, seeing these latter in danger of being washed away by the storm, went down to make them secure, and were themselves swept to death.

LIST ON APPLICATION.

Peterborough Branch, George Street
G. C. WAINWRIGHT, Manager

SUCCESSFULY RESCUED

Mr. Harry Gibson, of Kingston, was rescued from an enemy that had relentlessly pursued him for years

Mr. Gibson was born and brought up in Kingston. By profession he is a school teacher. He received his training in Queen's University, where he took a course in arts and medicine that well befits him to talk on almost any subject.

The enemy that for 25 years relentlessly pursued Mr. Gibson is a menace to our entire population—it is the demon, Catarrh.

Mr. Gibson says :—"For years I was never free from Catarrh of the nose and throat. It bothered me winter and summer and kept me so continually coughing and hawking that I found it a great impediment to the proper performance of my duties at school. I used every available means of obtaining a cure, took bottle after bottle of medicine prescribed by local doctors, but never got more than temporary relief. I consulted a well-known specialist in the States, but after spending a considerable amount of money with him to no advantage, was forced to look elsewhere for relief, which I first received from Catarrhozone.

I consider Catarrhozone a genuine cure for Catarrh. It drove that loathsome disease completely out of my system, and to-day I am as well as if I never knew what the word Catarrh implied."

A straightforward proof of cure, coming from a well-known gentleman like Mr. Gibson carries conviction of the fact with it that Catarrhozone does all that is claimed for it. As a cure for Catarrh and Bronchitis it positively has no equal. All druggists, price $1.00 ; small size, 25c. By mail from The Catarrhozone Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

DOG STEALS DIAMONDS.

A Pet Dog Scatters Washington Woman's Bag of Gems.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 9. — Diamonds valued at $14,000 were carried out of the home of Mrs. Robert I. Miller yesterday by her fox terrier. Last night Mrs. Miller discovered that a chamois bag containing the gems had disappeared from her bed, where she had kept it for safety.

The police were notified and after considerable search the gems were found in the yard, where the dog had scattered them. All except two or three of the jewels were recovered, and it is feared that the terrier swallowed them.

$400,000 Refused.

London, October 9.—The famous Ashley Library, which includes the finest collection of English poetry in the world, containing the rarest editions of the great poets, with manuscripts and annotated works of high importance, was recently offered to J. Pierpont Morgan, who was willing to pay £80,000 ($400,000) for it.

It is understood that this sum is not considered adequate, and that the collection will come into the market.

K. J. Martin is Now a Judge.

Ottawa, Ont., Oct. 7.—Kenneth J. Martin, barrister, Charlottetown, P. E.I., has been appointed judge of the city court of Charlottetown. The appointment is dated in the official gazette announcement September 29.

CANADA'S VOTE HELPS THE EMPIRE AT LARGE

CANADA'S SPIRIT.

"I hope that our people will find a spirit in which we must approach this question (the imperial preference), the broad decision reached by the Canadian people. The Canadian division extended far beyond the borders of Canada, and must have beneficial results for the empire at large.

"The decision of Canada shows how impossible it is to maintain the present system of things."

Ex-Premier Balfour at Haddington, Scotland.

Haddington, Scotland, Oct. 7.—A. J. Balfour fired the first gun in Conservative opposition to what may be termed the second act of "The Revolution," before an immense meeting of the Unionist Association this afternoon at [redacted].

Strong factional opposition to his leadership, which was kindled by his advice to the lords to accept the veto bill, has accused him publicly of weakness on the tariff reform issue and his announcement on this point was important. He came out strongly for imperial preference.

"I hope" said Mr. Balfour, "that our people will find the spirit in which we must approach this question in the broad decision reached by the Canadian people. The Canadian decision extended far beyond the borders of Canada, and must have beneficial results for the empire at large. The decision of Canada shows how impossible it is to maintain the present system of things.

"Our colonies are not believers in the system spoken of as free trade. Unless this country meets the situation we will have Canada, Australia, New Zealand and other great communities making their separate commercial tariffs with other countries. This country will awake some fine morning to find that these great communities, loyal as they are, having instituted a system of tariffs in which we will find ourselves at adisadvantage. Such a state of affairs must have a fatal effect upon the unity of the British Empire."

Mr. Balfour declares that a system of commercial defence was as necessary as any other defence, but he did not propose any plan. He specified home rule and disestablishment as constituting "the second act of Liberals' attempted revolution." The Conservative party must not, he said leave the constitution in the mud where the Liberals had put it, but must rebuild and strengthen the second chamber with a representative element.

CHAMP CLARK FOR PRESIDENT

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 7.—Chairman Eorman E. Mack of the Democratic National Committee in the October number of the National Monthly, presents Speaker Champ Clark of the House of Representatives as a possible candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Chairman Mack's list of possibilities now includes Governor Woodrow Wilson, of New Jersey, Governor Judson Harmon of Ohio, Governor Thomas R. Marshall of Indiana, Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, Col. John A. Dix of New York and Speaker Champ Clark.

BAYLISS COMPANY WILL MOVE TO CANADA.

Binghampton, N.Y., Oct. 6.—The Bayliss Pulp and Paper Company, whose dam wrecked the village of Austin, will transfer its plant from the Pennsylvania town to Canada, where the corporation has recently purchased a large tract of timber lands, according to a statement made by the company officials.

The move was contemplated before the recent disaster, because of the elimination of Pennsylvania forests and a scarcity of wood pulp material.

It was expected that the transfer would be made within the next five years, but last Saturday's disaster has hastened the removal plans.

It is doubtful if any effort will be made to reconstruct the broken dam.

MAN'S INFATUATION ENDED IN MURDER.

Joseph Speilman Shot Mrs. Flora Kirsch on New York Street.

New York, Oct. 6.—A man's unrequited love for a married woman caused a double tragedy here to-day. Joseph Speilman, 36 years old, met Mrs. Flora Kirsch, 11 years his junior, on the street, and after an argument shot her twice, while the woman tried to get away. When a crowd surrounded him and prevented his escape, Spe,lman fired a bullet through his head. Both probably will die. Friends of the Kirsch family said that Speilman had tried unsuccessfully to induce the young wife to run away with him.

THE LAND OF GREAT SORROWS

We left the cook house without referring to this again. A light shone dully through the store window near-est us, as we walked toward our cabin, and just short of the door Barreau turned inside.

"I may as well go over and tell him that the brothers Grau have gone over to the enemy," he said to me. "Come along, Bob, and see him squirm. He always does when he is stabbed in such a vital point as the purse. That's a veritable heel of Achilles with him."

Montell was alone. He stood with his back to the fire, legs spread apart, hands clasped behind him. He looked very well satisfied with himself. His little eyes surveyed us placidly from under the blinking, puffy lids.

"Well, George, you're back, eh?" he observed. "How's everything below?"

"Very well, I dare say," Barreau answered, during the process of making a cigarette, "from the other fellow's point of view."

Montell's eyelids drew a little nearer together.

"How's that?" he inquired, in his mildest manner.

And Barreau, when he had found a box to his liking and seated himself on it beside the fire, proceeded to tell him very much as he had told me. The two of them eyed each other a few seconds. Then Montell bit the end off the cigar he had tucked in one corner of his thick-lipped mouth, and spat it viciously into the fireplace.

"Damn 'em!" he snarled. But whether the company or the two Frenchmen, he did not specify—perhaps both. Barreau laughed softly.

"Don't let your angry passions rise," he sneered. "Temper always induces apoplexy in fat people. A man of your beefy tendency should be very careful."

Montell's heavy jowl quivered slightly, and his jaws clamped together. Aside from that, he kept an impassive front. With that last shot, Barreau turned his gaze to the fire, and, as Montell stood staring intently before him, there was an interval of silence. In the hush, a scuffling sound arose in the rear of the store.

"Them darned rats," Montell muttered.

He cocked his head aside and stood in a listening attitude. I saw his glance flit furtively from me to Barreau, and then to a table standing just back from the hearth. For the first time I noticed then that a rifle lay upon it, the general direction of the muzzle toward Barreau. Again he looked swiftly from me to George, and then stared straight away into the black shadows that shrouded the far end of the long room. Once more the rustling and scraping sounds could be heard.

"Them darned rats," he repeated. "They'll eat us out before spring."

He left the fire and stole softly back among the shadows, whence presently came the noise of something being thrown, followed by Montell's voice cursing the rats.

Barreau had not once turned his head. But I watched Mr. Simon Montell, because I expected anything to happen. And I distinctly saw the rifle shift its position when he passed the table end, as if he had accidentally brushed against the projecting stock. Accidentally or otherwise, the muzzle then pointed straight at Barreau. And so I reached over and gave the rifle a hitch that pointed it toward the opposite wall, just as Montell returned from his rat hunting.

"By thunder, I'd oughto took that to 'em," he declared—as if he had just noticed the rifle.

He placed himself before the fire again. In a minute or so came the subdued rustling of the rats. Montell winked at me, picked up the rifle, cocked it, and went tiptoeing toward the rear. Barreau came out of his study at the click of the hammer. He flashed a quick glance after Montell. Then quietly he moved his box backward till his body, when he seated himself, was no longer clearly outlined in the firelight.

The rat activities ceased. After a time Montell came poking back again, carrying the rifle in his right hand. As he reached the end of the table, so close to me that I could have touched him, and within six feet of Barreau, he stumbled, pitched sharply forward, and the report of the gun went booming up to the ridge logs overhead.

With the forward lurch of Montell's body, Barreau cast himself backward like an uncoiled spring, and fell full length, thus escaping the bullet. He made no attempt to rise, simply rolled over on his side. For an instant a pistol glinted in his hand, and his thin lips were drawn back from his white, even teeth. As quickly as he had drawn it, he thrust the six-shooter back out of sight. His habitual unruffled expression came back to his face as Montell got upon his feet, leaving the rifle upon the floor. Barreau sat up then.

"By the great horn spoon!" Montell stammered. "I—I oughtc be kicked. By geah, I thought that hammer was down. Dam me for a careless fool, anyhow, runnin' round with a loaded gun and stumblin' over a little piece of wood. I'd no idee I was so blamed clumsy. I guess I'm gettin' old, all right."

Barreau laughed, a cold-blooded, unmirthful sound. He got up from his sitting posture, laid hold of the rifle, and stood it against the wall beside him. Then he sat down on his box, and felt with his fingers till he located the bullet hole. It was embedded in the log, on a level with his breast.

"Clumsy?" he said, in a voice absolutely without inflection. "Well, yes; it was rather clumsy."

Montell was facing the light, now. Barreau got up from his box again, and Montell took a step backward. Thus for a half minute the two faced each other silently, gray eye pitting itself against cold steel-blue. Montell weakened under that direct, contemptuous glare. His glance sought me in a furtive way, and his fat, pudgy hands began to fidget nervously.

"Dont do it again, Montell," Barreau said slowly, and his tone was like a slap in the face.

Then he sat down upon the box and rolled himself another cigarette.

CHAPTER XVI.

Claws Unsheathed.

The heavy log walls must have muffled the shot completely; for, contrary to my expectations, no inquiring faces came poking in at the door. In pure defiance, I believe, Barreau kept his place by the fire, smoking placidly till it wore on to ten o'clock. Then Montell, pursing up his lips, put on his overcoat and left without a word. Shortly after that Cullen came in, followed by Ben Wise. They slept in the store, one at each end. At their entrance, Barreau drew the parka hood about his ears, and we took our departure.

I stretched myself on my bunk, and wrapped the blankets and a rabbit-skin robe about me; but Barreau sat on the edge of his bed, staring into the candle flame like a man who sought for the answer to a riddle.

"If those company men made the same proposition to Montell," he broke out suddenly, "that they made to me, it is ten to one that Montell stands ready to deliver the goods. That would account for the baldness of that play to-night."

"He did mean it, then?" I had so far given Montell the benefit of the doubt, despite a growing conviction that he had stumbled purposely.

"Why, of course; that's obvious, isn't it?" Barreau declared. "You know he did. Else why did you move that gun after he'd very artfully contrived to point it my way?"

"So you were watching him, after all?" said I.

"I always watch him," he answered dryly.

"I feel sure that he sees—or thinks he sees—the way clear, once I'm attended to," Barreau continued. "I've been looking for this very thing. It came to me that day we struck the pack trail. You remember? I started to tell you, and changed my mind."

I nodded.

"It struck me," he went on, "that, if the company offered him the same terms they did me, he would jump at it. They offered me forty thousand dollars to get out of the game, to give them a bill of sale of my interest — and they would take care of my partner.' You see? Now, I'm satisfied they wouldn't incorporate that last clause in any offer to Montell. I'm not boasting when I say that from the beginning I've been the thorn in the company's flesh. Every time they've locked horns with me, I've come out on top. They might offer him forty thousand, but he'd have to guarantee them against me. And I think that performance to-night is a sample of how he will try to clear the way."

"To put it baldly," I said, "you think he'll kill you out of hand, if he gets a chance to do it in a way that won't prove a boomerang?"

"Exactly," Barreau observed.

"Then," I suggested, and even as the words were on my tongue I stood amazed at the ruthless streak they seemed to uncover, "why not catch him at it — and do the killing yourself? There's no law here to restrain him, apparently. Be your own law if you know you're right."

"I can't," Barreau muttered. Not that my conscience would ever trouble me. He's protected in a way he doesn't dream of. And he's too wary of me to lay himself liable. If anything happens it will be an accident; you know how it would have been to-night. You, sitting right there, could not have declared it otherwise, no matter what your private opinion might have been. He has pretty well calculated the chances. No, Mr. Montell is not going to put himself in any position where I'd be clearly justified in snuffing him."

For a minute or so he sat silent, frowning at the candle on the table between my bunk and his.

"How he would bait me," he went on presently, "if he knew that killing him is the one thing I desire to avoid, at any cost! I hope it doesn't come to that. It would be only just, but I have no wish to mete out justice to him. His miserable life is safe from me, for her sake—no, I'll be honest—for my own. I want him to live, till I can compel him to tell her a few truths that she will never believe except from his own lips. I could have forestalled all this. But I didn't suspect he was toiling her on — for a purpose."

He stopped again. It was not the first time that Barreau had touched upon that theme, and always his tongue had been stricken with a semi-paralysis just short of complete revelation. And though I was humanly curious enough to want the par-

RUBY MINES AT DISCOUNT

Nature's Secret of Precious Stone Manufacture Said to Have Been Laid Bare and Big Slump in Prices is Promised.

Attempts to manufacture diamonds in the laboratory have drawn the attention of the public from time to time, notably in connection with a recent lawsuit. The rich harvest which awaits the successful and not too scrupulous experimenter, and the extraordinary political consequences which must follow upon any sudden collapse of the diamond market and of the diamond mining industry, are absolutely startling to think of; certainly both rewards and consequences would be out of all proportion to the scientific value of the achievement. Yet there is reason to believe that before many years have passed the "synthetic diamond" may be as much a reality as the synthetic ruby is today. But the public will not be allowed to hear of the discovery at once — the process will be kept secret as long as possible in order to maintain high prices, — and it is pretty safe to prophecy that ten times as many swindles will be perpetrated with the synthetic diamond as there have been with the synthetic ruby. Even yet, although the industry has been in full swing for several years, and all the essential points of the process are known, the general public has not awakened to the fact that rubies of the finest quality and of the purest "pigeon's blood" colour, as well as sapphires, spinelles, and chrysoberyls, are being turned out in quantity from several laboratories in France and Germany. It is extremely difficult to get people to understand that these products are not imitation rubies — they are quite different from the red "paste" which masquerades as ruby in the cheaper sorts of jewellery. The new products are real rubies in every sense of the term, but they have been made by man, not by nature.

APPLES OF GOLD IN TASMANIA

Great Apple-Growing Centre Opening Up in Australia and Orchard-Owners on this Continent Will Have to Keep Awake.

Recent enlightenment has shown that Tasmania, which is one of the States of the Commonwealth, has a considerable area of splendid land suitable for agriculture and fruit-growing situated in the Great Tamar Valley, near the city of Launceston. This Tamar Valley is destined, in a few years, to be more famed for the production of apples than Oregon and Washington, or the Pacific slopes of U.S.A. Cox's "apples of gold" from this district, are among the choicest fruits, and have been selling in Great Britain recently at over $5.00 per bushel case, after over 12,000 miles in cool storage.

The River Tamar extends over 34 miles; in parts it is two miles wide, and is a great attraction for pleasure seekers. Some of the land here has recently been sold at low figures, but prices are rising owing to the greater knowledge of its value as fruit land. This locality has originally been settled by hardy pioneers from the River Tamar and the town of Launceston in Cornwall, England, from which places the local names have been derived. The climate has plenty of sunshine and no great extremes; in fact, it may be summed up in one word, "ideal"; also the rainfall is from 30 to 35 inches per annum.

The land is being readily taken up by settlers from the various countries of Great Britain, Canada, India, and other parts.

To Keep Youthful

"It is well known that within recent years the men have become extensive patrons of beauty specialists and masseurs. Not only the fastidious, but men generally who have a care for personal appearance. This has also led to the employment by many of means calculated to enhance or preserve physical attractiveness, especially by those who abhor "beauty parlors."

Of these, perhaps the most widely used is ordinary mercolized wax — which explain the mystery of the silver-haired gentleman with the boyish face. The mercolized wax, is applied after shaving, the same as cold cream, only not rubbed in. This gradually absorbs the dead and half-dead cuticle in tiny particles, revealing the fresher, healthier-hued skin beneath. To secure best results many apply the wax at night, washing it off in the morning. Women not only encourage husbands in this, but use the treatment themselves.

Gordon's Cigar-Case

Major-General Sir John Maxwell has received from an Italian, who has just come from Khartoum, General Gordon's cigar-case. The case is a plain brown leather one, and has evidently seen much service, although it is in good condition. As the outer portion is pulled back the name "C. E. Gordon" in black ink is seen. When Sir John Maxwell received the case there were two cigars in it.

Better to Die Young

A man was engaged to play in a drama once, and after the first rehearsal the stage manager said—"I'm going to change your part a little. Instead of having you killed in the last act I think it would be better if it was done in the first act. I'd rather have you killed in the first act by the villain than take the chance with the audience later on."

"Bill" Should Know

Sir William Lyne, a pioneer of female suffrage in Australia, in addressing British voteless ladies in the London Pavilion, referred to the fantastic prophecies that have been falsified in the Commonwealth. One of them was that the enfranchised women would especially favor some good-looking candidates. They have really sent "some ugly men" into the Commonwealth parliament. Sir William should know. He is himself known in Australia as "Plain Bill."

WHO'S WHO IN CANADA

R. L. BORDEN

The history-in-a-nut-shell of Canada's new Premier is worth placing before the public at the present time when the press of the country is concentrating its attention more to the happenings of recent days, and to forecasting with more or less foundation the probabilities of his immediate future.

Born on June 26 1854 at Grand Pre, the son of Andrew Borden and Eunice Laird, the future premier had his early education at Acadia Villa Academy, Horton; was subsequently professor in Glenwood Institute; on return to Nova Scotia he studied law and in 1878 was admitted to the bar

ROBERT LAIRD BORDEN
Canada's New Premier

became head of the law firm of Borden, Ritchie and Chisholm, Halifax, and was for ten years president of the N. S. Barristers' Society; created Q. C. 1900; Hon. LL.D. (Queen's) 1903; Hon. LL.D. (St. Francois-Xavier (1905); elected to the H. of C. for Halifax 1896 and 1900; unsuccessful candidate for Halifax 1904; elected by acclamation for Carleton, Ont., 1905, in place of Edward Kidd retired; re-elected by large majority at general election and also elected for Halifax; chosen leader of Conservative party in H. of C. 1901. Is a member of the Church of England, and as recreation has been known to fill in some idle moments at golf, cricket and fish chasing.

"ANDY" BRODER, of Dundas

Mr. Andrew Broder first saw the light of day at Franklin Centre, Que., on 18 April 1846, and was educated at Malone, N.B., and Huntingdon Academy, Que., subsequently transferring to the Dundas district where he has since continued to coax a fairly comfortable living from the land, being, indeed, recognised as one of the particularly intelligent members of that section of humanity which sticks by the original working programme of Father Adam of ancient and historic fame. With a natural business aptitude, full of the humor that never gives offence, sporting a delightful Irish brogue, and with that fondness for politics which is accredited to every second member of Erin's big family, Mr. Broder is one of the really popular men in his district, and indeed over many miles both near and far.

For a time he acted as Collector of Customs at Morrisburg, Ont., but resigned in 1896 to take a seat in the Commons where he has been noted as a speaker with few equals, quiet, but incisive in style with wonderfully appealing perorations. Mr. Broder is married and has three sons and one daughter.

As portraying one phase of a pre-eminently "straight" sample of the human family, — not too often met with — the story is worth re-telling of how Mr. Broder, on one occasion, set himself a very stiff task in order that only a clean name could be associated with his family. Some of Mr Broder's relatives died and left debts. These debts preyed upon the mind of Andrew in his young days. "The name of Broder will be clean," he said to himself. "These debts will be paid." He sacrified everything to that end, the hard-earned pence which he managed to save brought down the debt but slowly. He could have made success for himself had the money which he paid away been utilized as capital with which to further his own progress, but Andrew put away the temptation from him, and in due time was able to point to a clean family slate.

Mexico Oil

The Mexican Oil Fields, will probably break all records in the production of oil. The largest oil wells in the world are now flowing in the Tampico field, and development is just fairly begun. We offer an exceptionally attractive investment in the stock of a conservative Company, just organized, which controls 3500 acres, in the midst of the big producing section of the field. We are certain we can convince any one of the merits of the enterprise, and we want you to

INVESTIGATE

It will only cost you two cents to secure maps, booklet, and full description of what we have to offer. The stock is being sold for the purpose of drilling the property. Oil is now being produced on all four sides of this property. We will give you every opportunity to investigate the proposition itself and the officers in charge of its affairs. WRITE US for full information.

given in the Grand Trunk Railway Pavilion daily, and since the opening of the Festival, May 21st last, 720 shows have been put on, each one of which has been attended by hundreds of people.

The building in which the exhibits are installed, is a replica of the magnificent new station that the Grand Trunk have erected at Ottawa, and its ornate design, and classic lines of architecture, has elicited admiration from all who have seen it.

The general exhibit is one of the best that the Grand Trunk have installed, compared to all those at the big exhibitions of recent years, and the company were gratified a few days ago, to learn that they had received the highest honors from the Jury of Awards by the award of two "Grande Prix" for their endeavours.

The Grand Trunk Exhibit in London this year is a splendid advertisement for the Dominion of Canada.

A De Luxe Booklet.

The railways of the American Continent vie with each other in producing their publications in artistic and attractive style and the Grand Trunk have received the palm from connoisseurs for being the leaders in this direction. With their usual taste they have just issued a very handsome brochure slightly different to the ordinary run of railway booklets, inasmuch as there is not any descriptive matter in the publication, but it is a book of views that tell their story without words. The name of this unique piece of advertising is simply "Vistas" with the Grand Trunk trade mark on one corner of the cover. The cover itself is a reproduction in colors from a painting of "The International Limited" the finest and fastest train in Canada. Inside the book are found maps of the Grand Trunk Railway system and the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway and a series of sixty-one pictures of Canadian scenes. These pictures are reproduced in the finest of half tone process from direct photographic negatives and printed on high class coated paper. The booklet is a credit to the Company.

A Splendid Display.

In connection with the Grand Trunk Exhibit at the Festival of Empire, Crystal Palace, London, England, further advices dated September 12th have been received from London regarding the awards that were given to the Grand Trunk, and the Grand Trunk Pacific, and it is gratifying to know that these companies have received four "Grand Prix" for their splendid display, instead of two that were announced in the cable received on Sept. 1st.

These awards have been made under the following:—"Arts and Crafts"; "Engineering, Lighting, and Transportation"; and "Building Trades"; also "Advertising." This is considered by the Companies named as a great honor, as other railways exhibiting at the Exhibition have only received one award.

The official report from the Grand Trunk representative at this Exhibition, for week ending September 9th, shows that the number of persons visiting the Grand Trunk Pavilion was 21,186, bringing the attendance up to September 9th to 279,942 people.

Real Estate, Mining and Industrial Investments

HOW $100 GREW TO $31620

The value and importance of any enterprise must be based on the profits and dividends it can earn. In this respect the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, is without a parallel in the line of investments.

It combines the attractive factors which are needed to make the perfect investment—viz., safety, large earning capacity and low cost of the stock at the start. It is not at all uncommon for oil stocks to begin at a few cents a share,and jump to hundreds of dollars a share—sometimes thousands.

	Started at	Has Sold at
Central	10 cents	$2.10
Monte Cristo	10 cents	$4.00
Lucile	10 cents	$16.00
Silver Tip	25 cents	$4.00
San Francisco and McKittrick	40 cents	$28.00
Kern River	50 cents	$8.75
Peerless	50 cents	$8.75
Puente	$10.00	$150.00
Home	$10.00	$5000.00

This list, taken from San Francisco and Los Angeles Stock Exchange records, could be added to almost indefinitely.

Fortunes have been made from stock increases. stock is $200, YOUR YEARLY PROFIT ON AN INVESTMENT OF $300.

When we have ten wells sunk you can reasonably figure on AN ANNUAL PROFIT ON YOUR HOLDINGS OF $2000.

$2000 A YEAR. DOESN'T THIS APPEAL

Many a case could be cited similar to that of Richard Ellis, clerk in a store in Los Angeles, whose investment of $100 became worth $31,620 in a short time. There are hundreds of such cases in Los Angeles alone.

$2000.00 Profit a Year

Do you realise that stock in the Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company, Limited, at the present price of 30 cents a share is not merely the opportunity of the year—IT IS THE OPPORTUNITY OF A LIFETIME.

If you have $10, $50, $100 or $500 YOU SIMPLY CAN NOT AFFORD TO PASS IT UP.

If we develop only a 1000 barrel well of 26 gravity oil, this production alone will be sufficient to enable the corporation to pay a dividend of 20 per cent. and at the same time have sufficient capital to continue the drilling of wells.

1000 shares of stock at the present price of 30c costs only $300.

20 per cent. dividend on the par value of the TO YOU? Wouldn't you like to be coming up to this office every three months and getting your dividend cheque for $500?

Remember, too, that your stock holdings in Midway Maple Leaf, if you should want to sell them should be worth $18,000 or sixty times the amount of your original investment.

Consider These Facts

The Midway Maple Leaf Oil Company is working in proven gusher territory, the richest oil zone in the world, controlling 40 acres on one-eighth royalty, with the great advantage of the option to purchase at only $1250 per acre after oil is struck, and the ground must then be worth at least $5000 per acre. This means a clean profit of $150,000 over purchase price. It has been demonstrated completely by gushers on adjoining Standard and Honolulu ground, that this portion of the Midway field is not only the richest portion of the whole district, but that it produces the highest grade of oil found in the entire vicinity, and worth 80 per cent. more per barrel at the well.

$30 cash, or $6 down and $6 a month for four months, buys 100 shares.

$60 cash, or $12 down and $12 a month for four months, buys 200 shares.

$120 cash, or $24 down and $24 a month for four months, buys 400 shares.

$480 cash, or $96 down and $96 a month for four months, buys 1600 shares.

A CHANCE TO MAKE MONEY IN VANCOUVER REALTY

Investors seeking an opportunity to secure large returns for their money will find an exceptional chance offered by Keith Park Land Co., Limited, of Vancouver, B. C. This company has placed on the market for immediate sale the choicest piece of property on the North Shore.

This tract known as Keith Park, D. L. 676, lies at the junction of the Pipe line Road, (owned by the city of Vancouver) and the Keith Road and is the junction point for North side traffic.

The Second Narrows Bridge, which is to connect Vancouver and North Vancouver will be constructed so that Keith Park will be in the line of its northern end.

It is confidentially expected that a new town will be created at this point. Dominion, Provincial and Municipal subsidies to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars have already been secured for the bridge project and plans are now being drawn for the bridge. It is expected that actual workwill be started within the next ninety days

Keith Park presents the best chance to buy ahead of the important municipal and government projects that are planned for the North Side. It will stand the most critical investigation.

Full information and maps supplied upon request. Lots range in price from $200 upwards. Terms one-quarter cash, balance in six equal quarterly payments.

THE LOST SODOM AND GOMORRAH

Searchers Fail to Locate the Sites of the Cities that Were Consumed by Brimstone Showers but Exploration Still Proceeds.

To the majority, perhaps the Dead Sea is invariably associated with Sodom and Gomorrah. No one knows exactly where these cities stood. They have been variously placed at the north end, on the west side, at the south end, and on the east side of the Dead Sea. Popular tradition has always most conveniently pointed to the north shore the place visited by tourists and pilgrims from Jerusalem, as the site. No less an authority than Canon Tristram, however, places the site on the east side. At Callirrhoe, on the east side, there is certainly palpable evidences of volcanic upheaval, not to mention the combustible substances in sulphur, bitumen, and possibly oil that might have played a part in the overthrow of these ancient cities. The Zerka — a stream almost as great as the Arnon and amid surroundings of much the same character, but having a small plain on the seashore that might very well be cultivated — flows into the sea some fifteen minutes' journey further north from Callirrhoe. Here, as elsewhere, the wild oleander with its beautiful pink flower is abundant, also the reed with its feathery tuft or bloom "shaken by the wind," and referred to by Christ; also the willow, the Tamarisk, and the "Ghuraf," a pretty-looking wild fruit much like a cherry. Mount Nebo, from which Moses viewed the Promised Land, is about opposite the north end of the sea, on the tablelands, and Medaba about ten miles inland, in a straight line. Between Medaba and Kerak, before crossing the River Arnon, lies the ancient Dibon, where was discovered the historic Moabite Stone. At the south end of the Dead Sea is the open country, the Bible "Araba", with only one slight rise above sea-level, which fact gave rise to the wild scheme of connecting the waters of the Mediterranean and the Red Seas, thus furnishing the English with an alternate route to India, in case someone shut off the Suez Canal.

May Develop Into An Important Industry.

The ever increasing demand and the diminishing supply of sturgeon caviar led fishermen of eastern Siberia to experiment with salmon roe, which has not only been considered useless for human consumption but had even been looked upon as injurious to health.

Up to 1907 the fishermen in the neighborhood of Nicolaevsk considered salmon roe as valueless, but from that time it was demonstrated that caviar could be made so as to prove commercially profitable and of such a quality that although it cannot compare with the taste of the sturgeon caviar it is nevertheless a great delicacy.

Vast quantities of salmon roe are annually destroyed in Alaska, as they have discovered no means of preserving it, and should a taste be created for caviar of this kind it would develop into a very important industry. The limited supply of sturgeon caviar and the consequent high price places it beyond the reach of many who enjoy such delicacies, whereas salmon caviar could take its place and be practically within the reach of all.

The Grand Trunk Railway System has in course of construction at the Turcot Works of Canada Car and Foundry Co., 1000 steel underframe box cars, delivery will be commenced about October 1st., and the whole consignment will be completed this year. These cars are of 60,000 lbs. capacity, and incorporate all latest improvements in car construction.

THE COMFORT OF INDEPENDENCE ASSURED THE B. C. FRUIT GROWER

In British Columbia Fruit Growing is synonymous with Success. The fame of the five-acre fruit farms of the Fraser Valley is spreading to every corner of this continent. Already "Fruit" suggests the Pacific Coast, soon it will direct the thoughts instinctively to British Columbia, particularly to the lower Fraser River Valley.

FLESHERTON GARDENS, which I am now selling, is the cream of this Valley land. The soil is a rich deep chocolate, humous and friable, free from weeds, stones or stumps. Good roads lead to the property and two railways are ready to carry the fruit to market. The Chilliwack line of the B. C. Electric Railway CUTS THROUGH FLESHERTON GARDENS, and the Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern is only a few yards away. Over a dozen trains pass the property every day, and the traffic will increase in the immediate future.

BIG PROFITS IN FRUITS AND VEGETABLES.

Do you know that you can make immense profits in fruits, tubers and vegetables on the Coast? To-day last year's potatoes are selling at $70 a ton in Seattle, only a few miles from here. In Westminster and Vancouver the price is from $60 to $65 a ton. Cherries fetch 50c a pound and strawberries 25c a box. All other fruits are high in proportion. Remember these are NOT FANCY PRICES, but to-day's quotations. There is no difficulty in selling the fruit, for people here have the money and don't mind the price.

IT'S EASY TO SECURE THE LAND

I have placed FLESHERTON GARDENS on the market on very easy terms, $200 cash and the balance spread over several years. You can have your pick of these five acre farms at from $150 to $350 per acre. You cannot find a better investment anywhere; no matter how rosy other prospects may be, this one leads them all.

Sign this blank, and mail it to me NOW. I can tell you a great deal more about FLESHERTON GARDANS in a personal letter. It's to your advantage to get all the information you can.
